A Vppon the thyrd daye I sat vnder an oke tre, then cam there a voice vnto me oute of the bush/and sayde: Es dras, Esdras. And I said:
here am I Lord, & stod vp vpon my fete.
Then spake he vnto me: In ẏ bush dyd I appeare vnto Moses, and talked w him, when my people serued in Egypt, and I sent hym and led my people oute of Egipte, and brought him vppon the mount Sion, where I held him by me a long season, and tolde him my wonde rous workes, and shewed him the secre tes of the tymes and the ende and com maunded him, sayinge: These wordes shalt thou declare, ād not hide thē. And now I saide vnto the, that thou laie vp in thine hert the dreames that ẏ hast se ne, and ẏ interpretacions whych I haue shewed the: for thou shalt be receaued of al, thou shalt be turned, and remayne with my councell, and wyth suche as be lyke ẏ, vntil the tymes be ended. For the worlde hath lost hys youth, and the ty mes begynne to waxe olde. For the ty me is diuided into twelue partes, & ten partes of it are gone already, and halfe of the tenth parte: yet remayneth there that, which is after the halfe of the tenth parte.

Therfore prepare and ordre thy house B and reforme thy people: comforte suche of them as be in trouble: and tell nowe of the destruction: let go from thee mor tall thoughtes: cast awaye the burthēs of man: put of the weake nature: lay vp in some places the thoughtes, that are moost heuy vnto thee/and haste the to flye from these tymes: for such euel and wickednesse as thou hast now sene hap pen, shall they do yet muche worse. For the weaker that the worlde and the ty me is/the more, shal synne and wicked nes increase, in them that dwell vppon earth. For the trueth is fled farre away, and lesinge is hard at hande. For nowe hasteth the vision to com, that thou hast sene.

Then answered I, and sayde: Be holde Lorde, I wyll go as thou haste commaunded me/and reforme the peo ple whych are presēt. But they that shall be borne afterwarde, whoo wyll enforme or rebuke them? Thus the worlde is set in darckenes, and they that dwell ther in, are wythout lyght: for thy lawe is kyndled, because no man knoweth the thynges that are donne of thee, or that shalbe done. If I haue founde grace be fore thee, sende the holygoost into me, & I shall wryte, all that hath bene donne in the worlde sence the beginninge, wh ich was wrytten in thy lawe, that menne maye fynde the path, and that they whi ch wyl lyue in the latter dayes, maye ly ue.

And he answered me, sayinge: Goo C thy waye, gather thy people together, and saye vnto them, that they seke thee not for .xl. dayes, but looke thou gather the many boxe trees, and take wyth the Sarea, Dabria, Selemia, Echanus & Asiel, these fyue, which are redy to wryte swyftly and come hither, and I shal ly ght a candle of vnderstādyng in thyne herte which shal not be put out/tyl the thinges be refourmed/which thou shalt begyn to wryte. And then shalt you decla re some thinges openly vnto the perfect and som thynges shalt thou shew secret ly vnto the wyse. To morow this houre shalt thou begynne to wryte.

Then went I forth (as he commaūded me) ād gathered al the people together, and sayde: Heare these words O Israel: Our fathers from the begynnynge were strangers in Egypt, from whence they were delyuered, and receaued thee lawe of lyfe, whiche they kepte not, why che ye also haue transgressed after them.
Then was thys lande and the lande of Siō parted amōg you bi lot to possesse.
But your fathers and ye your selues al so haue don vnrighteousnes, and haue not kepte the wayes whych the Hyest commaunded you. And for so moch as he is a ryghtuous iudge, he toke from you in tyme the thynge yt he had geuen you. And now are ye here, and youre brethren amonge you. Therfore, yf so be that ye wyl subdue your owne vnder standynge, and refourme youre herte, ye shall be kepte alyue, and after death shall ye optayne mercy. For after death shall the iudgment come, when we shal lyue agayne: and then shall the names of the righteous be manifest, and the na mes of the vngodly with their workes shal be declared. Let no man therfore come now vnto me, nor aske eny question at me these .xl. dayes.
D So I toke the fyue men as he com maunded me) and we went into the feld, and remayned there. The nexte daye, a voise called me/saying: Esdras, opē thy mouthe, and drincke that I geue thee.
Then opened I my mouth, and behold he reached me a ful cuppe, which was ful of water, but ye colour of it was like fier.
And I toke it and dronke And when I had dronken it, my harte had vnderstā dyng and wysdome grewe in my brest: for my spirete was kept in remembraū ce, and my mouth was opened and shut nomore. The Hyest gaue vnderstādyng vnto the fyue men yt they wrote ye hye thī ges of the nyght, which thei vnderstod not

But in the nyghte they ate bred: as for me/ I spake in the daye, and held not my tonge by night. In .xl. dayes they wrote two hondreth and .iiii. bokes.
And it happened when the .xl. daies were fulfilled, that the Hyest spake, sai ynge: The fyrst that thou hast wrytten, speake openly, that the worthy and vnworthy maye reade it. But kepe the .lxx. last, yt you mayest shew it only to such as be wyse amonge the people. For in them is the sprynge of vnderstandyng, ye foū tayne of wysdom/and the streame of kn owledge. And I dyd so.

¶ The punishment that euel people shal haue, whi ch god commaundeth Esdras to shew vnto them.

The .xv. Chapter.

BEholde, speake thou in the eares of my people ye wor-des of prophecy, whyche I A wyl put in thy mouth, sayeth the lorde: and cause thē to be written in a letter/for it is the tru eth. Feare not the ymmagynacions agaynste thee, lett not the vnfaythful-nesse of theym trouble thee, that speake agaynste thee.
For all the vnfaythfull shal dye in their vnfaythfulnes. Beholde sayth the Lord/I wyll bringe plages vpon the worlde, the swerde/honger, death and destruction, for wickednes hath the vpperhand in all the earth, & theyr shamful workes are fulfylled.
Therfore sayeth the Lorde: I wyll holde my tonge nomore vnto theyr wic kednes, which they do so vngodly: nerther wyll I suffre them in the thinges that they deale wyth all so wyckedly.
Beholde, the Innocent bloude of the troubled crieth vnto me, ye soules of ye Righteous complayne Continuallye/and therfore (sayeth the LORDE) I wyll surely auenge, and receaue vn to me all the innocente bloude from amonge them.
Beholde, my people, is led as a flocke of shepe to be slayne, I wyll not suf fre theym nowe to dwel in Egipte, but wyll bringe them out with a myghti han de and a stretched out arme, and smite it wyth plages as afore, ād wyll destroy all the lande of it. Egipte shal mourne, and the foundacions of it shalbe smitte wyth the plage and punishemente, that God shal bring vpon it.

They that tyl the ground, shal mourne: for their sedes shal be destroied thorow ye blastyng ād hayle, and horryble starre Wo worth the worlde & them that dwel therin, for ye swerde & their destructiō draweth nye, and one people shal stande vp to fyght agaynst another, and swerdes in their handes. For man shalbe vnsted fast and some shall do vyolence vnto other: they shal not regarde their kynge and princes, the waies of their doinges and handelinges in their power. A man shal desier to go in to the citie, and shal not be able. For because of ther pryde ye cytes shalbe brent in feare/ the houses shal shake, and men shalbe afrayed. A mā shal haue no pyty vpon his neibour but one shal prouoke another vnto batayl to spoyle their goodes because of ye honger of bred, and because of ye great trouble.

¶ Beholde, I gather and cal together all the kynges of the earth which are from the vprysyng, from the South, from ye East, and Lybanus to turne vnto thē, and restore the thiges that they haue geuen them. Lyke as they do yet this daie vnto my chosen, so wyl I do also, and recompēse them in their bosom. Thus sayeth the Lorde God My ryght hand shal not spare the synners, & my swerde shal not ceasse ouer them, that shed the innocent blode vpon earth. The fyre is gone out from his wrath, and hath consumed the foundacions of the earthe, & the synnes lyke the strawe that is kyndled. Wo worth them that synne/ & kepe not my commaundedementes/ sayth the Lorde: I wyl not spare them. Go youre waye ye children from vyolence defyled not my Sanctuary: for the Lord knoweth al them that synne agaynst hi, and therfore delyuerethe he them vnto death and destruccyon: For now are the plages come vpon the worlde, and yet shal remayn in them. For God shal not delyuer you, because ye haue synned agaynst him.

Beholde, an horrible vysion commeth from the East, where generatiōs so Dragons shal come out, and the people of ye Arabes wyth many charettes/ and the multitude of them shalbe as the wynde vpon earth, that all they whych heare the raging in their wrath, may feare & be afrayede: and as the wylde bores of the wod, so shal they go out and with greate power shall they come, and stande fyghtinge wyth them, and shall waste the porcyon of the lande of the Assyrians.

And then shall the Dragons haue the vpperhande, not remembrynge theyr byrthe, and shal turne about swearinge together in greate power, to persecute them. But these shalbe afraied, and kepe sylence at theyr power, and shal fle and one out of the lande of the Assyrians shal besege them, and consume one of them, and in theyr host shall be feare and dreade, and stryfe amounge theyre kynges.

Beholde cloudes from the east, and from the north vnto the south, and they are very horrybe to loke vppon, full of wrath and storm. They shall smyte one vppon an other, and they shall smyte at the great starre vpon earth and their starre, and the bloude shall be from the swerde vnto the bely/ and the smoke of mā vnto the camels lytter: And ther shal be great fearfulnes and trembling vpō earth/ and they that se the wrath, shalbe afrayde, and a tremblynge shall come vpon them.

And then shall there come great raynes from the south and from the north, and parte from the weste, and from the stormy wynde from the Easte, and shall shut theym vp agayne, and the cloude whych he raysed vpp in wrath, and the starre to cause fere toward ye east & west wynde shalbe destroyed: and the greate cloudes shall be lyfte vp, and the myghtie cloudes ful of wrath and the starre, that they may make all the earth afrayed and them that dwel therin and that they maye poure oute ouer all places an horryble starre fyre and hayle and flyeng swerdes, ād many waters, that all feldes maye be full, and all ryuers and they shall breke downe the cities and walles mountaynes and hylles all trees wod and the grasse of the medowes & al their frutes. And they

stedfast vnto Babilon, and make her a frayde, they shal come to her and besege her: the sterre of all wrath shal they po-ure oute vppon her.
Then shal the dust and smoke go G vp vnto the heuen, and al they that be aboute her shall bewayle her: and they that remayne vnder her, shal do seruice vnto the that haue put her in fere. And thou Asia that comfortest thy selfe also vppon the hope of Babylon, and art a worshyp of her personne: Wo be vnto thee thou wrath, because thou hast made thy selfe lyke vnto her, and hast dect thy daughters in whordom, y they myghte tryumphe and please thy louers, whych haue alwaye desired to commyt whor-dome wyth thee: thou hast folowed the abhomynable cytie in al her workes & inuencyons.
Therfore sayeth god: I wyl sende plages vpon the, wyddowhode, pouer-te, honger, warres / & pestilence to wast thy houses with destruccion and death: and the glory of thy power shall be dry-ed vp as a floure, when the heate aryseth that is sent ouer thee. Thou shalt be syck as a poore wife that is pla-ged and beaten of wemen: so that the myghtye and louers shall not be able to receaue thee. Woulde I so hate thee say eth the Lorde? If thou haddest not al-waye slayne my chosen, exaltyng the stroke of thy handes, and sayd ouer their death / when thou wast dronken: set forth the bewty of thy countenaunce.
The rewarde of thy whordome shalbe recompenced the in thy bosom, therfore shalt thou receaue rewarde.
Lyke as thou hast done vnto my cho H sen (sayeth the Lord) euen so shal God do vnto thee, and shal delyuer thee into the plage. Thy children shal dye of hon-ger, and thou shalt fal thorow y swerd.
Thy cities shalbe broken downe / and al thyne shal perish with the swerd in the felde. They y be in the mountaines shal dye of honger and eate their owne flesh and drynke their owne bloud for very honger of bred & thirst of water. Thou vnhappye shalt com thorow the sea, and receaue plages agayne.
In the passage they shal cast dow ne the slaine citie / and shal rote oute the part of the lande, and consume the por cion of thy glory. They shall treade the downe lyke stubble, & they shalbe thy fi re, & shal consume thee, thy cities & thy lande, thy wod, and thy frutefull trees / shall they burne vp wyth fyre. Thy chil deren shall they carye awaye captiue, and looke what thou hast, they shall spoyle it, & marre the bewty of thy face.
¶ The heathen shalbe punished.

Wo be vnto thee Babylon A and Asia, wo be vnto thee Egypt and Siria: gyrde your selues wyth Clothes of sacke & hearre, & mour-ne for your chylderen, be sory / for your destruction is at hande. A swerd is set among you and who wyll turne it bac ke? A fyre is kindled amonge you, and who wyll quenche it? Plages are sent vnto you, and what is he that wyl dry-ue the awaye? Maye any man dry-ue awaye, an hongry lyon in the wode?
Or may any man quench the fyre in y stubble, whā it hath begonne to burne?
Maye one turne agayne the arow that is shot of a stronge archer? The myghty Lorde sendeth the plages / ād what is he that wyl dryue them awaye? The fy re is kindled / & gon forth in his wrath and what is he that wyl quench it? He shall cast lyghtenynges, & who shal not feare? He shall thondre and who shall not be afrayd? The Lord shal threate, & who shal not vtterli be bet to pouder at his presence, y earth quaketh & y fou dacions therof: the sea ariseth vp with waues from the depe, and the floudes of it are vnquiet, and the fysshes therof al so before the Lorde, and before the glory of hys power. For stronge is his rig ht hand that holdeth the bowe, hys aro wes that he shuteth, are sharpe, & shall not mysse, when they begyn to be shott into the endes of the worlde. B Beholde the plages are sent, and shal not turne agayne, tyll they come vpō ȳ earth. The fyre is kyndled, and shall not be put oute / tyl it consume the fon dacions of the earth. Lyke as an arow whiche is shot of a myghtye archer, re turneth not backe warde: euen so the plages that shalbe sent vpon earthe / shal not turne agayne. Wo is me, wo is me, who wyl delyuer me in those dayes? The begynnyng of sorowes and great mournig: the begynnyg of dearth and great dearth: the beginning of warres, and the powers shal stande in feare: ye begynnynge of euels, and they shall tremble euery one. What shall I do in these thinges, when ye plages come? Behold, honger / and plage / trouble and anguish are sent / as scourges for amendement. But for al these thinges they shall not turne from their wickednesses, ner be alwaye myndeful of the scourges.

Beholde, vytayles shal be so good cheape vpon earth / that they shal thinck C them selues to be in good case: & euẽ the shal myschefe grow vpõ earth / warre / derth and greate disquietnes. For many of them that dwel vpon earth shal perish of honger, and the other that escape the daũger, shal the swerde destroye: and ye deed shalbe cast out as donge, and there shalbe no man to cõfort theym. For the erth shalbe wasted, & ye cytyes shalbe cast doune: ther shalbe no man lefte to tyll ye earth, and to sowe it. The trees shal geue frute, and who shal plucke them of & gather them? The grapes shalbe rype, & who shal treade them? For all places shalbe desolate of man, so that no man shal desire to se another, or to heare hys voyse. For of one hole citie there shalbe ten left, and two in the felde, which shal hyde them selues in the thycke boushes and in the clyfes of stones: lyke as whẽ there remayned thre or foure olyues vpon the olyue tre, or as when a vyneyard is gathered, there are left some grapes, of them that diligently sought thorow ye vyniarde:

Euen so in those days there shalbe thre
D or foure left, for them that search their houses with the swerde. And the earthe shal be left wast, and thee feldes therof shal ware olde: ãd her wayes and al her pathes shal grow ful of thornes, because no man shall trauayle there thorowe. The daughters shal mourne, hauig no brydegromes: the women shall make lamentacyon, hauing no housbãdes, their daughters shal mourne hauyng no helpe of their bridegrome. In thee warres shal they be destroyed, and their husbandes shal perish of hunger.

O ye seruauntes of the Lorde, heare these thynges, and marck them: behold the worde of the Lorde, O receaue it: beholde, the plages draw nye and are not slacke in tarienge. Lyke as a trauaylyng womã, which after the .ix. moneth bryngeth forth a sonne, when the houre of the byrthe is come, an houre two or thre afore that the paynes come vpon her body, and when the chylde cõmeth to the byrth, they tary not the twyncklynge of an eye: Euen so shall not the plages be slack to come vpõ earth, and the world shal mourne, and sorowes shal com vpon it on euery side.

O my people, heare my worde, make you ready to the batayle: and in al euell be ye euen as pilgrems vpon earth. He E that selleth, let him be as he that flyeth his waye: and he that bieth, as one that wyl lese. Who so occupieth marchaundies, as he that winneth not: and he that buyldeth, as he that shal not dwel therin: he that soweth as one that shal not reape: he that twysteth the vyne yeard, as he that shal not gather the grapes: thei that mary, as they that shall get no chyldren: And they that marye not, as the wyddowes: and they that laboure, laboure in vayne. For straungers shal reape their frutes, and spoyl their goodes; ouerthrow their houses, and take their children captiue, and in captiuytie and honger shal they get children.

And they that occuppe theyr marchaundice / wyth robbery / the lounge decke they theyr cities, theyr houses, theyr possessions, and persounes, the more wyll I punish them for theyr synnes, sayeth the Lorde. Lyke as an whore enuieth a honest womã, so shal ryghtousnes hate iniquitie, & when she decketh her selfe, & shall accuse her to her face, when he commeth that defendeth, which shal make inquisicion for all synne vpon earth. And therfore be not ye lyke therunto, nor to the workes therof: for or euer it be lõg, iniquitye shall be taken away out of ye earth, and righteousnes shall rayne among you.

Let not the synner saye, that he hath F not synned, for coles of fyre shall burne vpon hys head, whych sayth before the Lord

Lorde god and his glorye: I haue not synned. Beholde, the Lord knoweth all the worckes of men/ their ymaginacyons, their thoughtes and their hertes. For he spake but the worde: let y earth be made, and it was made: let the heauẽ be made and it was made. In his worde were the starres made, and he knoweth the nombre of them. He searcheth y grounde of the depe, and the treasures therof: he hath measured the sea, a what it conteyneth. He hath shut the sea i the middest of the waters, ãd with his worde hath he hanged the earth vppon the waters. He spredeth out the heauẽ lyke a vawte, vpon the waters hath he founded it. In the desert and drye wildernes hath he made springes of water, ãd pooles vpon the toppe of the mountaynes, that the floudes myght poure downe from the stony rockes to water the earth. He made man, and put hys herte in the myddest of the body, and gaue hym breth lyfe and vnderstandinge/ yea ãd the sprete of the Almightie god, whych made al thinges, and hath searched the grounde of al the secretes of the earth.

C He knoweth your imagynacons a inuencyons, and what ye thincke when ye synne/ and wolde hyde your synnes. Therfore hath the Lord serched and sought out al youre worckes, and he shal bewraye you all. And when youre synnes are brought forthe/ ye shalbe ashamed before men and your owne synnes shalbe youre accusers in that daye. What wyl ye doe? Or how wyll ye hyde your synnes before God and hys Angels? Beholde God him selfe is the Judge, feare him, leaue of from youre Synnes and forgette youre Unrightousnesses, and medle nomore with thẽ: so shal god leade you forth, and deliuer you from al trouble. For behold y heate of a greate multitude is kyndled ouer you, a they shal take awaye certen of you/ a feade y idle wt Idols: ãd they that consent vnto them shalbe had in derysiõ, and laughed to scorne, and trodẽ vnder fote.

D For vnto y places ther shalbe a place, and in the nexte cyties a greate insurrection vpon those that feare the lorde. They shall be lyke mad men, they shall spare no man: they shal spoyl and wast suche as feare the Lorde, theyr goodes shall they take from theym, and shutte them out of theyr houses. Then shal it be knowen who are my chosen, ãd they shalbe tryed as the gold in the fyre. Heare O ye my beloued, sayeth the Lorde: behold, the dayes of trouble are at hãd, but I wyl delyuer you from the same. Be not ye afrayde, dispayre not, for god is youre captayne.

Who so kepeth my commaundementes and preceptes (sayth the Lord god) let not your synnes weye you downe/ a let not your vnrightuousnesses be lifte vp. Wo be vnto them that are subdued vnto theyr sinnes, and tangled in their wickednesses: Lyke as a feld is hedged in with busshes, and the path therof couered wyth thornes, that noman maye trauell thorow: and so is he taken, and cast in the fyre, and brent.

The ende of the .iiii. boke of Esdras.

The boke of Tobiah.

C Tobiah being taken prysoner, forsaketh not y lawe of truth. The mercy and charitie of Tobiah, and the maners of him in hys youth. He taketh Annah to wyfe, by whom he hath a sonne named Tobiah. He succoureth Gabell for mony. He and hys are fayne to fly, but after the death of Senacherib they returne agayne.

The fyrst Chapter.

A TObiah was of the Trybe and Citie of Nephtaly, which lyeth in the hye cõtrees of Galile aboue Naason the waye towarde the weste, hauinge the citie of Sephet vpon the left syde.

Though he was taken prysoner in the dayes of Salmanasar kynge of the Assirians, neuertheles, being in captiuite, he forsoke not the way of trueth: In so muche, that what soeuer he myght gete, he parted it dayly wt his felow presoners a brethren that were of his kinred. And though he were yonger then al in the tribe of Nephtaly, yet dyd not he behaue hym selfe chyldeshlye in hys workes. And whe al the other wente to the golden calues, whiche Jeroboham the kynge of Israel had made, he hym selfe alone fled of their companies/and gat him to Jerusalem vnto the temple of the Lorde, and there worshipped the Lorde God of Israel, faythfully offe ryng of al hys first frutes and tithes, so that in the thirde yeare he mynystred al the tythes vnto the straungers and con uertes. These and soch like thiges dyd he according to the lawe of God whe he was but yonge.

C But when he was a man, he toke out of his owne tribe a wyfe called Anna, & of her he begat a sonne, whome he called after his owne name/& taught hym frō his youthe vp, to feare God/and to re frayne from al synne.

Now when he with his wyfe, his sonne and wt al his kynred was come in capti uite vnto Nynyue what tyme as they al ate of the meates of the Heathen, he kep his soule, and was neuer defyled in ther meates. And for so moch as he was mi deful of the lord in al his hart, God ga ue him fauor in the presence of Salma nasar the kyng which gaue him powere to go where he wolde, and so had he ly bertie to do what he lyst.

So wente Tobiah vnto all thē that were in preson/and comforted them/& D gaue them wholsome exortacyons. And whē he came to rages a citie of the Me des, hauing ten talentes of siluer (of the thinges wherwith the kynge had hono red him) and sawe amonge a greate cō pany of people of his kynred, one Gabe lus (which was of his owne trybe) beig in necessite, he gaue him the said weight of syluer vnder hand wrytyng.

After a longe season when Salma nasar the kyng was deed, and Senna herib hys sonne reygnede in his steade, whiche hated the childrē of Israel. To biah went dayly thorow out al hys kyn red, and comforted them & gaue of hys goodes to euery one of them, as moche as he myght: he fed the hongrie, clothed the naked, and buried the deed & slain, and that dylygently.

And when Sennaherib the kynge ca me agayn and fled out of Jewry (what tyme as God punyshed him for his blas phemy) and in hys wrath slew e manye of the chyldern of Israell, Tobiah bu ryed theyr bodies. But when it was tol de the kynge, he commaunded to slay hī and toke away all his goodes. Neuer theles Tobyah with hys sonnes and with his wyfe, fled hys waye, and was hyd naked, for there were many that lo ued hym. But after .xlv. dayes, the kīg was slayne of hys owne sunnes. Thē ca me Tobyah againe to his house, and al his goodes restored vnto hym.

¶ Tobiah biddeth such of his frendes as feare god, to a banket or feast. He is reproued of hys frendes. He feareth god more then the king. He becommeth blynde by the permission and sufferaunce of God. His kinsfolke mocke hym.

The .ii. Chapter.

After these thynges vpon a solempne daye, of the Lorde Tobiah made a good feast A in hys House, and sayde vnto his sonne: Go thy way and bryng hether som of our trybe such as feare god, that they maye make me rye wt vs. And when he was gon, he ca me agayne, and tolde hys father that o ne of the chylderen of Israell laye slain vpon the strete. And immediatly he lepe from his table, left the feaste, came fas ting to the ded corse, toke him and bare hym preuely into hys house that when the sunne was downe, he myght safely bury hym. And when he had hyd the cor se, he ate his meate wyth mournynge & feare, remembring the wordes that ẏ Lord sayth by the prophet Amos: your hye feastes shalbe turned to sorowe and heuynes.

But when the sunne was downe he B wente hys waye and buried him. Then all hys neyghbours reproued hym, sey ynge, It is not longe sens it was com maunded to slay the because of thys ma ter and hast scarce escaped the daunger of death, & buriest thou the ded agai Neuertheles Tobiah fearing god more then the kynge, toke the bodies of the slayne, hyd them in his house and buri ed them at mydnight.

It happened vpon a daye/ẏ he had buryed the ded and was wery, came ho me

the/ & layde hym downe by þ wall & slept.
And while he was a slepe, there fel dow ne vpon hys eyes warme dong oute of þ swalowes nest, so that he was blynde.
Thys temptacyon dyd God suffer to happen vnto hym, that they which came after, might haue an example of his pacience, like as of holy Iob. For in so muche as he euer feared god from hys youth vp and kept hys commaunde-mentes, he was not heuy agaynst god, that the plage of blindnes chanced vnto hym, but remayned stedfast in the fea re of God, and thancked god al the dai es of his lyfe.

For like as blessed Iob was had i D derysion of kinges, euen so was he lau ghed to scorne of his elders ãd kinsfol-kes, whych sayde vnto hym: Where is thy hope for the which thou hast don al mes and buried the dead? But Tobiah rebuked them, and spake: sai not so, for we are the children of holye men/ & loke for the lyfe, which God shall geue vnto them, that neuer turne their lyfe frõ hi.
Anna his wyfe went dayly to the weeuynge worcke/ and loke what lyuynge she coulde get wyth the laboure of her handes/ she broght it. And it happened that she toke a kyd and broght it home.

And when her husband herde it crie he sayde: Loke that it be not stolne, restore it agayne to the owners: for yt ys not lawful for vs, to eate or to touch any thynge of theft. Then was his wife angry and sayde: Now is thy hope become vaine opẽly, and thy almes dedes are manyfest. With these and such like wordes dyd she cast him in the tethe.

¶ The praier of Tobiah. Sara the daghter of Ra-guel is sclaundred of her fathers seruaunt. The praier & fasting of Sara: And also the innocen cye & chastite of her. The praiers of Tobiah & Sara ar herde.

THen Tobiah toke it heuely and with teares begann to A make his praier sayeng: O Lorde thou art righteous, and al thy iudgmentes are treue yea al thy wayes are mercy, faith fulnes & iudgment. And now O lord be mindful of me/ and take no vengaunce of my synnes, nether remembre my mys-dedes, nether the misdedes of my elders.
For we haue not bene obediẽt vnto thy commaundementes/ therfore are we sp oyled, brought in captiuite/ into death/into derysion and shame vnto al nacyons, amõg whom þ hast scatered vs.
And now O Lord thy iudgmentes ar greate, for we haue done accordynge to thy commaundementes, nether haue we walcked innocetly before the. And now O Lorde, deale wyth me accordynge to thy wyl, & commaũd my sprete to be receaued in peace, for more expedyente were it for me to dye/ then to lyue.
At the same tyme it happened þ Sara the Daughter of Raguell at Rages a B citye of the medes was sclaundrede of one of her fathers hãdmaydes, namely, that she shoulde haue had seuen housbãdes/ which as sone as they were gone in vnto her, were slayne of the deuel called Asmodeus. Therfor when she reproued the mayden for her faute, she answered her, saying: God let vs neuer see sonne nor daughter of þe more vpon erth/ thou kyller of thy husbands. Wilt thou slay me also as thou hast slayne seuen mẽ.
At thys voyce went Sara into an hye chamber of her house, and thre dayes and thre nightes she nether ate, ner drãke, but continued in prayer, & besought God wyth teares, that he wold delyuer her from thys rebuke.

Upon the thyrde daye it chaunced, that when she had made an ende of her prayer, she prarsed the Lorde sayeng: C Blessed be thy name o God of oure fathers, which when thou art wroth, she west mercy, and in the tyme of trouble thou forgeuest the synnes of them, th at call vpon the. Unto the O Lord tur ne I my face, vnto the lyft I vp myne eyes. I besech the O Lord, lowse me out of the boundes of this rebuke, or els take me vtterly awaye from of the earth. Thou knowest Lord, that I ne uer had delyte vnto man, and that I haue kepte my soule cleane from all v ncleanly lust, I haue not kepte compa ny with those that passe their tyme in spoorte, nether haue I made my selfe p artaker wyth them that walcke in ly ghte behauoure. Neuertheles an hou sband haue I consented to take/ not for my pleasure, but in thy feare.

Now peraduenture ether I haue be ne vnworthy of them, or els were they vnmete for me, for thou happlye hast kepte me to an other housband. For whyethy councel is not in ye power of man. But whosoeuer loueth the and serueth the a right, is sure, that yf his lyfe be tempted and proued, it standdeth in the tryeng: and yf he endure in pacience, he shall haue a reward and be hyghly crowned: & if he be in trouble, that God (no doubte) shall dely-uer hym: and if his lyfe be in chastenig, that he shall haue leaue to comme vnto thy mercye.

For thou hast no pleasure in our dã nacion: and whye, after a storme thou makest the wether fayer and styll: after weping and heuynes thou geuest great ioye. Thy name, O God of Israel/be praysed for euer. At the same tyme were both theyr prayers hearde in the syght of the magestye of the hyest God. And ra phael the holy aungel of the Lord was sent to helpe them both, whose prayers came together before God.

¶ Tobiah thinking to dye geueth a godly exhortacion & monicion to hys sonne.

¶ The .iiii. Chapter.

A So when Tobiah thought his prayer to be herde, that he might die/he called vnto him hys sonne Tobiah, and sayde vnto him: My sonne, heare the wordes of my mouth/and laye them in thine hert as a founda cyon. When God taketh awaie my soule, burye thou my bodye, and holde thy mother in honoure all the dayes of her lyfe. For thou oughtest to remembre/what and how grete parels she suf fred for the in her wombe. And whẽ she also hath fulfylled the time of her lyfe, bury her beside me. Haue God in thy thought all the daies of thy life, and bewarre, lest at any time thou consent vn to sinne, and lest thou let slippe the com maundementes of the lord oure god.

Geue almes of thy goodes, ãd turne B neuer thy face from the poore: & so shall it come to passe, that the face of ye Lord shal not be turned a waye from the. Be mercyful after thy power. If thou hast much-geue plẽteousli. if ye haste litel, do thi diligẽce gladly to geue of that lytle, for so gatherest thou thy selfe a goode re warde in the daye of necessytie. For almes delyuereth * from death/& suffreth not the soule to come in darckenes. A greate comforte is allmes before the hie God/vnto all them that do it.

My sonne, kepe the well from all whordom, and (besyde thy wyfe) se that C no falte be knowẽ of ye. Let neuer pride haue rule in thy mynde ner in ye world, for in pride begamne al destruccyon.

Whosoeuer worketh eny thing for the, immediatly geue him his hyer, and loke that thy hyred seruantes wagies re mayn not by the ouer nyght. Loke that thou nether do vnto another man, thee thinge that thou woldeste not another man sholde do vnto the. Eate thy bred with the hongrye and poore, and couer the naked with thy clothes. Set thy bre de and wyne vpon the buryal of ye righ tuous, and do not thou eate and drinke therof with the synners. Aske euer cou cell at the wyse.

Be alwaye thanckful vnto God, and be D seche him/that he wyll ordre thy wayes, and that whatsoeuer thou deuysest or takest in hande/it may remayne in him. I certi fy the also my sonne, that (when thou wast yet but a babe) I delyuered ten talentes of siluer vnto Gabelus, at Rages a cy tie of the Medes, and his hand wrytig haue I by me. And therfore seake som meannes, how thou mayest com bi him, and receaue of him the sayd weight of sil uer, and geue hym hys hand wrytynge agayne.

My sonne/be not afrayed: truth it is, we leade here a poore lyfe: but great good shal we haue, yf we feare God, ãd departe from al synne, and do well.

The Notes.

Some rede from all synne & from deth.

¶ The obedience of young Tobiah to hys father, which is sent into Rages. An Aungel accompanieth with him in his iorney.

The .v. Chapter.

Then answerd Tobiah his fa ther, and sayde: father/all ye A thou hast commanded me/wyl I do, and that diligent ly. But how I shall requyre this mony, I can not tel. Nether doth he knowe me, ner I hym. What toke shal

I geue hi? And as for the waye thether, I neuer knewe it. Then hys father answered hym, and sayde: I haue hys had wrytinge by me, whych when thou she-well hym, immediatly he shall paye the.
But go thy waye nowe, and get thee so me faythfull mā to go wt the for an hyre, that thou mayest receaue the mony/whyle I am yet lyuing.

Then went Tobiah out, and vpon ye streate he founde a fayre yonge manne standing, gyrded vp, as it were one rea dy to take hys iourneye. And he knewe not that it was an aungell of God, but saluted hym/ & sayd: From whence arte thou, ye good yongman? He answered:
Of the chylderen of Israell.

And Tobiah sayde vnto hym: kno-B well thou the waye that leadeth vnto ye countre of the Medes? He answered: I knowe it well/ and all those streates ha ue I gone ofte tymes, and haue lodged wyth oure brother Gabelus that dwelleth in Rages a citie of the Medes/ wh ich lyeth vpon the mount Egabthanis.
Tobiah sayde vnto hym: I praye thee, tary for me, tyll I haue tolde my father these thynges. Then went Tobiah in, & tolde hys father all. At the whych his father marueled/ & prayed that he wol come in vnto hym.

Nowe when the aungel came in, he saluted hym/ and sayde: Ioye be wt the for euermore. And olde Tobiah sayde: what ioye, can I haue that sytte here in C darckenes, and se not the lygt of heauen? The yongman sayde vnto hym: be of good cheare, God shal helpe the shor tly. And Tobiah sayde vnto hym: Canst thou brynge my sonne to Gabelus vnto the citie of Rages in Medea? And whē ye comest agayn I shal pay the thy hire.
And the Aungell sayd vnto him: I shal leade thy sonne, and brynge hym thee a gayn. Then Tobiah answered him: tell me I pray thee/ of what house, or of what trybe art thou?

The Aungell Raphaell sayde vnto hym: Askest ye after the kyndred of an hyrelyng, or sekest thou a gyde for thy Sonne to go wyth hym?
But that I make thee not carefull, I am Azarias the sonne of great Anani as. And Tobiah answered: thou arte come of a greate kynred: but I praye thee, be not displeased, that I desired to know thy kynred. The Aungel said vn to him: thy sonne shal I leade forth sa-felye, and brynge hym whole to thee a-gayne.

Then answered Tobiah, and sayde: well/ god on youre waye, and god be in youre iourney, and his Angel bear you D company. So when they had prepared al thynges, that they wolde take wt thē in their iorney: Tobiah bad his father and his mother fare wel, and they went on their way both together. Now whē they were gone, his mother beganne to wepe/ and sayde: The staff of oure age hast thou taken awaye, and sent him from vs.

Wolde God that moneye had neuer bene, for the whych thou hast sente him awaye. If we had bene contente wt oure pouertie, this had bene greate rich es vnto vs, that we saw oure sonne here.
Then sayd Tobiah vnto her: wepe not, oure sonne shal come to vs agayne safe and sounde/ and thyne eyes shal se him.
For I trust, ye ye good angel of god shal beare him company/ and ordre wel all ye thynges that he doth: so that he shal cō to vs agayne with ioye. At these wor-des his mother lefte of from weppynge, and helde her tonge.

¶ Yong Tobiah is delyuered from the fysh, by the Angel. The Angel exhorteth Tobiah to take Sara to his wife.

SO Tobiah wente on hys waye, and a dogg folowed A hym/ and the fyrst nyghte they abode by the water of Tigris. Then went he out to wash his fete/ and beholde, there came forth an horrible fyshe to deuoure hym. Of whome Tobiah was a frayde, and cryed with a loud voyce, sai ynge: Lorde he commeth vpon me.
And the angell said vnto him: take him by the cheke blade, and draw him to the.
And he dyd so and drewe him vpon the land. And the fyshe beganne to leape at his fete.

Then

Then sayd the Aungel vnto him: Take out the bowels of this fysh, ãd as for the hert, the gal ãd leuer, kepe them B by the. For these things are necessary ãd good for medicyne. Tobyah dyd so, ãd rosted the fysh, and they toke him wt them in their iorney: the resydu they salted, as mech as was sufficient for thẽ, til they came to Rages. Thẽ Tobiah asked the Aungel and sayde vnto him: I praye the brother Azariah, tel me, wher to are these thinges good of the fysh, yt thou hast bidden me kepe?

The Aungel answered him ãd said:
If thou layest a pece of the hert vpon the coals, the smoke ther of dryueth a waye all maner of euel sprites, whether it be from man or from woman, so that from thence forth the same shal cõ nomore vnto them. The gall is good to anoynte or to streke the eyes withal, where as there is eny blemysh in them, C so shal they be whole.

And Tobyah sayde vnto him: wher wylt thou that we remayne? The Aungel answered and saide: Here is a neye kinsmã of thine, one Raguel by name, which hath a daughter called Sara, ãd hath nether sõne ner daughter but her.
Al hys good belongeth vnto the, and yu must mary this daughter: and therfore desyre her of her father, and he shall geue her thee to wyfe. Then aunswered Tobyah and sayde: As I vnderstande, she hath bene maried vnto seuẽ housbã des, and they all are ded: and I haue herde saye, that the deuel slew them.
I am afrayd therfore, lest soch thinges happened vnto me also: which yf it cam to passe (seynge I am the only sonne of my Father and my mother) I shoulde bringe them in their age wyth sorowe to their graues.

Then sayde the Aungel Raphael vn to him: Heare me, and I wyl tell what D they be of whome the deuel hath power.
Namely, they that receaue mariage of soch a fashion, that they shut God oute from them and from their herte, and ge ue themselues to their owne luste, euen as it were an horse and Mule, which ha ue no vnderstãdyng: vpõ soch hath ye de uel power. But when thou takest her, ãd art come in to the chamber, withold thy selfe frõ her thre days, & gyue thy delyg ce vnto nothig but vnto prayer wt her.

And in the fyrst night rost the leuer of the fysh, and the deuel shal be driuen away. The seconde night shalt thou be receaued into the company of the holye patryarks. The thirde night shalt thou optayne the blessing of god, so that wh ole childre shalbe borne of you. After ye thirde night take the maiden in ye feare of god, and more for the desyre of child ren then for any fleshly lust: that in the sede of Abraham thou mayst optayne the blissing in children.

Yonge Tobiah and the Aũgel came to the house of Raguell. He requyreth Raguels daughter to wyfe, and optaineth her.

The. vii. Chapter.

Then went they in to Raguell, which receaued them A ioyfully. And when Raguel loked vpõ tobiah, he said vnto Anna his wife: how ly ke is this yong mã vnto my systers sonne. And when he had spokẽ this, he sayde: whence be ye good brethrẽ?
They sayde: Of the trybe of Nephtali, out of the captiuyte of Niniue.
Then sayde Raguel vnto them: knowe ye my brother tobiah? They said yee we knowe hym well. And when he had spoken muche good of hym, the angel sayde vnto Raguell: Tobiah of whom thou askest, is thys yongmans father.
Then Raguell bowed hym selfe downe and wepte, toke hym aboute the necke, and kyssed hym, and sayde: Gods blessynge haue thou my sonne, for thou art the sõne of a good vertuous man. And Anna hys wyfe and Sara hys daugh ter wepte also.

Now when they had talked together, B Raguel bad kyl a wether, and to make a feast. And when he prayed them to sit downe to dyner, Tobiah sayd: I wyl ne ther eate nor drik here this daie, excepte yu first graunt me my peticyon, & promyse me to geue my thy daghter Sara: whẽ Raguell hearde thys, he was astonied for he knew, what happened the other vii. men that wente in vnto her: and he beganne to feare that it shoulde chaun-ce vnto him also in lyke maner.

And whyle he stode so in dowbte, & gaue the Younge man no answere, the aungell angel sayde vnto him: Feare not to ge ue him thy daughter, for vnto thys mã that feareth god, belongeth thi daughter to wife/therfore might none other haue her.

Then sayde Raguel: I doute not, but god hath accepted my prayers and teares in hys sight: and I trust he cau= sed you to com vnto me for the same in tent, that this daughter of myne might be maryed in her owne kinred, accordig to the lawe of Moses. And now doute thou not, but I wyl geue her vnto thee: so he toke ye right hãd of his daughter/and gaue her into the ryght hand of To biah, and sayde: The god of Abraham, the god of Isac and the God of Jacob be with you ioyne you together, ãd ful fyl his blessinge in you. And they toke a letter and made a wrytinge of the mari age. And then made they mery, and pra ysed god. And Raguel called Anna his wyfe vnto him, and badde her prepare another chambre, and thyther he brou= ght Sara his daughter, and she we= pte. Then said he vnto her: Be of good chere my daughter/the lorde of heauen geue the ioye, for the heuines that thou hast suffered.

¶ The aungel byndeth the deuel. Tobiah exorteth his wife to praier, and they praie thre daies befor they lye together:

A Nowe after that they hadd supped, they brought ye yon ge man into her. Then thou ght Tobiah vpon the wor des of the aungel, and toke out of his bagges a pece of the leuer of the fishe, and layed it vppon the whoote coales. So the aungel Raphael toke holde of the deuel, and sent hym awaie, and bound hym in the wildernes of the hyer Egipt. Then spake Tobiah vnto the virgin, and sayd: Up Sara, let vs make our praier vnto God to daye, to= morow, and ouermorow: for these thre nightes will we reconsyle our selues wt God: and whan the thyrd holy nyght is past, we shal ioyne together in the deu= tye of marryage. For we are the childre of the holye men and we maye not com together as the Heathen, that know not God.

Then stode they vp both together, and besought God earnestly, ye he wold preserue them. And Tobiah sayde: O Lord God of oure father, praysed be ye of heauen and earth, of the sea/ welles, and floudes, and of all the creatures ye be theryn. Thou madest Adam of the moulde of the earth, and gauest hym E ua for an helper. And now Lord thou knowest that it is not because of volup tuosnes, that I take this sister of mine to wife, but only for the loue of children in whome thy name be blessed for euer.
And Sara sayde: haue mercy vpon vs (O Lorde) haue mercye vppon vs and let vs both come whole and sound to a good age.

And aboute the cocke crow, it hap= pened/that Raguel called his seruaun tes, and they wente wyth hym, to make B a graue. For he sayde: yt is chaunched vnto him paraduenture, as it dyd vnto the other seuen men, that went into her.
Nowe when they had made the graue, Raguel came agayne to hys wyfe, and sayd vnto her: send one of thy maydes, to loke if he be deade, that I may burye hym afore it be lyght daye. So she sente a mayden to see/whiche when she came in to the chamber, she founde them who le and sounde, sleping together. And so she came agayne and brought good ty dinges. Then Raguell and Anna hys wyfe praysed the Lorde, and sayde: prai sed be thou O Lorde God of Israel/for it is not happened vnto vs, as we thou ght. For thou hast dealte mercyfully wt vs, and put awaye from vs/the enemy that persecuted vs, and hast shewed mer cye vnto yonder two beloued. O Lorde cause them to magnifye thee more per= fectlye and to offre thee the sacrifice of thy prayse & of theyr health: that al peo ple may knowe, that thou only art god in all the earth.

And immediatly Raguel comman ded hys seruauntes, to fyl the graue th at they had made, with earthe afore it was lyght: and bad his wyfe prepare a feast and to make ready all thinges that were necessary for meate to suche as wente by the waye.

He caused two fat kyne also, and four wethers to be slayne, and meates to be prepared for all his neyghours and frendes. And Raguell charged Tobiah, to remayne wyth hym two wekes. As for all the good that he had, he gaue tobiah the one halfe of it, and made thys wrytynge, that the halfe whych remayned, shoulde fall vnto Tobiah after theyre death.

¶ The aungell goeth to Gabelus, at the desyre of Tobiah: which delyuereth the letter, and receaueth the money.

The .ix. Chapter.

A Then Tobiah called vnto hym the Aungell, whom he thought to haue ben a man & sayde vnto hym: Brother Azarias, I praye thee, herken vnto my wordes, yf I should geue my selfe to be thy seruaunte/ I shoulde not deserue thy prouidence. Neuertheles I beseche thee, that thou wylte take the beastes, and the seruauntes and go vnto Gabelus in Rages, the Cytie of B Medes, and delyuer hym hys handwrityng, and receaue the mony of hym, and praye hym to come to my mariage. For thou knowest thy selfe, that my father telleth the dayes: and if I tary one daye to longe, he wyll be sorye in hys mynde. Now seyst thou how earnestly Raguell hath requyred me, so that I cannot saye hym naye.

Then toke Raphael foure of raguels seruauntes/ and two camels, and went vnto Rages the citie of the Medes: ād when he had founde Gabelus, he gaue hym hys handwryting, and receaued al the mony. He told hym also of Tobiah
C the sonne of Tobi, how al thynges had happened, & caused hym to come wt him to the maryage. Now whē he came to ŷ house of Raguell/ he founde Tobiah sittynge at the table: and he leapt vp, and kyssed one another, and Gabelus wepte & praysed god and sayde: the blessynge of the God of Israell haue ŷ/ for ŷ arte the sonne of a ryght vertuous & iust mā D & of one ŷ feareth god/ & geueth greate almes. And blessinge haue thy wyfe, and your elders/ that ye maye se your chyldren & your yong childers children vnto ŷ third & fourth generaciō, & that youre sede mai be blessed of the god of Israel, whych reigneth world with out ende.

And when they all had sayde Amen, they went to the feast/ but with the feare of the Lorde helde they the feast of ŷ maryage.

¶ Tobiah and his wyfe are sadd for the taryenge of their sonne. Raguel sendeth agayne Tobiah & his wife.

The .x. Chapter.

Now whyle yonge Tobyah made longe taryeng, by reason of the maryage, his father was ful of care and heuines, and thought: what shoulde be the cause, that my sonne taryeth so longe? Or why shoulde he be kepte so longe there? A

Paraduenture Gabelus is deade, & no man wyl geue hī the moneye. Thus beganne he to be very sorowful, he and Anna his wife went with hym/ and beganne to wepe bothe together, because their sonne was not come agayne vnto them at the daye appoynted. As for hys mother, she wepte with discomfortable teares, and sayde: Wo ys me, my sonne: Oh what ayled vs to sende the awaye into a straunge countre, ŷ light of our eyes, thou staffe of our age, ŷ cōfort of our life, ŷ hope of our generaciō? Seynge all thynges that we haue are onlye in the, we shoulde not haue sente the awaie frō vs. B

Then Tobiah comforted her, and sayde: holde thy tonge, and bee not dyscomforted, oure sonne is whole and sounde: The man that we sent hym withal/ is faithful ynough. Neuertheles, she myghte in no wyse be comforted: but daylye went out, loked about, and went about al the stretes: whereby she thought he sholde come agayn: that (if it wer possible) she myght se him commyng a farre of. C

But raguel sayde vnto his sonne in lawe: O tary here, and I shal sende a messenger vnto thy father Tobiah to tel him that thou art in good health. Tobiah sayd vnto him: I am sure, that my that my father and my mother counte eue ry daye, and that theyr hartes are sory.

So whē Raguel prayed Tobyah with many wordes / ād wold in no wise heare him, he delyuered Sara vnto hi, and the halfe parte of all hys good: in seruantes and handmaydes, in shepe in Camels, and in kyne and moch moneye and so sent him away from him wt peace and ioye, and sayde: The holy aungel of the Lorde be with you in your iourney, and bringe you forth safe and sounde, that ye maye finde all thinges in good case with your elders, and that myne ey es maye se youre children afore I dye.
So the elders embraced their daughter kyssed her, & let her go / exortig her to ho noure her father and mother in lawe to loue her husband, to rule wel her hous-holde, to kepe her house in good ordre, and to shewe her selfe fautlesse.

¶ Younge Tobiah leuinge his wife & housholde in the mydde waie, commeth before with the Aungell. The desyre of his mother lokige after her sonne. He is ioyfully receued of his father & mother. Sara cometh, vii. dayes after.

The. xi. Chapter.

1 AND they now were going ho me warde agayne vpon ȳ xi. daye they came to Charra, which lyeth in the halfe waye toward Niniue. And the Aungell sayde: Brother Tobiah, ȳ knowest how thou hast lefte thy father: therfore yf it please the, we two wil goo before / and let thee housholde with thy wyfe and the catel come safte and fayrly after vs. And when Tobiah was cōtēt that they shoulde go before, Raphaell sayde vnto him: Take of the gale of the fysh with the, for it shalbe necessary. So Tobiah toke of the gal, and they wente their waye. But Anna mother of Tobiah sate dayly by the way syde vpon the toppe of an hill, from whence she might B se farre about her. And whil she was wai tynge ther for his commynge / she loked afarre of and anonne she perceaued her sonne commyng, and ranne and told her husbande, saying: Beholde, thy sone cō meth. And Raphael sayd vnto Tobiah: As soone as thou commest in the house, immedyatlye worshyppe the Lorde thy GOD, and geue thankes vnto hym: then go to thy father, and kisse him, and strike his eyes ouer with the gal of the fysh, that thou hast brought with thee.
For be sure that his eyes shal straighte waye be opened and thy father shall se the lyght of heauen, and shal reioyse at the syght of thee. Then the dogge that had bene with theym in their iour-ney, ranne before, and came as a messen ger / and wagged wt hys tayle for glad nesse. C
So the blynde father arose, and be ganne to runne & stombled with his fe te, and gaue a seruaunt hys hand to runne to mete hys sonne, receaued hym, & kys sed hym, he and hys wyfe, and beganne to wepe for ioye.
Now when they had worshipped and thanked God, they sat downe. Then to-ke Tobiah of the fishes gal, and anoyn ted his fathers eyes: and taryed half ā houre / and then beganne the blemish to go out of his eyes / like as it had bene ȳ whyte skynne of an egge: which Tobiah toke, and drew from his eyes, and imedyatly he receaued his syght.
Then they praysed god, he and hys wy fe / and al they that know hym. And To biah sayde: O Lorde God of Israell, I geue thee prayse and thankes, for thou D hast chastened me, and made me whole & lo nowe do I see my sonne Tobiah.
After seauen dayes came Sara hys sōnes wyfe also whole and sounde wyth all the housholde and catel wyth camels and muche money of hys wyues, and wt the money that he had receued of Gabe lus: and he told hys father and hys mother the benefites which god had done for hym, by the man that led hym. Achi or also and Nabath Tobyah sister son nes came, and were glad, and reioysed wt hym, by reason of all the good that god had shewed vnto hym. And so for the space of seauen dayes they made merye and were ryght ioyefull euerichone.

¶ Yong Tobiah, recketh vp vnto his father the pleasures that the Aungel dyd hym. He offereth vnto the Aungell the halfe of the goodes that he brought with hym.

The. xii. Chapter.

A Then Tobyah called his sõne vn to him, and sayde: What may we geue this holye man/ that was wt the? Tobiah answered his father, ãd sayde: Father, what reward shal we ge ue him? Or what thing can deserue his benefites? He hath bene my gide, ãd bro ught me safe agayn: he receaued the mo ney from Gabelus, he caused me to get my wyfe, he droue the euell sprete from her, he hath bene ã occasion of gladnes to her father and mother: he delyuered me, that I was not deuoured of the fish, he hath made the to se the lyght of hea uen, yee we haue receaued greate good of him. How shuld we worthily deserue B these thinges vnto him? But I praye the my father, that thou wylt desyer him/ if happly he will voutsafe, to take wt hym the halfe of al that we haue brought.

So the father and the sonne callede him, toke him aside, ãd beganne to pray him, that he wolde be content to take in a good worthe, the halfe Parte of all that he had brought. Then sayde he se cretly vnto them: Prayse the God of he uen, and geue thãckes: vnto him before al men lyuing, for he hath shewed his mercy* vnto vs. It is good to hyde the kinges secrete, but to shewe & to praise the workes of God it is an honorable thĩg.
Prayer is good wt fasting, and to geue almes is better, then to hord vp tresure of golde. For almes delyuereth from de ath, clenseth sinne and causeth to fynde euerlasting life. But they that do sinne & vnryghtousnes/ are the enemyes of their owne soules.

* Some rede vnto vs.

Wherfore I tell you the truth, and wyl hyde nothinge from you. When thou C prayedst with teares, and buryedst the de ad, ãd leftest thy dyner and hiddest the dead in thy house vpon the daye tyme, that thou myghtest burye the in the nyght I offred thy prayer before the Lord. And because thou wast accept and beloued of God/ it was necessary, that temptacyon shuld trye the. And now hath the Lord sent me to heale the, and to delyuer Sa ra thy sonnes wyfe from the euel sprete.
For I am Raphael an Aungel one of the seuen that stande before God.

When they hearde this, they were sore afrayed, and trembled, and fell dow ne vpon theyr faces vnto the grounde.
Then sayde the aungell: Peace be wyth you, feare not. Where as I haue ben wt you, it is the wyll of God, geue Prayse and thanckes vnto hym.

You thought that I dyd eate & drin D ke wyth you, but I vse meate that is in uisible, and drincke that can not be sene of men.

Nowe therfore is the tyme that I must turne agayne vnto hym that sent me: but be ye thanckful vnto God, ãd tel out all hys wonderous worckes.

And when he had spoken these wor des, he was taken awaye out of theyre syght, so that they sawe hym no more.
Then fell they downe flat vpon theyre faces by the space of thre houres, & prai sed god: and when they rose vp, they tol de all hys wonderous worckes.

Tobiah the elder geueth thankes vnto God.

The .xiii. Chapter.

Then old Tobiah opned his mouth, and praysed the lord and sayde. Great art thou o A Lorde for euermore/ & thy kyngdome worlde without ende: for thou scourgest and helest, thou leadest vnto hel/ and bryngest out agay ne/ and ther is none that may escape thi ne hand. O geue thankes vnto the lord ye childrẽ of Israel, & praise hĩ in the sight of the heathẽ. For amõg the hethẽ which know hĩ not hath he scatered you: to the intente that ye shoulde shewe forthe hys marueilous workes: and cause them for to knowe, that there is none other God almyghtie but he. He hath chastened vs for ouer mysdedes, and for his own mercie sake shall he saue vs.

Consydre then how he hath delt with you, and prayse hym wyth feare and dre B de, and magnifye the euerlastynge king in youre worckes. I wyl prayse hym euer in the lande of my captiuitie, for he hath shewed hys magesti vnto a synneful pe ople, turne you therfore/ O ye synners, and do ryghtuousnes before God, and be ye sure, that he wyll shewe hys mercy vpon you. As for me and my soule/ we wyll reioyse in God.

O prayse the lorde al ye hys chosen, hold the dayes of gladnesse, and be thankful vnto him. O Jerusalem thou cytie of God, the Lorde hath punysshed the for the workes of thyne owne handes, O prayse the Lorde in thy good thinges, & geue thankes to the euerlastyng God that he maye builde vp his tabernacles agayne in the, that he maye call again vnto the, al soche, as be in captyuite, and that thou mayest haue ioye for euermore. Wich a fayre lyght shalt thou shyne ād al the endes of the world shal honou re the. The people shal come vnto ye frō farre, they shal bringe gyftes/ and wor shyppe the Lorde in thee, and thy lande shal they haue for a Sanctuary/ for they shal cal vpon the greate nāme in the.

Cursed shal they be that dispyse the,
and al that blasphemе the, shalbe condē D ned: but blessed shal they be that build ye vp, As for the thou shalt reioyse in thy children, for they al shalbe blessed, ād ga thered to gether vnto the Lorde. Blessed are they al that loue the, and be glad of thy peace: Prayse thou the Lord, O my soule, for the Lorde oure God hath delyuered his cytie Jerusalem from all her troubles. I wil count mi selfe happi, if mi sede remaie to se ye clennes of Jerusalem.

The gates of Jerusalē shalbe buil ded with Saphire and Smaragde, ād al the compasse of her walles with precy ous stones. All her streetes shalbe paued with white marble stone/ and in all her streates shal Alleluya be song. Praised be the Lord, whiche hath exalted her/ ye his kyngdomme maye bee vppon her for euermore. Amen. And so Tobiah made an ende of his talkynge.

Tobiah prophecyeth the destruccyon of Niniue, hys sonne retourneth to Raguell, after the decesse of his father ād mother.

The .xiiii. Chapter

A And after that Tobiah had gotten his sight agayn, he lyued .xlii. yeares, ād sawe his childers children. Now when he was an .C. & .ii. yeare olde, he dyed: and was buried honorably in Ny niue. For when he was sixe and fyfty ye ares of age, he lost ye sight of his eyes, & when he was thre score yeare olde / he gat hys syght agayne. The resydue of hys lyfe led he in ioye, and increased well in the feare of god and departed in peace.

But in the houre of hys death, he B called vnto hym his sonne Tobiah, & se uen yonge springaldes hys sonnes chil dre, & sayd vnto thē: The destruction of Niniue is at hand, for the word of the lor de can not fayle, and our brethern that are scatered out of the lande of Israel, shal com thether agayn. And the whole lande of it that hath bene waste, shalbe fylled: and the house of God that was brent in it, shalbe buylded agayne, and all suche as feare GOD shall returne thether: the heathen alsoo shall forsake their Idoles, and come to Jerusalem, & dwell there/ & all the kinges of the earth shalbe glad of her, & worshippe the lord God of Israel.

And therfore my chyldren, heare you C re father: Serue the Lorde in faythfulnes, seke after hys wyll, and do the thīg that pleaseth hym. Commaunde youre chyldern that they doo ryghte: geue almes/ be myndefull of God, and euer to be thankfull vnto hym in trueth and wt all theyre power. Heare me therfore my chyldern and abyde not here: but in what daye soeuer ye haue buryed youre Mother besyde me, get you from hence For I see, that the wickednes of it shal D brynge it to destruction and ende.
After the death of hys mother, Tobiah departed away frō Niniue/ wt hys wyfe & chyldren & childers childrē, & came a gayne to hys father & Mother in lawe and founde them whole and in good age, and toke the care of them. And he clo sed theyr eyes, and was heyre vnto all Raguels gooddes, and sawe ye fyfth gene racion and childers chyldren. And whē he was .xcix. yeare of age, he dyed in the feare of the Lorde, and hys kinsfolkes buryed hym. And all hys posteritee con tinued in a good lyfe, and holy conuer-sacion: so that they were loued ād accep ted both of God and men, and of all the people of the lande.

¶ The ende of the boke of Tobiah

¶ The boke of Judith.

¶ The buyldynge of Egbathanis. The victory of Nabuchodonosor agaynst Arphaxath. The messengers of Nabuchodonosor are dyspysed.

A Arphaxat the kynge of the Medes subdued mani peo ple vnto his dominion, ād buylded a noble strong cy-tie, which he called Egbath anis. The walles of yt made he of free ston, foure squared, seuenty cubites hie and .xxx. cubytes brod. He made towres therupon of an hundreth cubites hye.
But vpon the foure corners euery side was twentye fote brode. He made the portes in the height, like as the towres & his king trusted in his myghty hoost and in his glorious charettes.
B So in the twelfth yeare of his raygne/it happened, that Nabuchodonosor the kyng of the Assyrians (which rai gned in the greate cytie of Niniue) fought agaynst Arphaxat/and ouercame hym in the greate felde called Regau, beside Euphrates and Tigris and Ja dason in the felde of Erioch the king of the Elykes.
Then was the kyngdome of Na buchodonosor exalted, ād his hert was C lyft vp: and he sent vnto all them that dwelt in Cilicia/in Damascus, in Lybanus, and vnto the Heathen ỹ dwelte in Carmel, & Cedar & to such as dwelt in galile in the great felde of Esdrelon, to al thē ỹ were in Samarya, & beyond ỹ water of Jordan vnto Jerusalem ād the whole lande of Jesse vnto the moũ-taynes of Ethiopia. Unto all these dyd Nabuchodonosor the kinge of the Assyryans sende messangers. But they al with one consent, wolde not agre vn to him, and sent the messangers agayne emptye/and put them awaye wythe ute honour. Thē Nabuchodonosor ỹ king toke indignacion at al those landes, ād sware by his trone and by hys kyngdō that he woulde be auenged of all those countryes.

¶ Holofernes is sent of Nabuchodonosor, to subdue al the worlde. The preparaciō and pursute of Holofernes.

In the .xiii. yeare of kynge Na I buchodonosor/vpon the. xxii. day of the fyrst moneth, it was deuysed in the courte of Na-buchodonosor the kynge of ỹ Assirians, that he wold defend hi selfe.
So he called vnto hym all the elders/al his captaynes, and men of warre, ād shewed them his secrete councel, & told them, that hys purpose was to brynge the whole earth vnder hys dominion.
Now when they were all contente with thys saying/Nabuchodonosor the kig called Holofernes the chefe captayne of hys warres, and sayde vnto hym: Goo thy waye forth agaynst all the kyngdomes of the west/and specially agaynste those that haue despysed my commaun-dement. Thou shalt spare no realme, al stronge cities shalt thou brynge in sub iection vnto me.
Then Holofernes called together all B the Captaynes and rulers of all the power in Assyria, and mustred the sou dyers vnto the hoste (lyke as the kige commaunded hym) namely, an hundreth and twentye thousand fightynge men vpon fote, ād twelue thousand ar chers vpon horsebacke. All his ordy-naunce sent he before with an innume rable multitude of camels, so that the hoost was wel prouyded for, with oxen and smalle Catell, and that withoute nombre. He caused corn to be prepared out of all Syria for his hoste. Moch gold and siluer also toke he out of the kynges house. So he toke his iorney he and all his hooste, with the charettes, horsmen, ād archers: of whom ther we re so many, that they couered the gr-ounde of the lande, lyke the greshoppers.
And when he was gone paste the C borders of the Assyrians, he came tow arde the great mountaynes of Angi/which lye vpon the left syde of Cilicia: and so he went vp in to all their ca stels, and wanne euery stronge holde.
As for the welthye citie of Melothus, he brake it downe, and spoyled all the children of Tharsis and the Jsmaeli-tes tes, which lay toward the wyldernes, a vpon the south syde of the land of Che-lon. He went ouer Euphrates also/ and came into Mesapotania, and brake do wne all the hye cities that were there, from the broke of Mambre tyll a man come to the see, and he toke the borders in from Celicia vnto the coastes of Ja phet toward the south. He caryed away al the Madianites, and spoyled al ther goodes and whosoeuer withstode hym he slewe them wyth the swerde. After this he went downe into the felde of Da mascus, in the tyme of the haruest, and brente vp al the corne and all the trees, and caused the vynes to be cut downe.

And the feare of hym fel vpon all them that dwelt in the earthe.

Kynges become wyllyngly subiect to Holofernes. the tyranny and crueltie of hym.

The .iii. Chapter.

A So the kynges and princes of all the cities and landes sent theyr Embassadours: namely, they of Siria and Mesopotamia, Siria So ball, and Libia, and Celicia, whyche came to Holofernes, and sayde: Let thy wrath cease toward vs: It is better for vs to serue the great kyng Nabuchodonosor wyth oure lyues, and to be sub-iecte vnto thee, then that we should dye and be slayn and receaue great hurte.
Al our Cities and possessions, al moun taynes and hylles al feldes/ great and small catell, shepe, goates, Horses, and camels, all oure goodes and houshol-des, be in thy power, vnder thy subiec-tion be it altogether. We oure selues al so and oure chyldren wyl be thyne ow ne, come vnto vs a peaceable Lorde, a vse oure seruice at thy pleasure.
Then came Holofernes downe from B the mountayns wyth horsmen and gre ate power, and conquered al stronge lenced Cities/ and al that dwelt in the lã de. And out of all cyties he toke strong men, and such as were mete for the war re, to helpe hym. There came such a fere also vpon those countreies that the in-dwellers of al the cities, the princes and rulers/ & the peple together, went forth to mete him as he came, and receaued hi honorably with garlandes and torches, with daunses, tabrettes and pypes.
Neuerthelesse though they did this, C yet myght they not swage his rygorous stommake: but he destroyed their cyties, and hewed downe their wodes. For Na buchodonosor the kynge had commaun ded him, that he shold rote out al the God des of the lande: to the intent that he on ly myghte be called and taken for God of the nacions which Holofernes wyth his power brought vnder him. So went he thorow Syria Sobal, and thorowe al Appamia, and al Mesopotamia, cam to the Idumeans, in the land of Gabaa and Septopolye/ and toke their cities, and remayned there .xxx. dayes, wherin he caused al the whole multitude of hys hoost to be gathered together.

Israel requyreth helpe of God, agaynst Holofernes. They fast and praye.

The .iiii. Chapter.

When the children of Israel that dwel in Jewrye herde A this, they were sore afraied of him. There came soche tremblynge also and feare vpon them, that they sorowed he shulde do vnto the cytie of Jerusalem and the temple of the lorde, as he had done to other cyties a their temples. So they sent into al Samaria roundabout vnto Je rycho/ toke in and occupyed al the top-pes of the mountaynes made faste the townes with wales, and prepared corne for them agaynst the battel.
Elyachim also the Prest wrote vnto al them that dwelt toward Esdrelon (whiche lyeth ouer agaynste the greate felde by Dotha Im) and vnto all those by whom men might haue passag vnto them, that they shulde take in the wayes of the mountaynes, wherby there myght be any waye and passag to Jerusalem, & that they sholde holde dylygent watche where any strayte waye was betwixt the B mountaynes. And the children of Israel did as Eliachim the Prest of the Lord had commaunded them. And al the peo ple cryed ernestly, and humbled ther sou les with fastyng and prayers, they and their wyues: The Prestes put on heary clothes, and layed the yonge babes befo re the temple of the Lorde, and couered the Aulter of the Lorde wyth an hear-ey clothe. And wyth one accorde they cryed vnto the Lorde God of Israell/that theyr chylderen should not be geuē into a pray, and their wiues into a spoi le, that theyr Cities shoulde not be layd waste, and that theyr sanctuary should not be vnhalowed, and so they to bee a shame and rebuke vnto the heathen.

C Then Eliachim the hye Preste of the Lorde, wente rounde aboute al Israel, and spake vnto them, sayinge: Be ye su re, that the Lorde will heare your peti cyons, yf ye contynue stedfast in fastynnges and prayers in the syghte of the Lord. Remembre Moses the seruaunt of the Lord, which ouerthrew the Ama lechites (that trusted in their myght & power, in their hoost, in their shyldes, in their charrettes and horsmenn) not with weapens, but with holy prayers.
Euen so shall all the enemies of Israel be, yf ye contynue in thys worke, that ye haue begonne. So vpon this exhortacion they contynued in prayer before the Lord, In so moch that they which offred brent sacrifices vnto the Lorde offerd the offringes vnto the Lorde, beynge araped in heartie clothes and had asshes vpō their heades. And they all besoughte God from their whole herte, that he wold vyset his people of Israel.

Holofernes is discontent with the Jewes. Achior sheweth vnto Holofernes the maruels of god don vnto the Jewes, for which thig ẏ rulers vnder Holofernes were very angry with him.

The. v. Chapter.

A AND word came vnto holofernes the Prynce of ẏ war res of the Assiryans, that ẏ children of Israel prepared them selues to make resyst aunce, and how they hadd stopped the wayes betwyxt the mountaynes. Then was he exceading wroth & called al the Princes of Moab, and the Captaynes of Ammon, and sayde vnto them: Tel me, what people is thys, that keapethe in the mountaynes? Or what maner of cities are they? What is their power?
Or what mañer of Host haue they? who ys their Captayne?
And why do they dispise vs (more then al these that dwel in the East) and come not forth to mete vs, that they might re ceaue vs with peace? Then Achior the Captaine of al the Ammonites answered, and saide: Syr/ yf it please thee to heare me, I wyl tel the truth before the concerning this people that dwel in the mountaynes, and there shall no lye goo B out of my mouth.
Thys people is of the generacion of the Caldees, they dwelt first in Mesopotamia, for they wold not folow the goddes of their fathers that wer in the land of the Caldees, and so forsoke they the customes of their fore fathers (whi ch had many goddes) and worshipped one God, that made heauen and earth: which also commaūded them that they shoulde go from thence, and dwel at Ha ran. Now when there came a death into the whole lande, they went downe to Egipt, and there they dwelt foure hun-dreth yeares/ in which they multiplyed so greately, that their Hoost might not be nombred. And when the kynge of Egipt oppressed them and subdued them in buyldynge of hys Cytyes wyth ma-kynge of claye and Brycke/ they cryed vnto GOD theyr Lorde, whyche punyshed the whole lande of Egypte with dyuers plages.
Now when the kynge of Egypt let C them go their waye, and the plage cea sed, and then folowed after them, to take them, and to brynge them agayne in to his seruyce, while they were fleinge a waye, the God of Heauen opened the ẏ sea, so that the waters stode fast vppon both the sydes as a wal and these went thorow the botom of the sea drye shod.
In the which place when an innumera ble people of the Egipcians folowe vppon them thei were so ouerwhelmed ẇ the waters that there remained not one to tel them that came after, how yt happened. So when thys people was passed thorowe the red sea, they came into the wyldernesse of the mounte Synay, where neuer man dwelte afore, & where D the sonne of man had neuer rested.
There were the bytter Waters made swete for them, that they myght drynke, & .xl. yeares had they mete frō heuē.

Where

wheresoeuer they wēt (whithout bowe and arowe, without buckler or swerde) their god fought for thē, and caused thē to haue the victory. Yet no man was ab le to hurte this people, excepte it were so that they departed vnfaythfully from ÿ worshyppyng of the lord ther god. But as oft as they worshypped any other be syde ther god he gaue thē ouer to be spoi led, to be slayn, & to be put to confusyon.
Neuertheles as oft as they were sory for departyng from the worshippe of theire god, the same god of heuen gaue them E pouer & strēgth to wtstād their enmyes.

Moreouer they slew the kynge of ÿ Cananites, Jebusites/Pheresi tes He-thites Euites and Amorites, and all the myghtye in Hesebon and toke their lan des and cytis in possession: and so long as they sinned not in the sight of theire god it went wel with them: for their god hateth vnrighteousnesse. For in tymes past when they went oute of the waye, which god had geuen thē that they shol de walke in it, they were destroyed in dy uerse batayles of many nacyons: & mā of them were caryed away presoners vn to a straunge countre. But nowe latelye they haue torned them selues awaye vn to the lorde theire god, and are come to gether agayn out of the countrees wher they were scatered abrod and thus haue they conquered these mountaynes, ād dwel therin and as for Jerusalē, where theyr Sāctuary is, they haue it agayn F in possessyon.

And therfor my Lorde, make dilygēt inquisicion if this peple haue done wic kednesse in the sight of the god, then let vs go vp agaynst thē for doubtles their god shal delyuer thē into thy handes/ & subdue them vnto thy pouer. But if this peple haue not displeased theyr god, we shall not be able to withstand them, for theyr god shal defend them, and so shal we be a shame to all the worlde.

Now when Achyor had spoken out these wordes, al the Princes of Holofer nes wer wroth, & thought to slay hym, and sayde one to an other: what is he thys, which darre saye, that the Chylde G ren of Israell are able to wythstand na buchodonosor the kinge and his hoste: wher as they are an vnweponed people, without strength or vnderstandinge of the feates of warre: That Achyor ther fore maye knowe that he hath deceaued vs, we wyll go vp into the moun-taynes: and when the myghtye men of them are taken, he also shalbe stycke wt the swearde, that all people maye knowe, that Nabuchodonosor is the God of the earthe, and that there is none other wythout hym.

Achior is committed into the handes of ÿ Jewes by Holofernes. He is tied to a tree, but is lowsed of the Jewes. The prayer of the people. Achior is comforted of the Jewes.

SO whē they had left of spe king, Holofernes toke sore A indignacyon, & sayde vnto Achior. For so much as thou hast prophecied vnto vs, sayinge: that the people of Israell shall be defended of theyr God, I wyll shewe the/ ÿ ther is none other God but Nabuchodonosor. Yea when we slaye them all as one man, thou also shalt pe-rysh wyth them thorowe the swerde of the Assirians, and al Israell shal be de stroyd wyth the, and then shalt thou fe-le, that Nabuchodonosor is the lord of the whole earth. Then shall the sworde of my knighthode go thorow thy sydes and thou shalt fall downe sticke amō-ge the wounded of Israell, and shalte not come to thy selfe agayne, but be vt- B terly destroyed wyth them. But if thou thynckest thy prophecy to be true, whye doest ÿ then chaunge thy colour: why ar te thou afrayde: Thynckest thou that my wordes are not able to be perfourmed: But that thou mayest know/ that thou shalte feale these thynges withe theim, beholde, from thys houre forthe wyll I sende the vnto yonder People that when the punishment of my swerd (which they haue worthly deserued) fal leth vpon them, thou mayest be punished with them.

So Holofernes commaunded hys seruauntes to take Achior, & to cary hym vnto Bethulia, and to delyuer hym in to the handes of the chyldren of Israel. Then Holophernes seruantes toke hym, and went thorow the playne feld: But whē they drewe nye vnto the moū taīes ÿ slyng casters cam out agāst the Neverthelés they gat them awaye by the syde of the mountayne, and boūd Achior hand and fote to a tree, and so left him bound wt withyes and turned agayne unto their Lorde.

Notwithstandynge the chyldren of Israel wente downe from Bethulia, cāe unto him, lowsed hym, brought him to Bethulia, set him in the myddest of the people, and asked him what the matter was, that the Assyrians had lefte hym bounde.

C Osias the sonne of Mycha of the trybe of Symeon, and Charmim (which is also called Gothoniel) were the prīncipal rulers at the same tyme. Now when Achior stode in the myddest of the Senatoures, and before theim al he told thē what answer he gaue Holofernes to ye thinge that he asked hym / and how Holofernes people wold haue slayne hym for so saiynge, and howe Holofernes hī selfe was wroth, and commaūded hym for the same cause to be delyuered unto the Israelites: that whē he ouercame ye chyldren of Israel, he myghte commaunde Achior also to be put to death with dyuers tormentes, because he sayde: the God of heauen is their defender.

And when Achior had playnely tolde out all these thīgs, all the People fell downe upon their faces, prayspyng the Lorde, and poured oute their praiers together unto the Lorde, wyth a general complaynte and weppynge, and said: O Lorde God of heauen and of earth, beholde theyr pryde, and loke upon our lowlynes, and consydre how it standeth with thy saintes / ād make it to be knowen, that thou forsakest not those, whych holde them fast by thee, and how that yu bryngest thē lowe, yt presume of them selues, and make theyr boost in theyr own strengthe. So when the weppynge and prayer of the people (which they had made the whole daye long) was ended,

D they comforted Achior, sayīg: The god of oure fathers, whose power & streght thou haste praysed, shal so rewarde the, that thou shalt rather see theyre destruction. When the lord our god then shal geue hys seruauntes thys lyberty, god be also wyth thee amonge us: so that if it please thee, thou wt thyne mayest dwel with us.

Nowe when Osias had ended the councel, he toke him into his house, and made a greate supper, called the elders to it, and so they refreshed thē selues after the fasting. And afterwarde was al the people called together / which made their prayers al the nyght longe in the congregacion, and besought the god of Israel for help.

C Bethulia is beseged of Holofernes. The people requireth help of god. Thei of Bethulia wold geue ouer the cyte for wāt of water. The praier of ye people with teares and lamētacion.

C The.vii.Chapter.

The nexte daye, Holofernes commaūded his host, to go up agaynst Betulia. There were an.C.& xx.M. fightīg men on fote, and two & twētye thousande horsmen, besyde the preparing of theim that were wonne: and came to them on euery side out of ye coūtrees and cyties which he had taken. A

All these prepared them selues unto the battel agaynst the Israelites, and cam on by the hil side, unto the toppe that loketh ouer agaynst Dathaim, from the place which is called Belma, unto Chelmon that lyeth toward Esdrelon.

Now when the children of Israel sawe so greate a multitude of the Assirians they fel downe flat upon ye ground, strawed ashes upon theyr heades and prayed with one accord, that ye god of Israel wolde shew his mercy upō hys people. And so they toke their wepōs, and sat betwixt the mountaines in the narow place, & kept ye waie daie & night. B

But while Holofernes was goīg about he founde the water spring, which from the South syde was conueied into the cyte by a cōdite: this commaūded he to be dyrect another waye, and to cut their condyte in sonder. There were welles also not farre from the walles, which they used secretly more for pleasure then for necessytie. C

Thin went the Ammonites and the Moabytes unto Holofernes / and said: the childre of Israel trust nether ī spere nor arow, but haue take in and kepte ye mountaynes & hylles. That yu mayst ouercom thē therfore withoute the strykyng of any battayl / set mē to kepe the welles welles, that they drawe no water out of them: so shalt thou destroye them with out swerde, or at the least they shal be so feable, that they muste be fayne to geue ouer the cite, which they thinke not able to be wonne/ for so moche as it lyeth in the mountaynes. These wordes plesed Holofernes wel, and al his men of warre and he set an hundred men at euery wel rounde about.

And when this watch had endured twentye dayes/ that Cisternes and all that had water, fayled them that dwell in the cytye of Bethulia, so that in that whole cyte they had not droncken yn= ough for one dai/ for the people had wa ter geuen them daylyin a measure. The came the men and wemen yonge persõ nes and children al vnto Osyas ãd say de al with one voy set God be iudge be= D twyxte vs and the, for ȳ hast dealt euill ꝧ vs: thou wouldest not speake pecea ble with the kyng of the Assyrians ther fore hath God solde vs in their handes and there is noman to helpe vs where as we are brought downe before there eyes in thirst and greate destruccyone/Therfore gather yow together al thee people that be in the cyte, that we maye al yelde oure selues willingly vnto the people of Holofernes: for better it ys ȳ we be captyvue and prayse the Lord ꝧ our lyues, then to be slayne and perishe and to be laughed to scorne a shamed of euery man when we se oure wiues and children dye before our eyes. We take heauen and erth this daye to recorde and the God of oure fathers (which pu nysheth vs according to the destruyng of oure sinnes) and geue you warnynge, that ye geue vp the cyte now in to the po wer of Holofernes hoost, that our ende maye be shorte ꝧ the swerde, whych els shal endure long for wãt of water ãd for thirst.

When they had spoké out these wor des, there was a greate wepyng & how= lyng in the whole congre gacion, ãd that of euery man, and they cryed an whole houre longe vnto God with one voyce, saieg: we haue sined with our fathers, we haue don amiss, we haue dealte wic= kedly.

Thou that art gracious haue mercy vp pon vs, punish oure vnrighteousnes ꝧ thyne owne scourge, and geue not those ouer that knowledge thee/ vnto a peo= ple whiche knoweth thee not, least they say among the heythen: where is theyr God?

And when they were so wery wyth this cryeng and weping, that they held theyr tonges, Osyas stode vp wyth watery ey es, and sayde: O take good hertes vn= to you (dere bretheren) and bee of good cheare, and let vs wayte yet these fyue dayes for mercye of the Lorde: peradu uenture he shall cut away hys indigna cion/ and geue glory vnto hys name.
But if he helpe vs not when these fyue dayes are past/ we shall doo as ye haue sayde.

¶ Of ȳ vertuous woman Judith, which reproueth the auncientes because they tempted the lord. She also moueth thẽ to encorage & herden ȳ people, and sheweth her counsel agaynst ȳ enemies of ȳ Jewes.

The. viii. Chapter.

AND it happened when these wor A des cam to the eares of Judith a wyddowe, which was the dau ghter of Merary, The sonne of Idox/the sonne of Joseph/ the sonne of Osi= ah, the sone of Elai, the sonne of Jam= nor, the sonne of Jedeon, the sonne of Raphoim, the sonne of Achitob, the son ne of Melchia, the sunne of Euam, the sonne of Nathonia, the sunne of Sala thyell the sonne of Simeon, the sonne of Ruben. And her husbãd was called Manasses, which dyed in the dayes of the barley haruest.

For whyle he was byndynge the B sheaues together in the felde, the heate came vpon hys hed, and he dyed at Be thulya his citie, and there was he bury= ed beside his fathers. Now was Judith hys desolate wyddowe three yeares ãd syxe monethes. And in the vper partes of her house she made her selfe a pryuy chamber, where she dwelt beinge closed in with her maydens. She ware a sacke of hearre, and fasted all the dayes of her lyfe, excepte the Sabbathes, and newe moones, and the solempne dayes that ȳ people of Israell kept. She was a ve rye fayre and bewtyfull parson. Her hu sbande also, had lefte her gret ryches and plenteous

plenteous houshold, greate vnmoueable possessions and many catel. This Judith was a woman of a very good report wyth euery one, for she feared the Lorde greatly, and there was no body/that spake an euill worde of her.

When this Judith herde, how Osyas had promysed the people, that after the fyfte daye he woulde geue vp the cytie vnto the Assyrians/she sent for the elders Chambri and Charmyn, & when they cam to her, she sayde: what thynge is this, wheryn Osyas hathe consented, that yf God helpe not within four dayes, he wyl geue ouer the citie to the Assyrians: What are ye, that

C ye tempte the Lorde? This deuice obtaineth no mercy of God, but prouoketh hi vnto wrath & displeasur. Wyl ye set the mercy of the Lorde a time and apointe him a daye after your wil? Neuertheles, for so moch as the Lorde is pacyent, lett vs rather amende oure selues, pourynge out teares, and besechyng him of grace. For God threateneth not as a mā, nether wyl he be prouoked vnto wrathe as the children of men. And therfore let vs hertelye fall downe before hi, & serue hym wt a meke sprete, and wyth wepinge eyes, saye vnto the Lorde, that he deale with vs accordinge to hys owne wyll and mercy: that lyke as our herte is now vexed, and brought lowe thorow the pryde of them/ it maye so be comforted thorow hys gra

D ce: in so muche as we folow not the synnes of our fathers, whych forsoke their GOD, and woorshipped other GODDES: for the whyche synne they perished with the swerd, were spoyled ād brought to shame of al their enemies. As for vs, we know non other God but onely him, for whose comfort let vs tary with mekenesse. He shall requyre and make iquisisiō for our bloud, from the vexacions of our enemyes: he shal brynge downe al the Heythen, that ryse vp agaynste vs, and put theym to dishonoure, euen the lorde our god.

Therfore deare brethren, seyng ye are the honorable and elders in the people of God, vnto whome all the people haue respecte, and vpon whom the lyfe of the people hangeth, lyft vp their hertes with your exortacion, that they may cal to remembraunce, how oure fathers also in tymes paste were tempted, that they might be proued, if they worshypped their god a ryght. They oughte to remembre/howe oure father Abrahā beynge tempted/and tryed thorow many trybulacions, was founde a louer & frende of God: So was Isaac, so was Jacob, so was Moses, and al they that pleased god/beynge tryed thorow many troubles/were founde stedfast in fayth: agayn they that receaued not their tēptacions with the feare of god, but put them selues forth with vnpacyency ād murmuring agaynste god perished of the destroyer, and were slayne of serpentes, And therfore should not we vndertake to be auenged, for the thing that is don vnto vs: but to cōsydre, that al these punishmentes are farre lesse then our synnes and mysdedes. Beleuing also/that this correccyon commeth vnto vs (as to the seruauntes of God) for a mēdment, and not for our destruccion.

E Then sayde Osias and the elders vnto Judith: All that thou speakest/is true, and no man can reproue thy wordes. Pray thou for vs now therfore vnto god, for thou art an holy woman, & fearest god. And Judyth sayde vnto them. Seynge ye knowe, that my wordes are of God, then proue my coūcel and deuyce, if it be of God: & beseche God, that he wil bringe my councell to good ende.

Thus haue I deuysed: ye shall stande this night befor the porte, and I wyl go forth with Abra my mayden: Pray ye therfore vnto god, that he wil graciously remembre the people of Israel within fiue dayes, as ye haue said. As for the thynge that I goo yn hande wyth all, aske ye questions of yt, tyll I open it vnto you my selfe: doo ye nothinge els but praie vnto the lord your GOD for me. Then Osias the prince of the People of Juda sayde vnto her: Go thy waie in peace and the Lorde be with thee, that we maye be auenged of our enemyes. And so they went from her agayne.

¶ The prayer of Judith for the victory.

The

The.ix. Chapter.

NOw when they were gone their waye/ Judith went in A to her oratory, put on an he arye smocke, strowed ashes vpon her hed/ fel downe before the lord, and cried vnto him, say enge: O Lord god of my father Syme on, which gauest him a sweard for a de fence agaynst ye enemies, that vsed vyo lence and wylfulnes, and that rauished the virgin and put her to dishonesty.
Thou that gauest theyr wiues into a praye, and their daughters into cap ty-uite, and al their praye for a spoile vnto thy seruauntes, which haue a zeale vnto the, helpe me widdow, O Lord my god I beseche the: For thou hast done al thin ges from the beginning, and loke what thou haste taken in hande and deuysed, it came euer to passe. For al thy wayes are prepared, and thy iudgmentes are done in thy euerlastinge forknowledge. O loke now vpon the armes of the Assiry ans, lyke as yt was thy pleasure some tyme to loke vpon the host of the Egyp cyans, when they being weaponed, per secuted thy seruauntes, & put their trust i their charettes, horsmen and in ye multitude of theyr men of warre. But thou lo-kest vppon their hoost casting a thycke darcknes before them: and when theye came into the depe, ye waters ouer whel B med them.
Euen so Lord let it go with these that trust in the power of the multitud of their men of warre, in their charettes, arowes and speares, and knowe not/ that thou only art our god, whych destroyest warres from the beginning, and that thou art the Lord. O lyfte vp thy arme nowe lyke as euer from the begynninge, and in thy power bryng ther power to naught cause their myght to fal in thy wrath.
They make ther boast, that they wil vn halow and defyle thy Sanctuary, and to wast ye tabernacle of thy name & to caste downe the horne of thine aulter wt their swerde. Brynge to passe (O Lord) that the pryde of the enemy maie be cut dow ne with his owne swerd that he maye be taken wyth the snare of hys eyes in me and that thou maiest smite theym with the lyppes of my loue. O geue me a stedfast mynde, that I may despyse hi and hys strenght, and that I maye destroy hym.
Thys shall brynge thy name an euer lastinge remembraunce/ yf the hande of a woma ouerthrow hym. For thy power (O Lorde) standeth not in the power of men, neyther hast thou anye pleasure in the strenght of horses. There was neuer proude personne that pleased thee, but in the prayer of the humble and meake hath thy pleasure bene euermore.
O thou God of the heauens, thou ma C ker of the waters, & Lord of all creatures, heare me poore woman, callynge vpon the, and puttyng my trust in thy mercye. Remembre thy couenaunte O Lorde, and minister wordes in my mo uthe, and stablysh this deuyce in my hert, that thy house maye contynue stil in holynesse, and that all the Heathen maye know and vnderstand, that thou arte God, and that there is none other but thou.

Judith decketh her selfe to go to Holofernes. The blessing that the elders gaue Judith. Holofernes is in loue with Judyth.

The.x. Chapter.

ANd whan she had lefte of cr A yenge vn to the Lorde, she rose vp from the place, whe re she had lyen flatte before the Lorde, and called her mayd, wente downe in to her house, layed the hearre cloth from her, put of the garmentes of her wyddowhode, wasshed her bodye, anoynted hir self wyth precious thing es of swete sauour, broyded and plated her hearre, set an houue vpon her hea-de, and put on soche apparel as belongeth vnto gladnesse, slippers vpon her fete, armlettes, spanges, earynges, fin ger rynges, and decked her self wt al her best araye.
The Lord gaue her also a specyal beutie and fairenesse (for al this deckig of her selfe was not done for any volup tuousnes and pleasure of the flesh, but of a ryght discretion and duty, therfore did the lorde encrease her beautye) so that she was excedinge amiable and wel fauoured i al mennes eyes. She gaue hir maide also a bottel of wyne, a pot wyth oyle, pottage, cake bred and chese/ and went her waye.

B Now whan she came to the porte of the cytye, she founde Osias and the elders of the cite waytinge there, Why-che when they sawe her, they were asto nied, and marueled greatly at her bew-tye, neuerthe les they axed no questyon at her, but let her go/sayinge: The god of oure father geue the his grace, ad wt his power performe al the deuice of thy hert: that Jerusalem maye reioyce ouer the, and that thy name maye be in ye nõber of the holy and righteuous. And al they that were there, saide wt one voyce: so be it, so be it. Judith made her praier vnto the Lord, & went out at the porte, she and her mayde.

And as she was going downe the mountayn, yt happened that about the springe of the daye, the spyes of the Assiryans met wt her, and toke her, saye-inge: from whence commest thou?
Or whither goest thou? She answered: I am a daughter of the Hebrues, & am fled from theym, for I knowe, that they shalbe geuen vnto you to be spoy-led: because they thought scorne to yeld them selues vnto you, that they myght find mercy in your sight. Therfore haue I deuised by my selfe after this maner: I wyl go before the prince Holofernes, and tel him al their secretes, and wil she we him, how he may com to the, & winne them, so that not one man of his hooste shal perish.

And when these mẽ had herde her C wordes, and cõsidered her fayr face they were astonied (for they wondred at her excellent bewtie) and sayde vnto her: Thou hast saued thy life by fyndynge out this deuice, that thou woldest come downe to our lorde: and be thou sure, yt when thou commest vnto him, he shal i treate the wel, and thou shalt please hi at the hert. So they brought her in to Holofernes pauylion/and tolde him of her: Now when she came in before hym, immidiatly he was ouercome and taken with her bewty. Then sayde his seruauntes: who wolde despyse the people of the Jewes that haue so faire we men? Shoulde we not by reason fight a gaynst them for these? So whe Judith saw Holofernes syttig in a canapy/that was wrought of purple, silke, goulde/Smaragde and precious stones, she lo ked fast vpon hym, and fell downe vpõ the earth, and Holofernes seruauntes toke her vp agayne, at theyr Lordes cõ-maundement.

¶ Holofernes requireth of Juda the cause of her comming, which geueth hym a subtill answer.

The .xi. Chapter.

Then saide Holofernes vn- A to her: be of good cheare, & feare not in thine herte, for I neuer hurt man, that wol de serue Nabuchadonosor ye kyng. As for thy People/yf they had not despised me. I should not haue lift vp a speare agaynst them. But tell me now, what is the cause that thou art departed from them, & wherfore art thou come vnto vs.

And Judith sayde vnto hym: Syr/vnderstande the wordes of thy hand-mayden: for if thou wylte doo after the wordes of thy handmayden, the Lorde shall bringe thy matter to a prosperous effecte. As truly as Nabuchodonosor a Lorde of the lande lyueth/and as tru lye as hys power lyueth, whych is in ye. to the punishement of all men that doo wronge, all men shall not onely be sub dued vnto hym thorowe thee, but al the beastes also of the felde. For all people speake of thy prudente capitiuitie/and it hath euer bene reported, how thou only art good and myghtie in all hys kyngdome and thy discretion is commended in all landes.

The thynge is manifest also, that A chior spake, and it is wel knowen what thou commaũdedst to do vnto him. For B thys is playne and of a suerty, that our God is so wroth wyth vs (by the reason of oure synnes) that he hath shewed by hys prophetes vnto the people/how yt for oure synnes he wyll delyuer them o uer vnto the enimye. And for so muche as the chyldren of Israell knowe that they haue so displeased theyr god, they are sore afrayde of thee.

They suffer great honger also/and for wante of water, they are dead nowe in a manner. Moreouer they are apoin ted to slay all theyr catel/that they mai drinche the bloud of them and are pur-posed, to spende al the holy ornamentes of their God (whiche he hathe forbydden them to touche) for corne wyne, and oyle. Seyng now that thei do these thinges it is a playne case, that they must nedes be destroyed. Whych when I thy handmayden perceaued / I fled from them, and the Lorde hath sent me vnto the, to shew the these thinges. For I thy handmayden worshippe God euen here nowe besyde the, and thy handmayden shal go forth, and I wil make mi prayer vnto God / and he shal tel me, when he wil rewarde them their sinne: then shal I come and shewe the and bringe the thorow the middest of Jerusalem, so that thou shalt haue al the people of Israel, as the shep D without a shepherde: there shal not so moche as one dogg barcke agaynst the: for these thinges are shewed me by the prouydence of God: and for so much as God is displesed with them, he hath set me to tell the the same.

These wordes pleased holofernes and al his seruauntes, which marueled at the wisdome of her, and sayde one to another: there is not soche a woman vpon earth, in bewtye and discrecyon of wordes. And holofernes sayd vnto her: god hath done well, that he hath sent the hyther before thy people that thou mayst geue them into oure handes. And for so moche as thy promesse is goodde, yf thy God perfourme it vnto me, he shalbe my God also / and thou shalt be excellent grete at the court of Nabuchodonosor, and thy name shalbe spoken of in all the lande.

¶ Holofernes commaunded that Judith be wel intreated. She desyreth licence to go out in the nyght season to pray, & obtayneth it. Vagao is sent vnto her to moue her to come in to Holofernes to a banket, and she commeth. Holofernes is dronke.

The .xii. Chapter.

A Then commaunded he her to go in, where hys treasure re laye, and charged that she shoulde haue her dwellynge there, and appoynted what should be geuen her from his table. Judith answered him and sayde: As for the meate that thou hast commaunded to geue me, I maye not eate of it as yet (lest I dysplease my god) but wil eat of soche as I haue brought wyth me.

Then sayde Holofernes / vnto her: If these thinges that thou hast brought wyth thee fayle, what shall we do vnto the? and Judith sayd: As truly as thou lyuest my Lord, thy handmayden shall not spende all thys / tyll God haue brought to passe in my hande, the thynges that I haue deuised. B

So hys seruauntes brought her in to the tent, where as he had appointed. And as she was goinge in, she desyred that she myght haue leaue to go forthe by nyght and before day, to her prayer and to make intercession vnto the lord. Then commaunded Holofernes hys chamberlaynes, that she shoulde go out and in at her pleasure, to pray vnto god those three dayes.

And so in the nyght season she wente forth into the valley of Bethulya, and wasshed her selfe in well water. Then went she vp, and besought the Lord god of Israell that he woulde prospere her waye, for the delyueraunce of hys people. And so she wente in and remayned cleane in her tente, tyll she toke her meate in the euenynge. C

Upon the fourth daye it happened, that Holofernes made a costlye supper vnto hys seruauntes, and sayde vnto Vagao hys Chamberlayne: Go thy waye and councel thys hebrewesse, that she maye be wyllinge to consent to kepe company wyth me. For it were a shame vnto all the Assirians / that a womanne shoulde so laugh a man to scorne, that she were come fro hym vnmedled wyth all.

Then wente Vagao vnto Judith and sayde: Let not the good daughter be afrayed, to come into my Lorde, that she maye be honoured before hym, that she maye eate and drinke wyne / and be mery wyth hym. Unto whome Judith answered: Who am I, that I should say my Lorde naye, what soeuer is good before hys eyes / I shal do it: and loke what is hys pleasure, that shall I thynke D well done / as longe as I lyue.

So she stode vp, and decked her selfe wyth her apparell, and wente in, and stode before hym. And Holofernes herte was whol moued / so that he brent in her lust towarde her. And Holofernes sayde vnto her: Drincke nowe and sytte downe, and be merye, for thou hast found fauoure before me. Then sayde Judith:

Syr I wyll drynck, for my mynd is me rer to daye, then euer it was in all my lyfe. And she toke and ate and dranke before hym, the thynges that her mayd en had prepared for her. And holofernes was mery with her, and dranke more wine, then euer he did afore in hys lyfe.

Holofernes sleped for very dronkennes. Judith cut teth of his heade, and goeth therwith to her owne people: of whome she is receaued with ioy. Therge ue thākes vnto God, for their delyueraūce. Judith speaketh vnto Achior, which marueled at her feate done to Holofernes.

The. xiii. Chapter.

A NOw when yt was late in ẏ nyght hys seruaunets made haste euerye man to hys lodgyng. And Vagao shut ẏ chambre dore, and wente hys way, for they were all ouerladen w wyne. So was Judith alone in the chā-ber. As for Holofernes he laye vppon ẏ bed all dronncken / and of verye dronc-kennes fell a slepe.
Then commaunded Judith her maydē to stonde without before the dore / and to wayte. And Judith stoode before the bed, making her prayer wyth teares, & moued her lyppes secretlye said: Stren gthen me O Lord God of Israell, and haue respect vnto the workes of my hādes in thys houre, that thou mayest set vp thy Citie of Jerusalem lyke as thou hast promised: O graunte that by the I maye perfourme the thynge, whyche I haue diuised thorowe the beleue that I haue in thee.
B And when she had spoken this, she wen te to the bedsteade, and lowsed the swer de that hanged vpō it, and drew it out.
Then toke she holde of the hearye loc-kes of his heade, and sayde: Strength en me O Lord God in thys houre: ād wyth that, she gaue hym two strokes vpon the necke, and smote of his head.
Then toke she the canapy awaye, and rolled the dead body asyde. Immedia-tly she gat her forth, and delyuered the head of Holofernes vnto her mayden, ād bad her put it in her walet. And so these two went forth together after th eir custome, as though they wold pray and so passed by the Hoost, and cam thorow the valley vnto the port of the cyte. And Judith cryed afarre of vnto the watchmen vppon the walles: Open the gates (sayde she) for god is w vs whiche hath shewed his power in Israel. And when they harde her voyse they called the elders of the cyte together C And they came all to mete her lul and greate younge ād olde, for they thought not that she shulde haue come so sone: So they lyghted candels, and gathered aboute her euerychon: but she wente vp into an hey place, and caused sylence to be proclamed.
When euery man now held his tōg Judith sayde: O prayse the Lorde oure god for he hath not despysed / nor forsa ke thē / that put ther trust in him: and in me his handmayde he hath parformed his mercy, which he promysed vnto the host of Israel: yee in my hand this same nyght hath he slayne the enemye of hys people.
And with that she toke forth ẏ head of Holofernes out of the wallet and she wed it them, saying: Behold the head of Holofernes the captayne of the Assiriās and this is the canapy, wherin he laye in his dronkennes: where the Lorde oure D god hath slayne hym by the hande of a woman.
But as truly as the Lord lyueth his Aungel hath kepte me, goinge thither, remaynyng there and comming hither agayn from thence. And the Lorde hath not suffred me his handmayden to be de fyled, but without any fylthynes of sinne hath he brought me agayn vnto you: ād that with great victory, so that I am es caped, and ye delyuered O geue thākes vnto him euerychone / for he is gracios and his mercy endureth for euer.
So they praysed the Lord altogether and gaue thankes vnto him. And to her they sayde: The Lord hath blessed thee in his power / for thorowe thee he hathe brought oure enemyes to naught. And Ozias thee chefe ruler of the People of Israel, sayde vnto her: Blessed art thou of the Lorde the hye God, a boue all we E men vpon erth.
Blessed be the lord, the maker of he auen and earth, which hath gyded the a ryght to wound and to smite of the head of the Captayne of oure enemyes.
For this day he hath made thy name so horryble ẏ thy prayse shall neuer come out of the mouth of men, which shal alway remembre the power of the lord: seing thou hast not spared thine owne self, but put the in ieopardy, considring the anguyshe and trouble of thy people, and so hast helped their fal before God our lord. And al the people sayde: Amen Amen.

Achior also was called, and he cāe Then saide Judith vnto hi: The god of Israel vnto whom thou gauest wit
D nes, that he woulde be auenged of hys enemies, euen he hath thys night thorowe my hande smitten of the head of al the vnfaithful. And that thou maist se that it so is, beholde thys ys ÿ head of Holofernes, which in his presumtuous pride despised the God of the people of Israel, and threatened the wyth destruccion, saying: when the people of Israel is taken, I shal cause thee also to be stycked with the sweard.

Whē Achior saw Holofernes head, he fell downe vpon his face to the groūd for very anguysh and feare, so that he sownded withal. But after that he was come agayne to hym selfe, he fell downe before her, & praysed her, saiēg: Blessed art thou of thy God in al the tabernacles of Jacob: for al the people that heare of thy name, shal prayse the God of Israel because of the.

The councel of Judith. Achior being an heathen man turneth to God. The Assyrians are afraid of the Jewes.

The .xiiii. Chapter.

A Judith sayde vnto all the people: brethren heare me. Styck vp thys head vpon your walles, and when the sonne aryseth, take euery man his weapon, and fal out violently: not as thouge ye wolde go besid them, but renne vpon them, with violence. When the spyes in the tentes se thys, they shal of necessite be compelled to fle backward and to rayse vp their captayne to the battel. So when their captaines com into Holofernes pauilyon, and fynd ÿ dead body wrapped in the blud, fearfulnes shall fall vppon theym: and when ye perceyue that they fle, folowe theym without al care, for god shal deliuer thē B vnto you, to be destroyed.

Then Achior seyng the power of god which he hath shewed vnto the people of Israel, fel from his heathenysh belefe, and put his trust in God, and let him selfe be circumcised: ād so was he nombred among the people of Israel, he and al his posteritie vnto this dai.

Now as soone as it was daye, they stuckt vp Holofernes head vppon the walles, and euery man toke his wepē, & so they went out with an horible cry. When the spies sawe that, they ranne vnto Holofernes tente. And they that were wythin the tente, came before his chamber, and made a greate russhinge to wake him vp / because they thought wyth the noyse to haue raysed hym. For there durst not one of the Assiriās knocke, go in or open.

But when the captaynes and prynces C and all the chefe in the kynge of the Assyriās hoost came together, they sayde vnto the chamberlaynes: Go your way in, and wake him vp, for thee myse are crepte out of their holes, and darre prouoke vs vnto battayll. Then wente Vagao in to hys chamber, stode before the bed, and clapped wyth hys handes, for he thought he had ben slepyng wyth Judith. But when he had herkened perfectly with hys eares and coude perceaue no sterynge, he wente nyer to the bed & lift it vp, & thē saw he the ded body of Holofernes liing there without a head weltred in hys bloude vpon the earth, Then cryed he wyth e loude voyce and D wyth weping rent hys clothes / and wēt into Judiths tent, and founde her not. And so he lepte out vnto the people, & sayde: one woman of the Jewes, hath brought all Nabuchodonosors people to shame. For lo Holofernes lyeth vppon the ground and hath no head.

When the chefe of the assirians host herde that, they rent theyr clothes, and there fell [illegible] feare and trēbling vpon them / so that theyr myndes were sore afrayed. And there was an exceding greate crye in the whole hoost.

The flyght of ÿ Assirians. The pursute of Israel after them. Israel becometh ryche by the spoyles of the Assirians. Judith is praysed of Ioacim and of the people.

The .xv. Chapter.

A NOw when al the host hearde that Holofernes was heded their mynd and councel fell frome them: and soche a fea re came vpon thē, that they vndertoke to defende them selues by fli eng awaye: one spake not to another, but hanged down their heades, left al behid them, and made hast to escape from the Hebrues: for they hearde, that they were hastyng to come after with their wepēs/& so they fled by the wayes of ŷ feldes, & thorowe al the fote pathes of the vales.
And when the children of Israel sawe ŷ B they fled, they folowed vpon thē, & wēt downe with trompettes, blowyng & ma kyng a great crie after them. As for the Assyryans, they had no ordre, and kept not them selues together, but fled there waye. Neuerthelesse the children of Israel fel vppon them with one company and ordre/ and disconfetede as many as they myght get. And Ozeas sēt messan gers vnto al the cities and countrees of Israel.
C So al the regions and euery cytie sent out their best men after them in harnes se/ and smote them with the swerde, tyll they came to the vttermest part of theyr borders. And the other that were in Be thulya came into ŷ tentes of the Assiriās and toke al that they which were fleede had left behynd them, and so they foūde great good. And they that came agayne to Bethulya from the battel, toke wt thē soch thinges as had bē theirs, ther was no nombre of the catel, and of all costly Je wels/ so that from the lowest vnto thee hyest they were al made ryche of the spoi les of them. And Joachim the hye prest at Jerusalem, came to Bethulya withal the elders, that they myghte se Judyth.
D Now when she came out vnto thē they begane al to prayse her with one voyse, sayenge: thou worshyppe of thee cytee of Jerusalem/ thou ioye of Israel/ ŷ hono ure of oure people, thou hast done manly and thy hert is comforted/ because thou hast loued clenlynes and chastytee, and hast knowē no man but thine owne hus band: therfor hath the hand of the Lord comforted the, and blessed shalt thou be for euer. And all the people sayd: so be it so be it.

In thyrtie dayes coulde the people of Israel scarce gather vp the spoyles of the Assirians. But al that belonged vnto Holofernes, and had bene hys spe cyally (whether it were of golde, of sil uer, precious stones, clothinge and all ornaments) they gaue it vnto Judith.
And al the people reioysed, both womē, maydens/ and yong people wyth pypes and harpes.

The songe of Judith for the victorye. After the vic torye obtayned, the people commeth to Jerusalem to worshyppe and prayse god.

THen songe Judith thys son A ge vnto the Lorde: Begyn vnto the Lorde vpon the ta brettes, synge vnto the lord vpon the cymbales. O sin ge vnto hym a newe songe of thancke geuinge, be ioyfull and call vppon hys name. It is the Lorde that destroyeth warres, euen the Lorde is his name.
Which hath pitched hys Tentes in the myddeste of his People, that he might delyuer vs from the hande of al oure e nemyes. Assur came out of the mountay nes, in the multitud of hys strenght. His B people stopped the water brookes, and their horses coured the valleis. He pur posed to haue brent vp my lande, to sleye my yonge men with the swerde.
He wolde haue caryed awaye my chylde ren and virgyns into captiuitee, but the almightie Lorde hurte hym, and deliue red hym intoo the handes of a woman, whych brought hym to confusyon. For theyr mightie was not destroyed of ŷ yonge men. It was not the sonnes of Ti tan that slewe hym, nether haue the gre ate gyauntes set them selues agaynst hi but Judith the doughter of Merari wt her fayr bewtye hath disconfyted hym and brought hym to naughte. For she layed awaye her widdows garment, and C put on the apparell of gladnes in the re ioysinge of the chylderen of Israel: she anoynted her face, and bound vp her her et in an hoode to begyle hym. Her slip pers rauished hys eyes/ her bewtye cap tiuated hys mynde, wt the swerde smote she of hys neck. The persians were asto nied at her stedfastnes, & ŷ medes at her boldnes. The houled ŷ armis of ŷ Assiri

The

B The sonnes of the daughters haue pe arsed them thorow, and slayne them as fugityue chyldren: they peryshed in the battayll, for the very feare of the Lord my God. Let vs synge a songe of than kesgeuynge vnto the Lorde, a new son ge of prayse wyl we syng vnto our god.
Lorde, Lorde, thou arte a great God, myghtye in power, whom noman may o uercome. All the creatures shuld serue the: for thou spakest but the word, and they were made: thou sentest the spryte, and they were created, and no man can wyth stande thy voyce. The mountaynes shall moue from the foundacyons with the waters, the stony rockes shall melt before the lyke wax. But they that feare the: shalbe greate wyth thee in all thinges. Wo vnto the people that ryse vp agaynst my generacyon, for the Al myghtye Lorde wyll avenge hym selfe of them, and in the daye of iudgement C wyll he vyset them. For he shall geue fy re and wormes in to their flesh, that they may burne and fele it for euermore. Aft er this it happned, that after the victory all the people came to Jerusalem, to ge ue prayse and thanckes vnto the Lorde. And when they were puryfyed, they offred all their brent sacrifices and ther promysed offrings. And Judith offred all Holofernes Weapens and all the Jewels, that the people had geuen her, and the canappe that she toke from his bed, and hanged them vp vnto the Lor de. The people was ioyfull as the vic is: and this ioy by reason of the victory wyth Judith, endured three monethes, So after these dayes euery man wente home agayne, and Judith was in great reputacyon at Bethulia, and right ho norably taken in all the lād of Israell.
D Unto her vertue also was chastitee ioy ned, so that after her husbande Mana-sses dyed, she neuer knew man al the da yes of her lyfe. Upon the hye solempne dayes she wente out wyth greate worship. She dwelt in her husbands house an hundreth and fyue yeare/and left her handmayde free/and dyed, and was bu ryed besyde her husband in Bethulia.
And all the people mourned for her seuen dayes. So longe as she lyued, ther was none that troubled Israell, and ma ny yeares also after her deathe.
The daye wherin this history was gotten, was solempnely holden, and rec kened of the Jewes in the nombre of the holy dayes, and it is yet greatly holden Jamyn a Jewe: whych had hys dwellinge in Susis, a man of greate reputacion, and excellent amonge all them that were in the kynges court. (Neuertheless he was one of the presoners whom Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babylon had caried awaye from Jerusalem vnto Babylon wyth Jechonias the kynge of Juda) In the second yeare of the raygne of great Artaxerses in the fyrst day of the Moneth Nisan, had this Mardocheus such a dre ame: He thought he herde a great tempest, horrible thonder clappes, erthqua kes, and great vproare in the lande: so that he sawe two greate dragons reddy to fyght one agaynst an another. Their cry was great at the whych roaringe/and crye all the heathen were vp, to fig- B ht against the righteous people. And the same Daye was full of Darcken-nes and verye vnclerenes, full of trouble and anguysh/yea a greate fearfulnesse was there in the lande. The righteous were amased for they feared the plage of the euell, that was deuysed ouer the and were at a poynte wyth them selues to dye, so they cryed vnto god: and whi le they were cryeng, the lytell well grewe into a gret ryuer and into many waters And so that it was day, & the sunne ro se vp agayne. And the lowly were exalted and deuoured the glorious & proud

Now whē Mardocheus had sene thys dreame,he awoke,and mused stedfastly in his herte,what god wolde do: ād so he desired to know al the matter,ād his mind was therupon vntil the nyghte.

Mardocheus vttereth the treason deuised agaynst the king,and is therfore rewarded of hym.

only al vnthankfulnes awaye frō mē) but in pride and presumpcion (as they that be vnmindful & vnthanckful for the good dedes) they go about to escape the iudgment of God, that seyth all thinges/ which (iudgment) hateth & punisheth al wickednes. It happeneth

All cytyes and landes that do not this, shal horrybly perysh and be destroyed with the swerde and fyre, ād shal not only be nomore inhabited of men, but be abhorred also of the wylde beastes and foules.

¶ The end of y. reaste of the boke of Esther.

¶ How we ought to searche & enquyre after God, and who be those that find him. Of the holy gost. We ought to flye frō backbiting & murmuring. &c.

1 O Set your affection vpon wysdome, ye that be iudges of the earth. Haue a good opinion of the lorde, and seke him in the syngle nes of hert. For he wyl be found of thē that tempt him not, and apeareth vnto suche as put their trust in hym. As for frowarde thoughtes, they separate frō God, but vertue (if it be alowed) reproueth the vnwyse. And why? wisdom shal not enter into a froward soule nor B dwel i y. body y is subdued vnto sinne. For the holye goost abhorreth fayned nurtoure, and withdraweth hym selfe from the thoughtes that are without vnderstandinge: and where wycked nesse hathe the vpper hande, he flyeth from thence. For the sprete of wysdōe is louynge, gentle and gracyous, and wyl haue no pleasure in him that speaketh euel wyth hys lyppes. For god is a wytnes of his reynes, a true searcher out of hys hearte, and an herer of his tonge. For the sprete of the lord filleth the rounde compasse of the world, and the same that vpholdeth al thīges hath knowledg also of the voyce.

Therfore he that speaketh vnrightuous thynges, cannot be hyd, nether maye he escape the iudgment of repro
And why? inquysicion shalbe made for the thoughtes of the vngodly, and the C reporte of hys wordes shall come vnto god, so that his wyckednes shalbe punyshed. For the eare of gelowsy herith al thynges, and the noyse of the grudginges, shal not be hyd. Therfore beware of murmuringe which is nothīg worth, and refrayne youre tonge from sclaunder, for here is no word so darck and secret, y it shal go for naught: ād y mouth y speaketh lyes, slaeth the soul.

O seke not youre owne death in the errour of your lyfe, & estroy not youre selues thorow the workes of your owne handes. For god hath not made death, nether hathe he pleasure yn the destruccion of the lyuinge. For he D created all thynges, that they myghte haue their beynge: yea al the people of the erth hath he made y they shuld haue helth, y ther shuld be no destruccyon in them the kyngdom of hel shoulde not be vppon earth (for ryghtuousnes is euer lastynge and ymmortall, but vnryghtuousnes bryngeth death).

Neuertheles/the vngodlye call her vnto theym bothe wythe wordes and workes/and whyle they thynck to haue a frende of her, theye come to naughte: For the vngodlye that are confederat wyth her and take her parte/are worthy of death.

The imaginacions and desyres of the wycked, and theyr councell agaynst the faythfull.

The .ii. Chapter.

A For the vngodly talke and ymagē thusamōg thē selues (but not right:) The tyme of oure life is but short and tedious, and when a man ys ones gone, he hath no more ioy ner plea sure, nether knowe we eny mā y turneth agai frō deth: for we ar born of naught & we shalbe herafter as though we had neuer ben. For our breth is as a smoke in our nosetrels, & y wordes as a sparke to moue oure hert. As for our body, it shal be very asshes that are quenched, & our sole shal vanish as the soft ayre. Oure lyfe shal passe away as y trace of a clou de, and comme to naughte as the miste that is driuen away with the beames of the Sonne, and put down with y heate therof. Oure name also shalbe forgottē by lytle and lytle, and no man shal haue oure workes in remembraunce.
B For oure tyme is a very shadow that pas awaye, and after oure ende ther is no returnynge, for it is fast sealed, so that no mā cometh againe. Com on therfore, let vs enioye the pleasures that ther are, & let vs soone vse the creature lyke as in youth. We wyl fil ourselues with good wyne & ointment, ther shal no flouer of y tyme go by vs. We wyl crowne our sel-ues with roses afore they be wythered: There shalbe no fayer medowe, but our lust shal goo thorow it. Let euery one of you be partacker of our voluptuousnes.
Let vs leaue some token of our pleasur in euerye place, for that is oure porcyon, els geue we nothinge. Let vs oppresse y poore ryghtuous, lette vs not spare the C wyddow ner olde man, let vs not regard the heddes that are graye for age. Let the lawe of vnryghtuousnesse be our auc torytе, for the thinge that is feable is no thing worth. Therfore let vs defraude y ryghtuous, and why? he is not for oure profyt, ye he is cleane contrary to our do inges. He checketh vs for offendig aga ynst the law, and sclaundreth vs as trās gressours of al nurtour, he maketh his boost to haue the knowledge of God, ye he calleth him selfe Gods sonne. He is y bewrayer of our thoughtes: It greueth vs also to loke vpon him, for his lyfe is not lyke other mens, his wayes are of a nother fasshyon.

He counteth vs but vayne personnes, he wythdraweth hym selfe from oure wayes as from fylthynesse: he commen deth greatly the latter ende of the iust & maketh his bost that god is his father.
Let vs se then if hys wordes be trwe, let vs proue what shal come vpon hym: so shal we knowe what ende he shall haue.
For yf he be the true Sonne of God, he wyl receaue him and delyuer hym from the handes of hys enemyes. Let vs exa D min hym wyth despitefull rebukes and tormenting, that we may know hys dig nitie and proue hys pacience. Let vs cō dempne hym wyth the moost shamefull deth: for lyke as he hath spoken, so shal he be rewarded.

Such thynges do the vngodlye ymagyne, and go astraye, for theyr owne wickednes hath blinded them. As for the misteries of God, they vnderstande them not: they nether hope for y rewar de of rightuousnes, nor regard the wor shyp that holy soules shall haue. For God created man to be vndestroyed, ye after the ymage of hys owne lykenes, made he hym. Neuertheles thorow enuye of the Deuell came Death into the worlde, and they that holde of hys syde do as he doth.

¶ The conseruation and assurance of the ryghtuous. The reward of the faythfull.

The iii. Chapter.

But the soules of the ryghtuos are in the hand of god A and the paine of death shal not touche them. In the sy ght of the vnwyse they ap-peare to dye, and theyr ende is take for verie destruction. The waye of the ryghtuous is iudge to be vtter destruction but they are in rest. And though they su ffre payne before menne, yet is theyr ho pe full of immortalyte. They are punished but in fewe thynges, neuertheles in manye thinges shall they be well rewarded. For God proueth them, and fi deth them mete for hym selfe: yea as the golde in the fornace doth he trye them, and receueth them as a brent offring & whē y time cōmeth they shalbe loked vpon. The rightuous shal shine as the B sparkes y renne thorow the rede busshe.
They shal iudge y naciōs & haue domi ryon ouer the people, and theyr Lorde shal raigne for euer. They that put their trust in him, shal vnderstand the truth, and suche as be faithful/wil agre vnto him in loue: for his chosen shal haue giftes and peace. But the vngodly shalbe punished acording to their owne ymmagynacyons, for they haue dyspysed the righteous, and forsaken the Lord.

D Who so dyspiseth wysdome and nurtoure, he is vnhappy, and as for the hope of suche yt is but vayne, their laboure vnfrutfull/and their workes vnprofitable. Their wiues are vndiscrete/ and their children most vngodly. Their creature is cursed. Blessed is rather the E barren and vndefiled, whiche hathe not knowen the sinful bed: she shal haue frut in the reward of the holy soules. And blessed is the gelded, which with his hādes hath wrought no vnrighteousnes nor immagened wycked thinges agaist god. For vnto him shalbe geuen the special gyfte of faith, and moste acceptable porcyon in the temple of God. For gloryous is the frut of good laboure, and the rote of wisdome shall neuer fade awaye. As for the childre of aduouterers, they shall come to an ende, and the sede of an vnrighteous bed shalbe roted out And though they liue long, yet shal thei be nothing regarded/and their last age shalbe without honoure. Yf they dye F hastely/they haue no hope, nether shall they be spoken to in that daye of knowledge. For horrible is the death & ende of the vnryghteous.

¶ Of ye chast generacion of the faithful, & of their felicite. Of ye death of ye righteous and of ye condemnacion of the vnfaythful.

O How fayre is a chast generacion with vertue? The A memorial therof is immortall/for yt is knowne wyth good men. When it is present, men take example therat: and yf it go awaye, yet they desyre it. It is alwaye crowned and holden in honoure, and wynneth the rewarde of the vndefyled battayl. But the multytude of vngodly childre is vnprofitable and ye thinges that are planted with whordom shall take no depe rote nor laye any fast fundacion. Though they be grene in the braunches for a tyme yet shall they be shaken with the wynde: for they stade not fast, and thorow the vehemence B of the wynde they shalbe roted out. For the vnparfecte braunches shall be broken, theyr frute shal be vnprofitable & sowre to eate, yee mete for nothyng. And why? all the chyldren that are born of the wycked, must beare recorde of the wyckednesse agaynste theyr fathers and mothers, when they be asked. But though the righteous be ouertaken wyth death, yet shall he be in rest.

Age is an honorable thinge neuertheles it standeth not onely in the legth of time, nor in the multitude of yeares: but a mans wysdome is the graye hearre and an vndefyled lyfe is the olde Age. He plesed god, and was beloued of hym: so that where as he lyued amonge synners/he translated hym. Yea sodenly was he taken away, to thyntent that C wyckednesse shoulde not alter hys vnderstandinge and that Ipocrisye shoulde not begyle hys soule. For the craftye bewitchyng of lyes, make good thynges darcke, the vnstedfastnes also and wickednes of voluptous desyre turne asyde the vnderstandinge of the symple. Though he was sone dead, yet fullfylled he much time. For hys soule plessed god therfore hasted he to take hym awaye from among the wycked. Thys the people se/& vnderstande it not: they laye not vp suche thinges in theyr hertes howe that the louinge fauoure and mercye of God is vpon his saintes and that he hathe respecte vnto his chosen

Thus the righteous that is deed, condempne the vngodly whiche are lyuinge: and the youthe that is soone bro D ughe to an ende, the longe life of the vnrighteous, for they se the ende of the the wyse, but they vnderstand not what god hath deuised for hym, and wherfore the Lord hath taken him away. And why? They see hym and despise hym: therfore shall G O D also laughe them to scorne: so that they them selues shall dye here after (but wythout thout honour) yea in shame among the deed for euermore. For without any voyce shall he burste those that be puste vp, and remoue them from the foundacions, so that they shalbe layde wast vn to the hiest. They shal morne, and their memorial shal perishe. So they beyng afrayed shal remembre theyr synnes, & theyr owne wyckednesse shall bewraye them.

¶ The constauncie of ÿ ryghtwes before their per ctes and godly

The. v. Chapter.

Then shal the ryghteous stand in A greate stedfastnes agaynst such as haue delt extremely with thē, and taken awaye their labours. When they se it, they shalbe vexed wt horrible feare, and shal wonder at the hastynes of the sodayn health: gronyng for very distresse of mynde, and shal saye within theym selues, hauynge inwarde sorow and mournynge for verye anguyshe of mynde):

These are they whom we somtyme, had in derysion and iested vp pon. We fooles thought their lyfe very madnes and theyr ende to be without honour.
But lo, how they are counted among ÿ children of god / ād their porcion is amonge the sayntes. Therfore we haue er red from the waye of truth, the lyght of righteousnesse hath not shined vnto vs and the sunne of vnderstandynge rose B not vp vppon vs. We haue weried oure selues in the waye of wyckednesse and destruccyon. Tedious wayes haue we gone: but as for the waye of the Lorde we haue not knowen it.
What good hath oure pryde done vn to vs: Or what profyt hath the pompe of ryches broughte vs? All those thyn C ges are passed awaye lyke a shadow, and as a messaunger rennyng before as a shippe that passeth ouer the waues of the water, which when it is gon vp, the trace therof can not be founde, neyther the pathe of it in the floudes.
Or as a byrde that flyeth thorow the ayre, and no man can se eny toke where she is flowe, but only heareth ÿ noyse of her wīges beatīg ÿ light wind partīge the ayre thorowe the vehemence of her goynge / and flyeth on shakyng her win ges where as after warde no token of her waye can be founde. Or lyke as C when an arowe is short at a marcke, yt parteth the ayre, which immediatly cōmeth togither agayne, so that a mān cā not know where it wente thorōw. Euen so we in lyke maner as soone as we were borne, beganne immediatly to drawe to oure ende / and haue shewed no toke of vertue, but are consumed in oure ow ne wyckednesse.
Suche wordes shal they that haue synned speake in the hel: For the hope of the vngodlye ys lyke a drye thystell floure (or duste) that ys blowen awaye wyth the wynde: Lyke as thynne scomme that is scatered abrode wyth the sto rme: lyke as the smoke which is disper sed here and ther wyth the wynd, ād as the remembraunce of a Straunger that taryeth for a daye, and then departeth.
But the righteous shall lyue for euermore: theyr reward also is wyth the lor D de: and theyre remembraunce wyth the hyest. Therfore shal they receaue a glo ryous kyngdome and a bewtyful crow ne of the Lordes hande: for wyth hys ryght hande shall he couer them / and wt hys owne arme shall he defende them.
Hys gelousy also shall take awaye the harnesse, ād he shal weapon the creature to be avenged of the enemyes. He shal put vnrighteousnes for a brest pla te, and take sure iudgement in steade of an helmet. The invincyble shylde of equitie shal he take, hys cruel wrath shal he sharpen for a speare and the whoole compasse of the world shall fyght wyth hym agaist the vnwyse.
Then shal the thōder boltes go out of the lyghtenynges and come out of the rayne bowe of the cloudes to the place appoynted: out of the harde stony indygnacyon there shall fall thick hayles, and the water of the see shalbe wroth E agaynst them, and the floudes shal ren ne roughly together. Yea a myghty wynde shal stand vp agaynst the and a storme shall scater them abrode.
Thus the vnryghteouse dealynge of them shall brynge all the land to wil dernes, and wyckednes shal ouerthrowe the dwellynges of the myghtye.

The callynge of kynges, Prynces and Judges: whiche are also exhorted to searche wysdome.

The. vi. Chapter.

Wysdom is better thẽ strẽgth, and a man of understan-
A dyng is more worth then on that is stronge. Heare therfore (O ye kinges) and understand: O lerne ye that be Judges of the endes of the earth. Geue eare ye that rule the multytudes, and delyte in much people. For the power is geuen you of ẏ Lorde, and the strength from the hiest: which shal trye youre workes ãd search out your ymagynacyons: How that yee beyng offycers of his kingdome / haue not executed true iudgemente, haue not kepte the law of rightuousnes, nor walked after his wil. Horribly ãd that right soone shal he appeare unto you: for an hard iudgemẽt shal they haue that beare rule. Mercy is grãuted unto the simple, B but they that be in auctoryte shalbe sore punyshed. For God which is Lord ouer al, shall excepte no mans personne, neyther shal he stãd in awe of any mans greatnes: for he hath made ẏ smale ⁊ great and careth for all alyke. But the mighti shal haue the sorer punyshment.

Unto you therfore (O ye kynges) do I speake, ẏ ye may lerne wisdõ ⁊ not go amysse: for they that kepe rightuousnes shalbe rightuously iudged: ãd they ẏ are lerned in rightuous thinges, shal fynde to make answere. Wherfore sette youre lust upon my wordes, ãd loue thẽ, so shal ye come by nurtour. Wisdom is a noble thing, and neuer fadeth awaye:
C ye she is easely sene of thẽ that loue her / and founde of soch as seke her. She preuenteth thẽ that desyre her, that she mai fyrst shewe her selfe unto them. Who so awaketh unto her by tymes, shal haue no greate trauel, for he shal finde her sittyng readi at his dores. To thincke upon her, is parfect understanding: and who so watcheth for her shalbe safe, ãd ẏ sone For she goeth about, sekyng soch as are worthi for her, sheweth her selfe cherefully unto them in their goinges, and meteth them wyth al diligence.

For the unfained desire of reformaciõ is her beginninge: to care for nurtoure is loue, and loue is the keping of her lawes. Nowe the kepinge of the lawes is perfection ãd an uncorrupte lyfe, and an uncorrupte lyfe maketh a man familier with god. And so the desyre of wysdom leadeth to the kingedome euerlasting. If youre delite be then in royall seates and scepters (O ye kinges of the people) set your lust upon wisdome, that ye mai raigne for euermore. O loue ẏ light D of wysdõ, al ye ẏ be rulers of the people As for wisdome what she is, and how she came up I wyl tel you, and wil not hide the mysteryes of God from you: but wyl seke her oute from the begynnynge of the nature, and bringe the knowledge of her into lyght / and wyl not kepe back the trueth: nether wyll I haue to do with consuming enuy, for suche a manne shal not be partaker of wysdome. But the multitude of ẏ wise is the welfare of the worlde, and a wise kyng is the upholder of the people. O receaue nurtoure then thorowe my wordes, and it shal do you good.

Wisdome ought to be preferred before all thynges

The, vii. Chapter.

I Myselfe also am a mortall man lyke as all other, and am come of the earthy gen- A eration of hym that was fyrst made, and in my mothers wombe was I fashyoned to be flesh: In the tyme of ten monethes was I brought together in bloude thorow the sede of man, and the commodyous appetyte of sleape. When I was borne, I receaued lyke ayre as other men, and fell upon the erth (which is my nature) crying and weppynge at the fyrst, as all other do. I was wrapped in swadlynge clothes, ãd broughte up wythe greate cares. For ther is no kyng that hath had eny other begynnyng of byrth. All men then haue one entraunce unto lyfe, and one goyng out in lyke maner. Wherfore I desyred, and understandyng was geuen me: I called, and the spirte of wysdome came in to me. I sett more by her, then by kyngdomes and royall seates, and counted ryches nothig in comparisõ of her

As for precyous stonne I compared it not unto her:for all gold is but grauell unto her,and siluer shalbe counted but claye before her syght.I loued her abo ue wellfare and beutye,and purposed to take her for my lyght,for her shyne can not be quenched.All good thynges ca me to me w her,and innumerable rych es thorowe her handes .I was glad in them all,for thys wysdome weute befo re me, and I knewe not that she is the mother of al good thynges.Now as I my selfe lerned unfaynedly,so do I ma B ke other me partakers of her,and hyde her ryches from no man:for she is an infynite treasure unto men,which who so use,be come Partakers of the loue and frendship of God,and are accepted unto hym for the gyftes of wysdome.
God hath graunted me to talke wysely and conueniently to handle the thyngs that he hath graciouslye lent me.For it es he,that ledeth unto wysdomme,and teacheth to use wisdõe aryght. In his hãd are we & our workes:ye al our wis dom,our understãding & knowledg of al our workes.For he hath geuẽ me ẏ true science of these thĩgs:so ẏ I know how ẏ world was made,& ẏ powers of ẏ elements:ẏ beginnĩg,ending & mid dest of ẏ times:how the time alter,how C one goeth after another,& how they ar fulfilled bythe course of ẏ yere:ẏ ordinaũ ces of the starres: the natures & kinde nes of beastes:ẏ furiousnes of beastes:ẏ power of ẏ windes :the immaginatiõs of mẽ:the deuersites of yõg plãtes:the bertues of rotes,& al such thĩges as ar secret & not loked for/haue I learned.
For ẏ workmaster of al thĩgs hath taght me wysdõ. In her is ẏ spret of understã ding/which is holy, manifold,one only subtil,curteous,discrete,quick,undefy-led playne,swete,louing the thyng that is good,sharpe,which forbiddeth not to do well/gentle,kynde,stedfast sure,free: hauing al bertues/circumspect in al thi ges :receauing al spretes of understanding being clean and sharp.For wysdõ is nembler then all nemble thynges:she goeth thorowe and attayneth to all thy nges,because of her clennes.
For she is the breth of the power of God and a pure cleane expressing of ẏ clear nes of almightie God.Therfore can nõ undefyled thinge come unto her for she is the brightnes of the euerlasting lyght D the undefyled myrrowre of the magestie of god/and the ymage of hys goodnes.
And for so much as she is one,she maye do al thinge:and beinge stedfast her self she renueth al, and amounge the people conueyth she her selfe into the holye sou-les. She maketh gods frendes and pro phetes:for god loueth no man/but him in whome wysdome dwelleth.For she is more bewtyfull then the sunne, and geueth more light then the starres,and the daye is not to be compared unto her:for upon the daye commeth night.But wickednes can not ouercome wysdome, and folyshnes maye not be with her .

The effectes of wysdome.

¶ The.viii.Chapter.

Wysdome reacheth from one A ende to another mightely & louingly dothe she order al thynges. I haue loued her and laboured for her euen from my youth up:I did my dilygence to mary my selfe with her,such loue had I unto her bewtye.Who so hathe company of God,commendeth her nobilite,ye the Lorde of all thynges hym selfe loue th her.For she is the scholmastres of the nurtoure of god, and the choser oute of hys workes: yf man woulde desyre ryches in thys lyfe,what is richer then wis dome that worketh all thinges? Thou wylte saye:understandinge worketh.
What is it among all thynges ẏ wor- B keth more then wisdome? if a man loue bertue and righteousnes/let hi labour for wysdom,for she hath great bertues.
And why?she teacheth sobernes ãd prudence,righteousnes and strength, which are such thinges as men can haue no thynge more profytable in theyr lyfe.If a man desyre much knowledge , she can tell the thynges that are past,& discerne thinges for to come:she knoweth the sub tilties of wordes and can expound dar-ke sentences . She can tell of tokens & wonderos thynges, or euer they come to passe,& the endes of al tymes/& ages:so I purposed after this maner: I wyl take her unto my company,and ce-men

men louingly with her: no doute she shal geue me good councell, and speake comfortablye vnto me in my carefulnesse and grefe. For her sake shall I be well and honestly taken amonge the comens and Lordes of the councell. Though I be yonge, yet shall I haue sharpe vnderstandynge, so that I shalbe maruelous in the sight of greate men, and the faces of Prynces shall wonder at me. When I holde my tounge, they shall byde my leasure: when I speake, they shall loke vpon me: and yf I talke moch, they shal laye their handes vpon their mouthe. Moreouer, by the meanes of her I shall obtayne immortalyte, and leaue behynde me an euerlastynge memoryal amonge them that comme after me. I shal set the people in ordre, and the Nacyons shalbe subdued vnto me. Horryble tyrauntes shalbe afrayed, when they do but heare of me: amounge the Multytude, I shalbe counted good, and myghty in battayll. Whē I com home, I shal finde rest w her: for her cōpany hath no bytternes, and her felowshyp hath no tedyousnesse, but myrth & ioye.

Now when I consydered these thynges
C by my selfe, & pondered thē in my herte, how that to be ioyned vnto wysdome is immortalyte, and greate pleasure to haue her frenshippe: how that in the worches of her handes are infynyte riches: how that who so kepeth company with her shalbe wise: and that he whiche talketh with her, shall come to honoure: I went aboute seking to get her vnto me. For I was a ladd of a ryght wytt, and had a good vnderstādinge.

But when I grew to more vnderstāding, I came to an vndefiled body. Neuertheles when I parceaued ȳ I could not kepe my selfe chast, excepte GOD gaue it me (and that was a point of wysdome also, to know whose gyft it was) I stepte vnto the Lorde, ād besought him, and with my whole herte I sayde after this maner:

A prayer of Salomon to obtayne wysdome.

A O God of my fathers, & lord of mercyes (thou that hast made al thinges with thy worde, and ordened man thorow thy wysdome ȳ he shulde haue dominion ouer ȳ creatures which ȳ hast made: that he shulde order ȳ worlde accordyng to equite and ryghteousnes, and execut iudgment with a true herte) geue me wysdome, which is euer aboute thy seate: and put me not out from amonge thy childrē: for I thy seruaunt and sonne of thy hādmayden, am a feble person, of a short tyme B and to yonge to the vnderstandyng of iudgment and the lawes. And though a man be neuer so perfecte amonge the children of men, yet yf thy wysdome be not with him, he shalbe nothing regarded. But thou hast chosen me, to be a kynge vnto the people, and the iudge of thy sonnes and daughters.

Thou hast commaunded me to buylde a temple vpon thy holy mount, & an aulter in the cite wherin thou dwellest: a lyckues of thy holye tabernacle which thou hast prepared from the begynning, and thy wysdome with ȳ, whiche knoweth thy workes: which also was wyth the when thou madest the worlde, and knowe what was acceptable in thy syght, and ryght in thy commaundementes. O send her out of thy holy heauens from the trone of thy maiesty, that she maye be with me, and laboure with me: ȳ I maye knowe, what C is acceptable in thy sight. For she knoweth and vnderstandeth al thynges: and she shal lede me soberly in my workes, and preserue me in her power.

So shal my workes be acceptable, ād then shal I gouerne thy people ryghteously, and be worthy to syt in my fathers seate. For what man is he, that maye know the councel of God? Or who can thynke what the wyll of God is? For the thoughtes of mortall men are miserable, ād our forcastes are but vncerten. And why? a mortal & corruptible body is heuy vnto the soule and the earthly mansiō kepeth downe ȳ vnderstanding ȳ museth vpon many thinges. D Very hardly can we discerne ȳ thinges ȳ are vpon earth, and grete labur haue we, or we can find ȳ thinges which are before our eyes: Who wil then seke out the grounde of the thynges ȳ are done in heauen? Oh Lord, who cā haue knowledg of thy vnderstādig and meanyng, excepte thou geue wysdo me and sende the holy goost from aboue: that the ways of them whych are vp on earth maye be refourmed: that men maye learne the thinges that are plesa unt vnto the, and be preserued thorow wysdome.

The delyueraunce of the ryghtwyes commeth tho rowghe wysdome.

Wysdome preserued the fyrst A man, whome God made a father of the world, whē he was created alone, brought him out of his offence, to-ke him out of the mould of the erth, and gaue him power to rule all thynges.
When the vnryghteuous wente awaye in hys wrath from thys wysdomme, the brotherhed peryshed thorow the wrath of murther. Agayne, whē the water de stroyed the whole worlde, wysdome preserued the righteous thorow a porerre wherof she was gouerner her selfe. Mo reouer when wyckednes had gotten the vpper hande, so that the nacyons were puft vp wyth pryd, she knew the rightous preserued hym fautles vnto God, and layd vp sure mercy for his chyldren.
B She preserued the ryghteous, when he fled from the vngodly ye peryshed, what tyme as the fyre fell downe vpon the. v. cyties: Lyke as yet thys day the vnfru tefull, waste, and smokyng land geueth testimonye of their wyckednesse: ye the vnrype and vntymely frutes that grew vpon the trees.

And for a token of a remembraūce of the vnfaythful soule, there standeth a pi ler of salt. For al soch as regarded not wysdome, gat not only this hurt, that they knowe not the thinges which were goode, but also left be hynde them vnto men, a memorial of their foolishnes: so yt in the thynges wherin they sinned, they could not be hidd. But as for soch as take hede vnto wisdome, she shal dely-uer them from sorowe.
C When the righteous fled because of his brothers wrath, wisdome led him ye right waye, & shewed him the kyngdome of God, gaue hym knowledge of holy thinges, made hi rych in his laboures and brought to passe the thynges that he wente aboute. In the deceitfulnes of soch as defrauded hi, she stod bi him, and made him riche. She saued hym from his enemies, and defended hi frō ye disceauers. She made him strōg in bat tayl and gaue hym the victory, that he myght knowe, how that wisdom is strō ger then al thinges. When the righteu-ous was solde, she forsoke him not, but delyuered him from sinners. She went downe with him in to the dongeon, ād fayled him not in the bādes: tyl she had brought him the scepter of the realme, & power agaynst those that oppressed hi.
As for them that had accused hym, she declared them to be lyers, and brought hym to perpetual worshyppe.
She delyuered the ryghteous people D and fautlesse sede, frome the nacyons ye oppressed them. She entred in to ye soul of the seruaunt of God, and stod by hi in wonders and tokēs agaynst the hor ryble kyng. She gaue the righteous ye rewarde of their labours, and led them forth a marueilous waye: on ye daye tyme she was a shadow vnto them, & a light of starres in ye night seasō. She brought them thorow the red see, and caryed thē thorow the great water. She drowned their enemyes in the see, and brought them out of ye depe. So the ryghteous toke the spoyles of the vngodly, & prai sed thy holy name, O lord, & magnified thy victorious hād wt one accorde. For wisdom openeth the mouth of the dōme ād maketh the tōges of babes to speke.

The miracles done for Israel. The vengeaunce of synners. The great power ād mercy of God.

The xi. Chapter.

She ordred their worckes in the handes of the holy pro A phet: so that they went tho row the wyldernes ye was not inhabyted, ād pytched their tentes in thee waste desertes. They stod agaynst there enemyes, & were auē ged of their aduersaryes. Whē they we re thirstie, they called vpō ye, and water was geuē thē out of ye rock, & their thirst slakened out of the harde stone. For bi ye thīges, wherthrow their enemyes were punisshed, where they helped in theyre nede.

For vnto the enimies thou gauest mans bloud in stead of lyuing water. And wh ere as they had scarcenes in the rebuke when the chyldre wer slayn, thou gauest vnto thyne owne a plenteous water vn loked for: declarynge by the thyrst that was at that tyme, howe thou wouldeste brynge thyne owne vnto honoure, and B slay their aduersaryes. For whe they we re tried & nortured wt fatherly mercy, th ey knowledged how the vngodlye were iudged, and punished thorow the wrath of God. These hast thou exhorted as a father, and proued them: but vnto the o ther thou hast bene a boysterous kyn ge, layed hard to their charge, and cond emned them. Whether they were absent or present, their punishment was alyke/For theire greafe was double: namelye, mournyng, and the remebrance of thyn ges paste. But when they perceaued th at their punishments dyd them good, th ey thought vpon the Lorde, and wond ered at the ende. For at the last they hel de moch of hym, of whom in the out ca stynge they thought scorne, as of an ab iecte. Neuerthelesse the righteous dyd not so when they were thirstie: but euen lyke as the thoughtes of the foolish we C re, so was also their wickednes. Where as certayne men now (thorow errour) dyd worshipe domme serpentes and vai ne beastes, thou sendedste a multytude of dome beestes vpon them for a venge ance: that they might know, that loke where withall a man synneth, by the sa me also shall he be punyshed. For vnto the almyghty hand, that made the worl de of naught it was not vnpossible, to send among them an heape of Beeres, or woodde lyons, or cruell Beastes of a straunge kynde, soch as are vnknowne or spoute fyre or cast oute a smokynge breth, or shot horrible sparkes out of th eir eyes: whych myght not only destroy them with hurtynge, but also kyll them with theire horryble syghte. Yee witho ut these beastes myghte they haue bene slayne with one wynde, beyng persecuted of theire owne worckes, and scatered ab rode thorow the breth of the power.
D Neuertheles thou hast ordred all thyn ges in measure, nombre and weight. For thou hast euer had greate strengthe and myght, and who maye withstade the po wer of thyne arme? And why? lyke as the smal thing that the balaunce weyeth so is the worlde before the: yee as a dr oppe of the mornynge dew, that falleth down vpon the earth. Thou hast mercy vpon all, for thou hast power of all thin ges: and makest the as though thou sa west not the sonnes of men, because they shoulde amende. For thou louest all the sonnes of men, because they shoulde a mende. For thou louest all the thynges that are, and hatest none of them whome thou hast made: nether didest thou or deyne or make any thynge of euell wyll.
How might any thinges endure, if it we re not thy wyl? Or how coulde any thin ge be preserued, excepte it were called of the? But thou sparest all, for all are thyne, O Lorde, thou louer of soules.

The mercye of god towarde synners, the workes of God are vnreprouable. God geueth leysure to repent vs.

The. xii. Chapter.

O Lorde, howe gracious and A swete is thy spirite in all thi ges? Therfore chastenest y them measurably that goo wronge, and warnest thym concerning the thynges wherin they of fende: thou speakest vnto them (O Lor de) and exhortest them to leue theyr wic kednesse, and to put theyr truste in thee, As for those olde inhabiters of thy holy lande thou mightest not away wyth thē/for they committed abhomynable wor kes agaynst thee: as witche craft, sorce ry and Idolatry: they slewe theyr owne chyldren without mercye: they ate vp mens bowels and deuoured the bloud: ye because of suche abhominacions / mis beleues and Offringes, thou slewest the fathers of the desolate soules by the hādes of oure fathers y the land whych thou louest aboue al other mighte be a B dwellynge for the chyldren of God.
Neuertheles thou sparedst them also (as men) ād sendedst the forerunners of thyne hooste euen hornettes to destroye them out by lytle a lytle. Not that thou wast vnable to subdue the vngodly vn to the ryghteous in battel or with cruell beastes, or wyth one rough worde to de stroy them together: But thy mynd was to dryue them out by lytle and lytle, ge uing them tyme and place to amēd kno wing wel, that it was an vnrighteous nacyon and wicked of nature and that their thought myght neuer be altered: for it was a cursed sede from the begin nyng, and feared no man: Yet hast thou pardoned their synnes. For who wil sai vnto the: why hast thou done that? Or who wyl stand agaynst thy iudgment?

Or who wil come before thy face, ā auen ger of vnrighteous men? Or who wyll blame the, yf the people perish, whom ȳ hast made? For there is none other god but thou, that carest for al thinges: that thou mayest declare how that thy iudg-mēt is not vnright. Ther darre nether C kyng, ner tyraunt in thy syght require accomptes of thē whom ȳ hast destroied.
For so moch then as thou art righteous thy selfe, ȳ ordrest al thinges righ teously/ and punishest euen hī that hath not deserued to be punished/ and takest him for a straunger and an aleaunt in the lande of thy power. For thy power is the beginning of rightousnes: and be cause thou arte Lorde of all thynges, therfore art ȳ gracyous vnto al. Whē men thinke ȳ not to be of a ful strēgth, thou declarest thy power: boldly dely-uerest thou them ouer that knowe the not. But thou lorde of power iudgeste quyetly, and ordrest vs wt greate wors hype, for thou mayest do as thou wylte.
By soch workes now hast ȳ taught thy people, that a man also shuld be iust and louinge: and hast made thy childrē to be of a good hope: for euē when thou iudgest, thou geueste rowme to amend from synnes. For in so moch as ȳ haste punished, and with soch dilygence dely uered thee enemyes of thy seruauntes, whiche were worthy to dye (where tho-row thou gauest them tyme and place of amendement, that they myght turne from their wickednes (with how great D diligence thē punishest thou thin owne children, vnto whose fathers thou hast sworne and made couenauntes of good promises? So wher as thou doest but chasten vs, thou punishest our ēmies di uerse wayes to ȳ intēt ȳ whē we punishe we shuld remēbre thi goodnesse: ꝛ when we oure selues are punished to put our trust ī thy mercy. Wherfor wher as men haue lived ignoraūtly ꝛ vnrighteously ȳ hast punished thē sore euen thorow the same thynges that they worshypped. E For they went astraye verye longe in ȳ waye of errource, and helde the beastes (whiche euen theyr ennemyes dispysed) for goddes, lyuinge as Chylderen of no vnderstandinge. Therfor hast thou set a scornefull punishement among them, as amonge the chylderen of ignoraunce. As for such as woulde not be reformed by those scornes and rebukes, they felt the worthy punishementes of God.
For the thynges that they suffred they bare them vnpacientlye, beinge not con tent in them, but vnwyllynge. And whē they perishe by the same thynges that they toke for goddes, they knowledged then, that there was but one true God, whom afore they wold not know: therfo re came ȳ end of theyr dānacion vpō thē.

All thinges be vayne, except the knowledg of God Idolaters and Idoles ar mocked.

Vayne are all men, which ha- A ue not the knoledg of God: as wer they that out of the good thinges which are se ne, knewe not hym that of hym selfe is euerlastinge: Neyther toke they so muche regarde of the workes ȳ are made, as to know, who was the craf tesman of theym: but some toke the fyre, some the wynde or ayer, some the course of the starres, som the water, some to he Sunne and Moone, or the lyghtes of heauē whych rule the earth, for gods.
But though they had suche pleasure in their beutie, ȳ they thought thē to haue ben goddes: yet shuld they haue knowē how much more fayrer he is ȳ made thē.
For ȳ maker of beuty hath ordeyned all these thīges: or if they merueiled at ȳ po wer ꝛ workes of thē, thei shuld haue per ceiued therby, ȳ he which made these thī ges is mightier then they. For by ȳ gre atnes ꝛ beuti of ȳ creature, ȳ maker the rof may playnely be knowē. Not withstādig they ar ȳ les to be blamed ȳ sought god, ꝛ wold haue foūd hī, ꝛ yet missed. B ꝛ why? for so much as they wer about in his workes ꝛ sought after thē, it is a to kē, ȳ they regard ꝛ hold moch of his wor kes ȳ are seen: howbeit they are not whol to be excused. For yf their understādyng and knowledge was so greate, that they coulde discerne the worlde and the crea tures, why dyd they not rather finde out the Lorde therof?

But unhappye are they/ and among the ded is their hope, that call them god des which are but ỹ workes of mens hā des: golde, sylver, and the thyng that is founde out by connyng, the symylitude of beestes, or any vayn stō ỹ hath ben made C by hand of olde. Or as when a carpenter cutteth down a tree out of the wodd, and pareth of the backe of it connyngly: and so with the one parte maketh a vessel to be used: and dighteth meat with the re= sydue. As for the other part that is left, whiche is profytable for nothyng (for it is a croked pece of wod and ful of knob= bes) he carveth it dylygently thorow his vanite, and (according to the knowledg of his cōnyng) he geveth it some propor cion, fassyoneth it after the similytude of a man, or maketh it lyke some beeste, streaketh it over with redd, and painteth it, and loke what foul spot is in it, he cast eth some coloure upon it.
Thē maketh he a convenient taber nacle for it, setteth it in the wall, and ma keth it fast with yrō, provydyng so for it, lest it happen to fal: for it is wel knowne, D that it can not help it self: And why? it is but ā ymag, & must of necessitie be helped.
Then goeth he and offreth of his Goo des unto it for his children and for hys wife: he seketh helpe at it, he asketh coun cel at it: he is not ashamed to speake un to it that hath no soule: for health, he ma keth his peticyon unto him that is syck: for lyfe, he prayeth unto him that is ded: he calleth unto him for helpe, that is not able to helpe him selfe: and to sende hym a god iourneye, he prayeth him that mai not go. And in al the thinges that he ta= keth in hande (whether it be to optayne any thing or to worck) he prayeth unto him that can do no maner of good.

The detestacyō and abhomynacyon of ymages. A curse of them that maketh them. The eviles that come of idolatry.

A A Gayne/ another man pur= posyng to sayle, and begi= nyng to take his iourneye thorow the raging sea, cal leth for helpe unto a stocke / that is farre weaker, then the tre that beareth him. For as for it/ covetousnes of money hath foūd it out/ and ỹ craf= tesman mede it with his connynge.
But thy providence/ O father gover= neth al thinges from the begynnynge: for thou hast made a waie in the sea, & ād a sure path in the myddest of the wa ves: declaring therby, that thou haste power to helpe in al thinges, ye thou= ghe a man went to ỹ sea without ship.
Neverthles, that the worke of wysdō should not be vayne, thou hast caused an arke to be made: And therfore do men commit their lyves to a smal pece B of wodd, passing over the sea in a shy= ppe and are saved.
For in the olde tyme when ỹ pro= ude gyauntes perished, he (whome the hope was left to increse the world) wēt into the shippe/ which was grounded thorow thy hande/ and so left sede be hynde him unto the world. For happy is the tre where thorow righteousnes commeth: but cursed is the ymage of wodd, that is made with handes, yea both it ād he that made it. He/ because he made it: and it, because it was called god, wher as it is but a fraile thynge.
For the ungodly and hys ungodlines are both lyke abhominable unto god.
Even so the worke and he that made it also shalbe punished together. Ther= fore shall there a plage come upon the images of the Heathen: for out of the creature of god they are become an ab homynacyon, a temptacyon unto the soules of mē, and a snare for the fete of the unwyse. And why? the sekynge out of ymmages is the beginnynge of whoredome, & the bryngyng up of them E is the destruccion of lyfe: For they were not from the beginninge, nether shal they contynue for ever. The wel= thy ydelnes of men hath founde them out upō earth, therfore shal they com shortly to an ende. Whē a father mo rned for his sōne ỹ was takē awai frō hi/ he made hī an imag (i al ỹ haste) of his ded sōne: & so he begā to worship hī as god, which was but a ded mā/ & ordeyned his servaūtes to offer unto hī.

Thus by proces of tyme and thorowe longe custome, this errour was kepte as a law, and tyrauntes compelled mẽ by violence to honour ymages. As for those that were so farre of, that menne myght not worship thẽ presently, their pycture was brought from farre (lyke the ymage of a kyng whom they wold honoure) to the intent that with great dylygence they myght worshippe hym which was farre of / as though he had bene present. Agayne / the synguler cõnyng of ẏ craftesman gaue ẏ ignoraũt also a greate occasion to worship yma ges. For the workman willinge to do him a pleasure that set hym a worke, la-boureth with al his cõning to make ẏ ymage of the best fashion. And so (tho row the beuty of the worke) the comen people was disceaued, in so much that they toke him now for a god, which a litle afore was but honored as a man.
And this was the errour of mans life, when men (ether for to serue their own affeccion / or to do some pleasure vnto kynges) ascribed vnto stones and sto kes the name of god / which ought to be geuen vnto men.

Moreouer, this was not ynough for them that they erred in the knowledge of god: but where as they lyued in the greate warres of ignoraũce, those many and grete plages called they peace.
For ether they slue their owne chyldrẽ, and offred them, or dyd sacrifice in the nyght season, or els helde vnresonable watches: so that they kepte nether lyfe nor mariage cleane: but ether one slue another to deathe malycyously, or els greued his neyghboure wt aduoutrye.
And thus were al thinges myxte together: bloude, manslaughter / thefte, dissimulacion, corruptiõ / vnfaithfulnes, sedicion, periury, disquyeting of good men, vnthankfulnes, defilig of soules chaungyng of byrth, vnstedfastnes of C of mariage, mysordre of aduoutry and vnclennes. And why? the honouring of abhominable ymages is the cause, the beginning and ende of al euel. For they that worship Idoles, either they are mad whẽ they be mery, or prophecy lyes, or lyue vngodly / or els lyghtlye forswear them selues.

Forin somoch as their trust is in the I dols (which haue nether soule ner vnderstandyng) though they sweare falsely yet they thincke it shall not hurte them.

Therfore commeth a greate plage vpon them, and that worthely: for they haue an euel opynion of God, geuyng hede vnto Idols, swearing vniustly to desceaue, and despising rightuousnes.
For their swearing is no vertue, but a plage of them that sinne, and goeth euer wt ẏ offence of the vngodly.

The voyce of the faythful praysinge the mercy of God for whose graces sake they serue not Idols.

The xv. Chapter.

BUt thou (O oure God) art swete, long sufferinge and true, and in mercy ordrest A thou al thinges. Though we synne / yet are we thyne, for we know thy strength. If we sinne not / thẽ are we sure, that thou regardest vs. For to knowe the, is parfecte righ-teousnes: Yee to knowe thy ryghtuous nes & power, is the rote of imortalyte.
As for the thing that men haue founde out thorow their euell scyence, it hathe not desceaued vs: as the paynting of ẏ picture (an vnprofytable laboure) and carued ymag, wt diuerse colours, whose syght entyseth the ygnoraunt: so ẏ hee honoureth and loueth the picture of a deed ymage that hath no soule.

Neuerthelesse / they that loue soche euel thinges, are worthy of death: they that trust in them, they that make them, they that loue them, ãd they that honou B re them. The potter also taketh and tẽ pereth soft earth, laboureth it, & geueth it the fasshyõ of a vessel whatsoeuer ser ueth for oure vse, and so of one pece of claye he maketh some clene vessell for seruyce, and some contrary. But where to euery vessel serueth, that knoweth ẏ potter him selfe. So with his vayne la boure he maketh a God of ẏ same clay: this doth euẽ he, which a lytle afor was made of earth him selfe, and within a lytle while after (whẽ he dyeth) turneth to earth agayne.

Notwithstandynge, he careth not ẏ mor because he shal labour, ner because his lif is short: but striueth to excel gold smythes, the syluer smythes, the copper smythes, and taketh it for an honoure to make vayne thynges. For hys hert is asshes, hys hope is but vayne earth, and his lyfe is no more worth the clay: for so much as he knoweth not hys owne maker, that gaue hym his soule to worke, C and brethed in hym the breth of lyfe.

They counte our lyfe but a pastime, and our conuersacion to be but a market, and that men shoulde euer be getting, and ỹ by euill meanes. Nowe he that of erth maketh fraple vessels and ymages, knoweth him selfe to offende aboue all other.

All the enemyes of thy people and that holde them in subiection, ar vnwyse, vnhappy, and excedinge proude vnto their owne soules: for they iudge all ỹ ydoles of the heathen to be goddes, whiche nether haue eye syghte to see, nor noses to smell, nor eares to heare, nor fyngers of D handes for to groape: and as for theyr fete they are to slowe to go. For mā made them, and he that hath but a borowed spirte, fashioned them. But no man can make a God lyke vnto him: for seinge he is but mortal him selfe, it is but mortall that he maketh wyth vnrighteous handes. He him self is better then they whō he worshippeth, for he lyued though he was mortall, but so dyd neuer they.

Ye they worship beastes also, which are most miserable: for cōpare thinges that can not fele vnto them, and they ar worse then those. Yet is there not one of these beastes, that with his syght can behold any good thing, nether haue they geuen praise nor thanckes vnto god.

The punishement of Idolaters and the benefits done vnto the faythfull.

The.xvi. Chapter.

A FOr these & such other thynges haue they suffred worthy punishemēt, & thorow ỹ multitude of beastes ar they roted out. In stead of ỹ whiche punishementes thou hast graciouslye ordred thyne owne people, and geuen them their desyre that they longed for: a newe straunge taist, preparynge them quayles to be theyr meate: to the intente that (by the the thynges whych were shewed and sent vnto them) they that were so gredy of meate, myght be withdrawen euen from the desire that was necessary. But these within short tyme were brought vnto pouerte, and tasted a newe meate. For it was requysyte that (wythout any excuse) destruccyon should com vpon those which vsed tyranny, and to shew onli vnto the other, B how their enemies were destroyed. For when the cruel woodnes of the beastes came vpon them, they perished thorow the stinges of the euel serpentes.

Notwithstanding thy wrath endured not perpetually, but they were put in feare for a lytle season, that they myght be refourmed, hauinge a token of saluacion, to remembre the cōmaundement of thy lawe. For he that conuerted, was not helped by the thing that he sawe, but by the, O sauiour of al. So in this thou shewest thyne enemyes, ỹ it is thou, which delyuerest from al euel. As for they when they were bitten wyth greshopers and flies, they died / for they were worthy to perish bi such: but nether the teeth of dragons nor of venemus wormes ouer cam thi children, for thy mercy was euer by them, and he helped them. Therfore were they punished to remembre thy wordes / but hastely were they healed agaynelest they C shuld fal into so depe forgetfulnesse / ỹ they might not vse thy helpe.

It was nether herbe nor playster ỹ restored them to health, but thy worde (O Lord) which healeth al thinges. It is thou (O Lord) that hast the power of lyfe and death: thou leadest vnto dethes dore / and bringest vp agayne.

But man thorowe wyckednes slayeth hys owne soule, and whē his spirete goeth forth, it turneth not agayne, nether may he cal againe ỹ soule that is takē awaye. It is not possible to escape thi hand. For the vngodly that wolde not know the, wer punished by the strēgth D of thine arme: wyth straunge waters / hayles and raynes were they persecuted, & thorow fire were they consumed. For it was a wōdrous thig ỹ fire might doo more thē water which quēcheth al thinges: but ỹ world is ỹ auēger of ỹ ryghteous. Some time was ỹ fire so tame ỹ ỹ beastes which were sent to norish ỹ

vngodly, by the north: and that because they shulde se and knowe, that they were persecuted wyth the punishment of god And sometyme brente the fyre in the water on euery syde, that it myght destroy the vnrighteous nacion of the erth. Agayne thou hast fed thyne owne people with aungels fode, & sent them bred ready from heauen (without theyre laboure) being very pleasaunt and wel gu-C sted. And to shewe thy ryches and swetenesse vnto thy chylderen, thou gatherest euery one theyr desire, so that euery mā myght take what lyked hym beste. But the snow and yce abode the violence of the fyre and melted not: that they might knowe that, the fyre burning in the hal and rayne destroied the frute of the enemies: the fire also forgat his strength agayne, that the ryghtuous might be norished. For the creatur that serueth the (which arte the maker) is fearce in punishing the vnrighteous, but is easy & gentle to do good, vnto such as put their D trust in thee. Therfore dyd all thinges alter at the same tyme, and were al obedient vnto thy grace, which is the norse of all thynges acording to the desyre of them that had nede therof: that thy children O Lorde whome thou louest, mighte knowe that it is not nature and the growing of frutes that fedeth men, but that it is thy worde, which preserueth them that put ther trust in the. For loke what myght not be destroid with the fiere, as sone as it was warmed with a litle sunne beame, it melted: that all men mighte knowe, that thanckes mighte be geuen vnto thee before the sunne rise, and that thou oughtest to be worshipped before the day springe. For the hope of the vnthankful shal melt awaie as the winter yce, & perish as water, that is not necessary.

The iudgementes of god vpon the Egiptians.

The .xvii. Chapter.

A GReate are thy iudgementes (O Lord) and thy councels can not be expressed, therfore men do erre, that will not be refourmed with thy wisdō. For when the vnrighteous thought to haue thy holy people in subiection, they were bound with the bandes of darkenes and long night, shut vnder thy rofe, thinking to escape the euerlasting wisdō. And while they thought to be hyd in the darcknesse of their synnes, they were scattered abrode in the very myddest of the darck couetinge of forgetfulnes, put to horrible feare & wonderously vexed for the corner where they myghte not kepe them from feare: because the sounde came downe and vexed them: ye manifest terrible and straunge visions made them afrayd.

No power of the fyre myghte geue them lyght, nether myght the clear flam- B
mes of the starres lyghten that horyble nyght. For there appered vnto them a sodein fyre, very dredeful: and the which (when they sawe nothyng) they were so afrayed, that they thought the thing which they sawe, to be the more fearful. As for the sorcery and enchauntemente that they vsed, it came to derisyon, and the proud wysdome was broughte to shame. For they that promised to driue awaye thee fearfulnes and drede from the weake soules, where syck for feare them selues, and that with scorne. And though none C of the wonders feared them, yet were thei afraid at the beastes which came vpō thē and at the hissyng of the serpentes. In so moch that with trembling they sowned and sayde they sawe not thee ayre, which no man yet maye escape.

For it is an heuy thing, when a mās owne conscience beareth recorde of his wickednes and condempneth him. And why? a vexed and wounded conscyence, taketh euer cruel thinges in hande. Fearfulnes is nothing els but a declaring that a man seketh helpe and defence, to aūswer for him self. And loke how moch lesse the hope is within, the more is the vncerteyntye of the matter, for the which he is punished. But they that came in D mighty nyght: slepte the slepe that fell vpō them from vnder and from aboue sometyme were they afrayed thorow the feare of the wonders, and somtym they were so weake that they swowned: thal for an hastye and sodayn fearfulnes came vpon thē. After warde, yf eny of thē had fallen, he was kept and shut in prison but wyth out chaynes. But yf eny dwelt in a villag, yf he had bene a heir or husbandman he suffred intollerable necessite necessite: for they were al bounde wyth one chayne of darcknesse.

Whether it were a blasphemig wind, or a swete song of ẏ birdes amōge the thicke braūches of ẏ trees, or the vehemence of hasty rūning water, or greate noyse of the fallig downe of stones, or ẏ playeng & rūning of beastes whō they sawe not, or the mighty noyse of rorig beastes, or ẏ sound ẏ answereth agayne i the hie mountaines: it made thē sownde for very feare. For all ẏ earth shyned ẘ clere light, & no mā was hindred ī his labour. Only vpō thē there fell a hevy night, an imag of darknes ẏ was to com vpō thē. Yee they were vnto thē selues ẏ moste heuye and horrible darcknesse.

¶ The fyre lyght ẏ the Israelites had in Egypte. The persequucion of the faithful: The Lord smot all the fyrst borne of Egypt. The sonne of ẏ people in the wildernes. Aaron stode betwyxt the lyfe and the deed wyth his censoure.

A Neuertheles thy saites had a very greate light (& the enemies herd their voice, but they saw not ẏ figure of thē.) And because thei suffered not ẏ same thinges / they magnified ẏ: & they ẏ were vexed afore (because they were not hurt now) thancked thē, & besought thē (O god) ẏ ther might be a difference. Therfore had they a burning piler of fire to lede thē ī ẏ vnknowne wate & ẏ gauest thē ẏ Sunn for a fre gift ẘout any hurt. Reason it was / ẏ they shuld want light & be put in the preson of darcknes, which kepte thy childrē ī captyuite, by whō the vncorrupt light of ẏ lawe of ẏ world was for to be geuē. Whē thei thought to slai
B the babes of ẏ righteous (one beig laid out / & preserued to be leder vnto the other) ẏ broughtest out the whole multitud of ẏ childrē / & destroiedst thē ī ẏ mighty water. Of ẏ night were our fathers certifyed afore ẏ, they knowyng vnto what oths they had geuē credēce might be of good chere. Thus thy people receued the health of the righteous but ẏ vngodli were destroied. For like as ẏ hast hurte our enemies, so haste ẏ promoted vs whō thou calledest afore. For the righteous children of the good men offred secretly ād ordred the law of righteousnes vnto vnite: that the iuste shoulde receaue good and euell in lyke maner, singing prayses vnto ẏ father of al men. Agayne, there was herd an vnconuenyent voyce of the ennemyes, and a pyteous crye for chylderen that were bewayled. The master and the seruaūt were punished in lyke maner. For theye al together had innumerable that died one death.

Nether were the lyuing sufficient to bury the deed, for in the twincklyng of an eye, ẏ noblest nacyon of them was destroyed. As ofte as God helped them afore, yet wold it not make them beleue: but in the destruccyon of the first borne they knowleged, that it was the people of God. For while al thinges were styl, and when the nyght was in ẏ myddest of her course / thy Allmyghtie worde (O Lorde) leapte downe from heauen oute of thi roial trone as a rough mā of warre, in the middest of thee lande that was destroyed: and ẏ sharpe swerde perfourmed their straite commaundement, stādīng & fillyng al thinges ẘ death: yee it stode vpon the earth & reached vnto ẏ heauen. Thē the sight of ẏ euel dreames vexed them sodenly, & fearfulnesse came vpon them vnawarres. C

Then laye there one here / another there, half deed half quick, and shewed the cause of his death. For the visyons that vexed them, shewed them these thinges a fore: so ẏ they were not ignoraūt, D wherfore they perysshed.

The tēptacyon of deathe touched ẏ righteous also, and among the multytude in the wildernesse there was insurreccion, but thy wrath endured not lōg. For the fautlesse man went in al ẏ hast, and toke the batayl vpō him / brought forth the wepon of his mynystracyon: euen prayer and the censours of reconcilinge: sette him selfe agaynst the wrath and so brought the mysery to an ende: declaring therby, that he was thy seruaunt. For he ouercame not the multytude with bodely power, ner with weapens of myght: but with the worde hee subdued him that vexed him, puttinge the in remembraunce of the othe and couenaunt made vnto the fathers.

For when the deed were fallen downe by heapes one vpon another, he stode in the middest, pacified the wrath, and parted the waye vnto the lyuing. And why? his long garment was al the beutye, and in the foure rowes of the stones was the glory of the fathers grauen, and thy maiestye was wrytten in the crowne of his head. Upon these the destroyer gaue place, and was afrayde of them: for it was only a temtacion worthy of wrath.

The deeth of the Egypcians, and the great ioye of the hebrues. The meat that was geue vnto the despyre of the people. The elementes serue not only to ẏ wil of God, but also to ẏ wyll of man.

1 As for the vngodly, ẏ wrath came vpon them wythout mercy vnto ẏ end. For he knew before what shold happen vnto them: how ẏ (when they had consented to let theym go/and had sent them out wyth greate dyligence) they wold repent, and folow vpon them. For when they were yet mournyng and makinge lamentacyon by the graues of the deade, they deuysed another folyshnes: so that they persecuted them in their fleing, whom they had cast out afore with prayer. Worthy necessite also brought them vnto this ende/for they had cleane forgotten the thinges that happened vnto thē afore. But the thing that was wantynge of their punishment, was requysyte so to be fulfilled vpon theym with tormentes: that thy people might haue a maruelous passing thorow/and that these might fynd a straunge death.

B Then was euery creature fashioned agayne of newe accordynge to the wyl of their maker, obeyeng thy commaundementes ẏ thy children might be kepte without hurt, for the cloud ouershadowed their tentes, and the drie earth appeared, wheras afore was water so that in the red sea there was awaye wythoute impedymente, and the grete depe became a playne felde: where thorow al the people wente that were defended wyth thy hande seynge thy wonderous and maruelous workes. For as the horses, so were they fed, and leped lyke lambes, praising the (O lord) which hadest delyuered thē. And why? they were yet myndefull of the thinges, that happened whyle they dwelt in the land: how the ground brought forth the flyes in steade of catel, and how the ryuer scaulded wᵗ the multitude of frogges in steade of fyshes.

But at the last they sawe a new creacion of byrdes, what tyme as they were disceaued wyth lust, and wyth delycate meates. For when they were speaking of theyr appetite, the quailes came vpp vnto them from the see, and punishementes cam vpon the synners, not without the tokens whyche came to passe afore by ẏ vehemēce of the streames: for they suffred worthely, accordyng to theyr wickednesses, they dealt so abhominablye and churlishly/with straūgers. Some receaued no vnknowen geastes, some brought the straungers into bondag that dyd them good. Besyde all these thynges there were some that not onely receaued no straungers wᵗ theyr wylles, but persecuted those also ād did them much euell that receaued them gladly. C

Therfore were they punished with blindnes, lyke as they that wer couered wyth sodayne darcknes at the dores of the righteous, so that euery one sought the entraunce of hys dore.

D Thus the elementes turned into them selues, lyke as when one tyme is chaunged vpon an instrumēt of Musike, and yet all the resydue kepe theyr melodye: whych maye easely be perceaued/ by the syght of the thynges that are come to passe. The drye lande was turned into a watrye/and the thynge that afore swamme in the water/wente now vpon the drie grounde. The fyer hath power in the water (contrary to hys owne vertue) ād the water forgat hys owne kind to quench. Agayne, the flammes of the noysome beastes hurte not the fleshe of them that wente wyth them nether melted they the yse whych els melteth lyghtely. In al thinges hast thou promoted thi people (O Lord) and brought them to honour: thou hast not despised them, but alwaye and in all places hast thou stande by them.

The ende of the boke of wysdome.

¶ The boke of * Jesus the sonne of Syrah/which is called in latin Ecclesiasticus. Or Jesua

The Prologe of Jesus the sonne of Syrach vnto hys boke.

Many and greate men haue declared wysdome vnto vs out of the lawe, out of the prophetes and out of other that folowed thē. In the which thynges Israell ought to be commended, by the reason of doctryne & wysdome: Therfore they that haue it and reade it, shoulde not onelye them selues be wyse there thorow, but serue other also wyth teaching and wrytinge.

After that my graundfather Jesus had geuen diligent laboure to reade the lawe, the prophetes/and other bokes that were left vs of oure fathers, and had well exercised hym selfe there in: he purposed also to write some thinge of wysdome and good maners, to the intent that they which were wylling to learne and to be wise myght haue the more vnderstandinge, and be the more apte to leade a good conuersacyon.

Wherfore I exhorte you to receaue it louyngilye, to reade it wyth dylygence ād to take it in good worthe, though oure wordes be not so eloquente as the famous Oratours. For the thynge that is wrytten in the Hebrewe tounge, soundeth not so well when it is translated into an other speache. Not only this boke of myne, but also the lawe, the Prophetes and other bokes sounde farre otherwyse, then they do, when they are spoken in theyr owne language.

Now in the .xxxviii. yeare when I came into Egipte in the tyme of Ptolomy Euerges, and continued there all my lyfe/I gat lybertie to reade and wryte many good thinges wherfore I thought it good ād necessary, to bestow my dyligence and trauayl to interprete this boke. And consyderinge that I had tyme, I laboured and dyd my best to performe thys boke, and to bringe it vnto lyght: that the straungers also whych are disposed to lerne, myghte apply them selues vnto good maners, and lyue accordinge to the lawe of the Lorde.

¶ He exhorteth the seruauntes of god to rightuousnes, loue, vnderstandig & paciēce, and exhorteth thē that feareth God, to beleue, to hope, and to loue: because God nether confoundeth nor forsaketh them, that trust in hym. A curse vpon the subtil, fearce ād impaciens of herte:

A My sonne, yf thou wilt come in to the seruyce of god, stāde fast in rightousnes and feare, and arme thy soule to tentacyon: settle thine hert and be pacyent: bow downe thine eare/ receaue the wordes of vnderstandyng, and shrynck not awaye, when thou art entysed. Holde the fast vpon God, ioyne thy self vnto hym and suffre, that thy lyfe maye encreace at the last. Whatsoeuer happeneth vnto thee, receaue it: suffre in heuynesse, and be paciente in thy trouble. For lyke as gold and syluer are tryed in the fyre, euen so are acceptable men in the fornace of aduersyte. Beleue in God, and he shall healpe the: order thy waye a ryght, and put thy trust in him. Holde fast his feare, and growe therin. O ye that feare the lord, take sure holde of his mercy: shrincke not awaye from him, that ye fall not. O ye that feare the Lord, beleue hym, and your rewarde shal not be emptie. O ye that feare the Lorde put your trust in him, and mercye shall come vnto you for pleasu-B re. O ye that feare the Lorde set your loue vppon him, and youre hertes shal be lyghtened. Consydre the olde generacions of men (O ye chyldren) and marke them wel: was there euer eny one confounded, y put his trust in y Lord? Who euer continued in his feare and was forsaken? Or whom dyd he euer despyse, that called faythfully vpon him? For God is gracious and mercyful, he forgeueth synnes in the tyme of trouble, and is a defender for all them that seke hym in the truethe. Wo be vnto him y hath a double hert, wycked lyppes and euell occupied handes, and to the synner that goeth two maner of ways. Wo be vnto them that are loose of herte, which put not their trust in God, and therfore shall they not be defended of him. Wo be vnto them that haue lost pacience, for-C saken the ryght wayes, and are turned back in to frowarde ways. What wyll they do, when the Lorde shall begynne to visite them?

They that feare the Lorde, wil not mistrust his worde: and they that loue hym/ wyl kepe his commaundementes. They that feare the Lord wyl seke out the thynges / that are pleasaunt vnto him: and they that loue hym/ shal fulfyl his lawe. They that feare the lord wyl prepare their hertes, and humble their soules in his syght. They that feare the Lorde kepe his commaundementes, and wyl be pacient tyl they se him selfe, saynge: better it is for vs to fall into the handes of the Lorde, then into the handes of men: for his mercye is as greate as him selfe.

¶ To our father and mother ought we to geue double honoure. Of y blessing and cursse of y father & mother. No man ought ouer curyosly to searche out the secretes of god.

The .iii. Chapter.

The chyldren of wysdome are a A congregaciō of the ryghteuous and they exercyse is obedience and loue. Here me your father (O my deare children) and do thereafter, that ye maye be safe. For the Lord wyl haue the father honoured of the children, and loke what a mother commaūdeth her children to do/ she wyl haue it kept. Who so honoureth his father, his sines shalbe forgeuen him: and he that honoureth his mother is lyke one that gathereth tresure together. Who so honoureth his father, shall haue ioye of hys owne children: and whē he maketh his praier, he shalbe herde. He that honoureth hys Father, shal haue a longe lyfe: & he that is obedyent for the lordes sake/ hys mother shal haue ioye of hī.

He that feareth the lorde, honoureth his father and mother, and doeth them seruyce, as it were vnto the lord B hym selfe. Honoure thy father in dede, in worde, and and in al paciēnce, that thou mayest haue hys blessynge: for the blessinge of the father buyldeth vp the houses of the chylodren, but the mothers curse roteth oute the foundacyons. Reioyse not when thy father is reproued, for it is no honour vnto the but a shame. For the worshyppe of a mans father is hys owne worshypp, & where the father is without honoure, it is the dishonesty of the sonne.

My sonne / make muche of thy father in his age and greue him not as longe as he lyueth. And yf his vnderstãdig B fayle, haue pacience with him, and dys pise him not in thy strength. For the good dede that thou shewest vnto thy father, shal not be forgotten: and when thou thy selfe wantest / it shal be rewar ded thee (and for thy mothers offence ẏ shalt be recompenced with good, yea it shall be founde for thee in righteous nes) & in ẏ daye of trouble ẏ shalt be re mẽbred: Thy sines also shall melt awaye, like as the yce in ẏ fayre warme wether.

He that forsaketh his father, shall come to shame; and he that defieth his mother, is cursed of god. My sonne, performe thy workes wyth louynge mekenes, so shalt thou be loued aboue other men. The greater thou art / the more humble thy selfe (in al thynges) & ẏ shalt find fauour in ẏ sight of god.
For greate power belongeth only vnto god / & he is honoured of the lowly.

Seke not out the thyngs that are abo ue thy capacite, & searche not out ẏ gro C ũd of such thiges as ar to mighetye for ẏ: but loke what god hath cõmaũded ẏ, thinck vpõ ẏ al waie, & be not curious i many of his workes. For it is not ned ful for ẏ to se wt thine eies ẏ thiges ẏ ar secret. Make not ẏ to much search i su perfluous thiges, & be not curyous in many of his workes: for many thiges ar shewed vnto ẏ alredy, which be abo ue ẏ capacite of men. The medlyng wt such hath begiled many a mã, & tãgled their wittes i vayne. Nowe he ẏ loueth parel, shal perish therin. An hard hert shal fare euell at ẏ last (ã hert ẏ goeth two waies, shal not prospere: & he ẏ is froward of hert, will euer be ẏ worse ãd worse.) A wicked hert shalbe lade wt so rowes, & ẏ vngodly siner wil kepe one sine vpõ another. The cõsicel of ẏ pro-D ud hath no helth, for ẏ plãt of iuel shal be roted out i thẽ. The hert of hi ẏ hath vnderstãdig shal perceue hye thiges / & a good eare wil gladly herkẽ vnto wisdõ. An hert that is wise & hath vnderstã dynge / wyll absteyne from synnes / and encrease in the workes of rightuous-nes. Water quencheth burning fyre, ãd mercy reconsileth synnes. God hath res pect vnto hym that is thanckefull: hee thyncketh vpon hym againste the tyme to come / so that when he falleth he shall fynde a stronge holde.

Almes must be done with all mekenes. The study of wisdome and her frute. A iudge ought to be merci- full. An exhortacion to eschue euill, & to do good.

The .iiii. Chapter.

A My sonne, defraude not thee poore of hys almes, ãd tur ne not away thyn eyes frõ hym that hath nede. Despyse not an hongry soule, and desyre not the poore in hys necessite, greue not the herte of him that is hel pelesse / and wythdraw not the gyft frõ the nedefull. Refuse not the prayer of o ne that is in trouble / and turne not away thy face from the nedy. Cast not thyne eyes asyde from the poore that ẏ geue hi not occasion to speake euel of ẏ For yf he complayne of thee in the byt ternes of hys soule, his prayer shalbe herde: Euen he that made hym, shal he are hym. Be curteous vnto the compa ny of the poore, humble thy soule vnto the elder and bowe downe thy heade to a man of worshippe. Let it not greue ẏ B to bowe downe thyne eare vnto the po re, but paye thy dette / and geue hym a frendlye answere / and that with meake nes.
Delyuer hym that suffreth wronge frõ the hande of the oppressour and be not faynt herted when thou sittest in iudgemẽt. Be mercyfull vnto the fatherles as a father, and be in steade of an husband vnto theyr mother: so shalt ẏ be as an obedient sonne of the hyest, & he shal loue thee more then thy mother dothe.
Wisdome bretheth lyfe into her childeren, receaueth them that seke her, and wyll go before them in the way of righ tuousnes. He ẏ loueth her loueth lyfe: & they that seke her diligentlye / shal ha ue greate ioye. They that kepe her, shal haue the heretage of lyfe: for where she entreth in / there is the blessinge of god.
They ẏ honor her, shalbe ẏ seruaũts of ẏ holy one: & they ẏ loue her: ar beloued of god. Who so geueth eare vnto her, shal C iudge the heathen: and he that hath re spect vnto her, shall dwell safely.

He that beleueth her, shal haue her i possession and his generacion/shal endure: for when he falleth, she shal go wt him, before al. Feare, drede & temptacyō shal she bringe vpon him, and trye him in her doctrine: tyl she haue so proued him in his thoughtes, that he committ his soule vnto her. Then shal she stab lysh him, bring the right way vnto hi/make him a glad man/shew him her secretes and helpe vpon the treasures of knowledg, vnderstanding and rightuousnes. But if he go wrong, she shal for sake him, and geue him ouer in to the hā des of his enemie.

My sonne make moche of the tyme, eschue the thinge that is euill/ and for thi life shame not to saie the truth. For there is a shame that bringeth synne, ād there is a shame yͤ bringeth worshippe and fauour. Accepte no person after thi owne wyl, that thou be not confoūded to thyne owne decaye. Be not ashamed of thy neyghbour in his aduersitee, and kepe not back thy councel when it maie do good, nether hide thy wysdome i her beuty. For in the tonge is wisdom kno-wne, so is vnderstanding, knowledg & lerninge in the talkynge of the wyse ād D stedfastnesse in the workes of righteu-ousnes. In no wise speke agaynst yͤ wor de of treuth but be ashamed of the lyes of thyne owne ignoraunce. Shame not to confesse thyne erroure, and submitte not thy selfe vnto euery man because of sinne. Withstād not yͤ face of yͤ mighty, and stryue not agaynst the streame. But for the treuth striue thou vnto death, & God shal fight for the agaynst thyne e nemies. Be not hastye in thy tōg, nether slack & neglygēt in thy workes. Be not as a lyon in thyne own house, destroyīg thy hou holde folkes, and oppressyng them that are vnder the/ Let not thyne hand be stretched out to receaue, & shut when thou shuldest geue.

In riches may we not put any confidence. The vengeaunce of God ought to be feared ād to repē taunce maye we not be slowe.

A Trust not vnto thy riches, ād sai not: tush, I haue ynough for mi lyfe. (For it shall not helpe in the time of venge-aunce and temptacion) Fo-lowe not the luste of thyne owne herte in thy strength, and saie not, tush, how haue I had strength/ or who wil brige me vnder because of my workes? For doutles God shall auenge it. And saie not: I haue committed mo synnes, but what euell hath happened me? For the Almightye is a pacyent rewarder. Because thy sinnes be forgeuen the, be not therfore without feare/ neyther heape one synne vppon another. And saye not: tush/ the mercy of the lorde is gre te, he shal forgeue me my sines, be they neuer so manye. For lyke as he is mercyful/ so goeth wrath from him also/ & his indignacion commeth downe vpō synners.

Make no taryenge to turn vnto the Lorde, and put not of from daie to B daye: For sodenlye shall hys wrathe come, and in tyme of vengaūce he shal destroi thee. Trust not i wicked riches for thei shal not help i yͤ daie of punish mēt & wrath. Be not caried aboute to euery wynde, and goo not into euerye waye: for so doth the sinner that hath a double tonge. Stande fast in the waie of the Lord, be stedfast in the vnderstā ding, abyde by thy worde, and folow yͤ worde of peace and rightousnes. Be gentle to heare the worde of god, that yͤ mayest vnderstande it, and make a true answere with wisdome. Be swift to heare, but slowe and pacient in ge uynge answere: If thou hast vnderstandynge/ shappe thy neyghboure an answeare. If no, laie thine hand vpon thi mouth: lest thou be trapped i C an vndiscrete worde, and so confounded. Honour and worship is in a mās wyse talkinge, but the tonge of the vn discret is his own destruccion. Be not a priuy accuser as long as thou liuest and vse no sclaunder wyth thy tonge.
For shame and sorowe goeth ouer the theefe, and an euel name ouer hym that is double tonged: but he that is a pre-uy accuser of other men, shal be hated, enuyed and confounded. Se that thou iustifye the small and greate alyke.

It is yͤ properte of a synner to be euel tonged. The doctrine of good counsel of the wise ys to be embrased. Wysdō shuld be searched for. The profet therof.

The .vi. Chapter.

A Be not thy neyghbours enemy for thy frendes sake: for who so is euel shalbe ye heyre of rebuke & dys honoure/and whosoeuer beareth enuy and a double tonge offendeth. Be not prowde in the deuice of thyne owne vn derstandinge, lest thy leaues wether/& thy frute be destroyed, & so thou be lefte as a drye tree. For a wicked soule dest royeth hym that hath it, maketh hym to be laughed to scorne, of his ennemyes, (and bryngeth him to the porcion of the vngodly.) A swete word multiplieth fren des, & pacifieth the ye be at variaunce, & a thanckfull tonge wylbe plenteous in a good man. Hold frendship with many, neuertheles haue but one counceler of a thousand. Yf thou gettest a frend/proue hym fyrst, and be not hastie to ge ue him credence. For some man is a fren-de, but for a tyme/and wyl not abyde in B the day of trouble. And ther is som frend that turneth to enemyte/and taketh par te against the: and if he know eny hurt by thee, he telleth it out. Agayne/some frende is but a companion at the table and in the daye of neade he continueth not. But a sure frende wylbe vnto the euen as thine owne self, and deale faith fully with thy housholdfolcke. If thou suffre trouble and aduersitie, he is with thee, and hydeth not hym selfe. Depart from thyne ennemies, yea & beware of thy frendes.
A faithfull frende is a strong defence: who so findeth such one, fyndeth a noble treasure. A faythfull frende hath no pe are, the weyght of gold and sylver is not to be compared to the goodnes of hys fayth. A faythfull frende/is a medicin of lyfe, and they ye feare the Lorde, find hym. Who so feareth the Lord, shal pro speare with frendes: and as he is hym C selfe, so shall hys frende be also. My so so shalt thou fynd wysdom tyl thou be old Go to her as one yt ploweth, & soweth, & wait paciently for her good frutes. For thou shalt haue but lytle labour in her worcke, but thou shalt eate of her frute ryght sone. O how exceadinge sharp is wysdomme to vnlearned men: an vnstedfast body wyll not remayne in her.

Vnto such she is as it were a touchstone, and he casteth her from him in al ye hast: for wisdome is wyth hym but in tyme/there be but few that haue know ledg of her. (But with them that know her, she abideth euen vnto the appering of god.)
Geue eare (my sonne) receaue my B doctryne, and refuse not my councel.
Put thy fote in her lynckes, and take her yock vpon thy necke: bowe downe thy shoulder vnder her, beare her paci ently, and be not wery of her bandes.
Come vnto her with thy whole hert, & kepe her waies with al thy power. Seke after her, and she shalbe shewed thee: & when thou hast her/forsake her not.
For at the last thou shalt find rest ther & that shalbe turned to thy greate ioie.
Then shal her fetters be a stronge defence for the, and her yocke a glorious rayment. For the bewtye of lyfe is yn her/and her bandes are the couplings together of saluacion. Yea a glorious raiment is it/thou shalt put it on, & the same crowne of ioye shalt thou weare.
My sonne, yf thou wylt/take hede/thou shalt haue vnderstanding: and if thou wylt applye thy mind, thou shalt be wyse. If thou wilt bow downe thine eare thou shalt receaue doctryne: and yf thou delyt in hearinge, thou shalte C be wise. Stand with the multitude of suche elders as haue vnderstandyng/& consent vnto their wisdome with thine hert: that thou maiest heare all godly sermons, & yt the worthy sentences eska pe the not. And if thou seist a man of discretio vnderstanding/get the soone vnto him, and let thy fote tread vpon the steppes of his dores. Let thy minde be vpon ye comaundementes of god, and be earnestly occupied in his lawes: so shal he stablishe thy herte/ and geue the wis-dome at thine owne desire.

¶ We must forsake euel, & yet not iustify our selues. The behauour of ye wise toward his wyfe, his fre nde, hys chyldre his seruauntes, hys father & mother, the prestes &c.

Do no euel/ so shal ther no A harme happen vnto the.
Depart awaie from ye thin-ge yt is wycked, and no mis fortune shal medle with the.

My sonne, sow no euel thinges in the forowes of vnrightuousnes, so shalt ẏ not reape them seuen folde. Laboure not vnto man for any lordshyp, nether vnto the kyng for the seate of honour.
Iustify not thy self before God (for he knoweth the hert) and desyre not to be reputed wyse in ẏ presence of the king.
Make no laboure to be made a iudge, excepte it so were, that thou couldest my ghtely put downe wyckednes: for yf ẏ shuldest stand in awe of the presence of the mightye, thou shuldest fayle in ge= uyng sentence. Offend not in the multi tude of the cite, ãd put not thy self amon ge the People. Bynde not two synnes together, for in one synne shalt thou not be vnpunysshed. Saye not: tush, God wyl loke vpon the multitud of my obla cyons, and when I offre to the hyeste God, he wyll accepte it.

Be not faynt harted when thou ma B kest thy prayer, nether slack in geuing of almes. Laugh no man to scorne in ẏ heuynesse of his soule, for God (which seyth all thinges) is he that can bryngr downe, and set vp agayne. Accepte no lesyng agaynst thy brother, nether do ẏ same agaynst thy frend. Use not to ma ke any maner of lye, for the custome the rof is not good. Make not many word es, when thou art amonge the elders: & when thou prayest, make not moch bab lynge. Let no laborius worcke be tedio us vnto the, nether the housbandry wh ich the Allmyghtie hath created. Make not thy boaste in the Multytude of thy wickednes, but humble thy self euen frõ thyne herte: and remembre that the wr= ath shall not be longe in tariyng, and ẏ the vengeaunce of the flesh of the vn= godly is a very fyre and worme. Geue not ouer thy frende for enye good, ner thy faythful brother for the best golde.
Departe not from a discrete and good woman, that is fallen vnto the, for thy C porcion in the feare of the Lord, for the gyft of her honesty is aboue golde.
Whereas thy seruaunt worketh truly, intreate him not euell, ner the hyrelyn ge that is faythful vnto the. Loue a dy screte seruaunte as thyne owne soule, de fraude hym not of his libertie, neyther leaue him a poore mã.

If thou haue catell, loke wel to them: & they be for thy profit kepe them. If ẏ haue sonnes, bring them vp in nortour and lerning, and hold them in awe frõ their youth vp. If ẏ haue daughters, kepe their body, and shewe not thy face chereful towardes them. Mary thi dau ghter, & so shalt ẏ perfourme a weighty matter: but geue her to a man of vnder standing. If thou haue a wife after thi owne minde, forsake her not: (but com mitte not thi selfe to the hateful.) Honoure thi father from thi hole hert, and forget not the sorowful trauaile that thi mother had with the: remembre that thou wast borne thorow them, ãd how canst thou recompence thẽ the thinges that they haue done for the? Feare the D lord with al thi soule, and honoure his ministres. Loue thy maker wyth all thy strengthe, and forsake not his Ser= uauntes. Feare ẏ lord with al thi soul, & honoure his Prestes. Geue thẽ their porcion of the first frutes and increase of the earth, like as it is commaunded the: geue them the shoulders, and their appointed offrynges and firstlynges.
Reache thine hãd vnto the poore, that God maye blesse the wt plenteousnes.
Be liberal vnto all men lyuinge, yet let not but do good, euen to them that are deed.

Let not them that wepe be without cõ forte, but mourne wt soche as mourne. let it not greue ẏ to viset the sicke for ẏ shal make the to be beloued. Whatsoe= uer thou takest in hãd, remembre ẏ end and thou shalt neuer do amisse.

Agaynst the better is no stryuing. Of ẏ dearth of the enimy mayst ẏ not reioyce, ner dispys thy neyghbo urs, ner ẏ wordes of ẏ wyse.

The. viii. Chapter.

Striue not with a mightye A man, lest thou chaũse to fal in to his handes. Make no variaunce with a rich man lest he happen to bringe vp an harde quarel agaynst ẏ. For gold & siluer hath vndone many a man, yea e= uen the hartes of kinges hath it made to fall. Striue not wt a man ẏ is full of wordes, & laye no styckes vpõ his fire: kepe

kepe no company with the unlearned, least he geue thy kinred an euel report. Despice not a man that turnethe hym selfe awaye from sinne, and caste hym not in the teeth withall: but remembre that we are frayle euerichone. Thincke scorne of no man in his olde age, for we ware olde also. Be not gladd of the C death of thyne enemy, but remembre that we must dye all the sorte of us (and fayne wolde we come into ioye.) Despyse not the sermons of such elders as haue understanding, but acquaynt thy selfe wyth the wyse sentences of them: for of them thou shalt learne wysdom, and the doctryne of understandynge/ and how to serue great men wythoute complainte.

Go not from the doctrine of the elders, for they haue lerned it of theyre fathers, for of them thou shalt learne understanding, so that thou mayest make answer in the tyme of nede. Kindle not the coales of synners, lest thou be brent in the fyre flammes of theyr sinnes. Ryse not the face of the blasphemer, that he laye not wayte for thy mouth. Lend not unto hym that is myghtier the thy selfe: If thou lendest hym, count it but lost. Be not suertye aboue thy power: yf thou be, then thynke surely to pay it. Go not to lawe with the iudge, for he wyll iudge accordynge to hys own honoure. Trauayle not by the waye with hym that is braynneles, lest he doo the euell: for he folowith hys owne wylful nes/ and so shalte thou perishe thorowe hys foly.

Stryue not wyth hym that is angrye and cruell, and go not wyth hym in the wyldernes: for bloude is nothig in hys syght/ and where there is noo helpe, he shall murther thee. Take no councell at fooles, for they loue nothinge but the thinges that please them selues. Make no counsell before a straunger, for thou canst not tell what wyl come of it. Open not thyne herte unto euery man, lest he be unthanckfull of the, and put the to reprofe.

¶ The ieopardies of shamelesnes are to be eschued. An olde frende is to be preferred before a new. The glory and riches of synners. Righteous men shuld be broken to get. Labor is the thing in a Worthy man, and wysdome in a prince.

BE not gelous ouer the wyfe of thy bosome, that she shewe not some shrewed poynt of wycked doctryne upon the. Geue not the power of thy lyfe unto a woman, lest she come in thy strength, and so thou be confounded. Loke not upon a woman that is desyrous of many men, lest thou fall in to her snares. Use not the company of a woman that is a plaier and daunser, and heare her not, lest thou perysh thorow her entysyng. Beholde not a mayde, that thou be not hurt in her bewtie. Cast not thy mynde upon harlottes in eny maner of thynge, lest thou destroye both thy selfe and thyne herytage. Go not aboute gasynge in euery lane of the cytye, neither wandre thou abrode in the stretes therof. Turne awaye thy face from a bewtyfull woman, and loke not upon the fayrnesse of other. A

Many a man hath perysshed throw the bewty of wemen, for throw it the desyre is kyndled as it were a fyre. (An aduouterous woman shalbe trodden under fote as myre, of euery one that goth by the waye. Manye a man wonderynge at the bewtye of a straunge woman, hathe bene cast out, for her wordes kyndle as a fyre.) Syt not with another mans wyfe by eny meanes, lye not wythe her upon the bedd, make no wordes with her at the wyne: lest thine hert consent unto her, and so thou with thy bloude fal in destruccyon. B Forsake not an olde frende, for the new shall not be lyke him.
A new frende is new wyne: let him be old and thou shalt drink him with pleasur.
Desyre not the honoure and riches of a synner, for thou knowest not what destruccyon is for to come upon him. Delyte not thou in the thynge that the ungodly haue pleasure in, beinge sure that the ungodly shall not be accepted untyll their graue. Kepe the from the man that hath power to slaye, so nedest thou not to be afrayed of death. And yf thou comest unto him, make no fawt, lest he happen to take awaye thy lyfe. Remembre that thou goest in the myddest of snares, and upon the bul workes of the citye.

Be warre of thy neghboure as nye as thou canst, and medle with soch as be wyse & have understandynge. Lett iust men be thy gestes, lett thy myrth be in the feare B of God, let the remembraunce of God be in thy mynde and let all thy talkynge be in the commaundementes of the hyest.
In the handes of craftesmen shal the wor kes be commended, so shall the prynces of the people in the wysdom of their tal kynge. A man full of wordes is perlous in his cytie: and he that is temerarious and past shame in his talkynge, is to be abhorred.

Of kynges/and Judges. Pryde, and couetousnes are to be abhorred. Labour is praysed.

ℭ The .x. Chapter.

A wyse iudge will ordre hys A people with discrecion and where a man of understandi nge beareth rule, there goeth it well. As the iudge of the people is him selfe, even so are his offi cers: and loke what maner of man the ru ler of the cytye is, soch are they that dw ell therin also. An unwyse kyng destro yeth his people, but where they that be in auctorytee are men of understandyng there the cytye prospereth. The power of the earth is in the hande of God, and when his time is, he shall set a profytab le ruler upon it. In the hande of God is the power of man, & upon the Scri bes shall he laye his honoure. Remem bre no wronge of thy neyghboure, and medle thou with no unrighteous wor kes. Pride is hatefull before God and man, and all wickednes of the Heathen is to be abhorred. Because of unryght uous dealyng, wronge blasphemies, & dyverse disceate, a realme shall be tran slated from one people to another.
C There is nothyng worse then a covetо us man. Why art thou proud, O thou earth and asshes? There is not a more wicked thing then to love moneye. And why? soch one hath his soule to sell: yet is he but fylthy donge whyle he lyveth.
And though the phisician shew his hel peneuer so long, yet in conclusion it go eth after this maner, to daye a kynge, to morowe deed. For when a man dyeth, he is the heyre of serpentes, beas tes and wormes. The beginyng of mans pride, is to fal awaye from God: & whi lys hert is gone from his maker, for pry de is the orygenal of al synne. Who so taketh holde therof shalbe fylled wyth cursinges and at thee laste it shall over throw him. Therfor hath the lord brought the congregacions of the wycked to dis honoure, and distroyed them unto thee ende.

God hath destroyed thee seates of D proude princes, and set up the meke yn their steade. God hath withered the ro tes of the proude heathen and planted the lowly among them. God hath over throwen the landes of the Heathen, and destroyed them out of the grounde. He hath caused them to wythere awaye, he hath brought them to naught, and ma de the memorial of them to ceasse from oute of the earth (God hath destroyede the name of the proude, and left the na me of the humble of mind.) Pride was not made for man, nether wrothfulnes for mens children. The sede of men that feareth god, shalbe brought to honour: but the sede which transgresseth the com maundementes of the lorde shalbe sha med. He that is the ruler among brethren is houlden in honoure among them and he regardeth soch as fere the lord. The glory of the riche of the honorable and of the poore is the feare of god.
Despise not thou the pore man, & mag nifie not the rich ungodly. Greate is the iuge and mightye in honour, yet is the re none greater, then he that feareth God. Unto the servaunt that is dyscrete shall the fre do servyce. He that is wise and wel nortured wil not grudg when he is refourmed, and an ignoraunt bo E dye shall not come to honoure. Be not proude to do thy work, and despear not in the tyme of adversite. Better is he that laboureth, and hath plenteousnes of all thinges, then he that is gorgeous and wanteth brede.
My sonne, kepe thy soule in mekenes & geve her her due honour. Who shall iustify him that synneth agaynst him selfe who wil honoure him, that dishonoureth his owne lyfe? The poore is honoured for his faythfulnes & truth but the riche is had in reputacion because of his goodes

He that ordreth him self honestly in po uerte, how moche more shal he behaue him self honestly in riches. And who so ordreth hym selfe vnhonestlye in riches, how moch more shal he be haue hym sel fe vnhonestly in pouertie.

The prayse of humilitee. After the outwarde apperaunce ought we not to iudge. Of heady and hastie iudgement. The ryche is not wythout offence. Al thinges come of God. Al men are not to be broughte in to thine house.

THe wisdom of hym that ys brought lowe, shall lyft vp his head, ãd shal make him A to sit among great men. Cõ mende not a man in his bew ty/ nether despyse a man in his vtter ap peraunce. The Bee is but a small beast among ẏ foules, yet is her frut exedig swete. Be not proude of thy raiment/ & exalte not thy selfe in the daye of thy ho noure: for the workes of the Hyest onli are wonderful: ye gloryous, secrete and vnknowne are his workes. Many ty rauntes haue bene fayne to syt downe vpon the erth, & the vnlyckly hath wor ne the crowne. Many myghtie men ha ue bene brought lowe, and the honora ble haue ben deliuered in to other mẽs hãdes. Condemne no man, before thou haue tryed out the matter: and when ẏ haste made enquisycion, then refourme rightuously. Geue no sentence before ẏ hast herd ẏ cause but fyrst let mẽ tel out their tales.

Striue not for a matter ẏ toucheth B not thy selfe, and stand not in the iudg ment of sinners. My son medle not wt many matters: and if thou wilt be rich, thou shalt not get it: and though thou rennest thy way afor yet shalt thou not escape. There is some man that labou reth, and the more that he weerieth him selfe, the lesse he hathe. Agayne, some man is slothful, hath nede of helpe, wã teth strength, and hath great pouerte, & Gods eye loketh vpõ hi to good, setteth him vp from hys lowe estate, & lyfteth vp his head: so that many men maruel at him, and geue honoure vnto God.
Prosperite and aduersyte, lyfe and death, pouerte and riches, come al of the Lorde. (Wysdomme, Nourtoure and knowledge of the lawe are with God: lo ue and the wayes of good are whym.
Errour and darknes are made synners:
and they that exalte them selues in euel, ware olde in euell. (The wyll of God

Some man is rich by lyuynge nygard the worcke vnto thy age. Continue not in the workes of synners, but put thy trust in god, and byde in thyne sta te: for it is but ã easy thyng in the sight of God/ to make a pore man riche, and that sodenly: The blessinge of God ha steth to the rewarde of the rightuous, and maketh hys frutes sone to floryshe and prospeare, say not: what helpeth it me? and what shall I haue the whyle?

Agayne, say not: I haue ynough, howe can I wante? when thou art in welfa D re/ forget not aduersitie: and when it goeth not well wyth thee, haue a good hope, that it shalbe better. For it is but a small thyng vnto God, in the daye of death to rewarde euery man acordinge to his wayes, the aduersitie of an how re maketh one to forget all pleasure: & when a man dieth, hys worckes are discouered. Prayse no body before hys death for a man shalbe knowen in hys childeren.

Bringe not euerye man into thyne house, for the disceatfull layeth wayte dyuersly. Lyke as a partrich in a mau de/ so is the hert of the proude: and ly ke as a spye, that loketh vpõ the fall of hys neyghbour. For he turneth good vnto euell/ and sclaundereth the chos en. Of one sparck is made a gret fyer and an vngodly man layeth wayte for bloude. Beware of the disceatful, for he ymagineth wicked thynges to bring ẏ into a perpetual shame. If ẏ takest an aleãt vnto ẏ, he shal destroi ẏ in vnqui etnes, & driue ẏ frõ thyne owne waies.

Unto whom we ought to do good. Enemies ought to be eschued.

The .xii. Chapter.

When thou wilt do good, knowe to whom thou doest it,
A and so shalt thou be greatly thanked for thy benefites.
Do good unto ye righteous and thou shalt fynd great rewarde: though not of him, yet (no doute) the Lord him self shall rewarde the. He standeth not in a good case yt is alwaye occupied in euel, and geueth no almes: for the Hyest hateth the synners, and hath mercy upon them that shewe the workes of repentaunce. Geue thou unto soch as feare God, and receaue not a synner. As for the ungodlye and synners, he shall recompense vengeaunce unto them, and kepe them to the daye of wrath. Geue thou unto the good, and receaue not the synner: do well unto him that is lowly, but geue not to the ungodly. Let not the bred be geuē him, that he be not mightyer then thy selfe therin. For so shalt thou receaue twyse as moch euell, in al the good that thou dost unto hym: And why? the Hyest hateth synners, and shal rewarde vengeaunce to the ungodly.
B In prosperite, a frynd shal not be knowen, and in aduersyte an enemie shall not be hyd. For when a man is in wealth, it greueth his enemies: but in heuines and trouble a man shall know hys frynde. Trust neuer thine enemy, for lyke as an yron rusteth, so doth his wyckednes. And though he make moch crouching and knelyng, yet kepe well thy minde, & beware of him. Set him not by the, nether let him syt at thy right hand: lest he turne hym, gett in to thy place, take thy rowme and seke thy seate, and so yu at the laste remembre my wordes, and be prycked at my sayinges. Bynde not two synnes together, for there shall not one be unpunished.
C Who will haue pytye of the charmer, that is stynged of the serpent, or of all soch as com nye the beastes: Euē so is it with hī yt kepeth cōpani wt a wicked mā, & lappeth hī selfe in hys synnes. For a season wyll he byde with the, but yf thou stomble, he tarieth not. An enemy is swete in his lippes, he can make many wordes and speake many good thinges: Yee he can wepe wyth hys eyes, but in his herte he ymagineth how to throw the in to the pytt: and yf he maye fynde opportunitie he wyl not be satisfyed wyth bloude. If aduersite come upon thee, thou shalte fynde hym there fyrst and though he pretend to do the helpe, yet shal he undermine the. He shall shake his head and clappe hys hādes ouer the for very gladnes and whyle he maketh many wordes, he shal disguyse hys countenaunce.

The companyes of the proude and of the ryche are to be eschued. The loue of god. Lyke do company wt their lyke.

Who so toucheth pitch, shal be fyled withall: and he that is familiar wyth the proude, shall clothe hym selfe A with pryd. He taketh a burthen upon hym, that accompanieth a mor honorable man then hi selfe. Therfore kepe no familiarite with one that is richer then thy selfe. Howe agreeth the kettell and the pot together? for if the one be smytten against the other, it shalbe broken. The rich dealeth unrighteously and threateneth with all: but the pore beinge oppressed and wrongeously dealte with all, suffreth scarcenes, and geueth fayre wordes. If thou be for hys profit he useth thee: but if thou haue nothinge he shal forsake the. As lounge as yu hast eny thing of thyne own he shalbe a good felow wyth thee: ye he shall make thee a bare man, and not be sory for the. If he haue nede of thee, he shal defraude the B and (with a priuie mocke) shal he put ye in an hope and geue thee all good wordes and saye: what wantest thou: Thus shal he shame the in his meate, untyll he haue supte thee cleane up twyse or thrise, & at the last he laugheth the to scorne. After warde when he seth that thou hast nothing, he shal forsak the, and shake his heade at the.

Beware, that thou be not disceaued and brought downe in thy simplenesse. Be not to humble in thy wysdome least when thou art brought lowe thou be disceaued thorow folyshnesse. If thou be called a mightie man, absente thy selfe. so that he call thee to hym the more oft.

Preasse not vnto him, that thou be not shut out: but go not thou farre of, lest he forget the. Withdraw not thi self from his speach but beleue not his many wor des. For with moch communicacyō shal he tempte the, and (with a prety mock) shal he questiō the of thy secretes. The vnmercyfull mynde of his shall marke thy wordes, he shal not spare to do the hurte and to put the in preson. Beware, and take good hede to thi selfe, for thou walkest in parel of thy ouerthrowinge.
Now when thou hearest his wordes, C make the as though thou werest i a dre ame and wake vp. Loue god al thy life long, and cal vpon him in thy bed. Eue ry best loueth his like, euen so let euery man loue his neyghboure. Al flesh wyl resorte to their like, and euery man wyl kepe company with soche as her is him self. But as ẏ wolf agreeth wt ẏ lambe, so doth the vngodly wt the righteous.
What felishippe shuld an holy mā ha horre ẏ pore. If a rich man fal, his fren des sethi vp againe: but whē the pore fal leth his frendes forsake him. If a rich man fal in to errour, he hath many hel pers: he speaketh proud wordes, ād yet men iustifie him.

But if a poore mā go wrong, he is pu nyshed: yet though he spake wysely, yet can it haue no place. When ther riche man speaketh, euery body holdeth hys tonge: & loke what he sayth, they praise it vnto the cloudes. But if the poore mā D speake, they saye what felow is this? & yf he do amysse, they shal destroye him.
Riches are good vnto him that hath no synne in his conscience/and pouerte is a wycked thing in the mouth of the vn godly. The hert of man chaungeth his countenaunce, whether it be in good or euil. A chearful countenaunce is a tokē of a good herte, for els is it ā hard thig to knowe the thought.

The offence of the tong. Man is but a vayne thig happy is he that continueth in wisdome.

The xiiii. Chapter.

BLessed is the man, that ha A th not fallen with the word of hys mouthe, and is not pricked with the consience of synne. Happy is he that had no heuynes in his minde, and is not fallen from his hope. It becōmeth not a couetous man and a nygarde/to be ryche: and what shoulde a nygarde do with golde? He that with al his car fulnes hepeth together vnrighteously, gathereth for other folckes/and ano ther mā shal make good chere with his goodes. He that is wycked vnto hym selfe, howe shoulde he be good vnto o ther men? How can suche one haue any pleasure of his goodes? There is no thyng worse, then when one dyskauou reth him selfe, and this is a rewarde of his wyckednes. If he do any good, he doth it not knowyng therof, & agaiste his wyl, and at the last he declareth his vngraciousnes. A nygard hath a wyc ked eye, he turneth away his face, and despyseth his owne soule. A couetous mans eye hath neuer ynough in ẏ por cyon of wyckednesse, vntyll the tyme that he wyther awaye, and haue loste do good to thy selfe of that thou hast/and geue the Lord his due offeringes.

Remembre that death tarieth not, and how that the couenaunt of the graue of this worlde shal dye the death. Do good vnto thy frend before thou dye, and acordyng to thy abylite reach out thyne hand, and geue vnto the poore.

Be not disapoynted of thy good day, and let not the porcyō of the good dai nother is borne,

All transitori thinges shal faile at the last, and the worker therof shal go with al. Every chosen worke shalbe iustified, and he that medleth wyth al, shall haue honoure therein. Blessed is the man y kepeth him in wisdome, and exerciseth him self in vnderstandyng, and with dis crecion shal he thyncke vppon the fore knowledg of God. Which considereth the the wayes of wisdome in his hert, hath vnderstandinge in her secretes, goth af ter her (as one that seketh her out) and continueth in her wayes. He loketh in at her windowes, and herkeneth at her dores: He taketh his rest beside her house, and fasteneth his stake in her walles: He shal pitch his tent nye vnto her hande, and in his tente shall goode thinges reste for evermore: He shall set his children vnder her couering, & shal dwell vnder her braunches. Under her coverynge shall he be defended from the heate, and in her Glorye shall hee reste.

The goodnes that folowerh him which feareth God. God deliuereth and casteth of the sinner; God is not y auctor of euel.

The.xv.Chapter

I He that feareth God, wil do good: and who so kepeth the the lawe, shal optaine wys-ther shal she mete him, and as a virgin shal she receue him. With y brede of life and vnderstanding shal she fede him, and geue hi the water of whol some wisdom to drink. If he be constât in her, he shal not be moued and if hee holde him fast bi her, he shal not come to confusiõ. She shal bring him to honou re among his neighboures, and in the middest of the congregacion shal she o pen his mouth. With the sprete of wis dome and vnderstanding shal she fyll him, and clothe him with the garment of glory. She shal hepe the treasure of mirth and ioye vpon him, and geue hi B an everlasting name to heretage. Fo-lish men wil not take holde vpon here, but soch as haue vnderstandinge, will mete her for she is farre from pride and deceate. Men that go aboute with lies wyll not remembre her: but mẽ of truth shalbe founde in her, even vnto thee be holding of god. Prayse is not semely i the mouth of the vngodly, for he is not sente of the lorde.

For of God commeth wisdom, and the prayse shall stande by the wisdome of god, and shalbe plenteous in a faithful mouth, and the Lord shall geue her vn to him. Saye not thou: It is the Lor-des faute that I am gone by, for thou shalt not do the thing that god hateth.
Saye not thou: he hath caused me to go wronge, for he hath no nede of the Gene.i.b. vngodly. God hateth al abhominacyon of errour, & they that feare god wil loue non soch. God made man fro the begin ning, and lefte him in the hande of his C councel. He gaue him hys commaunde mentes and precepes: yf thou wylt ob wer, and beholdeth al men contynually The eyes of the Lord are vpon them that feare him/and he knoweth al the workes of men. He hath commaunded no man to do vngodlye, nether hath he geuen eny man leaue to sinne.

Of vnhappy and wycked children. No man can hyde him selfe from god. An exhortacion to the receauing of instruction.

The.xvi.Chapter.

Delyte thou not in the multy-tude of vngodly children, I and haue no pleasur i thẽ if they fere not god. Trust not thou to their lyfe, & re garde not their labours: for one sonne y feareth God is better, then a thousa nde vngodly. And better it is for a man to dye withoute children, then to leaue behynd him soch children as are vngo dly. For by one that hath vnderstandi nge, maye a whole citie be vpholden, but though the vngodly be many, yet shal it be wasted thorow them. Many such thinges hath myne eye sene, & gre ater thynges then these haue I herde wyth myne eares. In the congregacyon of the vngodly shal a fyre burne, and a monge vnfaithfull people shal the wra th be kindled.

B ¶ The olde giauntes optayned not gr Gene.vi.a. ace for their synnes, which were destro yed/trusting to their owne strengthe.
Gene.xix.c Nether spared he them among whome Loth was straunger, but smote them & abhorred them because of pryd of ther wordes. He had no pytye vpon them, but destroyed al the people/ that were so stoute in synne. And for so much as he ouersawe not the sixe hundreth tho usande/that gathered them selues to gether in the hardnes of their hertes: it were maruel, yf one being hardnecked/should be fre. For mercy and wrath is w̄ him: he is mightye to forgeue, and to poure out displeasure. Lyke as hys mercy is greate, euen so is his punysh ment also, he iudgeth a man accordig to his workes. The vngodly shal not escape in thy spoyle, and the long pacy ence of him that she with mercye/ shall not byde behinde. Al mercy shal make place vnto euery man according to ẏ deseruing of his workes, and after ẏ vnderstanding of his pylgremage.
C Saye not thou: I wyl hid, my self from god, for who wil thincke vpō me frō aboue? I shal not be knowne in so greate a heape of peple, for what is my soule amonge so many creatures? Be vnderstādīng/ & marke my wordes w̄ D thine hert: I wil geue ẏ a sure doctrine & plainly shal I instructe the. God hath set his workes in good ordre frō the be ginning, & parte of them hath he sunde red from the other. He hath garnished his workes from euerlastyng, and the ir begynnynges, accordyng to their ge neracyons. None of them hyndreed an other, nether was any of them dysobed yent vnto hys worde. After thys, God loked vpon ẏ earth, & fylled it w̄ his goodes. With al maner of liuing bea stes hath he couered the ground, & ther al shalbe turned vnto earth agayne.

¶ The creation of man and the goodnes that god hath done vnto him. Of almous and repentaunce

¶ The .xvii. Chapter

A God shope man of ẏ earth/and turned him vnto erth agayne. He gaue hym the nombre of dayes and cer tayne tyme, yea and gaue hym power of the thynges ẏ are vpon earth. he clothed hym with strength, ac made hym after hys awne lycknes. He made all flesh to stand: in awe of hym, so that he had the domynyon of all bea stes and foules. He made out of hym ā helper lyke vnto hym self, and gaue thē dyscrecyon and tonge, eyes and eares, and a herte to vnderstande, and fylled them with instruccyon and vnderstand ynge. He created for them also the knol edge of the spyrete, fylled their hertes w̄ vnderstandyng, and shewed them good and euell. He set hys eye vpon their her tes, declaryng vnto them hys greate B and noble workes: that they shulde pr ayse hys holy name together, reioise of hys wonders, and be tellynge of hys noble actes. Besyde thys, he gaue them instruccyon/ and the lawe of lyfe for an heretage. He made hym an euerlastyng couenaunt with them, and shewed the his ryghteousnes and iudgementes.
They sawe hys glory wyth their eyes, & their eares hearde the maiesty of hys voyce. And he saide vnto them: beware of all vnryghteous thinges. He gaue euery man also a commaundement cōcer ninge his neighboure.
Their waies are euer before him, and are not hid from his eies. He hath set a ruler vpon euery people, but Israel is the Lordes porcin. All their workes are C as the Sunne, in the sight of God, and hys eies are alwaye lokinge vpon their waies. All their vnrighteousnesses are manyfest vnto him, and all their wicked nesses are open in hys syght.

The mercye that a man shewethe is as it were a purse wyth hym, and a mans good deade preserueth hym as the apple of an eye. At the last shal he awake, and rewarde euery man vpon hys heade as he hath deserued, and shall turne them together into the nethermost partes of the earth/ but vnto them that wil repente, he hath geuen the waye of rightuousnes. As for suche as be weake, he comforteth them, suffreth them and sendeth them the porcion of the verite.

O turn then vnto the lord/forsake thy synnes, make thy prayer before the lord, do the lesse offence, turne agayne vnto the Lord/ forsake thyne vnrighteousnes, be abhorre enmy to abhominacion/lern to know the righteousnes and iudgementes of God, stande in thie porcion that is set for thee, and in the prayer of the moost hye god. Go into the porcion of the holy world, wyth such as be lyuing/ and geue thanckes vnto god.

Whoo wyll prayse the Lorde in the hell? Abyde not thou in the errour of the vngodly, but geue him thanckes before death. As for the dead/thanckfulnes perissheth from hym as nothynge. Geue thou thankes in thy lyf, ye whyle thou arte lyuing and whole shalt thou geue thanckes and prayse god and reioyce in hys mercy. O how greate is the louing kyndnesse, of the lorde, and his mercyfull goodnes vnto suche as turne vnto hym? For al thinges maye not be in man, and why? the sonne of man is not immortal, & he hath pleasur in the vanite of wickednes. What is more clere then the sonne? yet shal it fayle. Or what is more wicked then the thing that flesshe and bloude hath imagined? and the same shalbe reproued. The lorde seyth the power of the hye heauen, and all are but earth and asshes.

C The marueilous workes of god, the mysery and wretchednes of man. Agaynst god oughte we not to complayne. Pray must we continually.

The. xviii. Chapter.

He that lyueth for euer more, made all thinges together. God only is righteous, and remaineth a victorious kinge for euer.

Who shalbe able to expresse the workes of him? Who hath sought out the grounde of his noble actes? Who shal declare the power of his greatnes? Or, who wil take vpon him to tel out his mercy? As for the wondrous workes of the Lorde, there maye nothing be taken from them/ nothing maye be put vnto them, nether maye the grounde of them be founde out. But when a man hath done his best, he must begin agayne: and when he thinketh to come to an ende, he muste go agayne to hys labour. What is man? Wherto is he worth? what good or euell can he do? If the nombre of a mans dayes be almost an hundreth yeare/it is muche. B

Lyke as the droppes of rayne are vnto the sea, and as a grauell stone is in comparyson of the sande: so are these few yeares to the daie euerlastinge. ii.Pet.iii.b therfore is the Lorde pacient with them and poureth out his mercy vpon them. He sawe and perceaued the thoughtes and ymaginacyons of their hertes/ that they were euill: Therfore heaped he vp his mercyful goodnes vpon them, and shewed them the waye of rightuousnes. The mercy that a man hath, reacheth to his neighbour: but the mercy of god is vpon al flesh. He chasteneth, he teacheth and nourtoureth: yea euen as a shepard turneth againe his flock, so doth he all them that receaue chastenyng, nurtoure and doctryn. Merciful is he vnto them, that stande in awe of hys iudgements. C My sonne, when thou doest good make no grudging at it: & what soeuer thou geuest, speke no discomfortable wordes. Shall not the dew coule the heate? Euen so is a word better then a gyfte. Is not a frendly worde a good honest gyft? but a gracious man geueth them bothe.

A foole shall cast a man in the teeth, and that roughly, and a gyft of the nygarde putteth out the eyes. Get the rightuousnes before thou come to iudgement. Learne before thou speakest & go to phisyke or euer thou be sycke: examen and iudge thy selfe, before the iudgement come, and so shalt thou fynd grace in the sight of God. Prouer.xv.a c.xxv.c

in tyme of thy dysease shew thy conuersacion. Let not to praye alway, and stande not in feare to be reformed vnto death/for the reward of God endureth for euer. Before thou prayest prepare thy soule, and be not as one that tempteth God. Thincke vppon the wrathfull indignacion, that shalbe at the ende, and the houre of vengeaunce, when he shal turne awaye his face. When thou hast ynough, remembre the time of honger, and when thou art ryche thinck vppon the tyme of pouertie and scarcenesse.

D From the mornynge vntyll the euening the tyme is chaunged, and al such thinges are sone donne in the syghte of God. A wise man feareth God in all thynges, and in the dayes of transgressyon he kepeth hym selfe from synne. A discrete man hath pleasure in wisdome/and he that fyndethe her, makethe much of her. They that haue had vnderstandinge/haue dealt wysely in wordes, haue vnderstande the truethe and righteousnes, and haue sought out wyse sentences and iudgementes. Folow not thy lustes, but turne from thyne owne wyll. For yf thou geuest thy soule her desyres, it shall make thyne enemyes to laugh thee to scorne. Take not thy pleasure in great voluptuousnes/and medle not to much with all. Make not to greate cheare of the thynge that thow haste wonne by aduauntage leaste thou falle intoo pouertye, and haue noothynge in thy purse.

Wyne and whoredom bryng men to pouerte. In thy wordes must thou vse discrecyon. The dyfference of wysdom of God & man. Whereby thou mayest knowe what is in a man. Correction must be vsed without anger.

The. xix. Chapter.

A A Labouring man that is geuen vnto dronkenes, shall not be rych: and he that maketh not muche of smal thinges, shall fall by lytle and lytle. Wyne and women make wyse men renneagates, and put men of vnderstanding to reprofe: and he that accompanyeth aduouterers shal become a wicked man. [illegible] and wormes shall haue hym to heritage, yet he shalbe set vp to a greater ensample, and his soule shalbe roted out of the nomber. He that is hasty to geue credence, is lyght mynded/and doth against hym selfe. Who so reioyceth in wyckednes, shalbe punished: he that hatethe to be refourmed, hys lyfe shalbe shortened: and he that abhorreth babelynge of wordes, quencheth wyckednes. B He that offendeth against his owne soule, shal repente it: and he that reioyceth in wyckednes, shalbe punyshed.

Rehearce not a wicked and churlyshe worde twyse, and thou shalt not be hindered. Shew thy secretes nether to frende nor fo, and yf thou hast offended, tel it not oute. For he shal herken vnto the, and when he seeth oportunitie/he shal hate the. If thou hast herde a word agaynst thy neghbour, let it be deed within the: and be sure, thou shalt haue no harme therby. A fole trauayleth with a worde, lyke as a woman that is payned with bearing of chylde. Like as an arow shot in a dogges thyghe, so is a worde in a foles hert. Tel thy frend hys faute, lest he be ignoraunt, and saye: I haue not done it, or yf he haue done it, that he do it nomore. Reproue thy neyghboure, that he kepe his tonge: and yf he haue spoken, that he saye it nomore. Tell thy neyghboure his faute, for oft tymes an offence is made, and geue not credence to euery worde. A man falleth somtyme with his tonge, but not with hys wyll. For what is he, that hath not offended in hys tonge? Geue thy neyghbour warning, before thou threaten him, and geue place vnto the lawe of the Lorde. The feare of God is all wysdome, and he that is a ryght wyse man, kepeth the lawe. As for the doctryne of wyckednesse, it is no wysdome, and the prudence of synners is no good vnderstandyng: it is but wyckednesse and abhominacion and a blasphemyng of wisdome. A symple man of small vnderstandyng that feareth God, is better then one that hath moch wysdom, and transgresseth the lawe of the hyest. A crafty sotell man can be wyse, but he is vnrighteous, and with gyftes he wrasteth the open and manyfest lawe.

A wicked man can behaue him self hũ bly and can douke wyth hys head, ãd yet is he but a dysceauer within. He hydeth his face/and dysguyseth it: ãd because he shuld not be knowne, he pre uenteth the.
And though he be so weake that he can do the no harme, yet when he maie fynde oportunite/he shal do some euel A man maye be knowne by his face/ & one that hath understanding, may be perceaued by the loke of his countena unce. A mans garment, laughter/and goinge, declare what he is.

¶ Of correction and repentaunce. Of the gyftes of the wyse man and of the fole. Of lyinge.

¶ The .xx. Chapter

A Some man reproueth hys neyghboure oft times, but not in due season: Againe some man holdeth his ton ge/and he is wyse and dis crete. It is muche better to geue war ninge & to reproue, then to beare euell wyl: for he that knowledgeth hi self o penly, shalbe preserued from hurt and destruccion. Like as whẽ a gelded mã good a thig is it, a man yt is reproued/to shew openly his repentaunce: for so shalt thou escape wylful synne.

Some man kepeth sylence, and ys foũd: but he yt is not ashamed what he ed men come hastely. In the mouth of hym that is untaught, are many vncõ uenyent and vnmete wordes. A wyse sentence shall not be alowed at the mou th of the fole, for he speketh it not i due yeth he it, and wyth acceptynge of per sones shal he undoo hym selfe. Some man promeseth his frende a gyft for ve ry shame, & getteth an enemye of hym C for naught. A lye is a wycked shame in a man, yet shall it be euer in the mouth of the unwyse. A thefe is better, then a man that is accustomed to lye, but they bothe shall haue destruccyon to herita est, and their shame is euer wyth them.

A wyse man shall brynge him self to ho

Rewardes and gyftes blynde the eyes of the wyse/and make him dõme, that he cã not tel men their fautes. Wisdõ that is hyd/and treasure that is hoor D

Better is he that kepeth his ignorau

wysdome.

¶ Of the repentaunce of sin. We may not heape si ne vpon synne. The boldenesse of an heretyke. The end of synners. Of ẏ foole and of the wise man. Of hym that curseth ẏ deuell.

The .xxi. Chapter.

A Eccl. v. a. vii. a. xiii.
MY sonne if thou hast ined, do it nomore: but praye for thy fore sinnes, ẏ they maye be forgeuen thee. Fle frō sinne, euen as from a serpente: for yf thou commest to nie her, she wyll byte the. The teeth therof, are as the teeth of a lyon, to sley the soules of men. The wickednes of men is as a sharpe two edged swerde, which maketh such woundes that they can not be healed.

Stryfe & wrongeous dealing, shal wast awaye a mans goodes, & thorow pride a riche house shalbe brought to naught: so the riches of ẏ proude shal be roted out. The prayer of the poore goeth out of the mouth, and commeth vnto the eares/ and his vēgeaunce (or defecte) shal come, & that hastely. Who so hateth to be refourmed, it is a token of an vngodly parsonne: but he that feareth God, wyl remembre him selfe. A mightye man is knowne a farre of by his tonge, but he that hath vnderstanding, perceueth that he shal haue a fal.

B Who so buyldeth his house wyth other mens cost, is lyke one that gathereth stones in winter. The congregacyon of the vngodli is like stubble gathered together, their ende is a flamme of fier. The waye of the vngodly is set wt stones, but in their end is hel, darknes and payne. He that kepeth the law, wil holde fast the vnderstandyng therof/ and the ende of the feare of God is wisdome. He that is not wyse, wyll not ber taught in good: but the vnwise man abundeth in wickednesse: and where bitternes is, there is no vnderstandynge. The knowledg of ẏ wise shal flow like water that renneth ouer, and his counsel is like a fountayne of lyfe.

C The harte of a foole is lyke a broke vessel, he can kepe no wisdome. Whē a man of vnderstanding heareth a wyse worde, hee shall commende it and make moch of it. But if a voluptuous man heare it, he shall haue no pleasure therin but cast it behynde hys backe. The talking of a foole is like an heuy burthen by ẏ waye: but to heare a wise man speake, it is a pleasure. Where a dout is in the congregacyon, yt is asked in the mouth of the wyse/ & they shal pōder his wordes in their hertes. Lyke as a house that is destroyd, euen so is wisdom vnto a foole: As for the knowledg of the vnwise, it is but dark wordes. Doctrine is vnto him ẏ hath noo vnderstandinge, euen as fetters about hys fete/ and lyke mannycles vpon his right hande. A foole lifteth vp hys voyce wt laughter (but a wyse man shal scarse laugh secretly.

D Lernynge is vnto a wyse man a Jewel of golo, and lyke an armlet vpon his right arme. A foolish mans fote is soone in his neighbours house, but one that hath experience, shalbe ashamed at the persoune of the myghtye. A foole wyl pepe in at the window into ẏ house/ but he that is wel nurtured, wil stande without. A foolyshe man standeth herkenynge at the dore/ but he that ys wyse/ wil be ashamed.

The lyppes of the vnwyse wyl be telling foolish thinges, but the wordes of suche as haue vnderstanding, shall be weyed in the balaunce. The hert of fooles is i their mouth, but the mouth of the wise is in their hert. When the vngodly curseth ẏ blasphemer/ he curseth his owne soule. A preuy accuser of other mē, shal defile his owne soule, and be hated of euery man: (but he that kepeth his toung & is discrete, shal com to honoure.

¶ The purgacion of ẏ slouthfull. Of the folysh sonne & daughter. We must haue discretion how & to whom we ought to preache, of sorowyng vpō ẏ ded. A fole is not to be much talked withal. Into eyes and wyōges do breake frendship and amite.

The .xxii. Chapter.

A Slouthfull body is moulded of a stone of claye. He ẏ toucheth hym must shew his handes agayne. A misnurtoured sonne is ẏ dyshonoure of the father. A foolysh daughter shalbe lytle regarded. A wyse daughter is an heretag vnto her husband, But she that commeth to dyshonestye/ bryngeth her father in heuines. A daughter ẏ is past shame, dishonoureth both her father & her husbād: ẏ vngodli shal shal regarde her, but they both shal des pise her, the playenge of Musick is not mete where heuynes is, euen so is the B correccyon and doctryne of wysdome euer vnpleasaunt vnto fooles. Who so teacheth a foole, is euen as one that glewth a potsherde together: as one y^t telleth a tayle to hym that heareth hym not, and as one that wayketh a man out of an heuy slepe. Who so telleth a foole of wysdome, is euen as a man, whych speaketh to one y^t is a slepe. When he hath tolde his tayle, he saieth: what is Eccle. the matter? When one dyeth, lamenta-D cion is made foꝛ hym, because the lyght fayleth hym: euen so let men mourne ou er a foole: foꝛ he wanteth vnderstandy ng. Make but lytle weppyng because of the deed: foꝛ he is come to rest, but the lyfe of the fole is woꝛse then the deeth.

Seuen dayes do men mourne foꝛ hym that is deed, but the lamentacyon ouer the vnwyse and vngodly shuld endure all the dayes of their lyfe. Talke not E moch with a foole/ & go not with hym that hath no vnderstandyng. Bewarre of him, lest he turne the to trauayle, and thou shalt not be defiled with his synne.
Departe from him, & thou shalt fynd rest, & shalt not be dꝛoune back into his folyshnes. What is heuyer then leade?
And what shuld a foole be called els but leade. Sande, salt, and a lumpe of yꝛō is easier to beare, then an vnwyse, folysh, and vngodly man. Like as the band of wod boūd together i the foun daciō of the house can not be lowsed, euen so is it w^t the hert y^t is stablyshed in the thought of councell. The thought of the wyse, shall nether feare ner be off ended at any tyme.
D Like as a fayꝛe playstred wall in a wynter house, and an hye buyldig, may not abyde the wynde and stoꝛme, eue so is a foles herte afrayde in hys ymagi-nacion: he feareth at euery thyng/ & can not endure. He y^t nyppeth a mās eye/ bꝛi geth foꝛth y^e teares, & he y^t pricketh the hert/ bꝛigeth foꝛth y^e meuig & thought.
Who so casteth a stone at the byꝛdes/frayeth thē away: & he y^t blasfemeth his frende: bꝛeaketh the frendshyppe: though y^u dꝛawest a sweard at thy frend, yet dispayꝛe not, foꝛ thou mayest come agayne to thy frend. If he speake sower ly, feare not, foꝛ if ye maye be agreed to gether agayne: excepte it be that thowe blaspheame hym/ disdayne hym, open hys secretes, and wounde hym trayterouslye: foꝛ all suche thynges shall dry-ue away a frende.
Be faythfull vnto thy neighboure in hys pouerte/ that thou mayest reioy E ce with hym also in hys pꝛosperite. Abi de stedfast vnto hym in the tyme of hys trouble/ that thou mayest be heyꝛe with hym in his heretage. Lyke as the vapour and smoke goeth oute at the ouen befoꝛe the fyꝛe, euen so euell woꝛdes, re bukes & thꝛeatenynges go befoꝛe blou desheddyng. Be not ashamed to defend thy frende: as foꝛ me/ I wyll not hyde Psalm. cxl. my face from hym though he should do me harme. Who soeuer heareth it, shall bewarre of him. Who shall set a watch befoꝛe my mouth, and a sure seale vpon my lyppes/ that I fall not wyth them, and that my tonge destroy me not?

¶ A prayer against pryde, lecherye, and glotony. Of othes, blasphemy, and of wyse communicacion. Of the thꝛe kyndes of synnes. Many synnes procead of aduoutery. Of the fere of God.

The. xxiii. Chapter.

O Loꝛde, father and gouer-noure of my lyfe/ leaue me not in theyꝛ generacion, & good councell. Oh let me not fall into suche repꝛofe.
Who wyll kepe my thoughtes with the scourge/ and the doctrine of wysdōme in myne herte: that he spare not myne ignoꝛaunce, that I fall not wyth them, lest myne ignoꝛaunces encresse/ that my ne offences be not many in nombꝛe, ād that my synnes exceade not, least I fall befoꝛe myne enemyes, and so my aduer sary reioyce. O Loꝛde, thou father and God of my lyfe, leaue me not in theyꝛ y maginacyon. O let me not haue a pꝛoude loke/ but turne away all volup tousnes fro me. Take fro me the lustes of the body/ let not the desyꝛes of vnclenes take holde vpon me/ and geue me not ouer into an vnshamefaste and abhominable mynde. Heare me (O ye chyldren) I wyll geue you a doctry ne/ how ye shal oꝛdꝛe youre mouth: who so kepeth it/ shall not perysh thꝛow his lyps, noꝛ be hurt thꝛow wiked woꝛkes

B As for the sonner/he shalbe taken in his owne vanitie: he that is proud and cursed, shall fall therein. Let not thy mouth be accustomed wyth swearinge/for in it there are many falles. Let not the namynge of god be continually in thy mouth: for lyke a seruaunt which is oft punished can not be without some sore, euen so what soeuer he be that sweareth and nameth god, shall not be clean purged from synne. A man that vseth much swearinge / shall be fylled wythe wickednes, and the plage shal neuer go fro his house. If he begyle hys brother/ hys faulte shalbe vpon him: if he knoledg not hys synne, he maketh a double offence/and if he sweare in vayn, he shal not be founde rightuous/for hys house shal be full of plages.

C The wordes of the swearer bringeth death (God graunte that it be not foũd in the house of Jacob.) But they that feare god/eschue al suche, and ly not weltering in synne. Use not thy mouth to vnhonest & filthy talking for in it is the worde of synne. Remembre thy father & thy mother, whẽ þ art set amõg gret mẽ, lest god forget the in theyr syght, ãd lest thou doting in the custom suffre rebuke, and wysh not to haue ben borne/and so curse the daye of thy natyuite. The mã that is accustomed wyth the wordes of blasphemye, wyll neuer be refourmed al the dayes of his lyfe. To synne twyse is to muche/but the thyrd bringeth wrath and destruction. An hote stomake can not be quenched (euen lyke a burninge fyre) tyll it haue swalowed vp somthig: euen so an vnchast man hath no rest in hys fleshe, tyll he haue kindled a fyre.

All breade is swete to an whoremon-
D ger/he wyll not leaue of, tyl he haue his purpose. A man that breaketh wedlocke, and regardeth not his soule, but saieth: Tush, who seeth me? I am compassed a boute with darckenes, the walles couer me, nobody seeth me: whom nede I to fere? The hyest wyll not remembre my synnes. He vnderstandeth not that hys eyes se al thiges/for al such feare of men dryueth away the feare of god frõ him: for he feareth onely the eyes of mẽ, & cõsydereth not þ the eyes of the lorde are clearer then the Sunne, beholdinge all the wayes of men and there goun de of the depe, and lokyng euen to mens hertes in secrete places. The Lorde God knoweth al thiges or euer they wer made & after they be brought to passe also he loketh vpon them al. The same man shalbe openly punyshed in the stretes of the citie, and shalbe chased abrode lyke a yonge horse foale: and when he thynketh leest vpõ it, he shalbe takẽ. Thus shal he be put to shame of euery man because he wolde not vnderstand the feare of the Lorde. And thus shall it go also with euery wife that leaueth her housband, ãd getteth enheritaũce bi a strãge mariag. C First she hath bene vnfaithful vnto the lawe of the hyest: Secondly, she hath forsaken her own housbãd: Thirdly, she hath playd the whore in aduoutry, and gotten her children by another man. She shalbe brought out of the congregacion, and her childrẽ shall be loked vpon: Her children shal not take rote: and as for frute, her braunches shal bring forth none. A shamful report shal she leaue behind her, and her dishonoure shall not be put out. And they þ remayne, shal knowe that there is nothing better then the feare of God: ãd that there is nothing sweter then to take hede vnto the cõmaundementes of the Lorde. A greate worshippe is yt to folowe the Lorde, for longe lyfe shal be receyued of him, Leuit. Deut.

A prayse of wysdom proceadyng forth of the mouth of god. Of her workes & place wher she resteth.

The xxiiii. Chapter.

Wysdome shal prayse her selfe, and be honoured in god and reioyce in the myddest of hys people: A In the congregacions of the hyest shal she opẽ her mouth, and triũphe in the beholding of hys power: In the myddest of her people shal she be exalted, and wõdred at in þ holy fulnes: In the multytude of the chose she shalbe cõmended & among suche as be blessed she shalbe praysed & shal say: I ã cõ out of þ mouth of þ hyest, fyrst born befor al creatures. I caused the light þ fayleth not to aryse in the heauen and couered al the earth as a cloude. My dwellinge is aboue in the heyghth, and my seate is in the pyller of of ÿ cloud: I haue walked in ÿ floudes of ÿ se, & haue stád i al lãdes, my dominion is in eueri people & in euery nacion, & wt mi power haue I trodé doune the hertes of al/ both hie and lowe.

In all these thinges also I soughte rest, and a dwellinge in some enheritaunce. So the creator of al thiges gaue B me a commaundement: and he ÿ made me, appointed me a tabernacle/ & saide unto me: Let thy dwelling be i Jacob, and thine enheritaunce in Israel, and rote thy self among thy chosen. I was C created from the beginning ád before the worlde, and shal not leaue of unto ÿ world to come. In the holy habitacyon haue I serued before him, & so was I stablished in Sion. In the holy cite rested I in lyke maner: and in Jerusalem was my power, I toke roote i an honorable people, euen in the porcyon of the Lorde and in hys heritage, and kept me in the fulnes of the saintes. I am set up on hie lyke a Ceder upon Libanus, and as a Cypres tre uppon the mount Hermon: I am exalted lyke a palme tre in Cades/ and as a rose plát in Jericho: As a fayre olyue tree in the feld/ and am exalted lyke as a planetre by ÿ water side. I haue geuen a smel in the stretes, as ÿ Cinamom and Balme, ÿ hath so good a sauoure: yea a swete odour haue I geuen as it were Myrre of the best.

I haue made my dwellinges to smel as it were of rosyn, Galbaú, of Clowes, & Incense/ & as Libanus whé it is C not hewé dowue/ & mine odour is as ÿ pure Balme. As ÿ Terebinthe haue I stretched out mi braúches & mi braúches ar ÿ braúches of honour & louing fauour As ÿ vine haue I broght forth frut of a swete sauor, & my flowres are the frut of honoure & riches. I ã the mother of bewty/ of loue, of fere, of knowledg ád of holy hope. In me is al grace of lyfe and treuth: In me is al hope of life ád vertu. O come unto me, all ye ÿ be desirous of me, and fyl youre selues wt mi frutes: for mi spryte is sweter thé hony, & so is my in heritaunce more thé hony combe: the remembraunce of me endureth for euermore.

They that eate me, shal haue the more honger: and they that drincke me, shal thirste the more. Who so herkneth unto me, shall not come to confusion: ád they that worke in me, shal not offend. They that make me to be knowen, shal haue euerlasting lyfe.

Al these thinges are the boke of life, the couenaunt of the hyest, and the knoledge of the truth. Moses cómaunded Exo. xx. a.
the lawe in the preceptes of rightuous .xxiiii. b

This maketh nourtour to breake forth Josue. iii. a as the light, ád as the water Gihon in the haruest. The fyrst hath not knowne her perfectly, no more shal the last se out the groúd of her. For her thought is fuller then the se, and her councel ys profounder then the gret depe.

I wisdom haue cast out floudes I am as a great water broke out of the riuer. I am as the ryuer Dorix, and as a water condyte am I come out of the garde of pleasure. I saie: I wil water ÿ garden of my yonge plantes, and fyll the frut of my birth. So mi water broke became exceadinge greate, and my ryuer approched unto the see. For I make doctrine to be unto al mé as light as the fayre morninge, and I shal make it to be euer the clearer. I wil pearse thorow al the lower partes of the earth, I wil loke upó al soch as be a slepe, and lighten al them ÿ put their trust in the Lord. I shal yet poure out doctryne, lyke as prophecy, and leaue it unto soch as seke after wisdom, and their generacyons shal I neuer fayle, unto the holi euerlastynge worlde. Beholde/ howe ÿ I haue not laboured for my selfe onely, but for al thé that seke after treuth.

Of thre thinges which please God, & of thre which he hateth. Of .ix. thinges that be not to be suspect & of the tenth chefely of ÿ malice of a woman.

The .xxv. Chapter

Gene. xiii.b
Roma.xii.c.

Thre thinges there are, ẏ my sprete fauoureth, which be also alowed before God ād men: The vnitie of brethren the loue of neyghbours, & men and wife that agree well togethe.

Thre thinges ther be which my soul hateth ād I vtterly abhorre the lyfe of them: A pore man that is proud. A ryche man that is a lyar, and ā olde bodi that doteth and is vnchaste.

Eccle.xl.b.

If thou hast gathered nothing i thy youthe/what wylt thou finde then yn thine age? O how plesant a thing is it, when gray headed men are dyscrete, & when the elders can geue good councel.
O how comely a thing is wisdom vnto aged men, ye vnderstanding & councel is a glorious thing. The crowne of ol de men is to haue moch experience. and the fere of god is their worshyppe.

B Ther be.ix. thinges whiche I haue iugged in my harte to be happye, and the tenthe, will I tell forthe vnto men with my tonge. A man that while he ly ueth, hath ioye of his children/ād seith the fal of his enemyes.

Well is him that dwelleth with an hus wyfe of vnderstandynge, and ẏ hathe not fallen with his tong, and that hath not bene fayne to serue soch as are vn mete for him. Wel is him, that fyndeth a faythfull frende: & wel is him, whiche talketh of wisdome to an hert that hea reth hi. O how great is he ẏ fīdeth wis dō & knowledge? yet is he not aboue hī that feareth the Lord. The fear of god hath set it selfe aboue al thinges. Bles sed is the man, vnto whome it is grau ted to haue ẏ feare of god. Unto whom shal he be lyckened that kepeth it fast?
The feare of god is the beginyng of his loue, and the beginninge of fayth is to cleue fast vnto it. The heuines of ẏ hert is al the punishment, ād the wickednes of a woman goeth aboue al. Al punish ment and plage is no thing in compari C son of the plage of the herte, euen so al wyckednes is nothing to the wickednes of a woman.

Whatsoeuer happeneth vnto ā mā, is nothinge in comparison of it, that his euel willers do vnto hym. And all vengeance is no thynge to the vengean nce of the enemye. There is not a mo re wicked heade then the head of the serpe nt, and there is no wrath aboue the wr ath of a woman. I will rather dwell w a lyon and dragon, then to kepe house w a wicked wyfe. The wyckednesse of a woman chaungeth her face, she shall mosell her countenaunce as it were a bere, and as a sack shal she shewe it a mong the neghbours. Her husbande is brought to shame amonge his negh bours, ād whē he heareth it, it maketh him to syghe. All wyckednes is but lyt le to the wyckednes of a woman, ẏ por cyon of the vngodly shal fall vpon her. D Lyke as to clymme vp a sandy waye is to ẏ fete of the aged, euen so is a wyf full of wordes to a styll quiete man. Lo ke not to narowly vpon the bewtye of a woman, lest ẏ be prouoked in desyre toward her. The wrath of a woman is dishonoure and greate confusyon. If a woman get the maistrie, then is she con trary to her housbande. A wycked wyfe maketh a sory herte, an heuy countena unce and a deed wounde. Of the wom an came the beginning of synne, and thorow her we al are ded. Geue not wa ter no passage, no not a lytle, nether ge ue a wicked woman her wyll. If she wa lcke not after thy hande, she shall confo unde the in the syght of thy enemies.
Cut her of then from thy flesh, that she do not alwaye abuse the.

Eccle.xlii.
ii.Reg.x.f.

The prayse of a good womā. Of the fere of thre thinges & of the fourth. Of ẏ Jelouse & dronken womā. Of two thinges ẏ cause sorowe & of the third which moueth wrath. It is hard to fynde a marchaunt without dysceat, or a tauerner wythout synne in his tong.

The.xxvi. Chapter

Happye is the man that hathe a vertuous wife, for the nombre of his yeares shalbe dubble. An honest woman maketh her husband a ioyful man/and she shall fyl ẏ yeares of his lyfe in peace. A vertuous womā is a noble gift/which shalbe geuen for a good porcyon vnto such as fere god.
Whether a man be ryche or pore, he maye haue euer a mery hert, and a che reful countenaunce. There be thre thyn ges that my herte feareth/and my face is afrayde of the fourth. D

Treason

Treason in a citie, a sedicious people, and ne slonie tonges, al these are heuyer then the death. But when one is gelous ouer his wife, it bryngeth paine & sorowe vnto the harte: and a woman ÿ gelleth out al thinges, is a scourge of ÿ tong. When one hath an euel wife, it is eue as when a vnlyke pare of oxe must draw togither/he that getteth her, getteth a scorpion. A droncken woman is a great plage, for she can not couer her owne shame.

The whordom of an wman may be B knowen in the pride of her eyes and eie [illegible] liddes. If thy daughter be not shame fast, holde her straytly, lest she abuse her selfe thorow ouermoch libertie. Beware of al the dishonestie of her eyes, & maruel not if she do against the. Lyke as he that goth bi the waye and is thirstie, so [illegible] shal she open her mouth, and drincke of euery next water that she maye get. Bi euery hedge shal she set her downe, ad open her quiuer agaynst euery arowe.
A louing wyfe reioyseth her husband, and fedeth his bones with her wisdom.
A womã, of few wordes is a gift of god and to a well nourturede mynde maye nothing be compared.

An honest and manerly woman is a gift aboue other gyftes, and ther is no C weight to be compared, vnto a mynd that can rule it selfe. Lyke as the sunne when it ariseth, is an ornament in thee hye heauẽ of the Lord, so is a verteos wife the bewty of al her house. Like as the cleare lyght is vpon the holy cãdel [illegible] sticke, so is the beuty of the face vpõ ã honest body. Lik as the golden pylers are vpon the sockettes of siluer, so are thee fayre legges vpon a woman that hath a constant minde. Perpetual are ÿ foundacions that be layed vpon a whol stony rocke, so are the commaundemen tes of God vpon an holy woman.

There be two thiges that greue mi hert, and in the thirde is a displeasure D come vpon me. When an experte man of warre suffreth scarsnesse and pouertee. When me of vnderstã dinge and wisdome are not sette by: & when one departeth frome ryghteous nes vnto sinne.
Who so doth suche, the lorde hath prepared hym vnto the swerde. There bee two maner of thyngs, which me thinck to be herde and perilous. A marchaunt can not lyghtely kepe hym from wrong neyther a tauerner hym selfe from synne.

¶ Of the pore that wolde be riche, the godlines of the man that feareth god. The vnstedfastnes of a fole, the secretes of a frende are not to be vttred. The wycked imagineth euell which returneth vpon him self.

Loue thy frende, and bynde thy selfe in faythfulnes wyth hi, but if thou bewrayest his secrete, thou shalt not get him agayn: For lyke as the mā is that destroyeth hys enemye, so is he also that dealeth falselye in the frendeshippe of his neyghboure.

D Like as one that letteth a byrde go out of his hand, can not take her agayne: Euen so thou, if thou geue ouer thy frende, thou canst not get hym agayne: Yea thou canst not com by him, for he is to farre of. He is vnto the as a Roo escaped out of ŷ snare, for his soule is woūded: As for woūdes, they may be boūd vp agayne, and an euell worde may be reconciled: but who so bewrayeth the secretes of a frende, there is nomore hope to be had vnto hym.

Whē thou art presēt, hee shall hastely commende and prayse thy wordes: but at ŷ last he shall turne his tayle, and sclaunder thy sayng. Many thinges haue I hated, but nothyng so euell: for the Lord him selfe abhorreth such one.

E Exod.xxi.b. Who so casteth a ston on hye, it shal fall vpon hys owne heade: and he that smyteth with gyle, woundeth him self. Who so diggeth a pyt shal fal therin: & he that layeth a snare, shalbe taken in it hym selfe: who so geueth a wycked noysome councell, it shall come vpon him selfe/ and he shall not knowe from whēce. The. xxviii. Chapter.

A Deu.xxxii.e. Rom.xii.c. Mat.v.b.vi.b.xxii.d. He that seketh vengeaunce/ shal fynde vengeaunce of the Lorde/ whych shall surelye kepe hym hys synne. Forgeue thy neyghboure the hurt that he hath done thee, and so shal thy synnes be forgeuen the also/ when ŷ prayest. A man that beareth hatred one agaynst another, howe darre he desyre the forgeuenes of god? He that sheweth no mercy to a man whiche is lyke him selfe, how darre he aske forgeuenes of his synnes? If he that is but flesh, beareth hatred and kepeth it, who wyl intreate for hys sinnes? Remembre the end, and let enmite passe, which seketh deth and destruccion/ and abyde thou in ŷ commaundementes. Remembre the cōmaundement, so shalt thou not be rigorous ouer thy neyghboure. B Thynck vpon the couenaunt of the hiest, ād forgeue thy neyghboures ignoraunce.

Bewarre of strife, and thou shalte make thy sinnes fewer. For an angry mā kyndleth varyaunce and the vngodlye dysquyeteth frendes/ and putteth discorde amonge them that be at peace. The more wodd there is/ the more vehement is the fyre: and the mightier ŷ men be, the greater is the wrath: and ŷ longer the stryfe endureth/ the more yt burneth.

C An hasty brawlynge kyndleth a fyre, and an hasty stryfe shedeth blood. If thou blow the sparke: it shal burne: If thou spyt vpon it it shal go forth, & both these go out of thy mouthe. The sclaūderer and dubble tunged is cursed/ for many one that be frendes setteth he at variaunce. The thirde tong hath disquieted many one, and dryuē them from one lande to another. Stronge cyties hath it broken downe, and ouer thrawne the houses of greate mē. The thyrde tonge hath cast out many an honest woman, and robbed them of their laboure. ¶ Of ẏ correction of children. Of the commodite of health. Death is better thē a sorowful lyfe. Of hyd wysdom. Of the ioye and sorow of the hert.

The. xxx. Chapter.

A Prou. xiii. c and. xxiii. b

Who so loueth hys chylde, holdeth him still vnder correccion, that he maye haue ioye of him afterward/and ẏ he grope not after hys neyghbours dores. He that teacheth his sonne, shall haue ioye in him, and nede not to be ashamed of him amonge his aquauntauns.

Deut. vi. a

Who so enfourmeth & teacheth his sonne, greueth ẏ enemye: and before hys frendes he maye haue ioye of him. Though the father dye, yet is he as though he were not deed: for he hath left one behynde him that is lyke him. In his lyfe he sawe him, & had ioye in him, and was not sory in his death, nether was he ashamed before the enemyes. For he left behynd hym an auenger agaynste his enemyes, and a good doer vnto the frendes. For the lyfe of chyldren he shall bynde the woundes together, and his herte is greued at euery crye. An vntamed horse wilbe harde: and a wanton chylde wil be wylfull. If thou brynge vp thy sonne delicatli, he shall make the afrayed: and yf thou play with him, he shal bryng the to heuynes. Laugh not wt hi, lest thou wepe wt hym also, and lest thy teth be set on edge at the last.

B Geue him no lybertie in hys youth and excuse not hys foly. Bowe downe hys necke whyle he is younge, hyt him vpon the sydes whyle he is yet but a chylde, least he waxe stubberne/and geue no more force of thee and so shalt ẏ haue heuines of soule. Teach thi children, and be diligēt therin, lest it be to thy shame. Better is the poore beinge whole and strōge, then a man to be riche, and not to haue his health.

Health and welfare is aboue all golde, ād a hole bodi aboue al treasure. There is no riches aboue a sounde body, and no ioy aboue the ioie of ẏ hert. Deth is better then a wretched lyfe, or continual sicknes. The good thinges ẏ are put in a close mouth, are like as when meate is laide vpon the graue.

C What good doth the offering vnto ā Idol? For he cā nether eat, tast, ner smel. Euen so is he ẏ is chased of the Lorde, and beareth the rewardes of iniquitie. He seith with his eyes, and groneth lyke a gelded man, that lyeth wyth a vyrgin and syghenh. Geue not ouer thi minde into heuynes, and vexe not thy selfe in thine owne coūcel. The ioye and chearfulnes of the herte is the life of man, & a mans gladnes is the prolonginge of his dayes. Loue thyne owne soule, & cōforte thine harte: as for sorow and heuines, driue it farre frō the, for heuines hath slayne many a man, and bringeth no profit. Zele and anger shorte ẏ daies of the life: carfulnes and sorow bringe age before the tyme. Unto a mery herte euery thinge hath a goode tast, that he eateth. D

Where as such visions cõe not of God, set not thine herte vpõ thẽ: For dremes hath disceyued many a mã, & they fayled, ãd put their trust therin.

The lawe shalbe fulfilled without lyes, and wisdom is sufficiẽt to a faythfull mouth. A wyse man that is well instructe, vnderstandeth moch: and he that hath good experience, can talke in wysdome. He that hath no experience, knoweth lytle: and he that erreth, causeth moch vnclenes.

When I was yet in errour, I lerned moch also: yee I was so lerned, that I coulde not expresse it all, and came oft in parell of death therouer, tyll I was delyuered from it. Now I se, that they which feare god, haue the right sprete: for their hope stãdeth in him, that can helpe them. Who so feareth the Lorde, standeth in awe of no man, and is not afrayed, for the Lorde is his hope and comforte. Blessed is the soule of hym ÿ

The .xxxvi. Chapter

Haue mercy upon us, O lord A thou god of al thinges.
Haue respecte unto us/ shewe us the lyghte of thy mercyes/ and sende thy feare amonge the Heathen and straungers: which seke not after thee: that they maye knowe/ how that ther is no god but thou, and that they maye shew thy wonderous workes. Lyfte up thy hand ouer the outlandish Heathen, that they maie lerne to knowe thy mighte and power. Like as thou art hallowed in us before them, so bringe to passe, that thou maiest be magnified in them before us: that they may knowe the, like as we knowe the. For ther is none other God, but only thou/ O lord.
Renewe the tokens, and chaunge the wondrous workes. Shew thine hand and thy right arme gloriouslye. Rayse up thy indignacion, and powre out thi wrath. Take awaye the aduersary, and smyte the enemye. Make the time shorte, remembre thy couenaunte, that thy wonderous workes maye be prayse. Let the wrath of the fire consume them, that lyue so careles/ and let them perish that do thy people hurt. Smite in sonder the head of the Princes, that be oure enemies, and say: ther is none other but we.
Gather al the tribes of Iacob together D agayne, that they may know, how that there is none other god but only thou, that thei maie shew thy wonderous workes/ and be thy people and heritage, lyke as fro the begynnynge. O Lorde haue mercy upon vpon the people that hath thy name & vpon Israel/whō thou hast lykened to a fyrst borne sonne. O be mercifull vnto Jerusalem the cytie of thy Sanctuary/the cytie of thy rest. Fyll Syon wyth thy vnspeakable vertues/and thi people wyth thi glorie. Geue witnes vnto thy creature/whom thou madest from the beginninge, & raise vp the prophecies that haue bene shewed in thy name. Rewarde the that wayte for thee, that thy Prophetes maie be founde faithfull. O Lorde heare ỷ prayer of thi seruauntes, accordinge to the blessing of Aaron ouer thi people: that all thei which dwell vpon the earth, maie knowe, that thou art the Lorde the eternall God, which is from euerlastynge.

C The bely deuoureth al meates, yet is one meate better then another. Lyke as the tōge tasteth venyson, so doth an hert of vnderstandynge marcke false wordes. A frowarde hert geueth heuines but a man of experiēce lifteth hym vp agayne. The woman receaueth euery man, yet is one doughter better then another. A fayre wyfe reioyseth her husbād, and a man loueth nothyng better. If she be louynge and vertuous wyth all, then is not her husbande lyke other men. He that hath gotten a vertuous woman, hath a goodly possessyon: she is vnto hym an helpe & pyller, wherevpō he resteth. Wher no hedge is, there the goodes are spoyled: and where no houswyf is, there ỷ frendles mourneth. Lyke as there is no credence geuen to a robber, that goeth from one cytye to another: So is not the man beleued, ỷ hath no nest, & must turne in, where he maye abyde in the nyght.

How a man shulde knowe frendes and counsellers & to eschew the company of vngodly men.

The xxxvii. Chapter.

A Euery frende sayeth: I will be frendle vnto hym also. But there is some frende, which is only a frende in name. Remayneth ther not heuines vnto death, when a companyon and frend is turned to an enemye? O most wicked presumpcyon: From whence art thou sprōg vp to couer ỷ earth wt falsed & disceate? Ther is som cōpanyon which in prosperite reioyseth wyth hys frende: but in the tyme of trouble, he taketh the parte agaynst hym. There is some companyon, that mourneth wyth his frend for the bellyes sake: but when trouble cometh, he taketh holde of the shylde. Forget not thy frende in thy mynd/and thynke vpon hi in thy ryches. Euery counseler bryngeth forth hys counsell: Neuertheles there is some that counseleth but for hys own profyt. Beware of the counseler/and be aduised afore what to shewe wyll vse hym, for he wyll counsail for hym self: Lest he cast the lot vpon thee, and say vnto thee: Thy waye and purpose is good/ and afterward he stande agaynst thee/and loke what shall become of thee. B

Aske no councel at hym, that suspecteth thee for an enemye/and hyde thy councel from suche as hate thee. Aske no councell at a woman concerning ỷ thinges that she longeth for: nor at a fearefull and faynthatted body in maters of warre: or at a marchaunt/ how deare he wyl cheape thy wares, to warre hys: or at a byer, of sellynge: Or at an enuious mā, of thankesgeuing: Or at the vnmercyful/of louing kindnes Or at the slouthful, of workinge: Or at ā hyrelyng which hath no house, of profite or wealth. (An idle body wold not gladly here speake of muche laboure.) Take no such folkes to councel, but be dylygente to seke councell at a vertuous man that feareth god, such one as thou knowest to be a keper of the commaundementes, which hath a mind like thine owne mynde, & is sory for thee when thou stumblest.

And holde thy councel fast i thyne hert: for there is no man more faithful to kepe it, thē thou thy self. For a mās mynde is somtime more disposed to tel out, thē seuen watchmē ỷ sit aboue i ā hie place loking about thē. And aboue al this, praye the Hiest, ỷ he wyll leade thy waie to faithfulnes and truth. Before al thy workes aske cousel first: ād or euer thou doest any thing, be wel aduysed. Ther be foure thinges ỷ declare a chaunged hert, whereout there sprīgeth euel & good, death & lyfe, an vnmeasurable tonge ỷ bableth much. Som mā is apte & wel instruct i many thinges/ C and yet verye unprofytable unto hym selfe. Some man ther is, that can geue wyse and prudent counsel, and yet is he hated/and contineweth a begger: for that grace is not geuen him of god, to be accepted. An other is robbed of all wysdome, yet is he wyse unto hym selfe, and the frute of understandinge is faythful in hys mouth.

A wyse man maketh hys people wyse/and the frutes of hys wysdome fayl not. A wyse man shalbe plenteously blessed of God/ and all they that se hym, shal speake good of hym. The lyfe of man, standeth in the nombre of the dayes/but the dayes of Israel are innumerable. A wyse man shall optayne faythfulnes and credence amonge hys people/and hys name shalbe perpetuall. My sonne proue thy soule in thy lyfe, & yf thou seyst eny euell thynge/geue it not unto her. For al thynges are not profytable for all men, nether hath euery soule pleasure in euery thynge. C His wayes are playne and ryght vn to the iust, but the vngodly stomble at them. For the good, are good thinges created from the be gynnynge, and euel thinges for the vngodly. Al thinges ne cessary for the lyfe of man/are created from the begynnyng: water, fire, yron & salt, meel, wheate and hony, milke & wy ne, oyle & clothinge. All these thinges are created for the best to be faythfull: But to the vngodly shal all these thin ges be turned to the hurte and harme.
There be spretes that are created for vengeaunce, and in their rygorousnes haue they fastened their tormentes. In the tyme of yͤ ende they shall poure oute their strength, & pacyfye the wrath of him that made them. Fyre, hayle, hõger and death: all these thinges are created for vengeaunce.

The teeth of wylde noysome beast es, the scorpions, serpentes, and the sw F erde are created also for vengeaunce, to the destruccyon of the vngodly. They shall be glad to do his cõmaundemen tes: and when nede is, they shal be rea dy vpon earth: and when their houre is come, they shall not ouerpasse the com maundement of the Lorde.

Therfore haue I take a good cor-age vnto me from the begynnynge, and thought to put these thynges in wryti ng, & to leaue them behynde me. Al the workes of the Lorde are good, & he geueth euery one in due season, & whã ne de is, so that a mã nede not to say: thys is worse then that. For in due season th ey are all pleasãte and good: And ther fore prayse the Lorde wyth whole herte and mouth, and geue thankes vnto his name.

C Many miseries light in a mãs lyfe. Al thinges passe awaye, but a fyrme & stable faith remayneth.
Of the blessyng of the rightuous, & prerogatyue of the feare of God.

Gen.ix,b prayse him that made it: veri bewtifull is it in his shyne. He compaseth the hea uen aboue with his clearnes and glori, Thorow the cōmaundement he maketh iudgment to smyte hastily. Thorow his commaundement the treasures ar ope ned, and the cloudes flee as the foules.

In his power hath he strengthened ẏ teth it out like fyre. The medycine of al these is, when a cloude cōmeth hastely: and when a dew commeth vpon the hea te, it shalbe refreshed agayne.

In his worde he stilleth the wynde.
In his councell he setteth the depe, & ( ẏ Lorde) Jesus planted it. They that sayle ouer the see, tell of his perels and

The .xliiii. Chapter.

Let vs commend the noble faders. Many more glorious actes hath the lorde done, and shewed hys greate power euer sins the beginning. The noble famous mē rayned in theyr kingdomes, and bare excellent rule. In theyr wysdome ād vnderstanding/they folowed the counsel shewed in the prophecyes. They led the folcke thorow the counsell and wysdome of the scribes of the people. Wyse sentences are found in their B instruction. They soughte the swetenes and melody of Musick/& brought forth the pleasaunt songes in scripture They were rich also, and coulde comforte and pacify those that dwelt with them. Al these were very noble and honorable men in theyr generacio ns, and were well reported of in theyr tymes. These haue left a name behynde them so that theyr prayse shall alway be spoken of. Afterwarde there were some/ whose remembraunce is gone. They came to naught & perished, as though they had neuer bene: and becamme as though they had neuer bene borne, yea and theyr chylderen also wyth them.

C Neuertheles these are louyng men, whose rightuousnes shall neuer be forgotten, but continu by theyr posteritee Theyr chylderen are an holy good heritage: Theyr sede endureth fast in the couenaunt. For theyr sakes shall their chylderen and sede continue for euer, and theyre Prayse shall neuer be putt downe. Theyr bodies are buryed in peace, but theyr name lyueth for euermore. The people can speake of theyre wysdome, and the congregation can talke of theyr prayse. Enoch walked ryght and acceptably before the lord therfore was he translated for an exāple of amendemente to the generacyons. Noe was a stedfaste and rightuous man: and in the tyme of wrath he became a reconcylynge. Therfore was he left a remnaunt vnto the earth, whē the floudes came. An euerlasting couenaunte was made wythe hym, that al flesh shoulde perysh no more wyth the water. Abraham was a great father of

With Isaac dyd he stablish ÿ same couenaūt, for Abrahā his fathers sake. Yea that gracyous blessīg and health of al men/& couenaunt did he stablish with Isack, and made it to rest vpō ÿ head of Jacob. He knew him, in that he prospered him so wel and rychely, and gaue him an heretage, & sundered hys porcion by it self/and parted it amōg ÿ twelue tribes. cious stones, all bound wyth golde: ãd thys he brought in hys ministracion.
The stones wer fastened for a remem braunce, after the twelue tribes of Isra ted the first frutes unto him. Unto hi specially he appointed the bred of suste naunce (for ŷ Preestes did eat of ŷ offe-ringes of the lord) this gaue he unto hi & hys sede, Els had he no heretage nor porcyon i the land and wt the people.

For the Lord him selfe is his porcyon and enheritaunce.

F The third noble and excellent mã is Phinehes the Sonne of Eleazer/which pleased ŷ god of Israel, because he had the zele and feare of the Lorde.
For when the people were turned back he put him selfe forth ryght soone, ãd that wt a good wyl, to pacyfy ŷ wrath of the lord toward Israel. Therfore was there a couenaunt of peace made wt him/that he should be the pryncy-

Josue. x. c

B In the tyme of Moses also he and Caleb the sonne of Jephune, did a good worcke, which stode agaynst the enemies, withheld the people from synne, and stilled the wicked murmuringe. And of sixe hundreth .M. people of foote, they two wer preserued, whē they were broughte into the heretage, namelye a lād ÿ floweth wt milk & hony. The lord geueth strength also vnto Caleb which remayneth with him vnto his age: so that he went vp into the hye places of the lande, and hys sede conquered the same for an heritage: ÿ al the childerē of Israel myght se/how good a thīge it is, to be obedient vnto the lord. And the iudges or rulers (euerye one after his name) whose hert went not a whoryng, nor departed from the lorde, and that forsake not the lord vnfaithfulli, whose remembraunce hath a good reporte: Yea their bones florish oute of their place, and their name shal neuer be chaunged. Josu. xiiii.

C Samuel the prophet beloued of the lorde, ordeyned a king/and deputed the princes ouer the people. In ÿ lawe of the lorde ruled he, and iudged ÿ cōgregatiō, ād the lord had respect vnto Jacob. The prophet was found dylygent in his faithfulnes/yea i his faithfulnes was the faithfulnes of the vysion knowne. He called vpon the lord the myghty, when the enemies presed vpō hi on euery syde/what tyme as he offred the suckig lābes. And the lorde thōdred frō heuē, & made his voyce to be herd wt a grete noise. He discōforted ÿ prīces of Tire, al ÿ rulers of ÿ philistines. Before his laste ende he made protestaciō i ÿ sight of ÿ lord, & hys anoited, ÿ he toke nother substaūce nor good of any mā/no not so muche as a shue: ād no mā might accuse hi. After this he slepte/ÿ his ende was at hādt, & shewed ÿ kige also his ende ād death: & frō ÿ erth lift he vp his voice i ÿ prophecy, ÿ ÿ vngodly people shuld perish 1. Reg. xii. a.

The prayse of Nathan, Dauid, and Salomon.

A The. xlvii. Chapter.

A Fterward in the time of kinge Dauid, there rose vp a prophet called Nathā: For lyke as ÿ fat is taken awaye frō the offering/so was Dauid chosen out of the children of Israel. He toke his pastyme with the lions and with kyddes and with beres like as with lambes. Slew he not a giaunte when he was yet but younge, and toke away the rebuke from his people: what time as he toke the stone in his hāde, and smot downe proude goliath wt the slinge? For he called vpō the hieste Lorde, which gaue him strength in his right hand, so that he ouerthrew ÿ mygtie gyaunt in the battel that he myghte set vp the horne of his people agayne. 2. Reg. xii. a. 1. Reg. xvii. f

B Thus brought he him to worshyppe aboue all princes and made him to haue a good reporte in the prayse of the Lorde that he shulde weare a crowne of glory For he destroyed the enemies on euery side rooted out the Philistines his aduersaries, and brake their horne in sunder like as it is broken yet this daye. In al his worckes, he praysed the hyest and holiest, and alwayd the honour vnto him. With his whole hert did he prais and loue him that made him He set singers also before the alter, & in their tune he made swete songes. He ordened to kepe the holy dayes worshipfully, and that the solempne feastes thorowe the whole yeare should be honorably holden, wt praysing the name of the lorde and with his synging by tymes in the morning in the Sanctuary. 1. Re. xviii. II Reg. v. a.

The Lord toke awaye his synnes, & exalted his horne for euer. He gaue hi the couenaunt of the kingdom/ād the trone of worship in Israel. After hym there rose vp a wyse sonne called Salomon/and for his sake he droue the enemies awaie farre of. This Salomō reigned wt peace in hys tyme (for god gaue him rest from hys enemyes on euery syde, that he myghte buylde hym a howse in hys name/and prepare the Sanctuary for euer) lyke as he was well instructe in hys youthe and fylled wt wysdome and vnderstandynge, as it were with a water floude. He couered and fylled the whole Lande wyth symylytudes and wyse prudent sentences. 1. Par. xvii

Eliah was couered in the storme, but B Helyseus was fylled wt his mouth.
Whyle he lyued he was afrayed of no prynce, and no man myght ouer come hym. Ther could no word disceaue hi, & after his death his body prophecied. He did wounders in his lyfe and in deathe were his workes marueilous. For all this, the people amended not nether de

Of Josiah, Ezechiah, dauid, Jeremy, Ezechiel, zorobabel, Jesus, Nehemiah, Enoch and Joseph.

The .xlix. Chapter.

A iiii. Re. xxii. & xxiii. ii. Par. xxxiiii.

The remembraunce of Josiah is like as whan the Apotecari maketh many precious swete smellinge thinges togyther. Hys remembraunce shalbe swete as hony in all mouthes, and as the playenge of Musyck by the wine. He was appoynted to turne the people agayne, and to take awaye all abhominacyons of the vngodly. He dyrected his hert vnto the Lorde, and in the tyme of the vngodly he sett vp the worshyp of God agayne. All kynges (except Dauid, Ezekiah and Josiah) committed wyckednes: for euen the kynges of Juda also forsoke ye lawe of God. For they gaue their horne vnto other, their honoure and worship also to a straunge people.

Therfore was the electe cytie of the Sanctuary brent with fyre, and the streetes therof laide desolate and waste: for they intreated Jeremi euel, which neuertheles was a Prophete ordeined from his mothers womb, that he might rote oute, breake of, and destroie: and that he might builde vp, and plante againe. Ezechiell sawe the glori of the Lorde in a vision which was shewed him vpon the

C charett of the Cherubins. For he thought vpon the enemies in the raine, to do good vnto soch as had ordred their waies a right. And the bones of the twelue prophetes florishe from out of their place: for thei gaue comforte and consolation vnto Jacob and delyuered them faithfully. How shal we praise Zorobabel, which was as a king in ye right hande? So was Jesus also the sonne of Josedec: these men in their times buildid the house and set vp the Sanctuarye of ye Lorde againe, whiche was prepared for an euerlasting worship.

D Gene. v. f. ecclesi. xliiii. hebr. xi. a

And Neemiah is all waye to be commended, which set vp for vs the walles that were broken downe, made the portes and barres agayne, and bylded our houses of the new. But vpon earth is there no man created lyke Enoch, for he was taken vp from the earth. And Joseph, which was lorde of his brethren, and the vpholder of his people: his bones were couered and kept. Seth and Sem were in greate honoure amonge the people: and so was Adam aboue al the beastes when he was created.

Of Simon the sonne of Oniah.

The .l. Chapter.

A ii. mach. iii. a

Symon the sonne of Onyah the hie prest, whiche in his lyfe set vp the house agayne, and in hys dayes made fast the temple. The heyght of the temple also was founded of him, the double bylding, and the hye walles of the temple. In his dayes the welles of water flowed out, and were exceadinge ful of the sea. He toke care for his people, and delyuered the from destruction. He kept his cytie ad made it stronge, that it shoulde not be besieged. He dwelt in honoure and worship emong his people, and enlarged ye intraunce of the house, and the court. He geueth light as the mornig star in the myddest of the cloudes, and as the moone when it is full. He shyneth as the sonne in the temple of god. He is as bright as the rayne bow in the fayre cloudes, and florissheth as ye floures and roses in the spring of ye yere, and as the lylies by the riuers of water. Like as the braunches vpon the mount Libanus in the tyme of Sommer: as a fyre and incence that is kyndeled: Lyke as an whole ornamente of pure gold, set wt al maner of precyous stones: as an olyue tree that is frutful, and as a Cypres tre which groweth vp on hie.

When he put on the garmet of honoure, and was clothed with all bewtye: when he wente to the holye aulter to garnish the couerynge of the Sanctuary: when he toke the porcyons out of the prestes hand, he hi self stode bi the harth of the aulter, and his brethren round about in order. As ye braunches of cedre tre vpo the mout of libanus, so stode they rounde about hi. And as the braunches of ye olyue tre so stode al the sonnes of Aaron in their glory. And ye he might B

Then began the sonnes of Aaron to synge and to blowe wyth trompets, 6 and to make greate noyse / for a remembraunce and prayse vnto the lorde, Then were the people afrayed and fel downe to the earth vppon theyr faces, to worship the lord theyr God, and to geue thanckes to the almyghtie God. They song goodly also with theyr voyces, so there was a pleasaũt noyse in ẏ greate house of the lorde. And the people in theyr prayer besought the lorde the hyest, that he wolde bee mercyfull, tyll the honoure of the lorde were perfourmed. Thus ended theyr mynistraciõ and seruice. Then wente he downe and stretched out his handes ouer the whole multitude of the People of Israel, ãd that they shoulde geue prayse and thãkes out of theyre lyppes vnto the lorde and to reioyce in hys name. He begane yet ones also to praye that he myght openlye shewe the thankesgeuinge before the hyest, namely thus: O geue prayse and thanckes (yea all) vnto the lord our god which hath euer done noble & greate thynges, which hath encreased oure dayes from our mothers wombe and dealte wyth vs accordinge to hys mercye: That he wyll geue vs the ioyfulnes of hert, & peace for oure time in Israell, which faythfullye kepethe hym reyfor vs euermore, and alway delyuereth vs in due season.

There be two maner of people that I abhorre fro my hert: as for the third whom I hate / it is no people: They ẏ syt vpon the mountayne of Samaria, the philistines, and the folysh People / that dwell in Sichimie.

I Jesus the sonne of Sirach Eleazarus of Jerusalem haue tokened vp these informacions and documentes of wisdomme and Understandinge in thys boke, & poured out ẏ wysdõ of my hert. Blessed is he ẏ exercyseth hi selfe herin, & who so taketh such to hert shalbe wyse. Yf he do these thinges, he shal be strong in al, for the lyght of the Lorde ledeth hi

The prayer of Jesus the sonne of Sirach.

The .li. Chapter.

I Thanke the / O Lord and king, & prayse the, O god my sauioure. I wyll yelde prayse vnto thy name: fore thou art my defender and A helper, and hast preserued my body frõ destrucciõ, from the snare of traitous tonges, and from the lippes that are occupyed wyth lyes. Thou hast bene my helper from such as stode vp agaynste me / ãd hast delyuered me after the multitude of thy mercye, and for thy holye names sake. Thou hast delyuered me from the roaringe of them that prepare them selues to deuoure me, out of ẏ handes of such as sought after my soule: From the multitude of them that troubled me, ãd went about to set fyre vpõ me on euery syde, so that I ã not brent in the myddest of the fyre.

Fromme the deappe of hell: from an vncleanne tounge: fromme lyenge wordes, from the wycked tonge, & frõ an vnrightuous tounge. My Soule shall prayse the Lord vnto deathe / for my lyfe drewe nye vnto hell.
They cõpassed me round aboute frõ euery syde, and ther was no man to helpe me. I loked about me, if there were any man ẏ would succour me: but ther was non. Thẽ sought I vpõ thy mercy O Lord and vpon the actes ẏ ẏ hast dõ euer of old namly, that ẏ delyuerest such as put theyr trust in thee and ryddeste them out of the handes of the heathen. Thus lyft I vp my prayer from ẏ earthe, and prayed for delyueraunce frõ death. I called vpon ẏ lord my father ẏ he would not leaue me without help in the daye of my trouble & in the time of the proude. I praysed thy name cõtynually, yeldinge honoure and thankes vnto it: ãd so my prayer was herd. Thou sauedst me from destruccion, & delyueredst me from the vnrighteous time. Therfor will I knouledg & prayse ẏ, & magnifye ẏ name of the lorde. whã I was yet but yõg, or euer I went astraie, I desired wisdõ openly in my prayer. & cam therfore before ẏ tẽple, & sought her vnto ẏ last. for the wickednes of the house of Isra el and the house of Juda. O Lorde our God, thou hast intreated vs after al thi goodnes and according to al that great louinge mercie of thine, like as thou spa kest by thy seruaunt Moses, i the daie whan thou dydest commaunde hym, to wryte thy lawe before the chyldren of Deut. xxviii. d Israell saiynge.

F Yf ye wyll not herken vnto my voyce, then shall thys great multitude be tur ned into a very smal people, for I will scater them abroade. Notwithstandinge I am sure / ỳ thys folck wyll not heare me: for it is an hardnecked people. But in the land of theyr captiuitie, they shal remembre them selues and learne to knowe / that I am the lorde theyr god when I geue the an hert to vnderstād & eares to heare. Then shal they prayse me, in the lande of theyr captiuitie, ād thincke vpon my name. Then shall they turne them from theyr hard backes, and from theyr vngodlynes: Thē shall they remembre the thynges that happened vnto their forefathers: which sinned against me. So wil I bringe them againe into the land, which I pro mised wt an oth vnto their fathers: Abra ham, Isac, and Jacob and they shalbe lordes of it, yea, I wyll encrease them / & not minissh them. And I wyll make an other couenaunt wyth them: suche one as shall indure for euer: namely, ỳ I wylbe their god, and they shalbe my people: and I wyll nomore dryue my people / the chyldren of Israell, out of the lande that I haue geuen them.

¶ The people continueth in their prayer begonne, for their deliueraunce. He prayseth wisdom vnto the people, shewyng ỳ so grete aduersitye came vnto thee for the despysing thereof. Only god was the finder of wisdome. Of the incarnacyon of Christ.

The iii. Chapter.

A And now O Lorde almigh tie / thou God of Israell: our soul that is in troble, and our spirite that is vex ed cryeth vnto thee: heare vs (O Lord) and haue pytie vpon vs, for thou arte a mercyfull god / be gra cious vnto vs for we haue synned before thee, thou enduresst for euer / shold we then vtterly perysshe O Lorde al-myghtie, thou God of Israell, heare now the prayer of the dead Israelytes and of theyr chyldren which haue sinned before thee and not harkened vn to the voyce of the lord theyr God, for the whyche cause / these plages hange now vpon vs. O lord remembre not the wickednesse of oure forefathers / but thynke vpon thy power ād name now at this tyme: for thou art the Lord our God, and then (O Lorde) wyl we prayse For thou hast put thy feare in our her-us, to the intent that we shoulde cal vp on thy name, and prayse thee in oure captyuytee: and that we myght turne from the wickednes of our forefathers that synned before thee.

B Beholde, we are yet this daye in our captyuytee, wher as thou hast scatered vs, to be an abhominacion, curse, and synne: lyke as yt hath happened vnto our fathers also, because of al ther wic kednes and departynge from thee.

O Israel, heare the com aundementes of lyfe: ponder them wel wt thyne eares y thou mayst learne wysdō. But howe happeneth it Israel, y thou arte in thyne e nemyes lande? y arte waxen olde in a straunge countre, & defyled wt y dead.
Why art thou become lyke them, that go downe to theyr graues? Euen be cause thou hast forsaken the wel of wis dō. For if thou haddest walked in the way of god, truely thou shuldeste haue re mayned styl safe in thine owne lande.

C O learne then where discretion is, where vertu is/wher vnderstandinge is, y thou mayest knowe also frō whence cometh longe lyfe, a necessary lyuinge the lyght of the eyes & quietnes, who euer founde out hir place? or who cāe euer into her treasures.

Where are the prynces of the hea then become and suche as ruled the be stes vpon the earth? They y had theyr pastyme with the foules of the ayr, they y hoorded vp siluer & golde (wherin mē trust so moche) & made no ende of their gatheringe? What in worth of thē y coy ned syluer, and were so carefull, & could not bringe theyr workes to passe? They be roted out, & gon downe to hel, other mē are cō vp in theyr stede: yōg mē haue sene light, & dwelt vpon erth: but y way of reformaciō haue they not knowe nor vnderstād y pathes therof: nether haue their children receaued it, yea right far is it from them. It hath not bene her de of in the lande of Canaan, nether hath it bene sene at Theman.

D The Agarenes sought after wys dom, but that which is erthly, like as y merchauntes of the lande do. They of Theman are counynge also, and they labour for wysdome and vnderstand ing: but y way of true wysdō they knowe not, nether do they thinke vpō y pathes therof. O Israel, how greate is y house of God? and how large is the place of hys possession? Greate is he, and hath non ende: high & vnmesurable. What is become of those famouse giauntes, y we re so great of bodies, and so worthy mē of warre? Those had not y Lord chosen neither haue they founde the waye of reformacyon, therfore were they destro yed: and for so moch as they had no wysdome, they perished because of their foolishnesse.

E Who hath gone vp in to heauen, to take wysdome there, and brought her downe frō the cloudes? Who hath gone ouer the see to finde her, and hath chosē her aboue golde, and so brought her hyther? No man knoweth the wayes of wysdome, nether is there eny that can seke out her pathes. But he that knoweth al thynges, knoweth her, and he hath founde her out with his fore knowledge. This same is he which pre pared the earth at the begynnyng, and fylled it with all maner of foules and beastes. When he sendeth out y light, it goeth: and when he calleth it agayne, it obeyeth him wt feare. The starres kepe their watch, and geue their lyght, yee and that gladly. When he calleth them, they saye: here we be. And so wt chearfulnes they shewe lyght vnto him that made them. This is oure God, & there shall none other be compared vn to hym: It is he, that hath found oute all wysdome, and hath geuin her vnto Jacob his seruaunt, and to Israel his be loued. Afterward dyd he shewe him selfe vpon earth, and dwelt amonge men.

The rewarde of them that kepe the lawe, the punish ment of them that despyse it. A comfortinge of y peo ple beyng in captiuitee. A complaynt of Jerusalem vnder the fygure wherof, of the church. A consolaciō and comfortynge of the same.

The .iiii. Chapter.

This is the boke of the com maundementes of God, & A the lawe that endureth for euer. All they that kepe yt shall come to lyfe: but soch as forsake it, shal come to deth. Turne thee (O Jacob) and take holde of it: walke by this waye, thorow his bright nesse and shyne.

geue

Geue not thine honoure to another/ and thy worship to a straunge people. O Israel, how happy are we, seynge ÿ God hath shewed vs such thinges as are pleasaunt vnto hi. Be of good cheare, thou people of god, O thou auncient Israel. Now are ye solde amonge the Heathen/ howbe it, not for youre vtter destruccyon: but because ye prouoked god the Lord to wrath and displesure, therfore were ye delyuerd vnto youre enemies: for ye displesed the euerlastig god that made you, offeringe vnto deuels ãd not to god. Ye haue forgotten him that brought you vp/ & youre nurse haue ye greued/ O Jerusalem.

Psal.cxxxvi.b

B When she sawe that the wrathe of god was comming vppon you: she sayde: harken, O ye that dwell aboute Sion/ for god hath broughte me into greate heuynes: and why? I se the captiuyte of my people/ of my sonnes and daughters, which the euerlasting god wyl bringe vpon them. Wyth ioye do I norish them, but now muste I leaue them with weppynge and sorow.

Let no man reioyce ouer me wydowe and forsaken: which for my chyldren am desolate of euery man. For why? they departed from the lawe of God: they wolde not knowe his rightuousnes, nor walke in the waie of hys commaundmentes: and as for the pathes of the treuthe and godlynes, they had no lust to go in them.

O ye dwellers aboute Sion: com, C and let vs cal to remembraunce ÿ captyuite, that the euerlasting God hathe brought vppon my sonnes and daughters. He hath brought a people, vpon Deu.xxviii.e / Jerem.v.c. them from farre, an vncurteous peple of a straunge language: which nether regard the olde, nor pytie the yong.

These haue caried awaye ÿ deare beloued of my widdowes/ leauing me alone/ both desolate and childlesse. But alas, what can I help you? Now he that hath brought these plages vpon you, delyuer you also from the handes of youre enemies.

Go youre waye (O my children) go youre way: for I am desolate and forsaken, I haue put on the clothig of pece, Bar.iiii.e, [illegible] and put vpõ me ÿ sack cloth of prayer/ & for my time I will cal vpõ ÿ most hiest.

Be of good cheare, O my chyldren/ cry vnto the lorde, and he shal delyuer you, from the power of the prynces your enemyes.

For verely, I haue euer a good hope of your prosperous helth: ye a very gladnes is come vpon me, from the holy one, because of the mercy that ye shal haue of oure euerlastynge sauiour.

Wyth mourning and wepyng dyd
I let you go from me, but wyth ioye and D perpetuall gladnes, shal the Lord bringe you agayne vnto me. Lyke as the neyghboures of Sion sawe your captiuite from god. Euen so shall they also se shortely your health in God/ why che shall come on you, with greate honour and euerlasting worshyp.

O my chyldren, suffre paciently the wrath that shall come vpon you. For ÿ enemye hath persecuted the/ but shortely thou shalt se hys destruccion, & shalt treade vpon hys necke. My derlinges haue gone rough hard wayes, for they are led away as a flocke that is scattered abroade from the enemyes. But be of good comforte (O my chyldren) and crye vnto the Lorde: For he that E led you awaye, hath you yet in remembraunce: and lyke as ye haue bene minded to swarue from youre god, so shall Ch.. ye now endeuoure your selues ten tymes more, to turne agayne, and to seke him. For he that hath broght these plages vpon you, shall bryng you euerlasting ioye agayne, wyth youre health.
Take a good herte vnto thee. O Jeru Jere.. salem: for he which gaue thee that na me, exhorteth the so to do.

The wicked doers that now put the to trouble, shall perysshe: and such as haue reioyced at thy fall, shalbe punisshed. The cities whome thy chylderen serue, and that haue caryed awaye thy sonnes/ shalbe correct. For lyke as they be now glad of thy decaye, so shal they mourne in theyr owne destruction. The ioye of theyr multitude, shalbe taken away, and theyr cheare shalbe turned to sorowe. For a fyre shall fal vpon them from the euerlastinge god/ longe to endure: and it shalbe inhabyted of deuelles for a greate season.

Jerusalem

¶ Jerusalem is moued vnto gladnes for the restoringe of her people, and vnder the fygure therof, the church.

The .v. Chapter

A O Jerusalem/loke aboute toward the east, and behol de the ioye that commeth vnto the from god. For lo, thy sonnes (whome thou hast forsaken/and that were scattered abrode) come gathered together from the east and west, reioicing in the word of the holye one / vnto the honoure of God.

Put of thy mourninge clothes (O Jerusalem) and thy sorowe, and decke thee wyth the worshyppe and honoure that commeth vnto thee from god, in euerlasting glory. God shal put the clo ake of righteousnes vpon the, and sett a crowne of euerlasting worship vpon thyne heade: for vpon the wyll god declare hys bryghtenes, that is vnder the heauen: Yea an euerlastinge name shall be geuen thee of god/wyth peace of righteousnes / and the honoure of Goddes feare.

B Aryse O Jerusalem. stande vp on hye/loke aboute thee towarde the easte and beholde thy chyldren gathered fro the east, vnto the west, which reioyce in the holy worde, hauing god in remem braunce. They departed from thee on fote/and were led awaye of theyr enne-myes, but now shall the lorde bring the caryed wyth honoure, as chyldren of the kyngdome. For God is purposed to bryng downe al stoute mountayns, yea and all hye rockes / to fyll the valleyes, and so to make them euen with the grounde/that Israell maye be dily gent to lyue vnto the honoure of God.
The woddes and all pleasaunt trees, shal ouershadowe Israell at the com-maundemente of God. For hether shal God bryng Israel wyth ioyfull mirth and in the lyght of hys magesty, wyth the mercy and righteousnes, that com meth of hym selfe.

¶ A copy of the epistle that Jeremy sent vnto the Jewes, which were led awaye prisoners by the kynge of Babylon: wherein he certifieth them of the thing that was commaunded him of God.

¶ The .vi. Chapter

Because of the synnes that ye haue done agaynst God A ye shal be led awaie captiue Jere. xxv, [illegible] vnto Babylon, euen of Na buchodonosor the kinge of Babylon. So whan ye be come in to Babilon, ye shall remayne there many yeares, and for a longe season: namely .vii. generacyons: and after that wyll I bringe you awaie peaceably from thence.
Now shal ye se in Babylon, goddes of golde, of siluer, of wod & of stone: borne vpon mens shoulders, to cast out a fear fulnes before the Heathen. But loke that ye do not as the other: be not ye afraid, B and lett not the feare of them ouercome you.

Therfor whan ye se the multitude of people, worshipinge them behinde & be fore, saye ye in youre hertes: O Lord, it is thou, that oughtest onlye to be worship ped. Mine Angel also shal be with you, and I my selfe wil care for youre soules. Deut. vi [illegible] As for the tymbre of those goddes, the carpenter hath polyshed them: yee gilted be thei, and layed ouer wyth siluer, yet are they but vaine thinges, and can not speke. Like as a wench that loueth paramours is trimly decke, euen so are these made and hanged with golde. Crow nes of gold verely haue their goddes vpon their heades: so the prestes them selues take the golde and syluer from them, and put it to their owne vses: yee they geue of the same vnto harlottes, & trymme their whores withall: agayne, they take it from the whores, and decke their goddes ther with. Yet can not the se Goddes delyuer theym selues from ruste and mothes. When they haue co Jere. x. uered them with clothing of purple, they C wipe their faces for the dust of the tem ple, wherof ther is moch amonge them.
One hath a sceptre in his hand, as though he were iudge of the countre: yet can he not slaie soch as offende him. An other hath a swearde or an axe in his han de, for all that, is he nether able to de fende him selfe from battayll, ner from murtherers.
By this ye maye vnderstande, that thei be no goddes: therfore se that ye nether worshipe them/ner feare them.

For lyke as a vessel that a man vseth, is nothing worth when it is broke, eue so is it wyth theyr goddes. When they be set vp in the teple, their eyes be full of dust thorowe the fete of those that com in. And lyke as the dores are shut in rounde about vpon him, that hathe offended the kynge: Or as it were a deed body kepte beside the graue: Eue so the prestes kepe the dores wyth barres and lockes, lest their goddes be spoiled with robbers. They set vp candels before them (yea verely and that manye) wherof they can not se one, but euen as blockes, so stande they in the temple. It is sayde, that the serpentes and wormes which com of the earth, gnaw out their hertes, eatyng theym and their clothes also, and yet they fele it not. Their faces are black thorow the smoke that is in the temple. The owles, swalowes, and byrdes fly vpon them, yea and the cattes runne ouer their heades.

D By this ye maye be sure, that they are not goddes, therfore feare them not The golde that they haue, is to make the bewtiful: for al that, except some bodye wyghte of their ruste, they will geue no shine: and when they were caste into a fourme, they felt it not: they are bought for money, and haue no breth of life wyth in them. They must be born vpon mennes shulders, as those that haue no fete wherby they declare vnto me, that they be nothing worth. Confounded be they then, that worship them. For if they fal to the grounde, they can not rise vp agayne of them selues.

Yea though one heape theim vp and set them vpryghte, yet are thei not able to stande alone: But muste haue proppes set vnder them like deed men

As for the thinges that is offered vnto them, their prystes sel it, and abuse it: Yea the Prestes wyues take therof, but of it the women with childe and the menstruous laie handes of they offringes. By this ye maie be sure, that they are no Goddes, therfore be not ye afrayde of theim. From whence commeth it then, that they be called goddes? The Wemen syt before the Goddes of syluer, golde, and wodde, and the Prestes syt in their teples, hauing open clothes, whose hedes and berdes are shauen, and haue nothing vpo their heades: roaringe and cryinge vpo their goddes, as menne do at the feast, when one is deed. E

The prestes also take awaie the garmentes of ye images, & clothe their wyues & children withall. Whether it be good or euel that any man doth vnto theim, they are not able to recompence it: they can neyther sette vp a kynge nor putt hym downe. In lyke maner they maie neyther geue ryches, nor reward euill.

Thoughe a man make a vowe vnto Eccles.4 them and kepe it not, they wyll not require it. They can not restore a blind man to his syghte, nor helpe any man at hys nede. They can shewe no mercye to the wyddowe, nor do good to the fatherles. Their goddes of wodde/ stone, gold, & syluer, ar but eue as other stones that be hewen of the mountaine. They that worshippe theim, shalbe confounded. How shoulde they then be taken for goddes? yea how dare men cal them goddes?

And though the Caldees worshipped them not, hearinge that they were but domme and coulde not speake. Yet thei them selues offre vnto Bell, and wolde fayne haue made hym to speke, as who saye, they coulde fele, that maye not moue. But whan these men come to vnderstandinge, they shall forsake theym: for theyr goddes haue no felyng. A greate sort of women, gyrde with coardes, syt in the streetes, and burne olyue beryes.

Now if one of them be conueyed away, and lye with anye suche as commeth by: then casteth she her Neighbouresse in the tethe, because she was not so worthe lye reputed, nor her corde broken.

Whatsoeuer is done for them, it is but in vayne, and losse, howe maye it then be thought or sayde that they are goddes? Carpenters and goldesmythes F make them, neither be they anye other thynge, but euen what the worke men wyll make of them. Yea the goldesmythes them selues that make them, are of no longe continuaunce.

How

How shulde then ẏ thinges ẏ are made of thē, be goddes? Whe therfore are the thynges ye verý shame is it ẏ thei leaue behinde them for their posteritie.
For as soone as there cōmeth eniye warre or plage vpon them, then the prestes ymagyn, where they maye hide them sel= ues with thē. How oft men thynk then ẏ they be goddes/ which nether maye de= fend them selues from warre, ner deliuer them fro mysfortune: For seyng they be but of wod, of stone, of syluer and of gol de: all people and kynges shall knowe hereafter, ẏ they be but deceauinge: & ye it shalbe openly declared, that they be no goddes: but euen the very workes of mens handes/ and that God hathe noo thing to do wyth them. They can set no kynge in the lande ner, geue rayne vnto men, They cā geue no sentēce of a mat= ter, nether defende the lande from won ge: For they are not able to do so moch as a crowe/ that flyeth betwixte heauen and earth.

F When there happeneth a fyre into ẏ house of those goddes of wodde, of sil= uer and of golde, the prestes wyl escape and saue them selues, but the goddes burne as ẏ balkes therin They can not wythstande eny kynge or batel: how ma ye it then be thought or graūted, ẏ thei be goddes? Moreouer, these goddes of wodde, of stone, of gold and syluer, ma ye nether defend them selues from the= ues ner robbers: yee ẏ very wicked are stronger then they. These stripe them out of their apparell, ẏ thei be clothed whal, these take their gold & siluer from them, and so get thē awaie: yet can thei not helpe them selues. Therfore it is moch better for a man, to be a kyng and to so shewe his power: or els a profita= ble vessel in a house, wherin he that ow eth it, might haue pleasure: yee or to be a dore in a house, to kepe soch thinges safe as be therin, then to be soch a vain god. The Sunne, the Mone and all ẏ starres whan thei geue their shine and lyght, are obedient, & do vs good: whā the lighteninge glistereth. all is cleare, the wind bloweth i euery countre & whā God cōmaundeth the cloudes to go round about the whole worlde they do as thei are bydden: whā the fyre is set down frō aboue & cōmanded, it burneth vp hylles and woddes: But as for those goddes they are not lyke one of these thinges, nether in bewtye nor in strength. Wher= fore men shoulde not thincke, nor saye, that they be goddes, seing they can ne= ther geue sentence in iudgement, ner do men good. For so much as now ye are sure that they be no goddes then fea= re them not: For they can nether speake euell nor good of kynges. They can G shewe no tokens in heauen for the hey= then, nether shyne as the sunne/ nor ge ue lyght as the moone: yea the vnreson able beastes are better then they, for they can get them vnder the rofe, and do them selues good. So can ye be certifi ed by no maner of meanes: therfore fea re them not, For lyke as a fraye bog= garde in a garden of Cocūbers kepeth nothinge, euen so are their Goddes of wood, of syluer and gold: and lyke as a whyte thorne in an orcharde, that euerye byrde sytteth vpon, ye lyke as a dead bo dy that is cast in the darcke. Euen so is it wyth those goddes of wodde, syluer and golde. By the purple and scarlette which they haue vppon them, and sone fadeth awaye, ye maye vnderstand, that they be no goddes: ye they them selues shal be consumed at the last, whyche shalbe a greate confusion of the lande. Blessed is the godlye man, that hath no ymma= ges, and worshyp= peth none,
for he shal be farre from reprofe.

The ende of the prophet Baruch, which is not in the Canon of the [illegible].

¶ The songe of the thre children, which were put into the hote burning ouen. The commen translacion readeth this songe in the .iii. Chap. of Daniel.

And they walked in the myddest of the flamme, praisinge God and magnifienge the Lord. Asariah stode vp, and prayde on this maner. And in the myddest of the fyre opened he his mouth, and saide: Blessed be thou (O Lorde God of our fathers) ryght worthy to be prayseD and honoured is that name of thyne for euermore: for thou art righteous in all the thynges that thou hast done to vs: Yea faithful are all thy workes / thy waies are ryght, and thy iudgementes true. In all the thynges that thou hast brought vpon vs, and vpon the holy cytie of our fathers (euen Jerusalem) thou hast executed true iudgementes: yea accordinge to right and equite hast thou brought these thynges vpon vs, because of our synnes.

Daniel. ix. c. For why? we haue offended, and done wickedly, departing from thee: In al thynges haue we trespassed, and not obeyed thy commaundementes, nor kept them, nether done as thou hast bydden

Baruch. ii. b. vs, that we might prospere. Wherfore all that thou hast done to vs, thou hast done them in true iudgement: as in deliuering vs into the handes of oure enemyes amonge vngodlye, and wicked abhominacions, and to an vnrighteous kinge, yee the most froward vpon earth. And now we may not ope our mouthes, we are become a shame and reprofe vnto thy seruauntes, and to them that worshippe thee. Yet for thy names sake (we

Isa. lxiii. b. beseche the) geue vs not vp for euer, breake not thy couenaunt, and take not awaye thy mercy from vs, for thy beloued Abrahams sake, for thy seruauntes Isaacs sake, and for thy holye Israels sake: to

Gene. xv. a. xxii. c. xxvi. a. Deute. x. b. whom thou hast spoken and promysed that thou wouldest multiplye theyre sede as the starres of heauen, and as the sande that lyeth vpon the see shore.

For we (O Lord) are become lesse then any people, and be kept vnder this daye in al the worlde, because of oure synnes. So that now we haue neyther prynce, duke, prophet, burnt offering, sacrifice, oblacion, incence, nor Sanctuarye before thee.

Neuertheles, in a contrite hert and an humble sprete let vs be receaued, that we maie optayne thy mercy. Like as in the burntoffering of rammes and bullokes, and lyke as the thousande of fat lambes: so let our offring be in thy sight this daye, that it maye please thee, for there is no confusyon vnto them, that put theyr trust in the. And now we folow the with al our herte, we feare the, and seke thy face. Put vs not to shame, but deale with vs after thy louing kyndnes, and accordyng to the multitude of thy mercyes. Delyuer vs by thy miracles (O Lord) get thy name an honoure: that all they which do thy seruauntes euel / maye be confounded. Let them be ashamed thorow thy almyghtye power, and let their strength be broke: that they mai know, how that thou only art the Lord god, and how oure worthy thorowe oute all the worlde. 1. Pet. ii. Roma. x. Esa. xlix. Daniel. ix.

And the kynges seruauntes that put them in, ceassed not to make the ouen hote wyth wylde fyre, drye strawe, pitche and fagottes: so that the flamme wente out of the ouen vpon a. xlix. cubites: yea it toke awaie, and brent vp those Caldees, that it gat hold vpon besyde the ouen. But the angel of the lorde came downe into the ouen to Asaryah and hys felows / and smote the flamme of the fyre out of the ouen / and made the myddest of the ouen, as yt were a cold wynd blowing: so that the fyre nether touched them, greued them, nor dyd them hurte. Then these thre (as out of one mouth) praysed, honoured, and blessed God in the fornace, sayinge.

Blessed be thou, O lord God of our fathers: for thou art praise and honour worthy / yea and to be magnified for euermore. Blessed be the holy name of thy glory, for it is worthy to be praysed, and magnified in al worldes. ¶ The story of Susanna which is the xiii. Chapter of Daniel, after the latyn.

A There dwelt a man in Babilon, called Joachi that toke a wyfe, whose name was Susanna, the daughter of helkiah, a very fayre woman, and suche one as feared God. Her father and her Mother also were godly people, and taught their daughter acordyng to the law of Moses. Now Joachi (her husband) was a greate rich man, and had a fayre orcharde ioynyng unto hys house, and to hym resorted the Jewes comenly, because he was a mā of estimation among them. The same yeare were there made two iudges, such as the Lord speaketh of: All the wickednes of babylon, commeth from the elders (that is from the iudges, which seme to rule the people. These came oft to Joachyms house and all such as had eny thynge to do in the lawe came thether vnto them.

Now when the people came agayne at after none, Susanna went into her husbandes orcharde to walke. The elders seing this, that she went early, and walked, they burned for lust to her, yea they B were almost out of their wyttes, and they cast downe theyr eyes, that theye shulde not se heauen, nor remembre that god is a righteous iudge. For they were both wounded wyth the loue of her, yet durst not one shewe another hys grefe. And for shame, they durst not tel her theyr unhonest luste, that they wolde fayne haue had to do with her.

Yet they layed wayte for her earnestly from daye to daye, that they myght (at the leest) haue a syght of her. And the one sayde to the other: Up, let vs goo home, for it is dyner tyme. So they went theyr waye from her.

When they returned agayne, they came together, enquyryng out the mater betwixt them selues: yea the one tolde the other of hys wicked lust. Then appoynted they a tyme / when they might take Susanna alone.

It happened also, that they spyed oute a conuenient tyme, when she went forth to walke (as her maner was) and no body with her, but two maidens, and thought to wash her selfe in the garden / for it was an hote season: And there was not one person ther, excepte the two elders that had hyd theym selues, to beholde her. So she sayde to her maydens: go fet me oyl and sope, and shut the orcharde dore, that I may wash me. And they dyd as she bad them / and shut the orcharde dore, and went out them selues at a back dor, to fet the thing that she had commaunded: but Susanna knewe not, that the elders laye there hyd within.

C Now whē the maydēs wer gone forth, the two elders gat them vp: and ranne vppon her, sayinge: now the orcharde dores are shut, that no mā can se vs: we haue a lust vnto the, therfore consent vnto vs, and lye wyth vs.

If thou wylt not, we shall brynge a testimoniall agaynst the: that there was a yonge felowe with the, and that thou hast sent awaye thy maydēs from the for the same cause. Susanna syghed, and sayde: Alas, I am in trouble on euery side. Though I folowe youre mynde, it will be my death: and yf I consente not D vnto you, I can not escape youre handes. Well, it is better for me, to fall in to your handes without the dede doynge / then to synne in the syght of the Lorde: and with that, she cryed out with a loude voyce: the elders also cryed out agaynst her.

Then came there one to the orcharde dore, and smote it open. Now when the seruauntes of the house herde the crye in the orcharde, they russhed in at the backe dore, to se what the matter was. And when the elders hadde tolde the seruauntes, they were greatlye ashamed, for why, there was neuer soch a reporte made of Susanna.

On the morowe after came the people to Joachim her husbande, and the two el ders came alsoo/full of myschevous imaginacions agaynst susanna, to brig E her vnto death and spake thus before the people: Send for susanna the dough ter of Helchyah Joachims wyfe. And immediatlye they sente for her. So she came with her father and mother, her chyldern and all her kynred.
Now susanna was a tender person and marueilous fayre of face, Therfore the wycked men commaunded to take of ẏ Clothes from her Face (for she was co uered) that at the least they might be sa tisfyed in her bewty. Then her frendes wepte and all they that knewe her, began to wepe.
These two elders stode vp in the middest of the people, and layed theyr hã-des vpon the heade of susanna: which wepte, and loked vp towarde heauen, for her hert had a sure trust in the Lord.
[illegible].xvii.c And the elders sayde: As we were walkyng in the orchard alone, this woman came in wyth her two maydens, whome she sent awaie from her/and sparred the orchard dores. With that, a yong felow (which there was hyd) came vnto her, and laye with her. As for vs, we stode i the corner of the orchard. And whẽ we F sawe this wyckednes, we came to her: and perceaued, that they had med[illegible] together. But we coulde not holde him for he was stronger then we: thus he opened the dore, and gat hi awaie. Now when we had take this womã, we asked her, what yonge felow this was: but she wolde not tel vs. This is the mater, a D we be witnesses of the same. The comu fore beleued them, as those that were ẏ elders and iudges of the people ẏ they condemned her to death. Susanna cry ed out with a lowde voice, and sayd: O euerlasting God, thou serchet of secre[illegible].xvii.c. tes thou that knowest all thinges afo re they comme to passe: thou woteste that they haue borne false wytnes agaynst me: & behold, I muste dye, wher as I neuer dyd any such thinges, as these men haue maliciously inuented agaynst me. And the Lord herd her voice. For when she was led forth to death, ẏ lord rayled vp the spirete of of a yong child whose name was Daniel, which cryed wt a lowde voice: I am cleane frõ this bloude. Then all the people turned the G toward him, and saide: what mene the-ii.Re.iii. Actu.xix se wordes ẏ ẏ hast spoke? Daniel stode i ẏ middest of thẽ, ꝫ saide. Are ye such fo les, O ye childern of Israel, that ye can not discerne? ye haue here cõdempned a daughter of Israel vnto death/ and know not the treuth wherfore: Go syt on iudgment againe, for they haue spoken false wytnes against her.
Wherfore the people turned againe in al the haste. And the elders (that is, the principal heades) sayde vnto him: come sit downe here among vs, ꝫ shew vs this matter, seyng God hath geuen the as greate honour as an elder. And ii.Reg.xii.b. Daniel said vnto them: Put these two asyde one from another, and then shall I heare the. When they were put asũder one from another, he called one of them, and saide vnto him: O thou olde cancherde carle, that hast vsed this wic kednes so long: thine vngracyous de-des which ẏ hast done afore, are nowe come to light. For thou hast geuẽ false iudgmentes, thou haste oppressed the innocent, and letten ẏ giltye go fre: where as yet the Lorde sayeth: The in-Exo.xxiii.a. Prou.xvii.c nocẽt and righteous se thou slaie not.
Wel than, yf thou hast sene her, tel me vnder what tre thou sawest thẽ talkig together. He answered: vnder a molbe rye tree. And Daniel saide: very wel, now thou lyest euen vpon thine head.
Lo now the messanger of the lord hath receaued the sentence of him/to cut the in two. Thã put he him asyde, and called for the other, and saide vnto hym: O thou sede of Canaan, but not of Iu da: fayrenes hath disceaued thee, and luste hath subuerted thyne herte.
Thus deale ye afore wyth the daughters of Israell, and theye (for feare) consented vnto you: But the daughter of Juda woulde not abyde youre wyckednesse.
Nowe tell me than vnder what tree dyddeste thou take theym [illegible] together? He answered: Vnder a Pomgranate tree.

¶ Then sayde Daniell unto hym: Uerye well, now thou lyest also even upon thi ne heade. The messenger of the Lorde standeth waytyng wyth the swerd to cut thee in two, and to sleye you both.
With that all the whole Multitude gave a great shoute, and praysed god, which alway delyvereth them that put theyr truste in him. And they came upon Psal. xvii. c. the two elders (whome Daniell hadde convicte wyth theyr own mouth: that they had geven false witnes) and dele wyth the Deute. xix. d. Prover. xix. even lyke as they wolde have don wyth their neighbour: ye yea, they did accordyng to the lawe of Moses, and put them to deth. Thus the innocent bloud was saved the same daye.
Then Helchiah and his wyfe praysed God, for their daughter Susanna, with Joachim her husbande, and all the kin-red: that there was no dishonestie found in her. From that day forthe, was Daniell had in greate reputacion in the syghte of the people.

¶ The story of Bell, and of the dragon, which is in the xiiii. Chapter of Daniell, after the Latin.

A There was at Baby lon an image, called Bel: and there were spent upon hym, every day xii. cakes of floure, and vi great pottes of wine.
Him dyd the kyng worship him selfe and went daily to ho noure him: but Daniell worshypped his owne God. And the kyng sayde unto hi why dost not thou worshyppe Bel?
He answered and sayde: Because I may not worshyppe thinges that be made wt handes, but the livinge god which made heaven and earthe, & hath power upon all flesh.
The kyng sayde unto him: thinckest y not, that Bel is a lyvyng God? Or se ist thou not howe moche he eateth and drynketh every day? Daniel smyled, & sayde: O kyng deceave not y selfe: this is but made of claye within, and of me tal without, nether eateth he ever any thynge.
Than the kynge was wroth, and called for his priestes, and sayd unto them: If ye tell me not who is this, that ea- B teth up these expenses, ye shal die: but yf ye can certifie me, that Bel eateth them, then Daniel shall die, for he hath spo ken blasphemi against Bel. And Daniel said unto the kyng: let it so be, acor ding as thou hast saide. The Priestes of Bel were. lxx. beside their wyves and children. And the kinge wente with Da niel in to y temple of Bel. So Bels pre stes sayd: Lo, we wil go out, and set y meate thou (O king) and poure in the wine: then shutt y dore fast, and seale it with thine owne signet: and to morow when y commest in, yf thou findest not, y Bel hath eaten up all, we will suffre de ath: or els Daniel, that hath lyed upon us. The priestes thought them selfes su re inough, for under the altar thei had made a previ entraunce, and there wen C te thei in ever, and ate up what there was.
So when thei were gone forth, y kyng set meates before Bel. Now Dani el had commaunded his servauntes to bringe asshes and these he sifted tho-row out al the teple, that y kinge might see. Then wente thei out, and barred the dore, sealing it with the kinges sig net, and so departed. In the night came the priestes with their wives and childre (as thei were wonte to do) and ate and dronke up all. In y morning be tymes at y breake of y daie, y kinge arose, & Da niel wyth him. And the king said: Da niel are y seales whole? yet he answered: Ye, O king, thei be whole. Now as soone as he had opened the dore, the ki ng loked unto the aultare, & cryed with a loude voyce: Great art thou, O Bel, and with the is no disceate.

Then laughed Daniel/& helde ŷ kyng that he shulde not go in and sayde: Be-hold the pauement, marcke wel, whose fotesteppes are these. The kyng saide: I se the fotesteppes of men, wemen and chyldren.

D Therfore the kynge was angrye, & toke the prestes, with their wyues and chyldren, and they shewed him the preui doores, where they came in, and ate vp soch thynges as were vpon the aultar. For the which cause the king slew the, and delyuered Bel in to Daniels pow-er, which destroyed him and his temple And in that same place ther was a gret Dragon, which they of Babylon wor-shypped. And the kyng sayde vnto Da-niel: sayest thou, that this is but a God of metall also? lo, he lyueth, he eateth & drincketh: so that thou canst not saye, ŷ he is no lyuynge God, therfore wor-ship him. Daniel sayde vnto the kyng: I wyll worshipe the Lorde my God, he is the true lyuynge God: as for thys, he is not the God of lyfe. But geue me lea-ue (O kyng) and I shall destroye this dragon with out swearde or staf. The kynge sayde: I geue ŷ leaue. Then Da-niel toke pitch, fatte and hearye woll, & dyd seth them together and made lom-pes therof: this he put in the Dragons mouth, and so the dragon barst in son-der: and Daniell sayde: lo, there is he whom ye worshiped. When they of Babi-

E lon herde that, they toke greate indig-nacion/and gathered them together a-gaynst the kyng, saying: The kynge is become a Iewe also, he hath destroyed Bel, he hath slayne the dragon, and put the prestes to death. So they came to ŷ kyng, and sayde: let vs haue Daniel, or els we wyll destroye the & thyne house.

Now when the kyng sawe, that thei rushed in so sore vpon him/and ŷ neces-sitye constrayned him, he delyuered Daniel vnto them: which cast him i to the lyons denne/where he was syxe dai-es. In ŷ denne there were seuen lyons/ and they had geuen them euery daie two bodies & two shepe: which then we-re not geuen them, that they might de-uour Daniel.

There was in Iewry a prophet called Abacuch, which had made potage/and broken bred in a depe platter, and was goinge into the felde/ for to bring it to the mowers. But the aungel of the lord sayde vnto Abacuch: go cary the meate that thou hast into Babylon vnto Da-nyell, whiche is in the lions denne. A-bachuch sayde: Lord, I neuer sawe Ba-bylon: and as for the denne, I knowe it not. Then the aungell of the lorde toke him by the toppe, ad bare hym by the he-are of the head, and (thorow a myghtye wynde) set hym in Babylon vppon the denne. and Abacuch cryed, saiynge: O Daniell thou seruaunt of god haue: ta-ke thee breakefast, that God hath sente thee. And Daniell sayde: O God, haste thou thought vpon me? well: thou ne-uer faylest them ŷ loue the. So Daniel arose and dyd eat: and the angel of the lorde, set Abacuch in hys owne place a-gayne, immediatly.

Upon the seuenth daye, the kynge G went to bewepe Daniel, and when he ca-me to the denne/he loked in. And behol-de, Daniel sate in the myddest of the ly-ons. Then cryed the king wyth a lowd voyce, saiyng: Great art thou O Lord god of Daniell, and he drewe him oute of the denne. As for those that were the cause of his destruction, he dyd cast thē into the denne, and they were deuoured in a moment before his face.

After this, wrote ŷ kynge vnto all peple, kynredes and tunges, that dwelt in all countreys saiynge: peace be mul-tiplyed wyth you. My commaundment is in al the dominion of hys relme: that men feare and stande in awe of Dani-els god, for he is the lyuing god, which endureth for euer: hys kingdome aby-deth vncorrupte, and hys power is euer lastinge. It is he that can delyuere and saue: he doth wonders and merueilous worckes in heauen and in earth for he hath saued Daniel frō the power of the Lions.

O Lorde Almyghtye, God of our fathers Abraham, Isaack and Jacob, and of theyr ryghteous sede of theym: which hast made heauen & erth wt al ye ornamet therof, which hast ordened the sea, by the worde of thy cōmaundement: which haste shutt vp the depe, for thy fearful ād laudable name, which al men feare, and tremble before the face of thy vertu, and for the anger of thy threatning, the whiche is importable to sinners: but ye mercy of thy promises is grete & vnsearchable: for ye art ye Lorde God moste hyghe, aboue all the earth/longe sufferynge, and excedig mercyful, and repentaunte for ye malice of mē: thou lord after thy goodnes hast promesed repentaunce of the remission of synnes: and thou that arte the God of the ryghteous haste not putt repentaunce to the ryghteous, Abraham Isaac, and Jacob/vnto them that haue not synned agaynste thee: But because I haue synned aboue the nombre of the sandes of the sea, and that manye iniquities are multyplyed, I am humbled wyth many bandes of yron, and ther is in me no breathing. The fyrst boke of the Machabees.

¶ After the deeth of Alexander the kynge of Macedonia, Antiochus taketh the kingdom. Many of ye children of Israel make couenaunt wyth the gentiles. Antiochus subdueth Egypte and Jerusalem vnto his dominion, Jerusalem beinge burnt maketh lawes, of her owne and for byddeth to kepe Goddes lawes. Antiochus setteth vp an Idole ouer the aulter of God.

The. fyrst Chapter.

After that Alexander the sonne of Philip, kinge of Macedonia wente forth of the lād of Cethim ād slew Darius kinge of the Persians & Medes: It happened ye he toke great warres in hand, wan very many strōge cytees, ād slewe manye kinges of the earth: going thorowe to the endes of ye worlde and gettinge many spoyles of ye people: In so moch that the worlde stode in gret awe of him and therfore was he proude in his herte. A

Now when he had gathered a myghty strong host and subdued the landes, ād people with their princes, so that they became tributaries vnto him he fel sick. And when he perceaued that he must nedes dye, he called for his nobul estates (which had bene brought vp with him of children) and parted his kingdom amōge them while he was yet aliue. So Alexander raygned .xii. yeare, and then dyede.

Daniel .viij. & .xi.

After hys death fell the kingdom vnto hys prynces, and they optayned it euerye one in hys roume, and caused them selues to be crowned as kynges and so did their children after them many yeares, and muche wickednes increased in the worlde. Oute of these came the vngracious rote, noble Antiochus the sonne of Antiochus the kinge (which had ben a pledge at Rome) he raygned in the C.xxxvii. yeare of the raygne of the Grekes. 2. Mach. iiij.

B In those dayes went there out of Israel wiked men/which moued much people in thei re vnsell, saieng: Let vs go and make a couenaunte with the heathen, that are rounde a bout vs: for sens we departed from them, we haue had much sorow.

So thys deuice pleased them well, and certayne of the people toke vpon them for to go vnto the king, which gaue thē licence to do after the ordinaunce of the heathen. Then set they vp an opē scole (at Jerusalem) of the lawes of the heathen, and were nomore circumcised: but forsoke the holy testament, and ioyned them selues to the heathen, & were cleane solde to do mischefe. So when Antiochus beganne to be mighti in his kingdome, he wente aboute to optaine the lande of Egypte also, that he might haue the dominion of two realmes.

Upon this entred he in to Egipte, wt a stronge hoost with charettes, elephantes, horsmen and a greate nombre of shippes, and beganne to warre against Ptolomi the kinge of Egipte. But Ptolemi was afraid of him, and fled: and mani of his people were wounded to death. Thus Antiochus wanne mani strong cities, and toke awai gret good out of the lande of Egypte.

And after that Antyochus had smitten Egipt, he turned again in the c.xliii year, and wente towarde Israel and came vp to Jerusalem with a mighty people: & entred proudli in to the Sanctuarie, and toke awaie ye golden altare, ye candilsticke and all ye ornamentes therof, ye table of the shewbred, the pouring vessel, the chargers, ye golden spones the vale, ye crownes and golden apparell of the temple, and brake downe all. He toke also the siluer and golde, ye precious Jewels and ye secrete treasures that he founde. And when he had taken awaye all together, caused a great murthur of men, & so fulfilled his malicious pryde. He departed in to his owne lande.

Thus there arose greate heuynesse and misery in al ye lande of Israel. The princes and ye elders of ye people mourned, ye yonge men and the maydens were despised, and ye fayre beutye of wemen was chaunged: ye brydegrome and ye bryde toke them to mourninge: the lande and those that dwelte therein was moued: for all the house of Jacob was brought to confusion.

After two yeares ye king sent his chefe tresurer vnto ye cities of Juda which came to Jerusalem with a great Multitude of people speking peacyble wordes vnto them, but all was disceate. for whan they had geuen him credence, he fell sodenly vpon the citie, and smote it sore: and destroied much people of Israel. 1. And when he had spoyled the cite he set fyre on it, castinge downe houses and walles on euery side. The wemen and 1 Mac iii, f.
theyr chyldren toke they captiue, and led awaye theyr cattel. Then buylded they the castell of Dauid with a greate and thick wal, and with mighty toures, and made it a stronge holde for them. Besyde all thys, they set wicked people and vngodly men to kepe it, stored it with weapens and vitayles: gathered the goodes of Jerusalem, and laid them vp there: thus became it a theuish castel.

And this was done to laye wait for the people that wente into the Sanctuary, and for the cruell destruction of Israell. Thus they shed innocent bloude on euery syde of the sanctuary, and defiled it. In so much, that the citesyns were fayne to departe, and the citie became an habitacion of straungers, being desolat of her owne sede, for her owne natyues were faine to leaue her. euery man hys lawe and all the heathen agreed to king Antiochus: Yea manye of the Israelytes consented therunto, offering vnto Idoles, and defiling the Sabath. So the kinge Antiochus set hys messaungers with his commission vnto Jerusalem, and to all the cities of Juda, that they shoulde folowe the lawes of the heathen, and forbad eyther burntoffering, meateoffring, or peace offringe to be made in the Temple of god: and that there should no Sabath nor hye feast daye be kepte: But commaunded, that the sanctuary and the holy people of Israell shoulde be defiled.

He commaunded also that there should be set vp other aulters/temples and Idols: to offre vp swynes flesh ad other vncleane beastes, that men shuld leaue theyr chyldren vncyrcumcised, to defyle theyr soules wyth al maner of vnclennesse and abhominacions: That they myght so forget the lawe, and chaunge all the holy ordinaunces of god: and y whosoeuer wolde not do accordinge to the commaundment of king Antiochus should suffre death. In lyke maner cōmaunded he thorowe all hys realme, ad set rulers ouer the people, for to compell them to do these thinges/commaundinge the cyties of Juda, to do sacryfice vnto Idoles.

Then wente the people vnto the heathen by heapes, forsoke the lawe of the Lord/ and committed much euell in y lande: ye and chaced out the secrete Israelytes, which had hyd them selues in Jsa.xxxvi.a streetes: where they brente incence, and dyd sacrifyce. And as for the bokes of the lawe of God/they brent them in y fyre/and rent them in peces. What so euer he was that had the booke of the testament of the Lord founde by hym, yea whosoeuer endeuored him selfe to kepe the lawe of the lorde, the kynges commaundement was, that they shuld put him to deth. And thorow his auctoryte he executed these thinges euery moneth, vpō the people of Israel that were found in the cytyes.

Yet were there manye of the people of Israel/which determed in them selues, that they woulde not eate vncleane thinges: but chose rather to suffer death, then to be defyled wyth vncleane meates. So because they colde not breake the blessed law of god, they were cruelly slain, And this great tyranny increased beyng sore vpon the people of Israel.

¶ The mournyng of Mathathiah & his sonnes, for the destruccyon of the holy cite. They refuse to do sacryfice vnto Idoles. The zele of Mathathiah for the lawe of god. They are slayne & wil not fighte agayne, because of the Sabboth daye. Mathathiah dyinge commaundeth his sonnes to fyght by swerd of God after the example of the fathers.

¶ The .ii. Chapter.

In those dayes there dyd starde vp one Mathathyah, the sonne of Symon the prest (out of the kinred of Joarib) from Jerusa- A lem, and dwelt vpon the mount of Modin, and had .v. sonnes: Jhon called Gaddis: Simeon, called Thasi: Judas, other wise called Machabeus: Eleazar, otherwise called Abaron: & Jonathas/whose surname was Apphus. These sawe the euel, that was done among the people of Juda and Jerusalē. And Mathathiah said. Wo is me, alas that euer I was borne, to se this misery of my people, and the piteous destruccion of the holy cytye: and thus to syt so styll, it beynge delyuered

i.Mach.ii. into the handes of the enemyes. Her Sanctuary is come into the power of straungers, her temple is/ as it were a man that hath lost his good name. Her precyous ornamentes are caryed awaye captiue, her olde men slayne in the streetes/and her yonge menne are fallen thorowe the swearde of her enemyes.

What people is it, that hath not some porcyon in her kyngdome? Or who hath not gotten some of her spoiles? Al her glory is taken awaie. She was a Quene, and now she is become an handmaide. Behold our Sanctuary, oure bewty and honoure is wasted awaie, and defyled by the Gētils? what helpeth it vs then to lyue? Mathathyah rent hys clothes, he and hys sonnes/and put sacke cloth vpon thē, and mourned very sore.

Then

B Then came the men therer whiche were sent of king antiochus, to compel suche as were fled in the citye of Modin, for to do sacrifice and to burne incence vnto Idoles, and to forsake the lawe of God. So, many of the people of Israell consented and enclyned vnto them/ but Mathathiah and his sonnes remayned stedfast. Then spake the commissioners of king Anthiochus/ & sayde vnto Mathathiah: thou art a noble man, of hye reputacion, and greate in thys citie, hauing faire chyldren ād bretheren. Come thou therfore fyrst/ ād fulfyll the kinges commaundemente, like as all the heathen haue done, ye and the men of Juda, and such as remayne at Jerusalem: so shalt thou and thy chil dren be in the kinges fauoure. and enriched wyth golde, syluer and greate rewardes.

Mathathiah answered, and spake with a loud voice: Though al nacions obeye the kinge Antiochus, and fall awaye euery man from kepinge the law of theyr fathers: though they consente to hys commaundementes, yet wyll I and my sonnes and my Bretheren not fall from the law of our fathers. God forbid we shuld. ye were not good for vs, ye we shuld forsake ye law & ordinances of God, and to agree vnto the commaundement of kinge Antiochus. Therfore we wyll do no suche sacrifice, nether breke the statutes of oure lawe, to go ano ther way. And when he had spoken these wordes, there came one of the Jewes which openly in the sighte of all dyd sacrifice vnto the Idols vpon the aultar in the citie of Modin, according to the kinges commaundement.

When Mathathiah sawe thys, it C greued hym at the herte, so that hys raines shoke withal, and hys wrath kindled for very zeale of the lawe. With that he gaue a skippe forth, and kylled the Jewe besyde the aultare: ye and slewe the kinges commissioner, that compelled hym to do sacrifice, and destroyed the aulter at the same tyme/ such a zele had he vnto the law of god, lyke as Phinehes did vnto zambry the sonne of Salomi. And Mathathiah cryed wt a loude voyce thorow the citie, saiynge: Who so is feruent in the lawe and wil kepe ye couenaunt, let hi folowe me. So he and hys sonnes fled in to the mountaynes and left all that euer they had i ye citye. Many other godly men also departed in to the wildernesse wyth their chyldren, their wyues and their catel, & remayned there: for the tyrāny increaced so sore vpon them.

D Nowe when the kynges seruauntes, and the hoost, whych was at Jerusalem in the cytie of Dauid herde/ that certeyne men had broken ye kynges commaundement and were gone their waie to the wyldernesse in to secrete places, & ye ther wer many departed after thē, they folowed them to fyghte agaynste thē in the Sabbath daye and sayde: wyll ye yet rebell? Get you hence and do the cōmaundement of kynge Antiochus, and ye shal liue. Thei answered. we wil not go forth, nether wyll we do the kynges commaundement to defile the Sabbath daie. Then begāne thei to fight agaynst them, neuerthelesse thei gaue them none other answere, nether cast thei one stone at them ner made fast their preuie places, but saide. we will die al in oure innocenci, heauen ād earth shall testifie with vs. that ye put vs to deth wrongeousli. Thus they fought against thē vpon the Sabboth, and slewe both men and catell their wiues and their childerē, to the nombre of a thousand people.

E When Mathathiah and his frēdes herde this, thei mourned for them right sore, and saide one to another: If so be that we all do as our brethren haue done/ & fight not for our liues & for our lawes against ye hethē then shal thei the soner rote vs out of the erth. So they concluded amounge them selues at the same, saiynge: Whatsoeuer he be that cometh to make battaille with vs vpon the Sabbath daie, we will fight against him, and not die al, as our brethren that wer murthred so haynously. Upon this came the Sinagoge of the Jewes vnto the strong men of Israel, & such as wer feruent i ye lawe. And all they that were fled for persecucyon, came to help them ād to stand bi them: In so moch ye they gathered an hooste of men, and slewe the wicked doers in their gelousy, and the vngodly men in their wrath. Some of the wicked fled vnto the Heathen, & escaped.

Thus Mathathiah and his frendes wente about, and destroyed the aulters and Circumcised the Chyldren, that had not yet receaued circumcisio: as many as they founde within the costes of Israel: and folowed mightely vpon the children of pryde, and this acte prospered in theire handes: In so moche, that they kept the law agaynst the power of the Gentiles and the kinges/ and gaue not ouer their domynyon vnto wycked doers.

F After this when ẏ tyme drewe on fast that Mathathiah shulde dye, he sayde vnto his sonnes: Now is pryde & persecucyon increased, now is ẏ tyme of destruccyon & wrathful dysplesure: wherfore (O my sonnes) be ye feruent in the lawe/ & ieoparde youre lyues for ẏ Testamẽt of the father: & call to remembraunce what actes oure fathers dyd in their tyme, so shall ye receaue greate honour and an euerlastinge name. Remembre Abraham, was not he founde faythfull in tentacyon, and it was reckened vnto him for rightuousnes? Joseph in tyme of hys trouble kepte the commaundement, and was made a Lorde of Egypte. Phinches our father was so feruent for the honoure of God, that he optayned ẏ couenaunt of an euerlastynge presthode. Josue for fulfillinge ẏ worde of God, was made the captayne of Israel. Caleb bare recorde before the congregacion, and receaued an heritage. Dauid alsoo in hys mercyfull kyndnesse, optayned the trone of an euerlastynge kyngdom. Elias beyng gelous and feruent in the lawe, was taken vp into heauen. Hananias, Azarias and Misael remayned stedfast in fayth, & were deliuered out of ẏ fyre. In lyke maner Daniel beynge vngiltie, was saued from the mouth of the Lyons.

that who soeuer put their trust i God, were not ouercome. Feare not ye then the wordes of an vngodli man, for hys glorye is but dounge and wormes: to daye is he set vp, and to morowe is he gone: for he is turned into earth and his memorial is come to naught. Wherfore (O my sonnes) take good hertes vnto you, and quite youre selues lyke men in the lawe: for if ye do the thynges that are commaunded you in the lawe of the lorde your god, ye shall optayne greate honour therin.

And beholde, I knowe that your brother Simon is a manne of wisdome: se that ye geue eare vnto hym alwaye, he shalbe a father vnto you. As for Judas Machabeus, he hath euer bene myghtye and stronge from hys youthe vp: let hym be your capteine, and ordre the battell of your people: thus shal ye bringe vnto you all those that fauoure the lawe, and se that ye auenge the wronge of youre people, and recompence the heathen agayne, and apply your selues whole to the comaundement of the law. So he gaue thẽ his blessinge, and was layd by hys fathers & died in the. C. and xlvi. yeare at Modin, where his sonnes buried him in his fathers sepulchre, and all Israel made great lamentacion for hym.

¶ Judas is made ruler ouer the Jewes. He killeth Appolonius & Seron the price of Syria. The confidence of Judas towarde God. Judas determeneth to fight agaynst Lisias, whome Antiochus had made capteyne ouer his host. The prayer of thee Abstyners.

¶ The. iii. Chapter

A Then stode vp Judas Machabeus in his fathers steade, and all his brethren helped hym: and so dyd all thei that helde with hys father/ and fought wyth cherefulnes for Israell. So Judas gat hys people greatte honour: He put on a brest plate as a giaunte, and arayde hym selfe wyth hys harnes, and defended hys hoste wyth hys swearde. In his actes he was lyke a lyon, and as a lyons whelpe roaringe att hys praye.

Josephus. cap. viii. li. xii. Antiq.

He was an enemye to the wickeder and hunted thẽ out: and brent vp those, that vexed hys people: so that his enemyes fled for feare of him, and all the workes of vngodlynes wer put to trouble: such lyke a prosperitie was in his hande, Thys greued diuerse kynges/ but Jacob was greatlye reioyced thorowe hys actes, and he gat him self a great name

B for euer.

He wente thorow ÿ cytyes of Juda, destroyenge the vngodly out of them/ turnyng awaye ÿ wrath from Israell, and receauyng soch as were oppressed: and the fame of him went vnto ÿ vttermost parte of the earth. Then Appollonius (a prince of Siria) gathered a mighty greate hoost of the heathen ꝯ oute of Samaria, to fyght agaynst Israell.

Whych when Judas perceaued, he wente forth to mete him, fought wyth him: slewe him, and a great multitude with hym, the remnaunte fled, ꝯ he toke their substaunce Judas also toke Appollonius owne swearde, and foughte with it all his lyfe longe.

B Now when Seron (another prince of Siria) herde saye/ ÿ Judas had gathered vnto hym the congregacion ꝯ church of the faythfull, he saide: I will get me a name and a preise thorow out ÿ realme: for I will go fight with Judas, and them that are with him, as mani as haue despised the kiges commaundemēt.

So he made him redy, and there wente with him agrete myghtie hoost of the vngodly, to stande bi hym, and to be auenged of ÿ children of Israel. And when thei came nie vnto Bethozon, Judas went forth against thē with a small compani. And when his people sawe soch a great host before them, thei sayde vnto Judas: How are we able (beynge so fewe) to fyght againste so grete a multitud and so stronge, seing we be so weery/ and haue fasted all this daie?

I Josephus cap. viii. li. xii. Antiq.

But Judas sayde: It is a small matter for mani to be ouercome wt fewe: there is no difference to the God of heauen, to deliuer bi a great multitude or bi a small compani: for the victory of ÿ battel standeth not in the multitude of the hoost, but the strength cōmeth from heauen. Beholde, thei come against vs with a presumptuous, and proude multitude, to destroie vs, oure wiues ꝯ oure children, and to robbe vs. But we wyll fight for oure lyues, and for oure lawes, and the Lorde him selfe shall destroie them before our face: therfore be not ye afrayed of them.

As soone as he had spoken these wordes he leapte sodenly vpon them. Then was Seron smiten and his host put to flyght and Judas folowed vpon them beyonde Bethozon vnto the plain felde, where thei were slayne, viii hundred men of them, and the resydue fled into the lande of the philistines. Then all the heythen on euery syde were afrayd for Judas and his bretherē, so that the rumoure of hym came vnto the kings eares, for al ÿ gentyles could tell of the warres of Judas.

So when kinge Antiochus hearde these tydinges, he was angry in his minde: wherfor he sent forth and gathered an host of hys whole realme very strong armies, and opened hys treasurye, and gaue his hoost a yeares wagis in hād commaundinge them to be redye at all times. B

Neuertheles when he saw that ther was not money enough in hys treasuries/ and that thorow the discorde ād persecution, which he made in the land (to put downe the lawes that had bene of olde times) his customes and tributes of the lande were minished: he feared that he was not able for to beare ÿ costes and charges any longer/ nor to haue suche giftes to geue so lyberallye as he dyd afore, more then the kinges that were before hym.

Wherfore he was heuy in his minde, and thought to go into Persides/ for to take tributes of the lande, and so to gather much moneye. So he left Lisias (a noble man of the kynges bloud) to ouersee the kinges businesses, from the water Euphrates, vnto the borders of Egipte: and to kepe well his sonne Antiochus tyll he came agayne. i. Mac. vi. a

C Moreouer, he gaue hym half of his hooste and Elephantes committed vnto him euery thynge of hys mynde, concerninge those whyche dwelle in Juda and Jerusalem: that he shoulde sette oute an armye against them to destroy and to roote oute the powere of Israell, and the remnaunt of Jerusalem, to put out theyre memoriall from that place, to set strangers for to inhabit al theyr quarters, and to part theyr land amonge them. Thus the king toke the

the hye contrees.
ii. Ma vii. a And Lisias chose vnto hym Ptolo men, for to go into the lande of Juda, & to destroye it, as the kynge commaunpower, and came to Emmaus into the playne felde. When the marchauntes herd the rumour of them, they and their seruauntes toke very moche syluer and golde, for to bye the chyldren of Israell to be theyr bondmen. Ther came vn to them also yet mo men of warre on e-

Nowe when Judas and hys brethe the hoost drew nye vnto theyr borders, consideryng the kinges wordes whych he commaunded vnto the people: name lye, that they shoulde vtterly wast and destroye them: They sayde one to an o-people, let vs fight for oure folcke, and for oure Sanctuary. Then the congre gation were sone ready gathered together to fyght, to praye and to make sup plication vnto God for mercye & grace.

i. Ma. i. b As for Jerusalem, it laye voyde, and was as it had bene a wyldernes, Ther wente no man in nor oute at it, and the sanctuary was troden downe. The aleauntes kepte the castell, there was the habitacion of the heathen. The mirthe the harpe was gone from amonge thē.

The Israelytes gathered them to gether and came to Maspha, before Je wher they praied afore time. So they fasted þ day, & put on sacloth cast ash es vpon their heads: rent theyr clothes, and leyde forth the bokes of the lawe( Wherout the heathen sought the lyke de voice towarde heauen saying: what shall we do wyth these? and whither G shal we cary them awaye? For þ Sanc tuary is troden downe and defyled, thy prestes are come to heuynesse and dysme together for to destroye vs. Thou knowest what thinges they ymagin a-gaynst vs. How may we stande before theim, excepte thou (O GOD) be oure

They blewe out the trompette also Exo. xviii. f wyth a loude voyce. Then Judas orde ned captaynes ouer the peple: ouer thou sandes, ouer hundredes / ouer fyftye, and ouer ten. But as for soch as buyl ded them houses, maryed wyues, plan

So þ hoost remoued, and pytched vpō Deut. xx þ southsyde of Emmaus.
And Judas sayde: Arme youre sel-ues, be stronge (O my chyldren) make you ready agaynst to morow i the mor ple, whych are agreed together to destroy vs and oure sanctuarye. Better is it

Judas goeth agaynst Gorgias whych lyeth in wayte. He putteth Gorgias and his host to flyght. Lisias inuadeth Iewrye, but Judas ouerthroweth hym. Judas purifieth þ temple and dedicateth þ aulter.

The. iiii. Chapter.

Then tok Gorgias fyue thou sand men of fot, and a thou and remoued by night, to co me nye where þ Jewes host A laye, and so to slaye them sodenly. Now the men that kepte the castell, were the conueyers of them. Then arose Judas to smyte the chefe and pryncipall of the kynges Host at Emmaus: for the army was not yet come together. In the mea ne season came Gorgias by nyght in to Judas tentes: and when he founde no man there he sought them in the moun taynes, and thought they had bene fled awaye because of him.

but

But when it was daye, Judas shewed hym selfe in the feld wyth thre thousande men only, whyche had nether harnes ne ner sweardes to their myndes.
But on the other syde, they sawe that þ Heathen were myghtie and wel harnessed, and their horsmen aboute them/ & all these well experte in feates of warre.
Then sayde Judas to the men þ were with him: Feare not ye the multitude of them, be not afrayed of their violente runnynge: remembre how oure fathers were delyuered in þ reed see, when Pharao threatened them with a great Host.
Exo.xiiii.f.
Euen so lett vs also crye now towarde heauen: and the Lorde shall haue merci vpon vs, and remembre the couenaunt of oure fathers, yee and destroye this Host before oure face this daie: And all the Heathen shal know, that it is God hym selfe, which delyuereth and saueth Israel.
Then the Heathen lyft vp their eies: and when they sawe that they were commynge agaynst thē, they went out of ther tentes in to the battayll. and they that were wyth Judas, blewe vp the trompets. So they buckled together, and þ Heathen were discomfyted and fled ouer the playne felde: but the hyndmost of them were slayne For they folowed vp þ them vnto Assaremoth and in to þ feldes of Idumea towarde Azot & Jamnia: so that ther were slayn of them vpon a thre thousande men. So Judas turned agayne wyth his Hoste, & saide vnto the people: Be not gredy of spoyles, we haue yet a battayll to fyght: for Gorgias and his host are here by vs i the mountaynes but stande ye fast agaynst oure enemyes, and ouercome thē: then maye ye safely take the spoyles.
As Judas was speaking these wordes there apeared one parte of them vp on the mount. But whan Gorgyas sawe that they of his partye were fled/ & the tentes brente vp (for by the smoke they might vnderstand what was done (they perceauynge this, were very sore afrayed: and when they sawe also þ Judas and hys hoost were in the felde ready to stricke batayll, thei fled euerychone in to the lande of the Heathen.
So Judas turned agayne to spoyle the tentes where they gat muche golde and syluer, precious stones: purple ād greate riches, Thus they went home and songe a Psalme of thankesgeuing and praysed god in heuen for he is gracious, and his mercy endureth for euer. And so Israell had a great victorye in that daye.
Now all the heathen that escaped, cam ād told Lisias eueri thig as it is apointed. Wherfor Lisias was sore afferde and greued in his mynde, because Israel had not gotten such missfortune as he woulde they shoulde, nether as þ kinge cammaunded. The nexte yeare folowing: gathered Lisias three score thousande, chosen Menne of fote, and fyue thousād horsmen, to fyght agaiste them.
So they came into Jewry, and pitched theyr tents at Bethoron wher Judas came agaynst them withe ten thousande men, And when he sawe so greate myghtie an host, he made hys prayer & sayde: Blessed be thou (O sauioure of Israell) which diddest destroy the vyolent power of the giauntes/ in the hande of thy seruaunt Dauid, and gauest the host of the hethen into the hande of Jonathas (the sunne of Saul) and of hys weapen bearer.
i. Reg. xiii. g.
iiii. Re. xiiii.
Put this hoost nowe into the hande of thy people of Israel, and let them be confounded in theyr multitude of horsemen. Make them afrayde and discomfort the boldnes of theyr strenght that they may be moued throw theyr destruction Cast them downe thorow the swerde of thy louers, then shall all they that knowe thy name, prayse the with thankesgeuinge, So they stroke the battell, and there were slayne of Lisias host fyue thousand men, Then Lisias seinge the discomforting of hys men, and the manlynes of the Jewes, howe they were redi ether to lyue or to dye lyke men: He came vnto Antioche and chose out men of warre: that when they were gathered together they might comme agayne in to Jewry.
Then sayde Judas and hys brethren: beholde, our enemyes are discomfited:

Let vs now go vp/ to clense and to repayre the Sanctuary.

Upon this, al the hoost gathered thē togither, ād wente vp vnto mount Sion. Now when they sawe the Sanctuary layed wast, the alter defiled ÿ dores brent vp, ā the shrubbes growinge in ÿ courtes, like as in a wode or vpō mountaynes, yee and that the prestes Celles were broken downe: They rente theire clothes, made greate lamentacion cast asshes vpō their heades, fell downe flat to the grounde, made a greate noyse wt the trompettes, and cryed towarde heauen.

Then Judas apoynted certayne mē, to fyght agaynst those, which were in ÿ D castel til they had clensed ÿ Sanctuary. So he chose prestes that wer vndefiled: such as had pleasure in the lawe of god/ and they clensed the Sanctuarye/ and bare out ÿ defyled stones into an vnclene place. And for so much as the aulter of burntofferīgs was vnhalowed, he toke aduisement, what he might do withal: so he thought it was best to destroye it (lest it shoulde happen to do theym any shame) for the heathen had defiled it, ā therfore they brake it downe. As for the stones they layde theym vp vpon the mountain by ÿ house in a cōuenient place til there came a prophet to shewe, what shulde be done with them.

So they toke whole stones acordig to the lawe, and buylded a newe aulter suche one as was before, and made vp ÿ Sanctuary wt in and wtout, ād halowed the courtes. They made new ornamētes, and brought the candelstick the aulter of incence, ād the table into the temple. The incence laied they vpō ÿ alter, and lyghted the lampes which wer vpon the candelsticke, that they myghte burne in the temple. They set the shewbread vpon the table and hanged vp ÿ
E vale, and set vp the temple, as it was afore and vpon the xxv day of the ix moneth, which is called the moneth of Casleu in the cxlviii. yeare they rose vp by times in the morninge for to do sacryfyce according to the lawe vpon the new burnt offeringe aulter that they had made: after the tyme and season that the Heathen had defyled it.

The same daye was it set vp agayne wt songes, pypes, harpes and cimbales.

And al the people fel vpon their faces, worshipping and thancking ÿ god of heauen, which had geuen thē the victory. So they kept the dedicaciō of the aulter viii. daies offring burnt sacrifyces and thankes geuinge wt gladnes. They decte the temple also with crownes and shyldes of golde, and halowed the portes and celles, and hāged dores vpon them. Thus ther was very grete gladnes among the people, because the blasphemy of the Heathen was put awaie. So Judas and his brethren wt the whole congregacion of Israel, ordened, that the tyme of the dedicacyon of the aulter shulde be kepte in his season from yeare to yeare, by the space of viii daies from the xxv daye of the moneth Casleu: yea and that wyth myrthe and gladnes.

And at the same time buylded they vp the mount Sion with hie walles ād stronge towres rounde aboute: lest the Gentils shoulde come ā treade it doune as they did afore. Therfore Judas set men of warre in it to kepe it: and made it strong, for to defend Bethsura: that the people might haue a refuge agaīst the Edomites.

Judas vaynquisheth ÿ Heathen that go about to destroye Israel and is helped of his brethren Simō and Jonathas he ouerthroweth the cytye of Ephrō, because they denied him passage thorow it.

The v. Chapter.

It happened also that whē the heathen rounde aboute herd, how that the aulter ā the Sanctuary were set vp in their olde estate: it displesed thē veri sore, wherfore they thought to destroy the generacion of Jacob that was amonge them: Inso much that they beganne to slaye and to persecute certayne of the people.

Then Judas fought agaynste the children of Esau in Idumea, and agaynst those whiche were at Arabathane (for they dwelt rounde about the Israelytes) where he slew ā spoiled a greet multitude of them. He thought also vpon the malyce and vnthanckfulnesse of the children of Bean, how they were a snare ā stopp vnto ÿ people ā how they layd wayt for thē in ẏ hye way: wherfore he shut thē vp into towers & came vnto them, condempned them, and brent vp theyr towres, with all that were in them

Afterwarde went he agaynst the chyldren of Ammon, whereof he founde a mightye power, and a greate multitude of people, with Timothye theyr captaine. So he stroke many batels with thē which were destroyed before hym. And when he had slayne them, he wan Gazer the citie with the townes belonginge therto, and so turned agayne into Jewrye. The heathen also in galaad gathered them together against the Israelytes that were in theyr quarters to slaye them: but they fled, to the castell of Dathema n, and sent letters vnto Judas & his brethren, saying: The heathen are gathered againste vs on euerye syde, to destroye vs, and now they make them for to come, and laye sege to the castell, wherunto we are fled: And Tymothius the capteyn of theyr hoost: come therfore, and delyuer vs out of theyr hands for there is a greate Multitude of vs slain already, yea & our brethern that were lefte at Tubin, ar slayn and destroid (well nye a thousand men) and theyr wyues, theyr children, & theyr goodes haue the ennemyes led away captyue.

Whyle these letters wer yet a redig, beholde, theare came other messengers from Galilee, with rente clothes: which tolde euen the same tidynges, and sayd that they of Ptolomaus, of Tirus and of Sidon were gathered against them, and that all galyle, was fylled with enemyes to destroy Israel. When Judas and the people herde thys, they came together (a great congregacion) to deuise, what they might do for ther brethren /that were in troubble and beseged of theyr enemyes. And Judas sayde vnto Simon his brother: chose the out certayne men, and goo delyuer thy bretheren in Galile: As for me and my brother Jonathas, we wyll go into galaadithim. So he left Josephus the sonne of zachary, ād Azarias to be captaynes of the people and to kepe the remaunt of the host in Jewry, and cōmaūded thē sayig: take ẏ ouersight of thys people & se ẏ ye make no war against ẏ Heathen, vntyll the tyme that we come agayne, And vnto Simō he gaue thre thousande men for to goo in to Galilee, but Judas hym self had eyght thousande in Galaadithim. C

Then went Symon in to Galile, & stroke diuerse batelles with the Heathen: whom he discomfyted, and folowed vp on them vnto the porte of Ptolemais. And there were slayne of the Heathen allmost .iii. thousande men. So he toke the spoyles of them, and caried awaye ẏ Israelites, that were in Galilee & Arbatis, wyth their wyues, their children & all that they had, and brought them in to Jewri with greate gladnesse, Judas Machabeus also and his brother Jonathas, wente ouer Jordane, and trauailed .iii. dayes iourney i the wyldernesse: Where the Nebuthers met them and receaued them louyngly, and tolde thē D euery thynge that had happened vnto their brethren in Galaadithim, & how ẏ mani of thē wer beseged i barasa Bosor, Alimis, Caspho, Mageth & Carnaim (al these are strong walled and myghtie greate cyties (and that they were kep I. Reg. viii. g. te in other cytyes of Galaad also: and to morow they are apoynted to bringe their host vnto these cities, to take them iiii. Re. xiiii. & to winne them i one daye.

So Judas and his host turned i all the haste in ẏ wyldernesse towarde Bosor, and wonne the cytie, slewe al ẏ males with the swearde, toke all their goodes/and sette fyre vpon the cytie And in ẏ nyght they toke their iourneye from thēce, and came to the castell. And by tymes i the mornyng whē they loked vp, beholde, there was an innumerable people bearynge ladders and other instrumētes of warre, to take ẏ castell and to ouercome them.

When Judas sawe that ẏ battaill beganne, and that the noyse therof went vp and range in to the heauen and ẏ there was so greate a crye in the cytie: He sayd vnto his host: fyght this daye for youre brethren. And so came behinde their enemyes in thre companyes, and blewe vp the trompettes, and cryed in their prayer to God.

But as soone as Timotheus hooste perceaued that Machabeus was there they fled from him, and the other slewe them doune right sore: so that ther wer killed of them that same daye, al moste eyght thousande men. Then departed Judas vnto Maspha, laied sege vnto it, wanne it, slewe al the males in it, spoiled it, and set fyre vpon it. From thence went he & toke Casbon Mageth Bosor and the other cyties in Galaad.

After this gathered Timothy an other host, which pitched their tentes before Raphon beyonde the water. Judas sent to spy the hoost, and they brought him worde agayne, sayenge: All the Heathen that be round abboute vs are gathered vnto him, and the host is very greate: Yea they haue hyred thee Arabians to helpe theym, and haue pytched their tentes beyonde the water, and are readye to come and fighte agaynste thee. So Judas wente on to mete them.

And Tymothy sayde vnto þ captaynes of hys hoost: when Judas and hys hoost come nye the ryuer: yf he goo ouer fyrste/we shal not be able to wythstande him: for why, he wyl be to strõg for vs. But yf he darre not come ouer so that he pytche hys tente beyonde the Water: then wyll we goo ouer, for we shalbe stronge ynough agaynste hym.

Now as soone as Judas came to the ryuer, he appoynted certayn scrybes of the people, and commaunded them, saienge: Se that ye leaue none behynd vpon thys syde of the ryuer but let euery man come to the battayll. So he wente first ouer vnto them, and his people after him

And all the Heathen were discomfited before him, and let theire weapons fal, and ranne into the temple that was at Carnai. Which cytie Judas wanne, and brent the temple with al that were in it: So was Carnaim subdued, and myght not withstande Judas. Then Judas gathered al the Israelytes that were in Galaad, ythym, from the lest vnto the most, with their wyues and their children (a very greate hoost) for to cõ into the land of Israel.

So they came vnto Ephron, which was a myghtye greate and stronge cytie, and laye in their way. For they could not go by it, nether of the ryghte hande nor of the lyfte, but must go thorowe yt. Neuertheles they that were in the citie, wolde not let them go thorowe, but walled vp the portes wyth stones. And Judas sent vnto them wt peacible wordes, saying: Let vs passe throw your land, that we maie go into our own countre: ther shal no body do you harme, we wil but only go thorow. But they woulde not let them in.

Wherfore Judas commaunded a proclemacion to be made throw out the hoost, that euerye man shulde kepe his order: and so they did their best lyke valiaunte men.

And Judas beseged the cyte al that daie and al that nighte, and so wan it: where they slewe as many as were males, and destroyed the citie, and spoyled it, and wente thorowe all the cytie ouer them that were slayne. Then went they ouer Jordan in the playn felde, before Bethsã. And Judas helped those forwarde that came behinde/and gaue the people good exhortacyon al the wai thorowe tyll they were come into the lande of Juda.

Thus they wente vp vnto the mounte Sion, where they offred with mirth ãd thankesgeuinge: because there were none of them slayne, but came home againe peaceably.

Now what tyme as Judas and Jonathas were in the lande of Galaad ãd Simon theyr brother in galylee before Ptolomays. Then Josephus the sõne of zachary and Azariah the capteynes hearinge of the actes that were done & of the battels that were stroken, sayde: Let vs get vs a name also and go fight agaynst the hethen that ly round about vs.

So they gaue theyr host a commaũdement, and wente toward Jamniah. then came Gorgiah and hys men oute of the citie to fyghte agaynste them, Josephus also & Assiriah were chased vnto the borders of Jewry and there were slayne that daye of the people of Israel ii. M. men so that there was a great misery amonge the people, and al because because they were not obedyente unto Judas and his brethren but thoughte they shoulde quite them selues manfully. Neuertheles they came not of the sede of these men, by whom Israel was helped. But the men that were with Judas, were gretly cōmended in the sight of all Israel and al Heathen, wheresoeuer their name was herde upon, and the people came unto them byddynge them welcome.

After this went Judas forth wyth hys brethren, and foughte againste the children of Esau, in the land that lieth towarde the south, where he wanne the citie of Hebon and the townes that lie beside it: and as for the walles and towres round aboute it, he brente them up. Then remoued he to go into the lande of the Philistines, and went thorow Samaria. At the same tyme were many prestes slaine in the battail, which wilfully and without aduisement, went out for to fight, to get them honoure. And whē Judas came to Azot in the Philistines lande, he brake downe theyr aulters / brent the images of their Idoles, spoyled the cities, and came agayne into the land of Juda.

¶ Antiochus wyllig to take the citie of Elimas for a praye is dreuen awaye of the Cytesins. He falleth in to seckenes and dyeth. His sonne Antiochus ys made kynge. The besege of the tower of Sion, Eupator commeth in to Jewry with a great army. The boldenesse of Eleazar.

The vi. Chapter.

A Now when kinge Antiochus trauailed thorow the hie countrees, he herd that Elymas in Persia was a noble and plenteous citye in siluer and golde and ȳ there was in it a very rich temple: where as were clothes, cote armours and shildes of gold, which Alexander the sonne of Philippe king of Macedonia had left behind hī. Wherfore he went about to take the cytie and to spoile it, but he was not able: for ȳ citisins were warned of it, & fought whī. And so he fled & departed wt grete heuines, & cā againe into Babilō. Moreouer, there cā one which broughte hi tydiges i Perside, ȳ his hostes whyche were i ȳ lād of Juda, were driuē awaie and how ȳ Lisias wente forth firste wt a greate power, & was driuē awaie of ȳ Jewes: how ȳ they had wonne the victory / & gotten greate goodes out of the hoostes that perysshed: howe they had broken downe the abhominacion, which he set up uppon the aultar at Jerusalē, and fenced the sanctuary with hye walles, lyke as it was afore tyme and Bethsura hys citie also.

B So it chansed that when the kinge had herde these wordes, he was afraid ād greued very sore. Wherfor he layd hym downe upon his bedde, and fel sycke for very sorowe and al because it had not happened as he had deuysed. And there continued he longe, for his grefe was euer more and more, so that he sawe, he must nedes dye. Therfore he set for hys frendes and sayde unto theym: the slepe is gone fro myne eyes for the very sorow and vexation of herte that I haue: for when I consydered in my mynd / the greate aduersitie that I am come in, where as afore tyme I was so mery, and so gretly set by (by reason of my power) Againe considering the euel that I haue donne at Jerusalem, from whence I toke all the riches of golde & siluer that were in it, and sent to sich awaie the inhabiters of Jewry wythout any reasō why: I know, that these troubles are com upon me for ȳ same cause And beholde, I must dye wt greate sorow in a straunge lande. Then called he forone Philippe a frende of his, whō he made ruler of al his realme, ād gaue him the crowne, his robe and his ring: that he shuld take his sonne Antiochus unto him, and bringe hi up til he might

C raigne him selfe. So the king Antiochus died ther in the. cxlix. yeare. Whē Lisias knewe that the kinge was deed, he ordened Antiochus his sonne (whō he had brought up) to raigne in his fathers sted, & called him Eupator. Now they that were in the castel (at Jerusalē kepte in the Jewes rounde aboute the Sanctuary, and sought euer still to do them harme / for the strenghening of the Heathen.

Wherfore Judas thought to destroy thē, and called al the people to gether, ȳ they might laie sege unto them. So they came together in the. Cl. yeare, ād beseged them layinge forth their ordynaunce and instrumentes of warre.

Then

Then certayne of them that were beseged wente forth (unto whom some un-godly men of Israell ioyned them sel-ues also) and went unto the king, say-enge: How longe wyl it be, or thou pu-nysh and auenge our brethren? We haue euer bene minded to do thy father seruyce, to walke in his statutes, & to o-people fell from us, and wheresoeuer they founde any of us, they slew them:

D When the king herde thys he was Mach.xiii.c very angry, and called al his frendes, the captaines of his fote men and of al his horse men together. He hyred men of warre also out of other realmes, ād out of the Iles of the sea, whyche came unto him, and the nombre of his hooste Mach.iiii.g was an hundreth thousand fote men, & i.vi.f. twentie thousande horsemen, and .xxxii Elephantes wel exercised to battayll.
These came thorow Idumea unto Be tasura, and belegedit a long season, ād made diuers instrumentes of warre a-brent them, and fought lyke men. Thē departed Judas from the castel at Jerusalem, and remoued the host toward Bethzacaran ouer against the kynges armye.

So the kynge arose before ẏ daye, and brought the power of his host into ẏ waie to Bethzacaran, where ẏ hostes E made them to the batyll, blowynge the trōpettes. And to prouoke the Elephā tes to fyght, they shewed them the reed grapes and mulberies. And deuyded the Elephantes amonge the hooste so that by euery Elephant there stode a.
M. men wel harnessed, and helmets of stele upon their headis: Yea unto eue rye one of ẏ Elephātes also were orde-ned .v. hundred horse men of the beste/whiche wayted of the Elephantes, goynge where so euer he wente, and depar Euery Elephante was couered wyth a stronge Tower of wodde, where upon were .xxxii. valyaunte men wyth wepōs to fyghte, and within yt was a man of Inde to rule the beaste.

As for the remnaunte of the horsemen, he set them upon bothe the sydes in two partes wyth trompettes, to pro uoke the hoost, and to stere up such as were slowe in the armye. And when the sonne shone upon their shyldes of golde and stele/the mountaynes glyste red agayne at them, and were as bright as the cressettes of fyre. The kinges host also was diuided one part upō the hye mountaynes, & other low beneth: so they went on, takig good hede, & kepig theyr ordre, & al they that dwelt in ẏ lād were afrayed at the noyse of theyr host when the multitude wente forth, and when the weapens smot together, for ẏ host was both great & myghti. Judas also, & his host entred into ẏ battel, and slew .vi. C. men of ẏ kiges armye. Now when Eleasar the sonne of Saura did se one of the Elephāts decket wt ẏ kigs badge, and was a more goodlye beaste then the other: he thoughte the kynge shulde be upon him, and ieoparde hym selfe to deliuer his people, and to get hī a perpetuall name.

Wherfore he ranne with a corage unto the Elephante in the middest of ẏ hoost, smytynge theym downe of both the sydes, and slew many aboute hym.
So went he to the Elephantes fete, & gat hī under him, and slew him: then fel the Elephant doune upon him, ād there he dyed. Judas also and his men seing the power of the king and the myghtye violence of his host, departed from thē.
And the kinges army went up against F theym towarde Jerusalem, and pyt-ched their tentes in Jewrye besyde the mounte Syon. Moreouer, the kyng toke truce wyth them that were in Bethsura.

But when they came out of the citie i.Ma.iiii.d (because they had no vytayles wythin, vi.b.

whyle. Where he made all maner ordy-naunce, handbowes, fyrie dartes, rack ettes to cast stones, scorpyons to shute arowes, and slinges. The Jewes also made ordinaūce agaīst theirs, & fought a longe season.

But in the cytie there were no vytayles, for it was the seuenth yeare of the warre, and those Heathen that remay ned in Jewry had eaten vp al our store And in the sanctuary were few mē lefte for the hunger came so vpon them, that they were scatered abrode euery man to his owne place.

So when Lysias herde that Philippe (whom Antiochus the kyng while he was yet liuing, had ordened to bring vp Antiochus his sonne, that he might be kyng) was come agayne out of Persia and Media with the kynges hoost, and thought to optaine the kyngdome: he gat him to the kynge in al the haste and to the captaynes of the hoost, and saide: we decrease daylye, and oure vy-C taples are but small: Agayne, the place that we laye sege vnto, is very strong, & it were our parte to se for the realme.
Let vs agree wyth these men and take truce with them, and wyth al their people, and graunt them to lyue after their lawe as they dyd afore. For they be gre ued and do al these thinges against vs because we haue dispysed their lawe.
So the king and the prynces were con tent, & sēt vnto thē to make peace, and they receaued it. Now when the kynge and the princes had made ā othe vnto them, they came oute of the castell, and the kyng went vp to mounte Syon.
But when he sawe ẏ the place was wel fenced, he brake the othe that he made, and commaunded to destroie the wall rounde aboute. Then departed he in all the hast, and returned vnto Antioch where he founde Philippe hauyng do

The vii Chapter.

In the .Cli. yeare came Demetrius the sonne of Sele ucus frō the cytie of Rome A wyth a small companye of mē, vnto a cytie of ẏ se cost and there he bare rule. And it chaunced that when he came to Antioch the citye of hys Progenetours, his host toke An tiochus and Lysias, to bryng them vnto him. But when it was told him, he said: let me not se their faces. So the hooste put them to death: Nowe when Demetrius was set vpon the trone of his kig dome, there came vnto him wicked and vngodly menne of Israell: whose captayne was Alcimus, that woulde haue bene made hye preste.
These men accused ẏ people of Israel vnto the kynge, sayinge: Judas & his brethren haue slayne thi frendes, & dry uen vs out of oure owne lande. Wher fore sende now some man to whom ẏ geuest credence) that he may go and se all the destruction, which he hath done vnto vs and to the kinges lande, and lett him be punisshed with all his frend es and fauourers.
Then the kinge chose Bachides a frend of hys, which was a man of greate po- B wer in the realme (beyond the great wa ter) and faythful vnto the king and sēte hym to see the destruction that Judas had done and as for that wycked Alcy-mus he made him hye preest, and commaunded hym to bee auenged of the chyldern of Israell. So they stode vp and came with a greate hooste into the lande of Juda, sending messaungers to Judas and his brethren, and speakige vnto them with peacible wordes: but vn der disceate. Therfore Judas and hys people beleued not theyre sayinge, for they saw that they wer com wyth a gret hoost.
After thys came the scribes together vnto Alcimus and Bachides, trusting the best vnto them: And fyrst the Assi-deans required peace of them, saiynge Alcimus the preest is come of the sede of Aaron, howe can he disceaue vs? so they gaue them louinge wordes, and swore vnto them, and sayde: we wyll do you no harme, nether your frendes, Psa. lxxix. a and they beleued them. But the very same daye toke they xl. men of them, ād slewe them accordinge to the wordes ỳ are written: They haue cast the flesh of thy sainctes, and shed their bloud rounde aboute Jerusalem, and there was noo C man that wolde bury them. So there came a greate feare and drede amonge the people, seing: ther was nether truth nor righteousnes in thē, for they haue broken the appointment of other that they made. And Bachides remoued his hoost from Jerusalem, ād pytched his tēt at Bethzecha: wher he sēt forth and toke many of them that had forsaken him: he slew many of the people al so, and cast them into a greate pyt. Thē committed he the lande vnto Alcimus, and lefte men of warre wyth hym to helpe hym, and Bachydes hym selfe wente vnto the kynge. And thus Alcymus defended hys hye presthod, and al such as vexed Israel, resorted vnto hi: In so muche that they optayned ỳ land of Juda, and dyd muche euell vnto the Israelites.

Nowe when Judas sawe al the mischefe ỳ Alcimus and his cumpanye had done (yea more then the Heathen theym selues) vnto the Israelites: He wente forth round aboute the borders of Jewrye and punished those vnfaithful runnagates, so ỳ they cam no more out into the countre. So whē alcimus saw, that Judas and hys people had gotten the vpperhande, and that he was not able to abyde theym: he wente againe to the kynge, and saide al the worst of them ỳ he coulde. Then the king sent Nicanor one of his chefe princes (which bare euel will vnto Israell) and commaunded him, that he should vtterly destroie the

ii. Mac. xv. a

So Nicanor came to Jerusalem with a greate hoost, and sent vnto Judas his brethren with frendlye wordes (but vnder disceate) sayenge: there shal be no warre betwyxte me and you: I wyl come wt a fewe men, to se how ye do with frendship. Upon thys he came vnto Judas, and they saluted one another peaceablye: but the enemies were apointed to take Judas by violence Neuerthelesse it was told Judas, that he came vnto hym but vnder dysceat: wherfore he gat hym awaye from hym, and wolde se hys face no more. When Nicanor perceaued that his councell was bewraied, he went out to fight against Judas, besyde Capharsalama: Where there were slayne of Nicanors hoost, v. M. men: the resydue fled vnto ỳ castell of Dauid.

After thys came Nicanor vp vnto ỳ mount Sion: and the prestes with the elders of the people wente forth to salute him peaceablye and to shew hym the burnt sacrifices that were offered vnto the kyng. But he laughed thē to scorne mocked them, defiled their offeringes, and spake disdaynedlye, yea and sore in his wrath, sayenge: If Judas and his hoost be not delyuered now into my hā- C des, as soone as euer I came agayne (he ii. Mac. xv. sayd wel) I shal burne vp thys house. Wyth ỳ, went he out in a greate anger. Then the prestes came in, and stode be- ii. Par. vii.

and sayenge: For so muche as thou Esa. lvi.
(O Lorde) hast chosen thys house, that Mat. xxi.
thy name myght be called vpon therī, and that it shoulde be an house of prayer and peticion, vnto thy people. Be auenged of thys man and hys host and let them be slayne with the swerd, remembre the blasphemies of them ād suffre them not to continue eny longer.

When Nicanor was gone from Jerusalem, he pitched his tent at Betharon and there an host met him out of Syria. And Judas came to Adarsa with iii. M. men and made hys prayer vnto God saieng: O Lorde because the messaungers of king Sennaherib blasphe- Esa. xxxvii.

daye, that other people may know, how that he hath blasphemed thy sanctuari and punish him, acording to his malyciousnes.

And so the hoostes stroke the felde ỳ thirtenthe daye of the Moneth Adar and Nicanors hooste was discomfited and he him selfe, was fyrst slayn in the battell. When Nicanors men of warre saw ỳ he was killed, thei cast awai their weapons and fled, but the Jewes folo forth of al the townes there about, and blew out their hornes vpon them, and turned against them: Thus were they al slaine, and not one of them left.

Then they toke their substaūce for a praie and smote of Nicanors heade & hys right hand (whiche he helde vp so proudly) and brought it with them, and hanged it afore Ierusalem. Wherfore the people were exceadyngly re-greate gladnesse. And Iudas or-deyned that the same daye (namelye, should be kepte in myrth euery yeare.

Thus the lande of Iuda was in rest a lytle whyle.

Then Iudas chose Eupolemus the sonne of Ihon the sonne of Iacob, and Iason the sonne of Eleazar, & sent thē vnto Rome for to make frendshyppe ād a bonde of loue with theym: that they might take from thē the bondage of the Grekes, for the Iewes sawe that the Grekes wolde subdue the kingdom of Israell. So they went vnto Rome (a very great iourney, and came in to the perlament, and sayde: Iudas Macha beus with his brethren & the peoples

Jewes hath sent vs vnto you to make a bõde of frendship and peace wythe you, and ye to note vs as your louers & frendes, And the matter pleased the romaines right well, wherfore it was written vp: of the which the romaynes made a writing in tables of latten ãd sent it to Jerusalē: ÿ they might haue by the a memorial of ÿ same peace a bõd of frendship, after thys maner: God saue ÿ romaynes & the people of ÿ Jewes bothe by see, and by land, & kepe ÿ swerde, ãd enemye frõ the for euermore. If ther cõ first any warre vpon the Romaynes or any of theyr frendes thorow out all their dominion, the people of the Jewes shal help thē (as ÿ time requireth) & ÿ wt all their hertes. Also they shall nether geue nor send vnto their enemyes, vitayles, weapons, money nor shippes: but fulfil thys charge at the Romaines pleasure, & take nothing frõ them therfore. Agai if the people of the Jewes happen first to haue warre, the romaines shal stande by the wt a good wil, acordig as ÿ time wyl suffre. Nether shal they geue vnto the Jewes enemyes, vitails, wep s mo nye ner shippes. Thus are the Romaynes contēt to do, & shal fulfil theyr charge wtout disceat.

D According to the articles, the romaynes made the bonde wt the Jewes. Nowe after these articles (sayd they) if any of ÿ parties wil put to theym, or take anye thinge from them: they shall doo it wt the consente of both: & whatsoeuer they adde vnto thē or take frõ thē, it shal stãd fast. And as touching ÿ euel, ÿ Demetrius hath don vnto the Jewes we haue writē vnto hi saying: wherfor layest ÿ thy heuy yocke vpon the Jewes our frends & louers? yf they make any complaynte of the agayne vnto vs, we shall defende them, and fyght with thee, by see and by lande.

After the death of Nicanor Demetrius sendeth his armi agaynst Judas Judas is slayne Jonathas is put in steade of his brother The stryfe betwene Jonathas and Bachides, Alcimus is taken with the palsie and dyeth Bachydes retourneth agayne vnto the kinge. He commeth vpon Jonathas by the counsell of certen wicked personnes. he ouercom The truce of Jonathas with Bachydes.

A In the meane season, when Demetryus herde that Nicanor and hys hoost was slayn in the felde, he proceaded further to sende Bachydes and Alcymus agayne into Jewry, & those that were i ÿ right wynge of his hoost, with them. So they wente forth by the waye that ledeth vnto Galgala, & pitched their tentes before Mesaloth which is in Arbellis, and wanne the citie, & slewe moch people. In the first moneth of ÿ C.lii. yeare, they brought their hoost to Jerusalē/ arose vp & came to Berea, wt xx. M. fote men, and ii. M. horsmen.

1 Mach. vii. F Iose. ca. xvii. lxiii.

Now Judas had pitched his tente at Laisa, with thre thousande chosen men. And when they sawe the multytude of the other army that it was so great, they were sore afrayed, and manye conueied them selues out of the hoost, In so moch that there abode no mo of thē but viii. C. men. When Judas sawe ÿ his hoost fayled him, and that he must nedes fight: it brake his hert, that he had no tyme to gather them together: wherfore the man was in extreme trouble. Neuerthelesse he sayde vnto them, that remayned with hym: Up, let vs go agaynst our enemyes, paraduenture we shall be able to fighte wyth them. But they wolde haue stopped him, sayenge: we shal not be able, therfore let vs now saue oure lyues, and turne agayne to our brethren and then wyl we fight agaynst them, for we are here but fewe. And Judas sayde: God forbyd, that we shulde fle from them. Wherfore yf oure tyme B be come lett vs dye manfully for oure brethren, and let vs not stayne our honour. Then the host remoued out of ÿ tentes, & stode agaynst them. The horsmen were deuyded in two partes: the slyng casters and the archers wente before the hoost, and all the mightye men were formest in the feld. Bachides him self was in the right wyng of the battel and the hoost drewe nye in two partes, and blew the trompettes. They of Judas syde blewe the trompettes also, and the earth shoke at the noyse of the hoostes, and they stroke a felde from ÿ mornig til nyght. And when Judas sawe that Bachides hoost was strongest of the right syde, he toke with hym all the hardy mē, and brake the right wynge of their ordre, and folowed vpõ thē vnto the mount Azot

Now when they which were of the lefte wynge, sawe that the righte syde was dyscomfited, they persecuted Judas & them that were with hym. Then was there a sore battayll, for many were slayne and wounded of both the partyes/ Judas also hi self was kylled, and ỹ remnaunt fled: so Jonathas ỹ Symon toke Judas their brother, and buried hym i his fathers sepulcre in the cytie of Modin. And all the people of Israell made greate lamentacion for him, & mourned longe, sayenge: Alas, that thys worthy shulde be slayne, which delyuered ỹ people of Israel. As for other thinges perteyning to the batayles of Judas, the noble actes that he did and of his worthinesse: they are not written, for thei were very many.

C Mach. cap.

And after ỹ deth of Judas, wicked men came vp in al the coastes of Israel, and there arose all soch as worke vngodlynesse. In those dayes was there a great dearth in the lande, and all the countre gaue ouer them selues and theirs vnto Bachydes. So Bachydes chose wicked men, and made thẽ lordes i ỹ land. These sought out and made search for Judas frendes, and brought thẽ vnto Bachides: which auenged him self vpõ thẽ with greate despite. And there came so great trouble in Israell, as was not sens the time that no prophet was sene there.

Then came all Judas frendes together, and sayde vnto Jonathas: For so moche as thy brother Judas is deade, ther is non lyke him to go forth against oure ennemies, agaynst Bachides/ and soch as are aduersaries vnto our people. Wherfore thys daye we chose the for him to be oure prynce and captayne to ordre oure battell. And Jonathas toke the gouernaunce vpon hym at ỹ same tyme, and ruled i steade of hys brother Judas. When Bachydes gatt knowlege therof, he sought for to sle hi: But Jonathas & Symon his brother perceauyng that, fled into ỹ wildernes of Thecua with all their compani, & pytched their tentes by the water pole of Asphar.

Which when Bachydes vnderstode, he came ouer Jordan wyth all hys host vpon the Sabbath daye. Now had Jonathas sent his brother John (a captayne of ỹ people) to praie his frendes ỹ Nabuthites, that they wolde lende thẽ their ordynaunce, for they had moch. D So the children of Jambry came out of Madaba, and toke Jhon and all that he had, and wente their waye wt al. Then came worde vnto Jonathas/ and Symon his brother, that ỹ children of Jambry made a greate maryage, and broughte the bride fro Madaba with greate pompe: for she was daughter to one of the noble princes of Canaan. Wherfore they remembred the bloude of Jhon their brother, and wente vp, and hyd them selues vnder the shadowe of the mountayne.

So they lyft vp theyr eyes, and loked: and beholde, ther was moch a do and greate repayre: for the brydegrome cam forth, & his frendes & his brethren met them wt tympanes, instrumentes of musick, and many wepons. Then Jonathas and they that were with hym, rose out of their lurking places agaist them and slew many of them. As for the remnaunt, they fled into the mounteynes, & they toke al their substaunce. Thus the mariage was turned to mourning, and the noyse of their melody into lamentacion. And so when they had auenged ỹ bloude of their brother/ they turned againe into Jordan.

Bachydes hearinge this, came vnto the very border of Jordan with a great power vpon the Sabboth daye. And Jonathas sayd to hys company: let vs get vp, and fight agaynst our enemies: for it standeth not wyth vs to daye, as in times past: E Beholde, our enemyes are in oure waye, the water of Jordane vpon the one syde of vs, with bankes, fennes and wods on ỹ other syde, so that there is no place for vs to departe vnto. Wherfoore crye nowe vnto heauen, that ye maye be delyuered from the power of youre enemyes. So they stroke the battell. And Jonathas stretched out his handes to smite Bachides, but he fled backward. Then Jonathas and they that were with him lepte into Jordane, and swymmed ouer Jordane vnto him, and there were slayne of Bachydes syde that daye, a thousãde men.

Therfor Bachides with his hoost turned agayn to Jerusalem/ & buylte vp the castels and stronge holdes ẏ were i Jewry, Jericho, Emaus, Bethoro, Bethel, Thamnata Phara and Topo/ w hye walles, wyth portes and with lockes: and set men to kepe them, that they might vse their malice vpon Israell. He walled vp Bethsurah, Gazarah & ẏ castell at Jerusalem also, & prouyded them w men and vitales: He toke also, the chefeste mens sonnes in the countre for pledges, and put them in the castell at Jerusalem to be kepte.

After warde in the C.liii. yeare in ẏ second moneth/ Alcimus commaunded, that the walles of the inmost Sanctuary shulde be destroyd, & ẏ buyldinges of the prophetes also. And when he beganne to destroy them the thinges ẏ he wente about, were hyndered for he was smytten w a pelsey, & hys mouth shut, so that he coulde nomore speake ner cōmaunde eny of his house cōcerning his busynesse. Thus dyed Alcimus in gre-F at mysery at the same tyme. And when Bachides sawe ẏ Alcymus was deed, he turned agayne to the kinge, and so the lande was i rest ii. yeares. Then all the vngodly men helde a councell, sayeng: Beholde, Jonathas and his company at at ease, and dwel without care. Wherefore lett vs brynge Bachides thither, And he shal take them al in one night.

So they went and gaue Bachides thys councel. which arose to come w a great hoost, and sent letters priuely to his adherentes which were in Jewry/ to take Jonathas and those that were wyth hym: but they myght not, for the other had gotten knoledge of theyr deuice. And Jonathas toke L. men of the countre, (which wer the ryngleaders of them(and slew them, Then Jonathas and Symon with their company departed vnto the cytye Bethbessen whiche lieth in the wildernes, and repaired ẏ decaye therof, and made it strong. When Bachydes knewe thys: he gathered all hys hoost, and sent worde to them that G were of Jewry. Then came he and layed sege to Bethbessen & fought against it a long season, & made instrumentes of warre: now Jonathas left hys brother Simō in ẏ cite, & wēt forth hī selfe into the countrey, and came with a certayne numbre, and slew Odares and his brethren and the children of Phaseron in theyr tentes: so that he beganne to bee stronge, and to increace in power.

As for Simon and his companye, they went out of the citie, and brent vp the instrumentes of warre, and fought against Bachides, ād discomfited him. And bachides was sore vexed, because hys councell and trauayl was in vain. Wherfore he was wroth at the wicked men (that gaue hym councell to come in to theyre lande) and slew many of them Then purposed he with hys companye to go awaye vnto hys owne countrey: wherof when Jonathas had knowledge, he sent embassadours vnto hym, for to make peace w him and that he shuld delyuer hym his prisoners againe. To the which Bachides consented gladlye/ and did acording to hys desyre: yea and made an oth, that he should neuer do hī harme all the dayes of hys lyfe. So he restored vnto hym al the prisoners that he had taken out of the lande of Juda, and then turnede and wente hys waye into his owne lande, nether procaded he any further to come vnto the borders of Juda. Thus Israel had no mor warre. And Jonathas dwelt at Machmas, and beganne there to gouerne the people, and destroyed the vngodly men out of Israell.

Demetrius desyreth to haue peace w Jonathas Alexander moueth warre against Demetrius, Demetrius is slayne. The frendshypp of Ptolomeus and Alexander.

I Jose. an. li. 13. li. 4.

IN the .c.lx. year came Alexander ẏ sonne of noble Antiochus, & toke Ptolomais whose citesens receaued hī and ther he raygned. Whē Demetrius herde therof, he gathered ā exceading greate hoost, and went forth agaynst him to fighte. Wherfore Demetrius sent letters vnto Jonathas withe louing wordes, and praysed him greatly. For he sayd, we wyl first make peace with hym/ before he bynde hym selfe w Alexander against vs, els he shal remēbre the euell that we haue done against

hym

hym, his brother ãd his people. And so he gaue Jonathas leaue to gather an hoost, to make weapons and to be confederate wyth hym, and commaunded the pledges that were in the castel to be delyuered vnto hym.
Then came Jonathas to Jerusalẽ, and red the letters in the audience of al the people, and of them that were in the castel and therfor were they sor afred, because they hearde, that the kinge had geuen hym lycence to gather an hoost.
Thus were the pledges delyuered vnto Jonathas, whyche restored them to theyr elders. Jonathas also, dwelte at Jerusalem, and beganne to buylde vp B and to repayre the citie: commaundinge the workmen, to wal it, and the mount Sion round aboute wyth free stone to be a stronge holde/and so they dyd. As for the heathen that were in the castels, which Bachides had mad vp, thei fled, so that euery man left the place, & went into hys owne countree. Only at Beth-sura, remayned certayne of the Jewes, whych had forsaken the law and commaundementes of God, for Bethsura was theyr refuge.
Now when kinge Alexander hearde of ỹ promyses that Demetrius had made vnto Jonathas, & when it was told him of the battayles and noble Actes, whiche he and hys bretheren had done, ãd of the great trauailes that they had taken: he sayd: where shal we fynd such a man/well, we wyl make him our frẽd and be confederate with him, vpon this he wrote a letter vnto hym, with these wordes: Kinge Alexander saluteth his brother Jonathas. We haue herde of thee, that thou art a valeaunt man, ãd mete to be our frend: wherfore this day we ordeine thee to be the hye prest of thy people, and to be called the kinges frẽd.
(Upon this, he sent hi a purple clothig & a crowne of golde) ỹ ỹ mayest cõsydre what is for oure profyte, & kepe frẽdship toward vs. So in ỹ. vij. moneth of ỹ C C lx yeare vpon the solẽpne feast day of ỹ tabernacles, Jonathas put the holi raiment vpon hym. Then gathered he an host, and made many weapons. Which when Demetrius herde, he was meruely sory, & sayd: alas, what haue we done, ỹ Alexander hathe preuented vs in getynge the frendshyp of the Jewes, for his owne defence/Yet wyll I write louyngly vnto them also, yee & promyse them dygnytyes and rewardes, ỹ they maye be of mi syde. Wher vpõ he wrote vnto them these wordes: Kyng Demetrius sendeth greting vnto the people of the Jewes. Where as ye haue kepte your couenaunt toward vs, and cõtynued in our frendshyp, not enclyning to oure enemyes we were glad, when we herde therof, Wherfore remayne styl & be faythfull to vs: and we shall well recompense you for the thinges, that ye haue done on oure partye: we shall release you of many charges, ãd geue you rewardes. And now I dyscharg you & all the Jewes from tributes, I forgeue you the customes of salt, ãd release you of the crowne taxes, of the thirde parte of sede, and half of ỹ frute of trees, whi ch is myne owne dewty. These I leaue for you/from this daye forth: so ỹ they shall not be taken of the lande of Juda ner of the three cities whiche are added ther vnto out of Samaria ãd Galilee/ D from this day forth for euermore. Jeru salem also with all thinges belonging therto, shal be holy and fre, ye the tithes and tributes shall pertayne vnto it.
As for the power of the castell which is at Jerusalem, I remitte and geue it vn to the hie prest, that he mai set in it such men, as he shall chose to kepe it. I frely deliuer all the Jewes that are prisoners thorow out all my realme: so that euery one of them shalbe fre from pay ing any trybute yee euen of their catell.
All the solẽpne feastes, Sabbathes, new mones, the dayes appoynted, & thre da-yes before and after the feast shalbe fre for all the Jewes in mi realme: so that in them no man shal haue power to do eni thing, or to moue any busines against ani of thẽ in ani maner of cause. The re shall. xxx. M. also of the Jewes be written vp in the kinges host, ãd haue their wages payed, as all other men of warre of the kinges shulde haue: and of them shalbe ordened certaine, to kepe ỹ kinges strong holdes: yee and some of thẽ shalbe set ouer the kinges busines ỹ they may faithfully deale with ỹ same,

The Jewes also shal haue princes of their awne, & walke in their owne lawes, as the king hath commaunded in ye lande of Juda.

And the thre cytyes that are fallen vnto Jewry from the countre of Samaria and Galilee: shalbe taken as Jewry/ ād be vnder one: nether be subiect
E to anye straunge Lorde/ but to the hye prest. As for Ptolomais and the lande perteynynge therto, I geue it vnto the Sāctuary at Jerusalem, for the necessary expences of the holy thinges. Moreouer, I wyl geue euery yere xv. thousand Sycles of syluer out of the kynges checker (whych pertaineth vnto me) to the worcke of the temple: yee & loke what remayneth (which they that had our matters in hande in tymes past, haue not payed) that same shall they geue vnto them also. And besydes all thys, ye .v. M. sycles which they toke yearly of the rentes of the Sāctuary, shal belonge vnto the preastes that do seruice. Item, whosoeuer they be that fle vnto the temple at Jerusalem or with in the liberties therof, where as they are fallen into the kings daunger for eny maner of busynes, they shall be pardoned, and all the goodes that they haue i mi realme, shalbe fre. For the buyldynge also and repayrynge of the worke of ye Sanctuari/ expenses shalbe geuen out of the kinges Checker: Yee and for the makinge of the walles rounde aboute Jerusalem, for the breakinge downe of the olde, and for the settinge vp of the stronge holdes in Jewri, shal the costes and charges be geuen out of the kinges Checker.

1.Mac.viii.b But when Jonathas and the people herde these wordes, they gaue no credēce vnto thē, neyther receaued them: for they remembred the greate wyckednesse that he had done vnto Israel, and how sore he had vexed them. Wherfore thei agreed vnto Alexander, for he was a prince that had dealt frendly wyth thē and so thei stode bi him allwaie. Then gathered kyng Alexander a great host, and brought his armie againste Demetrius.
Jose.ca.v.de lib.xiii. So the two kinges stroke battaill together, but Demetrius host fled, and Alexander followed after & fell vpon them. A mightie sore felde was it, continuing till the Sunne wente downe, and Demetrius was slayne the same day.

And Alexander sent embassitoures vnto Ptolomy the kinge of Egipte wt F
these wordes, saying: For so much as I am come agayne to my realme, and am set in the trone of my progenitors, and haue gotten the dominion, ouercomed Demetrius, conquerred the lande, and striken a felde with him, so that we haue discomfited both him and hys host, and syt in the trone of hys kingdome: Let vs nowe make frendshyp together, geue me thy daughter to wyfe, so shal I be thy sonne in lawe, and both geue the rewardes, and her dignitie. Ptolomy ye the kinge gaue answere, sayinge: Happye be the daye wherin thou arte come agayne to the land of thy progenitours and set in the trone of theyr kingdome. As now wyll I fulfyl thy writing: but mete me at Ptolomais / that we maye se one an other, and that I maye marye my doughter vnto thee acordinge to thy desyre. So Ptolomy wēt out of Egipt, with his doughter Cleopatra, and came vnto Ptolomais in the .Clxii. yere: where the kinge Alexander mette hym, and he gaue Alexander his daughter Cleopatra, and maried them at Ptolomais wt greate worshippe, lyke as the maner of kinges is to be. Then wrote kinge Alexander vnto Jonathas that he shuld come and mete hym. So he went honorably vnto Ptolomais and ther he met the two kinges, and gaue them greate presentes of gold and syluer, and founde fauoure in theyr sight. And there came together against Jonathas certayn wicked men and vngracious persons of Israell, making complayntes of hym but the kinge regarded them not.

As for Jonathas the kynge commaunded to take of his garmentes, & to clothe him in purple: & so they did. The the kinge appointed hym to syt by hym and sayde vnto his princes: Go wyth hym into the myddest of the citie, & make a proclamaciō, that no mā complaine agaynst hym of any matter, and that no man trouble hym for anye maner of cause.

So it happened that whē hys accusers saw the worship which was proclaimed of hym: & that he was clothed in purple, then fledde euerichone. And the kynge made much of hym/ wrote him amonge his chefe frendes, made him a duke, & partaker of his dominion. Thus Jonathas wente agayne to Jerusalem with peace and gladnesse. In the C.lxv.yere came Demetrius the sonne of Demetrius from Creta into hys fathers lande: wherof when Alexander herde tel he was ryght sorye/ and retourned vnto Antioche. And Demetrius chose Appollonius (which had ÿ gouernaūce of Celosyria) to be hys captayn.

Joseph.lib.xiii.

1.Mac.xi.

So he gathered a greate hooste and came into Jamnia, & sent worde vnto Jonathas the hye prieste, sayeng: Darest ÿ withstand vs thy selfe alone? As for me/ I am but laughed to scorne ād shamed because thou prouest thy strength against vs in the moūtaines. Now therfore yf ÿ trustest in thine owne strēgth come downe to vs in the plaine felde and there let vs proue our strength together: thou shalte fynde, that I haue ÿ valeaunte men of warre with me: and shalt know whom I am, and the other ÿ stand bie me. Which saie, ÿ your fote is not able to stāde before oure face, for thy fathers haue bene twyse chased ito their owne lād. And now, how wilt ÿ be able to abyde so great ā host of horsmē and foremen in the feld, where as is nether rocke stone nor place to fle vnto?

When Jonathas herde the wordes of Appolonius, he was moued in hys mynde: wherfor he chose .x. thousand mē and went oute of Jerusalem, and Symon hys brother met him for to help hi And they pitched theyr tentes at Joppa, but the citie kept hym forth, for Joppa was an holde of Apollonius. Then Jonathas layd sege to it, and they that were in the citie, for verye feare let them in: and so Jonathas wanne Joppa. Appollonius hearing of thys brought thre thousād horsmen with a great hoste of foremē, & went as though he wold go to Azotus and came immediatlye into the playne felde, because he had so manye horsmen and put hys trust in them. So Jonathas folowed vppon hym to Azotus, and there they strooke a battail. Now had Appollonius left a thousāde horsemen behinde thē, preuelye in their tentes. And when Jonathas knew that such waite was laied behinde thē, they went rounde aboute the enemies hoost, and shot dartes at the people from the mornynge to the euenynge. As for Jonathas people, they kepte their order as he had commaunded thē, ād the enemies horses were euer labouring. I

Then brought Simō forth his host & set them against the foremen. for the horsemen were wery alredy. So he discomfited them, and they fled. And they that were scatered in the felde, gat thē to Azotus, & came into the tēple of Dagon their Idol, ÿ they might ther saue their liues, but Jonathas set fyre vpon Azotus, and al the cities round aboute it, and toke their goodes and brent vp the tēple of Dagon wt al thē that were fled into it.

Thus were slaine and brent well nie viii.M men. So Jonathas remoued ÿ host from thence, and brought them to Ascalon: where the men of the citie cam forth, and met them wt greate worship. After thys wente Jonathas and hys host againe to Jerusalē, wt greate substaunce of good. And when kinge Alexander herd these thinges, he thought to do Jonathas more worship/ and sente him a coler of golde, as the vse is to be geuen vnto such as are the kinges next bloude. He gaue him also the cytie of Accaron wt the landes belonging therto in possession.

The dissencyon betwene Ptolomeus & Alexander his sonne in lawe. The death of Alexander. Demetrius raigneth after the death of Ptolomeus. Syon is beseged of Jonathas. Demetrius sayng ÿ no mā resisted him, sent his army againe. Tryphō moueth Antiochus agaīst Demetrius. Demetrius is deliuered by the succoure of Jonathas. After his deliueraunce he breaketh his couenaunt ÿ he had made.

And the king of Egypt gather an hoost (like ÿ sand ÿ lieth vpon ÿ sea shore) and many shyppes: & went a boute thorow disceate to optaine the kyngdomme of Alexander, and to ioyne it vnto hys owne realme. I

Joseph.cap viii.lib.xiii.

Uppon thys he toke hys iourneye vnto Syria, and was lette into the cityes

the cities, and men came forthe to mete him: for king Alexander had comaunded thē so to do, because he was his father in Lawe. Nowe when Ptolomy entred into eny citie, he left mē of warre to kepe it, and thus he did thorow all the Cities. And when he came to Azotus, thei shewed him the temple of Dagon and Azotus that was brent vp, wt the other thynges, which were destroyed, the dead bodies caste abroade, and the graues ŷ they had made by the way side, for such as were slayn in ŷ feld: And told ŷ king that Jonathas had done all these thinges to the intente they might get hym euel wyl. But the king said not a word therto. And Jonathas met the kyng wt greate honoure at Joppa / where theye saluted one another, and toke ther rest. So when Jonathas had gone wyth ŷ kinge / vnto the water that was called Elutherus, he turned againe to Jerusalem. Now Ptolomy had gotten the dominion of ŷ cyties vnto Seleucia vpon the sea coast imagenig wicked counsels agaynste Alexander, and send embassetoures vnto Demetrius, saieg cō let vs make abond betwixt vs, so wal I gyue ŷ my daughter that Alexander hathe / and thou shalt raygne in thi fathers kyngedome. I repente that I gaue Alexander mi daghter / for he goeth aboute to sle me. And thus he sclaundred Alexander, because he wold haue had his realme.

Thus he toke his daughter from him, gaue her vnto Demetrius, ād forsoke Alexander, so that his malice was opēly knowē. And Ptolomy cam to Antioche, where he set two crownes vppon his owne hed ŷ crowne of Egypte and of Asia: In the meane season was kynge Alexander in Cilicia, for they that dwelt in those places, had rebelled agaynste him. But when Alexander herde of this, he came to warre agaynst him, So kyng Ptolomi brought forth his host and met him with a myghtye power, and chased him away. Then fled Alexander in to Arabi, there to be defended, and kynge Ptolomis honoure increased. And zabdiel the Arabian smote of Alexanders head, and sent it vnto Ptolomy.

But the thyrd daye after, dyed kynge Ptolomy him selfe: and they whome he had set in the strong holdes, wer slaine of those that were wtin the cyties. And Demetrius raigned in the hundreth and seuen and syxtie yeare.

At the same time gathered Jonathas them that were in Jewrye to laye sege vnto the castel which was at Jerusalem, and so they made many instrumētes of warre against it. Then wente there certaine vngodli persons (which hated their owe people) vnto kyng Demetrius, and told him, that Jonathes beseged the castel. So when he herde it, he was angrie, and immediatlye came vnto Ptolomais / ād wrote vnto Jonathas, that he shoulde not laie sege to ŷ Castel, but come and speke with hym in al the haste. Neuertheles when Jonathas herde this he commaunded to besege it. He chose also certayne of the elders and prestes of Israel, and put him self in the parel, and toke wt him gold, siluer, clothing and diuers presentes: & went to Ptolomais vnto the king, and founde him gracious. C

And though certain vngodly men of his owne people made complaintes vpon him, yet the kinge intreated hym, like as his predecessours had done before: & promoted hi ī the sight of al his frēdes, confirmed hi ī the hye presthod with al the worship ŷ he had afore, and made him his chefe frende. Jonathas desired ŷ king also that he wold make Jewry fre, wt the thre head cities of Samaria and the landes parteinyng therto: vpon this did Jonathas promise hi thre. C. talentes. Where vnto the kyng consented, and gaue Jonathas writig of the same, conteynynge these wordes. King Demetrius sendeth greting vnto his brother Jonathas ād to the people of the Jewes. We sende you a copy of the letter which we did write vnto our elder Lasthenus, concernig you that ye should know it.

kyng Demetrius sendeth gretinge vnto Lasthenus his elder. For ŷ faithfulnes ŷ oure frendes the Jewes kepe vnto vs, and for the louyng kyndnesse which they bare toward vs: we are determed to do them good. D

Wherfore we ordeyne all the cos-tes of Jewrye & ithe three cyties, Lyda and Romatha (whiche are added unto Jewry and from Samaria) and al the landes pertainyng ther unto, to be frely separated for such as do sacrifice in Jerusalem: both concernynge the paimentes which y king toke yearly afore time, and the fruetes also of the earth and trees. As for other tithes ād tributes that belonged unto us, we discharge thēym therof from this time forth. In like maner we graunt unto them al the custōes of saltes & crowne taxes which wer brought unto us. And this fredome shall they haue firme and stedfast, from this time forth for euermore. Therfore se that ye make a copy of our letters, and deliuer it unto Jonathas: that it maie be kepte upon the holy mounte in a conuenyent place.

After thys, when Demetrius the kynge sawe that his lande was in rest, and that no resistaunce was made him, E he sent awaye al his hoost euery man to his owne place, except an army of straūgers, whome he brought from the Iles of the Heathen, wherfore all his fathers hoost had euel will at him. Now was there one Triphon (that had bene Ab.xii.a of Alexanders parte afore) which whē he sawe that all the hoost murmured against Demetrius: he went to Emalcuel the Arabiā (that brought up antiochus the sonne of Alexandria) and laie sore upon him, to delyuer hym thys yonge Antiochus: that he might reigne in his fathers steade. He tolde him also what greate euel Demetrius had done, and how his men of warre loued him not: & so remained there a longe season.

And Jonathas sēt unto king Demetri us, to driue thē out which wer i y castel at Jerusalē & in the other refugyes: for they did Israel grete harme. So Deme trius sent word unto Jonathas, saiēg: F I wil not only do these thinges for the & thy people, but at time conueniēt I wil do both the & thy people great worship.
But nowe y shalt do me a pleasure, if y wilt send me mē to help me: for al mine army is gone fro me. So Jonathas sent hi. iii. M. strong mē unto Antioch, & they came unto the kyng, wherfore y kynge was very glad at their cōmynge But they y were of y citie (euen an. Cxx M. men) gathered them together, and wolde haue slaine y king, which fled in to hys courte: & the cytiezens kepte the streetes of the citie, & be ganne to fyght.
Then the kynge called for the Jewes help, which came unto hym altogether and wente abroade thorowe the cytye, and slewe the same daye an C. M. mē: set fire upon the cytie, gat mani spoyles in that daye, and delyuered the kynge.
So when the cytezins sawe that the Jewes had gotten their wil of the cytye, and they them selues dysapoynted of their purpose the made their supplication unto the kyng sayeng, Graunte us peace, and lete the Jewes ceasse from troublynge us and the cytie, and upon thys they cast awaye their wea-pens. Thus they made peace, and the Jewes gat great worship in y sight of y kig, & in y sight of al y wer in his realme, & wer spoke of thorow out the kyngdom: and so they came agayne to Jerusalem with greate goodes.

So the kynge Demetrius sat in the trone of his kyngdome, and had peace in his lande. Neuertheles he e dissim- G bled in al that euer he spake, and with drewe him self from Jonathas, nether rewarded him accordynge to the benefi tes which he had don for him, but troubled hym veri sore. After thys came Tryphon agayne & yonge Antiochus whiche raygned and was Crowned e kynge. Then there gathered unto hym all the men of warre whō me Demetrius had put awai, these fought against Demetrius, which fled and turned his backe. So Triphon toke the Elephantes, and wanne Antioche: And yong Antiochus wrote unto Jonathas sayinge: I confirme the in thy presthod and make the ruler, ouer. iiii. countries, y thou mayst be a frende of the kinges.

Upon thys he sent him golden vessels to be serued in, and gaue hym leaue to drinke in golde, to be clothed in purple and to weare a coller of golde. He made his brother Simon also captayne, frō the coastes of Tirus unto y borders of Egipt. Then Jonathas toke his iour-ney, and wente thorow the cities beyond

the water (of Jordane) and all the men of warre of Siria gathered them unto hym for to helpe hym. So he came unto Ascalon, and they of the citye receaued hym honourablye, and from thence went he unto Gasa, but they would not let hym in: wherfore he layde sege unto it burnynge up and spoylynge the places that were about the cytie.

H And the citesins of Gasa, submitted them selues unto Jonathas which made peace with them, but toke of theyre sonnes to pledge, sent the to Jerusalem, and wente thorowe the countree unto Damascus. Now whe Jonathas herd that Demetrius princes were come into Cades (which is in Galyle) with a great host, purposinge to put Demetrius out from medling of the realme: he came agaynst them, and lefte Simon hys brother, in the lande which came to Bethsura, and layed sege to it a longe season, & discomfited them. So they desyred to haue peace with him, which he graunted them, and afterward put them out from thence, toke the citie, and set men to kepe it. And Jonathas with hys hoste came to the water of Genesar, and uptimes in the mornynge gat them to the playn felde of Asor.

And behold, the hoostes of the heathen mette theym in the felde, and layde watche for them in the mountaynes: so that when Jonathas cam against the, the other (which were layde to watche) rose out of theyre places, and fought, & they that were of Jonathas syde, fled euery man, and there was not one of the left, excepte Mathathias the sonne of Absalomus, & Judas the sonne of Calphi the captayne of the hoost. Then Jonathas rent his clothes, layed earthe upo his hed, made his prayer, & turned again to the in ye feld: wher thei fought together, & he put them to flyght. Now whe his owne men yt were fled, saw thys they turned againe unto hi, & helped hi to folow upo al ther enemies unto ther tentes at Cades. So there were slayn of the heathen the same daye. iii. M. men, & Jonathas turned again to Jerusale.

Jonathas sendeth embassitours to Rome & to the people of Sparta to renue theyr couenaunte of frendship. Jonathas putteth to flight the Princes of Demetrius, Tryphon taketh Jonathas by disceate.

The .xii. Chapter.

Jonathas seinge that ye tyme was mete for him, chose certe men ad sent them unto Rome A for to stablish and to renue the frendship with them. He sent letters also unto Sparta, and to other i. Ma. 8. a. places in lyke maner. So they wente unto Rome, and entred into the coucel and sayd: Jonathas the hye preste and the people of the Jewes sent us unto you, for to renue the olde frendship and bonde of loue: Upo this the Romaines gaue the ther pasportes, that men shuld leade them home into the land of Juda peceably. And this is the copy of the letters that Jonathas wrot unto ye Sparcians.

Jonathas the hie prest with the elders, prestes, and the other people of ye Jewes, sende greting unto the Sparcyans their brethren. Ther were letters sent long ago unto Onias the hye prest from Arius, which than raigned amog you that ye are our brethren, as ye wrytinge made therupon, specyfieth. And Onias intreated the embassatour, that was sent, honorably, and receaued the letters: wherin there was mencyon made of the bonde of loue ad frendship. But as for us, we nede no such wrytynges: for why, we haue the holy bookes of scripture in our handes to oure comforte. Neuertheles we had rather sende unto you, for the renuing of the brotherhode and frendship, lest we shoulde be straunge unto you, for it is long, sence B the tyme that ye sent wordes unto us.

Wherfore in the sacrifices that we offer & other ceremonies upo ther solempne daies ad other, we alwaie remembre you without ceassing (lyke as reason is, and as it becometh us to thinke upon our brethren) yea and are ryght glad of your prosperous honoure.

And thoughe we haue had greate troubles and warres, so that the kynges about us haue foughten against us: yet wolde we not be greuous unto you nor unto other of oure louers and frendes i these warres. For we haue had help from heauen, so yt we are defended, & oure enemies subdued. Wherfore we chose Numenyus the sonne of Antiochus

chus and Antipater the sonne of Iasō and sent them vnto the Romaynes, for to renue the olde bonde of frendshyppe and loue with them. We commaūded thē also to com vnto you, to salute you, and to deliuer you oure leters, concernyng the renuacyō of our brotherhod.
And now ye shal do right well, to geue vs answere therunto.

And this is the copy of the wrytīg, which Arius the kynge of Sparta sent C vnto Onias: Arius king of the Spar-cians sendeth greting vnto Onias the hye prest. It is founde in writinge, that the Sparcians and Iewes are brethrē and come out of the generacion of Abra ham. And now for so muche as thys is come to our knowleg, ye shal do wel, to write vnto vs of our prosperite. As for vs, we haue written our mind vnto you: Oure catell and Goodes are youres, and youres oures. These thynges haue we cōmaūded to be shewed vnto you. When Ionathas herde that Demetrius princes were come forth to fight against hym wt a greater hoost then afore, he went from Ierusalem, and met them in the land of Hemath, for he gaue them not space to come into hys owne countre. And he sent spies vnto their ten-tes, which came agayne and tolde hym that they were appointed to come vpon him in the night season. Wherfore whē the sunne was gone downe, Ionathas commaunded his men to watch all the nyght, and to be ready wt weapons for to fyghte: and set watche men round a-boute the hoost. But when the aduersa D ryes herd that Ionathas was ready wt his men in the battayl, they feared and were afraide in their hertes, and kindled fyres in their tentes, brake vp, and gat them awaie. Neuertheles Iona thas ād his company knew it not tyl ỹ mornig, for they sawe the fyres burnig.

Then Ionathas folowed vpon thē but he myghte not ouertake theym, for they wer gone ouer the water Eleuthe rus. So Ionathas departed vnto the Arabians (whiche were called zabadei) slewe them, and toke their goodes. He proceded further also, & came into Damascus/and went thorow al that coūtre. But Simon his brother toke his iourney and came to Ascalon and to ỹ next stronge holdes: Departing vnto Ioppa, and wanne it. For he herd yt they wolde destroie Demetrius partie: wher fore he sent men of warre in the cyte to kepe it. After thes came Ionathas home againe, and called the elders of the people together: ād deuised wt them for to builde vp the strōg holdes in Iewry, and the lawes of Ierusalem, to set vp an hye wal betwixt the castel and the cy tie, for to separate it from the cytie, that it myght be alone, and that men should neither bye nor sel in it.

Upon thys they cam together for to buylde vp the citie: and for so muche as the wal vpon the broke of the west syde (called caphetherah) was fallen down, they repayred it. And Symon set vp Adiadah in Sephilah, and made it strōg settinge portes and lockes vpon it.
E Now when Triphon purposed to raig- 1 Mach. xi. c, Ioseph. cap. 13. lib. xiii. ne in Asia, to be crowned, and to slaye ỹ kinge Antiochus: he was afrayede that Ionathas wold not suffre hi, but fight against him: Wherfore he went abot to take Ionathas, and to kyll hym.

So he departed, & came vnto Beth-san. Then went Ionathas forth agaist hym to the battell with fourty thousād chosen men, and came vnto Betsan also. But when Triphō sawe that Iona-thas came wt so great an host to destroy him, he was afrayed: and therfor he re-ceaued hym honorably, commended him vnto his frendes, and gaue hym rewar des, commaūded his mē of warre to be as obedient vnto him as to him selfe.
And sayde vnto Ionathas: why hast thou caused thys people to take soche trauayle/ seyng there is no warre be-twyxte vs? Therfore send them home agayne, and chose certayn men to wai F te vppon thee, and come thou wt me to Ptolomais: for I wyll geue it the, wt the other strong holdes, men of war-re and their officers: As for me, I must departe, thys is onlye the cause of my cōmynge. Ionathas beleued him/ād did as he sayde, putting awaye his host, which went in to the lande of Iu-da. He kepte but iii M. by him, wher-of he sente .ii M. to Galilee, and on M. went with him selfe.

Nowe

Now as soone as Jonathas entred into Ptolomais, the cytisens sparred the gates of the citie, and toke him, & slewe al them with the swerde, that came ī wt him. Then sente Triphon an hoost of fote men and horsmen into Galilee ād into the greate plaine felde, to destroie al Jonathas company. But whē they knewe that Jonathas was taken, & al they slaine that waited vpon hym: they toke councel together, and came forthe ready to the battaill. So when they whiche folowed vpon them, sawe that it was a matter of lyfe, they turned backe agayne. As for the other/ they went ito the land of Juda peaceably, ād bewayled Jonathas, and theym that were wt him ryghte sore. And Israell made greate lamentacion. Then all the Heathen that were round about thē soughte to destroie them. For they saide: nowe haue they no captain, nor anye man to helpe them. Therfore let vs ouercome them, and rote oute their name from amonge men.

¶ After Jonathas was taken Simon is chosen captayne, of whom Triphon takyng hys children & mony for the redempcyon of Jonathas, kylleth him & his children. The graue of Jonathas. Tryphō killeth Antiochus and possesseth the realme. Demetrius taketh truce wyth Simon. Simon winneth Gaza. He possesseth the tower of Syon. He maketh hys sonne John Captayne.

B NOw when Simon herde ẏ Triphon gathered a great hoost, to com into ẏ lande of Juda, and to destroy it: and sawe ẏ the people was in greate fearfulnes and care: he cam vp to Jerusalem, and gathered the people together, ād gaue them exhortacyō, saying: ye know what grete battailes I and my brethren & my fathers house haue striken for the lawe of the Sanctuary, and what manere of troubles we haue sene, thorowe occasion wherof, all my brethren are slaine for Israels sake, and I am lefte alone. And nowe let not me spare myne owne lyfe in any maner of trouble, for I am no better thē my brethren: but wyl auenge my peple & ẏ Sanctuary, our children and our wyues: for all the Heathen are gathered together, to destroye vs of very malice.

1. Ma. vi. c. b. xiii. b.

At these wordes the hertes of the people were kindled together, so that they cryed with a lowde voyce, saying: Thou shalt be oure captayne in steade of Judas and Jonathas thy brethrē, order thou oure battel and what soeuer thou commaundest vs, we shall do it. So he gathered all the men of warre, making hast to finishe all the walles of B Jerusalē, which he made strong round aboute. Then sent he Jonathas the sone of Absalomus with a freshe hoste vnto Joppa, which droue thē out that were in the castell, and remayned there hym selfe.

Triphon also remoued frō Ptolomais, wt a great army, to com into the land of Juda, and Jonathas with him inward: And Simon pitched hys tentes at Adidus before the playne felde.

But when Tryphon knewe that Simon stode vp in steade of his Brother Jonathas, and that he wolde warre agaynst hym: he sente messengers vnto hym, sayinge: where as we haue kepte Jonathas thy brother, it is for moneye that he is owyng in the kinges accōpte, concernynge the busynes that he had in hande. Wherfore sende nowe an C. talentes of syluer/ ād hys two sonnes for suertie, that when he is letten forthe he shall not forsake vs, and we shall sende hym agayne. Neuertheles Simon knewe, that he dissembled in hys wordes: yet commaunded he the money and childeren to be delyuered vnto him: least he shulde be the greater enemy against the chylderen of Israell/ and saye: because he sent him not the mony and the chylderen, therfore is Jonathas dead.

So Simon sent him the chylderen C and an hundreth talētes, but he dissembled, and wolde not let Jonathas goo. Afterward came Triphon into ẏ lād to destroy it, & wēt round about by ẏ way, ẏ leadeth vnto Ador, but wherso euer they went thyther went Simō & hys host also. Now they that were in the castell sent messengers vnto Triphon, ẏ he should make hast to come by the wildernesse/ and to sende them vitayles: & Triphon made ready al hys horsmenne to come that same night. Neuertheles it was a verye greate snowe, so that he came not in Galaadithim. And when he drewe nye Baschama, he slewe Ioathas and his sonnes there, and then turned for to goo home in to his awne lande.

Then sent Symon for to fet his bro thers deed coarse/and buried it in Mo din his fathers cytie. So all Israel bewayled hym wt greate lamenta cyon, and mourned for hym very lon-ge. And Symon made upon the sepulcre of his father and his brethre a buyl dynge hye to loke unto of fre stone behynd and before: and set up seuen pyl lers, one agaist another (for his father, hys mother and foure brethren (and set greate pillers round about, with armes uppon theym for a perpetull memory, and carued shippes besyde the armes: that they might be sene of men saylyng i the sea. This sepulcre which he made at Modin, standeth yet unto this day.
Now as Triphon went forth to walke wt the yonge kyng Antiochus/he slew D him trayterously, & raigned in his stea de, crowned him self kyng of Asia, and dyd moch euill in the lande. Symon also buylte up the castels in Jewry, makynge them stronge wyth hye towers, great walles, portes and lockes, & layed up vytales i the stronge holdes.
And Symon chose certayne men, and sent them to kyng Demetrius: to desy-re him, that he wolde discharg the land from all boundage, for Triphon had spoiled it veri sore. Wher upon Deme trius the kinge answered him, & wrote unto him after this maner, Demetrius the king sendeth gretin-ge unto Symon the hie prest his fren-de, with the elders and people of ye Je-wes. The golde crowne and precious stone that ye sent unto vs, haue we re-ceued: & are ready to make a stedfast peace wt you, ye and to wryte unto our officers, for to release you, concernyng the thynges wherin we made you free: ad the appoyntmet yt we make wt you, shalbe firme and stable. The stronge holdes which ye haue buylded, shal be youre awne. As for eny ouersyghte or fawte commytted unto this daie, we for geue it, and the Crowne. Tare that ye ought vs also, And where as was eny other tribute in Jerusalem, it shal now be no tribute: and loke who are mete among you to be in our courte, let them be written up, that there mait be peace betwixte vs.
Thus the yocke of the Heathen was E taken from Israel, in the hundreth and seuenti yeare. And the people of ye Jew-es beganne to write in their letters and actes on thys maner. In the first yeare 1.Ma.xiiii.b of Symon the prest, and prynce of the Jewes.
In those daies wente Symon unto Gaza, and beseget it roud about, where he set up ordinaūce of warre. And wan a towre which he toke. So they yt gatt into the towre leaper in the cytie, which was in a greate feare: In so much that the people of the citie rent their clothes, and clymmed up upon the walles wyth their wiues and children besechig Symon to be at one wt them: sayenge.
O rewarde vs not after our wyckednes, but be gracious unto vs/& we shal do the seruice. Then Symon for very pyte, wolde fight nomore againste F them, but put them out of the cytye, and caused the houses (wherin the Images were) to be clensed: and so entred the cy tie wyth Psalmes of prayse, geuynge thanckes unto the Lorde. So when he had cast al abhominacyons out of ye cytye, he set suche men in it as kepte the lawe of God and made the cyte strong, and buylded a dwellynge place for him selfe.
Now when they in the castel at Jeru salem were kepte so streatlye, that they coulde not come forth nor into the coun-tre/& might nether bie nor sel: they were very hongery, and many of them fampshed to death: In so muche that they be sought Simon to be at one with them, which he graunted them. So he put them out from thence, & clensed ye castel from filthines. And upon the xxiii. daie of the second moneth in the. C.lxxi. year they entred into it wt thākesgeuing ād braūches of palme trees, wt harpes, crowdes, cimbales, & lutes syngig psalmes and sōges of praise unto god, for that the greate enemye of Israel was ouer come.
And Symon ordened that the same daye shulde be kept euery year in glad-nes, and made strong the hil of the tēple that was beside ẏ castel, wher he dwelt hym selfe with hys company. Symon also perceauinge that Jhon hys sonne was a mighty man of armes, made hī captaine of al the hostes, and caused hī to dwell at Gaza.

Demetrius is ouercome of Arsaces. Simon being captaine there is great quietnes in Israel. The couenaunt of frendship with the Romanes & with ẏ people of Sparta is renued.

¶ The .xiiii. Chapter.

In the .Clxxii. year, gathered kinge Demetrius hys A hooste and departed vnto Media, to get hym helpe, for to fight agaynste Tryphon. Nowe when Arsaces the kinge of Persia and Media herd, that Deme trius was entred with in hys borders, he sent one of his Princes to take hym alyue, and to bringe hym vnto hym.
So he wēt & slew Demetrius host, to-ke him selue/brought hym to Arsaces, which kepte hym in warde. And all the lande of Juda was in rest, so longe as Simon lyued for he sought the welthe

When the Romaynes and Sparci-

And kynge Demetrius confirmed G him in his hie presthode, made him his frende, and dyd him greate worshipe.
For he herde that the Romayns called the Jewes their frendes, louers & brethren: how honorably they receued Simons embassytours: how the Jewes and prestes consented that he shulde be their prynce and hye prest perpetually ( tyll God raysed vp the true prophet) & that he shuld be their captayne, to care for the Sanctuary, and to sett officers vpon ỹ workes therof ouer the land, ouer the weppēs/ouer the houses of de-all the wrytynges of ỹ lande to be ma-

So all the people consented to alow Simon, and to doo accordynge to these wordes. Symon also him selfe toke it vpon hym, and was contente to be ỹ a copy of the same in the treasury, that Symon ād hys posterite migh haue it.

¶ The .xv. Chapter. A

Moreouer, kyng Antiochus the sonne of Demetrius sent let-to Symon the hye preste and prince of the Jewes, and to al the people, conteynyng these wordes: Antiochus ỹ kyng sendeth greting unto Symon the hye prest and to the people of the Jewes.

For so muche as certayne wicked men haue gotten the kyngedom of our progenytoures, I ȃ purposed to chaleg ỹ realme agayn, & to restore it to ỹ old estate

Wherfore I haue gathered a greate host & made shyppes of warre: that I maye goo thorowe the countree/ and be auenged of the which haue destroyed oure lande, and wasted many cityes in my realme. And therfore now I make thee free also from al the tributes, whiche all kynges my progenitours haue discharged the, and from other customes (wherfrō they haue relesed thee) whatsoeuer they be: yee I geue thee leue to smyte money of thyne awne with in thy lande. As for Jerusalem/ I will that it be holy and free: and al the weapens and houses of defence whiche ỹ hast buylded and kepest in thyne hādes

B shall bee thyne. Where as eny thyng is or shall bee awynge unto the kynge. I forgyue it thee, from thys tyme forth for euermore. And when we haue optayned our kyngdome we shall do thee, thy people and the temple great worshyppe: so that youre honoure shall bee knowen thorow out the whole worlde.

In the. Clxxiiii. yeare wente Antiochus into his fathers lande, & al the men of warre came together unto him, so that fewe were left with Tryphon. So the kyng Antiochus folowed upō him, but he fled unto Dora, which lyeth by the see syde: for he sawe that there was mischefe commynge unto hym, & that his host had forsaken hi. Then came Antiochus unto Dora wt an hūdreth & twentye thousand men of armes upon fote, and eyght thousand horsmen. So he cōpassed the citie rounde aboute: and the shippes came by the see. Thus they vexed the city by lād & by water, in so much ỹ thei suffered no man to go in nor out.

I. Ma. viii. d In the meane season came Numenius (and they that had bene wyth hi frō the cytie of Rome, hauynge letters written unto the kyngs, and prouynces/

C wherin were conteined these wordes: Lucius the Mayr of Rome sendeth gretyng unto Ptolomy the king. The embassitours of the Jewes oure frendes beynge sent from Symon the hye prest and from the people of the Jewes, cā unto us, for to renue the old frendshyppe and bonde of loue/ and brought a shylde of golde, weyenge a thousande pounte/ which we were content to receue of thē. wherfor we thought it good to wryte unto the kynges and Prouinces, to do thē no harme, nor to take part agaynst them, their cyties ner coūtrees nether to mayntayne their enemyes agaynst them. If there be eny wycked personnes therfor fled from their coūtree unto you/ deliuer theym unto Symon the hye prest: that he maye punysh them accordynge to their owne lawe.

The same wordes wrote the Romaynes also unto Demetrius the kyng, to Attalus, Araba, Arsaces, & to all regyons: as Samsanes, to them of Sparta, Delo, Myndo, Sydon, Caria, Samos, Pamphilia, Lycia, Alicarnassum, and to ỹ Rhodes, to Faselis, Coo, Syda, Arado, Gortina, Gnydum/ to Cypres and to Cyren. And of euery lettre D they sent a copy to Symō the hye prest and to the people of ỹ Jewes. So Antiochus ỹ kyng brought his host unto Dora the seconde tyme, to take it: where he made diuerse ordinaunce of warre/ and kepte Tryphen in that he shuld not come forth. Then sent Simon Antiochus two thousande chosen men to helpe hym with gold, syluer and other plenteous geer: Neuerthelesse he wold not receaue them, but brake al the couenaunt which he made wt Symō afore, and withdrewe him self from him.

He sent Athenobius also a frende of hys unto Symō, for to reason wyth him sayinge: Ye witholde fro me Joppa and Gaza (with the castell that is at Jerusalem) which are cyties of my realme, whose borders ye haue destroyed and done greate euell in the lande, hauing the dominacion in many other places of my kyngdome. Wherfore deliuer E now the cyties which ye haue taken wt the tributes of the places that ye haue rule upon wtout ỹ borders of Jewry: Or els geue me. v. hundreth talents, if no we shal come & fight against you

So Athenobius the kinges seruaūt came to Jerusalem and when he sawe the greate worshyp and honour of Si= mon, in golde / syluer, and so greate plenty of ornamentes he marueled and told Simon as the king commaunded hym. Then answered Symon and say= de vnto hym: As for vs we haue nether them, but onelye oure fathers heritage, which oure enemies had vnrighteously

Neuertheles Athenobius answered F hym not one worde, but turned agayne wrothfully vnto the kinge, and tolde hi all these wordes, and the greate dignite of Simon wyth al that he had sene and the king was very angry. In the meane tyme fled Triphō by shyppe vnto Orth= sosayda. Then the kinge made Cende= hym an hoste of fotemen and horsemen, commaunding hym to remoue the hoost towarde Jewrye, and to buylde vp the citie of Cedron, to make vp the portes, and to warre agaynst the people of the Jewes. As for the king hym selfe, he fo= lowed vpon Triphon. So Cendebeus came vnto Jamnia, and began to vexe the people to treade downe Jewry, to ta ke the people presoners, to slay them ād to buylde vp Cedre, where he set horsmē and other men of warre, that they might come forth and go thorow the stretes of Jewrye / lyke as the king had commaū ded hym.

and rested at Modin.

In the mornynge they arose, & went to the playne felde: & beholde, a migh= tye great hoste came agaynst thē, both of fote menne and horsmen. Now was there a water broke betwyxte them, & Jhon remoued the host towarde them.
And when he sawe that the people was afrayed to goo ouer the waterbroke / he wente ouer fyrst him selfe: & y men seynge this, folowed him.

Then Jhon set his horsmen and fo their enemies horsmen were veri mani. D But when they blewe vp y prestes trō

Judas also Jhons brother was woun agayne peceably in to Jewry.

And in the felde of Jericho was Pto G wyth Mathiah and Judas his sonnes, in the Clxxvii. yeare i the.xi. moneth cal=

Abobus receaued them (but wyth dysceate

(in)to a strong house of his called Doch, whiche he had buylded, where he made them a banket.

So when Symon and hys sonnes were mery and had dronken well, Ptolomy stode vp with hys men (whome he had hyd there) and toke theyr weapons, entred into the banket house, and slewe Simon with hys two sonnes and certen of his seruauntes. Such great vnfaithfulnes dyd Ptolomy in Israel and recompenced euell for good. Then wrote this Ptolomy the same vnto king Antiochus, requyring hym, that he shoulde sende hym an hoost to helpe him: and so shoulde he delyuer hym the lande, with the cities and trybutes of the same. He sent other men also vnto Gasa, for to take Jhon, and wrote vnto the captaynes to come to him, and he should geue them syluer golde and rewardes. And to Jerusalem he sent other, to take it & the sanctuarye.

Then ranne there one before, and tolde Jhon in Gasa, that his Father and hys bretheren were slayne and how that Ptolomy had sent to slaye hym also: when Jhon herde thys, he was sore abasshed, and layd handes vpon them that were come to destroye him and slewe them: for he knewe, that they were aboute to kyll hym.

As for other thinges concernynge Jhon, of hys warres, of hys noble actes (wherin he behaued hym self manfully) of the buylding of walles which he made: other of hys dedes: they are wrytten in the cronicles of hys presthode, from the tyme forth that he was made hye prest after his father.

¶ An Epistle of the Jewes y dwelt at Jerusalem sent vnto them which dwelt in Egypte wherin they exhorted them to geue thankes for the deth of Antiochus. Of the fyre that was hyd in the pyt. The prayer of Nehemiah.

¶ The first. Chapter

A The brethren of the Jewes which be at Jerusalem and in the land of Jewry, wish vnto those brethren of the Jewes that are thorow out Egipte: good fortune, healthe and peace.

God the Lord be gracious vnto you, and thinke vpon his couenaunt that he made with Abrahã, Isaac, and Jacob, his faithfull seruauntes: and geue you all such an hert, that ye maye loue and feare him, yea and performe his wyl with an whole hert & a of wylling mynd: He open youre hertes in his lawe and in his commaundementes, sende you peace: heare youre prayers, be at one with you, and neuer forsake you in tyme of trouble. Thys is here oure prayer for you.

What tyme as Demetrius raigned in the. C. lxix. yere, we Jewes wrote vnto you in the trouble and vyolense that came vnto vs. In those yeares after y Jason departed out of the holy lande & kyngdome, they brent vp the portes & shed innocent bloude. Then made we oure praier vnto the Lord, & were herd, we offred, and lyghted the candels, settynge forth cakes and bred. And nowe B come ye into the feast of tabernacles, i the moneth casleu.

In the C. lxxxviii. yeare, the people that was at Jerusalem, and in Jewry, the councell and Judas hym selfe, sent thys holsome saluacion vnto Arystobolus kynge Ptolomyes master whych came of the generacion of the anoynted prestes: and to the Jewes that were in Egipte: In so much as god hath delyuered vs from great parels, we thanke hym highly. In that we resysted so myghty a kynge. And why he brought men oute of Persis by heapes, to fight agaynst vs and the holye cytye.

For as he was in Persis (namely, the Captayne with the greate host, he peryshed in the temple of Naneas, beynge disceaued thorow ÿ deuice of Naneas prestes. For as he was purposed to haue dwelte there, Antiochus and hys frendes came thyther, to receaue much money for a dowry. So when Naneas prestes had layed forth the moneye, he entred wyth a small company into the compas of the temple, and so they shut

C the temple.

Nowe when Antiochus entred by openig the preuepe intraunce of ÿ temple, the prestes stoned the Captayne to death, hewed them in peces that wer wt hi, smote of theyr heades, and threw thē out i al thinges. God be prayfed, which hath delivered ÿ wicked i to our hādes.

Where as we now are purposed to kepe the purifycacion of the temple vpon the .xxv. daye of the moneth Casleu we thoght necessari to certifie you therof: that ye also myght kepe the tabernacles feast daye, and the daie of the fyre, which was geuen vs when Nehemiah offred, after that he had set vp the temple and the aulter. For what tyme as our fathers were led awaie vnto Persis, the prestes (whiche then sought the honoure of god) toke the fire preuelı frō the aulter, and hyd it in a valley, where as was a greate depe drie pyt: ād therein they kepte yt, because the place was vnknowne to euery man. Nowe after many yeares when it pleased god, that Nehemiah should be sent from ÿ kyng of Persia: he sente the childers children of those prestes (which had hid the fire) to seke it. And as they told vs, they founde no fire/ but thicke water. Then cō-

D maunded he them to drawe it vp, ād to bringe it him ꝗ ÿ offeringes wt al. Now whē the sacrifyces were laied on ꝗ ordered, ÿ prest Nehemiah cōmaūded to sprinckle thē ꝗ ÿ wod wt ÿ water. Whē this was done, ꝗ ÿ time come ÿ ÿ Sunne shone, which afore was hid in ÿ cloude: there was a greate fire kindled. In so much ÿ euery mā marueled: now al ÿ prestes praied, whyle the sacrifice was amaking. Jonathas praied first, ād ÿ other gaue answere.

And Nehemias prayer was after this maner: O Lord God maker of all thinges, thou fearfull and stroung, ÿ ryghtuous and mercyfull, thou that art onely gracyous kynge, onely lyberall, only iust, Almightie ꝗ euerlastynge, ÿ that delyuered Israel frō all trouble, ÿ that hast chosē the fathers and halowed thē, receauinge the offerynge for the whole people of Israel/ preserue thyne owne porcyon, and halowe it. Gather those together that are scatred abrode from vs: delyuer them that ar vnder the Heathens bondage, loke vpon them whych are despysed ād abhorred/ that ÿ Heathen may know and se, how that thou art oure God: punyshe them that oppresse, ād proudly put vs to dishonour. Set thy people agayne in thy holy place, like as Moses hath spoken. Eccl.xxx.

E And ÿ prestes song Psalmes of thākesgeuynge, so longe as the Sacrifice endured. Now when the sacryfyce was brent, Nehemiah commaunded the greate stones to be sprinckled with the resydue of ÿ water. Which whē it was done, there was kyndled a flāme of them also: but it was consumed thorowe the lyght, that shyned from the aulter.

So when this matter was knowen, it was tolde the kynge of Persia, that in the place where the prestes, which were led awaye, had hyd fyre, there apeared water in steade of fyre, and that Nehemias and his company hadde purified the sacrifices withal. Then the kynge consyderynge and ponderynge the matter dylygētly, made him a temple to proue the thynge that was done. And whē he founde yt so in dede, he gaue the prestes many giftes ād dyuerse rewardes: yee he toke theym wyth hys owne hand/ and gaue them. And Nehemias called ÿ same place Nephthar, which ys as moch to saye as a clensynge: but many men call it Nephi.

¶ How Jeremy hidde the tabernacle ÿ Arcke, and the aultare in the hil Of the .v. bokes of Jason cōteined in one.

¶ The .ii. Chapter.

IT is found also in ÿ writinges of Jeremi the prophet A that he commaunded them whiche were caried awaye to take fire, as it is shewde afore. He commaunded them also that they shoulde not forget the lawe & commaundementes of ẏ lord, & ẏ they shuld not in their myndes, wher they see images of siluer & gold wt their ornamētes. These and such other thinges cōmaunded he them, & exhorted hi, ẏ they shuld not let the lawe of God go oute of their hertes.

It is wrytten also, howe the prophete (at the cōmaūdemētes of god) charged thē/ to take the tabernacle & the arke wt them: & he went forth vnto ẏ moūtaine where Moises clymed vp, and saw the heretage of god. And whē Jeremy came there he founde an open caue, wherei he laid the tabernacle, the arke and ẏ aulter of incence, and so stopped the hole. There came certayn men together also

B following hi, to marke ẏ place, but they coulde not finde it.

Which when Jeremy perceaued, he reproued them saying: As for that place, it shalbe vnknowne, vntyll the tyme ẏ God gather his peple together agayn,

For he beynge a wyse man, handled honorably & wysely offerynge vnto God i ẏ halowyng of the temple, when it was

Some reade, Nehemias. In the Annotacions & wrytinges of * Jeremy, were these thinges put also, & how he made a lybrarye, & how hee gathered out of all countrees ẏ bookes of ẏ prophetes, of Dauid, the epystles of ẏ kynges, & of ẏ presentes. Euen so Judas also, loke what he lerned by experiēce of warre, & soch thinges as hath happened vnto vs/ he gathered them all together, and so wee haue them by vs.

If ye now desyre to haue the same, sende some body to fetch them vnto you. Where as we then are about to celebrate the puryficacyon, wee haue written vnto you. Therfore ye shall do well, yf ye kepe the same dayes. We hope also, ẏ the God (which delyuered his people/ and gaue them all the heretage, kyngedom, presthod and Sanctuary that he Deut.[illegible] promised them in the lawe) shal shortly haue mercy vpon vs, and gather vs together frō vnder the heauē in to his holy place: for he hath saued vs frō greate parels, and hath clensed ẏ place.

As concernynge Judas Machabeus & his brethren, the purification of ẏ greate temple, the dedicaciō of the aulter, yee and of the warres that concerne noble Antiochus and Eupator his sōne, of ẏ shynynges that came down frō heauen vpon those, which manfully de- 1.Ma.[illegible] fended the Jewes. For though they were but few, yet defēded they the whole lande, droue awaye ẏ enemyes hoost, recouered agayne the temple, that was spoken of thorowe out all the worlde/ delyuered the citie, doynge their best, ẏ the law of ẏ Lord which was put downe, might with all tranquilyte be restored agayne vnto the Lorde, that was so mercifull vnto thē. As touchyng Jason also of Ciren, we haue vnder taken compendiously to bring in to one boke, the thinges that were comprehended of him in fyue. For we considerynge ẏ multitude of the bokes, and howe harde it should be for theym that woulde medle

E wt stories and actes (ād that because of so diuerse matters) haue vnder taken so to comprehende the storyes: ẏ soch as are disposed to reade, myght haue pleasure and pastyme therin: and that they which are dilygent in soch thinges, myght the better thinke vpon them: yee and that whosoeuer readeth them, might haue profit therby.

Neuertheles we oure selues that haue medled with this matter for the shortenynge of it, haue taken no smal laboure, but great diligence, watchyng and trauaillig. Lyke as they that make a feaste, wolde fayne do other men plesure: Euē so we also (for manye mens sakes) are very wel content to take the labour, where as we maye shortly comprehende/ þ thynges þ other men haue truly written.

For he þ buyldeth an house anewe/ must prouyde for many thinges to þ whole buyldynge: but he that paynteth it afterwarde, seketh but only what is comly/mete and conuenient to garnysh it withall. Euen so do we also in lyke maner. And why? He that beginneth to wryte a story for þ fyrst, must with his understandynge gather þ matter together, set hys wordes in ordre, and dilygently seke out of euery parte: But he þ afterward wyl shorte it, vseth few wordes, and toucheth not the matter at þ largest. Let thys be sufficient for a Prologe, nowe will we begynne to shewe þ matter: for it is but a folysh thinge to make a longe Prologe, and to be short in the story it self.

¶ Of the honour done vnto the temple by the kynges of þ Gentyles. Symō uttereth what treasure is in the temple. Heliodorus is sent to take them away, he is stryken of God, and healed at þ prayer of Onias.

¶ The .iii. Chapter.

B What tyme as the holye cytee was in habyted i al peace and wealth, and when the laws were yet veri wel kepte. (For so was it ordened by Onias the hye preste and other godly men/that were enemyes to wic-

i. Es. iiii. a temple with great gyftes: In so moch þ Seleucus kynge of Asia of his awne rentes bare al þ costes belonging to the seruyce of the offringes. Then Symon of the trybe of BenJamin a ruler of the temple, laboured to worcke some myschefe in the citie: but þ hye prest resisted him.

i. Es. iii. b Neuertheles when he mighte not ouercome Onias, he gat him to Appolonius the sonne of Thersa (which then was chefe lord in Celosiria and Phenices) and tolde him that the treasurie in Jerusalem was full of innumerable money, and how that the comons goodes (wich belonged not vnto the offerynges) were exceadinge greate also: ye and how it were possible, that all these might come vnder the kinges power.

Now when Appolonius had shewed the king of the money, as yt was tolde him: þ kyng called for Heliodorus his steward, ād sent hi w a cōmaundemēt, B to bring hi n the same mony. Immedyatly Heliodorus toke his iourney, but vnder a colour, as though he wolde go to Celosiria a Phenices to visit the cityes, but his purpose was to fulfill the kynges pleasure: so whē he came to Jerusalem, and was louingly receaued of the hye prestes into the citie: he tould what was determened concerninge the mony, he asked also, yf it were so i dede. Then the hie prest tolde him that there was such money laid vp for the vp holding of widdowes, a fa herles childre, and how that a certaine of it belonged vnto Hircanus Tobias a noble mā: and of al þ mony (which þ wiked mā Simō had bewraied) there were .iiii. C. talentes of silver: a .ii. hundreth of goulde, yea and that it were vnpossible for those mens meaninge, to be disceaued, that had laide vp theyr monye, in the place and temple (which is had in great worship throw þ whole worlde) for the maintenaunce and honoure of the same Wherunto Helyodorus answered, that the kinge had commaunded hym in anye wyse to bringe him in the money. So that day appoited, Helyodorus entred into the temple, to ordre this matter C but ther was no smal feare throw out þ whole citie. The prestes fell downe before the aultare in theyr vestimentes, a called vnto heauen vpon hym wich had made a lawe concerning stuffe geuen to kepe, that they shoulde be safely preser- Exod. xxii. b ued, for such as committe them vnto kepinge. Then whoso had loked the hye prest in the face it wold haue greued his herte. For hys countenaūce and þ chaūging of hys color declared the inwarde sorow of hys mynde. The man was all in heuynes, and hys body in fear: wherby they that loked vpon him might perceaue the grefe of hys herte. The other people also came out of theyr houses bi heapes vnto the comen prayer, because the place was lyke to come into confusyon. The women came together throw the streates with heary clothes aboute theyr brestes.

The virgyns also that were kepte in, canne to Onyas, some to the walles, other some loked out of ye wyndows: ye D they all helde vp theyr handes towarde heauen, and prayd. A myserable thin-ge was it to loke vpon the comen people, and ye hye prest beynge in suche trouble. But they besought almyghty God that the goodes whiche were commytted vnto them, myght be kepte whole, for those that had delyuered them vnto their kepynge. Neuertheles the thynge yt Helyodorus was determed to do, yt perfourmed he in the same place, he him selfe personally beyng about the treasu-rye wyth his men of warre. But the spi-rite of almyghty God shewed hym selfe openly, so yt all they which presumed to obeye Heliodorus, fell thorow the pow-ii. Mach. x. a. xv. d. er of God into a greate fearfulnesse and drede. For there apeared vnto them an horse, wt a terryble man syttyng vpon hi decte in goodly aray, and the horse smote at Heliodorus wt his fore fete. Now he yt sat vpon the horse had harnesse of gold vpon hi. More ouer there appeared. ii. faire & beutifull yonge men in goodly araie which stod by him, scourged hi of both E the sides, and gaue hi many strypes wt out ceassing. With yt fel Heliodorus so-denly vnto ye ground. So they toke him vp (being compassed about wt grate darknes) & bare hi out vpon a beare. Thus he yt cam wt so many runners & men of warre into ye saide treasury was borne out, were as no man might helpe hi: and so the power of god was manifest and knowne. He laie stil domme also by ye power of God, destitute of all hope & life.
And they praised ye lord, yt he had shewed hys power vpon hys place and temple, which a lytle afore was ful of feare and trouble, & yet thorow the reuelacion of the almightie lord it was fylled wt ioye and gladnes. Then certayne of Helyodorus frendes prayed Onias, yt in all haste he wolde call vpon God, to graunte hi his life, which was geuig vp the goost. So i. Mo. xiiii. d the hye prest consydered the matter, and lest the king should suspecte yt the Iewes had done Heliodorus some euill he of-C fered an healthofferyng for hym.
Now when the hye prest had optained hys peticion, the same yong men in the same clothing appeared, and stode beside Heliodorus, sayeg: Thancke Onias the hie prest, for his sake hath the Lord graunted thee thy lyfe: therfore seing yt God hath scourged the, geue him praise and thanckes, and shewe euerye man hys myght and power. And when they F had spoken these wordes they appeared nomore.
So Heliodorus offered vnto God, made great vowes vnto hi, which had graunted hi his life, thanked Onias, to-ke hys hooste and wente agayne to the king. Then testifyed he vnto euery man of the greate worckes of God, that hee had sene wyth hys eyes. And when the kyng asked Helyodorus who were me-te to be sent yet ones agayne to Ierusalem/he sayde if thou hast anye enemye or aduersarye vnto thy realme/sende hym thether, and thou shalt haue him punished, yf he escape with hys lyfe: for in yt place (no doubt) there is a specyal powwer & working of god. For he that dwel leth in heauen, visiteth and defendeth ye place: & al yt come to do it harme/he punysheth & plageth them. Thys is now the mater concerning Helyodorus, & the kepinge of the treasury at Ierusalem.

¶ Simon reporteth euel of Onias. Iason desyring the office of the hye Prest corrupteth the king with rewardes. the wicked intent of Iason.

The. iiii. Chapter.

This Simon now of (whom we spake afore) being a be- A wrayer of ye money & of his ii. Mach. owne natural countre, reported the worste of Onias as though he had moued Heliodorus vnto this, & as though he had ben a bringer vp of euel. Thus was he not ashamed to cal hi an enemy of ye realme, that was so faythful an ouerseer & defender of ye citie and of hys people: yea and so feruet in the law of god, but whe the malice of Simon encreased farre, that thorow his frendes there wer certayn manslaugh-ters commited: Onias consydered ye pa-rell yt myght come thorow thys stryfe & how yt Appolonius (namely ye chef lord in Celosyria and Phenices) was all set vpon tyranny, and Symons malyce increaced ye same: he gat hi to the kynge not as an accuser of the cytesins, but as

as one that by hym selfe intended ẏ cō mon wealth of the whole multitude.
For he sawe it was not possible to lyue i peace, nether Symon to leaue of from his folyshnesse, excepte ẏ kynge dyd loke therto. But after the death of Seleucus, when Antiochus (which is cal led the noble) toke the kyngdome: Ja son the brother of Onias laboured to bee hye prest. For he came vnto the kyn B ge, and promised him thre hundreth & .lx. talentes of syluer, & of the other re tes .lxxx. talentes. Besydes this he pro mysed hym yet an. C. & .L. if he myght haue the schoole of the chyldren, & that he myght call them of Jerusalem Anti ochians. Which when the kynge had graunted, and he had gotten the superi orite, he beganne immediatli to drawe his kynsmen to the custome of the Hea then, put downe ẏ thynges that ẏ Je-wes had set vp of loue, by John ẏ father of Eupolemius/ which was sent embassytoure vnto Rome, for to make the bonde of frendshyppe and loue. He put downe all the Jewes and Lyberties of the Jewes/ and set vp the wicked statutes. He durst make a fyghtynge schole vnder the castel, and set fayre yōge men to learne the maners of whores and brothels.
Thys was now the begynninge of ẏ C Heathenysh and straunge conuersacyon, brought in thorow the vngracious & vnherd wickednes of Jason, which shal not be called a Preiste, but an vngodly person. Insomuch that ẏ prestes were now no more occupied aboute the seruice of the alter but despised ẏ tēple, regarded not the offeringes: yea gaue their diligence to lerne to fight, to wre-stel, to leape, to daunce, and to put at ẏ stone: not settinge by the honour of the fathers, but lyked the glory of ẏ Grekes best of al: for the which they stroue perelously & were gredy to folow their statutes ye they lust was in al thinges to be lyke them which afore wer theyr enemies and destroyers. Howbeit to do wickedly against the lawe of god shall not escape vnpunished: but of thys wee D shal speake here after.
What time as the Olimpyades spor-tes were played at Tyrus (the kynge him selfe beinge presente) this vngraci ous Jason sent wicked men, bearyng from them of Jerusalem (which now were called Antiochyans) iii. C. drachmas of syluer for an offerig to Hercules. These had they that caryed them, desyred vnder such a fashiō, as though they shoulde not haue bene offred, but bestowed to other vses. Neuertheles he that sent them/ sent them to the intēte that thei shuld be offred vnto Her cules. But because of those that were present, they were geuen as to the makyng of shyppes. And Appolonius the sonne of Nesteus was sent into Egyp-te, because of the noble men of kynge Ptolomy Philometor. Now when An-tiochus perceaued that he was put out from meddelynge in the realme he sought hys awne profyte, departed from thence, camme to Joppa, and then to Jerusalem: where he was honorably receaued of Jason and the cite, & was brought in wt torch lyght and with gre ate prayse: and so he turned his hoost vnto Phenices.
After iii. yeare Jason sent Menela E us, the foresayde Symons brother, to ii. Ma. iiii. beare the mony vnto the kyng, and to bringe him answere of other necessary matters. But he (when he was praysed of the kinge for magnyfying of his po wer) turned the Preesthode vnto him self, layinge vp .iii. C. talentes of syluer for Jason. So when he had gotten cō maundementes from the kynge, he cāe hauinge nothinge that becommeth a prest but bearing the stomack of a cruel tyraunt, and the wrath of a wylde brute beest. Then Jason (which had dysceaued his awne brother) seinge that he him selfe was begyled also, was fayne, to flee into the lande of the Ammonites and Menelaus gat dominyon. But as for the money ẏ he had promysed vnto the kynge, he dyd nothing therin/ whē Sostratus the Ruler of the Castell requyred it of him. For Sostratus was the man that gathered the customes: wherefore they were both called before the king. Thus was Menelaus put out of the presthode, and Lysimachus his brother cam in his stead. Sostra-tus also was made lord of ẏ Cyprians.

These were playes euery fyf te yere.

It happened in the meane season, ỷ the Tharsians and Mallocians made insurreccion, because they wer geuē for a presente vnto kynge Antiochus concubine. Then came the kynge in all the haste/to stil them againe, and to pacify the matter, leauinge Andronicus there to be his debyte, as one mete therfore. Now Menelaus supposig that he had gotten a ryght cōuenient tyme, stole certaine vessels of golde out of the temple, & gaue thē to Andronicus for a present and some he solde at Tyrus and in the C cyties therby.

Which when Onias knewe of a suertye, he reproued him: but he gat him i a Sanctuary beside Daphnis, that lyeth by Antioche. Wherfore Menelaus gat him to Andronicus/and praied hi ỷ he wolde slaye Onias. So when he cā to Onias, he coūcelled hym craftely to come out of the Sanctuary, geuyng hi his hand w an othe (howbe it he suspect him) and then he slew Onias, without any regarde of righteousnes. For the which cause not only ỷ Jewes, but other nacions also toke indignacyon, & were displeased for ỷ vnrighteous death of so godly a man.

And when the king was com againe from Cilicia, and the Jewes ād certayn of the Grekes went vnto him cōplaynyng for the vnrighteous deth of Onias. Yea Antiochus him selfe was sory in his mind for Onias, so ỷ it pitied hi and he wepte, remembrig his sobernes and manerly behauiour. Wherfore he was so kyndled in his mynd, that he cōmaūded Andronicus to be stripped out of his purple clothinge, and so to be led thorow out al the citie: yea and the vngracious man to be slayne in the same place, where he committed his wyckednes vpon Onias. Thus the lord rewarded him his punishment, as he had deserued. Now whē Lysimachus had done many wicked dedes in ỷ temple thorow the councel of Menelaus, and the voyce came abrode: ỷ multitude gathered them together against Lisimachus for he had caried out now much golde.

So when the people arose, and were full of displeasure, Lysimachus armed iii M. vnhappie men to defende him: a certayne tyraunt beynge theire captayne, which was growen bothe in age & wodnesse. But when the people vnderstod ỷ purpose of Lysimachus/ some gat stones, some good stronge clubbes, & som cast asshes vpon Lysimachus. Thus there were many of them wounded, some beynge slayne, and al the other chased away. But as for the wiked church robber him selfe, they kylled him beside the treasury. Of these maters therfore ther was kepte a courte agaynst Menelaus. Now when the kynge came to Tyrus, they made a cōplaynte vn to hi of Menelaus, concernynge this businesse, and the embassitours were thre. But Menelaus went & promised Ptolomy to geue him moche money, if he wolde persuade ỷ kynge. So Ptolomye went to the kinge into a courte (where as he was set to cole him) and broughte hym out of that mynd. In so much that he dyd discharged Menelaus from the accusacions that notwithstanding was cause of all mischiefe: and those poore mē which if they had tolde theyr cause ye before the Scythians they shuld haue ben iudged innocent, them he condempned to death. D

Thus were they soone punished, which folowed vpon the matter for the cytie, for the people, and for the holy vessel. Wherfore they of Tyrus toke indygnacyon, and buried them honorably. And so thorow the couetousnesse of them that were in power, Menelaus remayned styll in authoryte, increasinge in malyce, to the hurte of the cytesins.

Of the sygnes and tokens sene in Jerusalem. Of the vnkynd offence of Jason. The pursute of Antiochus against the Jewes. The spoiling of ỷ temple

¶ The. v. Chapter.

AT the same tyme Antiochus made hī ready againe to Egypte. Then were there sene at Jerusalem. xl. A dayes longe/ and horsmen runninge to and fro in the ayre/ which had raiment of golde, and speres. There were sene also whole hostes of men weponed, and horses runninge in an ordre howe they came together, how thei held forthe theire shyldes, how ỷ harnessed menne drewe oute their swerdes/and shot their dartes.

The

The shyne of the golden weapens was sene, and of al maner of armure.
Wherfore euery mā prayed, that those tokens might turne to good. Now whē there was gone forth a false rumour, as though Antiochus had ben deed: Jasō toke a .M. men, and came sodenly vpō the citie. The citisins came vnto ẏ wal-les, at the last was ẏ citie taken, & Me-nelaus fled into the castel.

B As for Jason he spared not his owne cytisyns in the slaughter, nether consydred he what greate euell it were to de-stroie the prosperite of his owne kynsmen: but dyd as one that had gotten the victory of his enemies, and not of Ma.iii.a his frendes. For al this gat he not the superiorite, but at the last receaued con fusyon for his malyce, and fled agayne lyke a vagabunde into the lande of the Ammonites.

Fynally, for a rewarde of hys wyckednes, he was accused before Aretha ẏ king of the Arabians: In so much that he was fayne to fle from cytie to cytye/beyng despysed of euery man as a forsa ker of the lawes, and an abhomynable person. And at the last (as an open ene my of his owne natural coūtre ād of ẏ cytisins) he was driuē away into Egipt.

Thus he that afore put many oute of their owne natyue land, perished frō home him selfe. He wente to La-cedemon, thynking there to haue gottē succour by reason of kindred. And he ẏ afore had casten many out vnburyed, was throwne out hī selfe, no mā mour-nyng for him, nor puttynge him in hys graue: so ẏ he nether enjoied the buryal of a straunger, nether was he pertaker of his fathers sepulcre.

D Now when this was done the king sus pecte, ẏ the Jewes wold haue fallen frō him: Wherfore he came in a greate dyspleasure out of Egipt, and toke the Mach.i.c. cytie by violence. He commaunded hys mē of warre also ẏ they shuld kyl ād not spare, but slaie downe suche as wtstode them, or clymmed vpon ẏ houses.

Thus was there greate slaughter of yong men, olde men, wemen, childrē and virgines. In iii. dayes were there slayne, lxxx. M. fourty thousand put in preson, and no lesse sold. Yet was he not content with this, but durst go in to the most holi temple (Menelaus that traytoure to the lawes and to hys owne naturall countreye, beinge hys gyde) and with his wicked handes toke the holye vessell, which other kynges and Cyties had geuen therher for the garnishing ād honour of the place: them toke he in his handes vnworthely, and defiled them.

So mad was Antiochus, that he cō sydered not, howe that God was a lytle wroth for the synnes of them that dwelte in the citie, for the whiche suche confusy on came vpon that place. And why? yf it had not happened thē to haue bene lap-ped in many synnes, this Antiochus (as soone as he had come) had sodenly bene Judith.v.a; ii.Ma.iii.b punished, and shut out for hys presumption, lyke as Helyodorus was, whoome Seleucus the king set to robbe the treasury. Neuertheles god hathe not chose the people for the places sake, but the place for the peoples sake: and therfore is the place become partaker of the peo ples trouble, but afterwarde shall it enioye the wealth of them. And like as it is nowe forsaken in the wrath of almyghtie God, so when the great God is recō siled it shalbe set vp in hye worship agai

So when Antiochus had taken a M viii. C. talentes out of the temple he gat C hym to Antioch in al the haste, thinkīg in hys pryde, that he myght make men saile vpon the drye lande, and to go vp on the see such an hye mynde had he. He lefte debities there to vexe the people: At Jerusalem left he Philyppe a Phry-gian in maners more cruel then hī self ẏ set hī ther: At Garisim he left Andronic & Menelaus: which wer more greuous to ẏ citezins then other. Now as he was thus set in malyce agaīst ẏ Jewes, he sēt Appolonius an hated prince, w. xxii. M cōmaunding hī to slay al those ẏ wer of perfect age and to sell the women, may-des and chyldren. When he came now to Jerusalē he fayned peace, & kepte hī styl vnto the Sabboth day: & thē he cō maunded his mē to take thē to theyr wepēs (for ẏ Jewes kepte holy day) & so he slew al thē ẏ wer gon forth to ẏ opē play running here and there thorow ẏ cytye, w. his men weapened, and murthered a greate nombre. But Judas Machabeus

he which was the tenthe, fled into the wildernes, led his life there with his cō pany amonge the wylde beastes & vpō the mountaines, dwellynge there, and eating grasse, lest they should be pertakers of the faithfulnes.

¶ The Jewes are compelled to leave y^e law of god The temple is defiled. The readers are monished y^t they shal not abhorre y^e aduersite wherewith the Lord afflicteth them. The greuous payne of Eleazerus.

A Not longe after this, sent y^e kinge a messaūger of antyoche, for to cōpell y^e Jewes to altre the ordinaūces of y^e fathers & y^e lawe of god, to defile y^e tēple y^t was at Jerusalē, & to cal it y^e tēple of Jupiter Olimpius: & y^t thei should be in Gazarim, as those which dwel at the place of Jupiter y^e herberous. This wiked sedicion of y^e vngodly was heuy vpō al y^e people: for y^e tēple was full of voluptuousnesse, bibbinge & bolling of y^e hethē / of ribaudes & harlottes together. The wemē were ito the holy place, & bare in y^t was not laufull.
The alter also was ful of vnlauful thinges which y^e lawe forbiddeth to laie vpon it. The Sabbothes were not kept, y^e other solēpne feastes of y^e lāde were not regarded. To be plaine, there durst no mā be a knowne y^t he was a Jewe. In y^e daie of y^e kinges birth they were cōpelled perforce to offer: & when y^e feaste of Bachus was kept, they wer cōstrained to weer garlādes of yuy, & so to go about for y^e honour of Bachus. Moreouer thorow y^e coūcel of Ptolomy, there wēt out a cōmaūdemēt in y^e next cities of y^e Heathē, y^t they shuld intreat y^e Jewes i like maner: namely, to cōpel thē for to do sa B crifice after y^e law of y^e Gētiles: ād who so wolde not, to put thē to death. A pyteous thing was it to se. There were .ii wemē accused to haue circūsised theyr sonnes, whō whē they had led roūde about y^e citie (y^e babes hāgig at their brestes) they cast thē doune headling ouer y^e walles. Some y^t wer crept into dēnes ād had kept y^e Sabboth, were accused vnto Philip, ād brent in y^e fire: be cause y^t for y^e feare of god they kept y^e cōmaūdemēt so stifly, & wold not defēd thē selues. Now I beseche al those which reade this boke, that they refuse it not for these falles of aduersite: & iudge y^e thynges ( that are happened) for no destruccion, but for a chastenyng of oure people.
And why? whē God suffred not sinners longe to folowe theyr owne mynde, but shortly punished them, it is a token of his greate louinge kyndnes. For thys grace haue we of God more then other people, that he suffreth not vs longe to sinne vnpunisshed like other nacions that when the Daye of Judgemente C commethe, he maye punish them in the fulnes of their synnes. If we synne, he correcketh vs, but he neuer withdraweth his merci from vs: and though he punish w^t aduersite, yet doth he neuer forsake his people. But lete this y^t we haue spoken now w^t few wordes, be for a warnyng and exortacion of y^e Heathē.
Now wil wee come to y^e declaryng of y^e matter. Eleazar one of the principall Scribes, an aged man & of a welfauored countenaūce, was constrayned to gape w^t open mouth & to eate swinesflesh But he desirig rather to dye gloriousli then to liue w^t shame, offred hi self willigly to the marterdō. Now whē he saw y^t he must nedes go to it, he toke it paciently: for he was at a poynte w^t hi selfe y^t he wold consent to no vnlawful thig for any pleasur of lyfe. They y^t stode by beig moued w^t pitie (but not aright) for hys noble and worshyppfull stocke, and of an honest & good conuersacion: yea & how constantly he had kepte the ordynaunces and Lawes Commaunded by god, wherfore he gaue thē thys answer and sayde: Yet had I rather first be layde in my graue. For it becometh not myne age (sayd he) in anye wyse to dissemble, wherby many yong persons myght thinke, that Eleazar being .lxxx. yere old ād .x. were now gone to a straunge lyfe and

and so thorow myne ypocrysy (for a litle tyme of transitorye lyfe) they might be disceaued by thys meanes, also shuld I defyle myne age, and make it abhominable. For though I were nowe delyuered from the tormētes of men yet shuld I not escape the hand of almyghty god nether alyue nor dead. Wherfore I wil
C dye manfully, and do as it becommethe myne age: wherby I may peraduenture leaue an exāple of stedfastnes for suche as be yonge, yf I with a readye mynde and manfully dye an honest deathe, for the moost worthy and holy lawes.

When he hadde sayde these wordes immediatlye he was drawen to the torment. Now they that led hym and were mylde a lytle afore, beganne to take displeasure because of the wordes that hee sayde, for they thoughte he had spoken thē of an hye mynde. But when he was in hys martirdomme, he mourned and sayd: Thou (O Lord) which hast the holy knoweledge, knowest openlye: that where as I myghte be delyuered from death, I suffre these sore paynes of my body: but in my mynde I am well content to suffre them because I feare the. Thus thys man dyed, leauing the memoryal of his death for an example, not onely vnto yonge men, but vnto all the people to be stedfast and manly.

The punishmēt of ye vii. brethren & of their mother

A It happened also that ther were vii. brethren (with theyr mother) taken and compelled bye the kinge against the lawe to eate swynes flesh: namely with scourges ād lethren whyppes. And one of thē which was ye chefe said, what sekest thou, & what requirest thou of vs? As for vs we are redy rather to suffre deathe thē to offēd ye lawes of god & ye fathers. Thē was ye kig angry, & bad heate caudrons & brasē pottes. Which whē they were made hot, imediatly he cōmaūded ye tong of hym that spake first to be cut out, to put the skinne ouer hys head, to pare of ye edges of his hādes & fete: yea & yt in ye sight of his mother & the other of his brethren. Now whē he was clean marred he cōmaunded a fire to be made & so (whyle ther was anye brethe in hi) to be fried in the caudron. In ye whiche when he had bene longe payned, the other brethren with their mother exhorted him to dye manfully, sayinge: The Lorde God shal regarde the treuth, ād comfort vs, lyke as Moses testyfyeth and declareth in hys songe, sayinge: and he wyll haue compassion on his seruauntes. Deut. xxxii. a

B So when the fyrste was deed after this maner, they brought the second to haue him in derision, pulled the skynne wt the hearre ouer his head, & asked hī if he wolde eate swines flesh, or he were pained in the other mēbres also thorow out hys body. But he answered boldly and saide: I wyl not do it. And so was he tormented lyke as the fyrst, and whē he was euen at the geuing vp ye goste he saide: Thou most vngracious persō puttest vs now to death, but the kynge of the world shal raise vs vp (which die for his lawes) in the resurrectiō of euerlastinge lyfe.

After him, was the third had in derision: as when he was required, he putt out his tonge, and yt right soone, houldyng forth his handes manfullye, and spake wt a stedfast faith: These haue I of heauen, but nowe for the lawe of God I despyse them, for my truste is, yt I shall receaue them of him againe. In so much that the king and they whyche were with him, marueyled at the yonge mans boldnesse, that he nothing regarded the paines. C

Now when he was deed also, they vexed the fourth with tormentes ī lyke maner. So when he was now at his death, he said: It is better, that we beynge put to death of men, haue our hope and trust in god, for he shal rayse vs vp againe. As for thee, thou shalt haue no resurrectiō to life. And whē they had spoken to ye fifth they tormented hym. Then loked he vnto the kyng, & said: thou hast power amōg men, for thou art a mortal man also thy selfe, to do what thou wilt but thinke not yt God hath forsakē our generacion. Abide thou, tary stil a while, and thou shalt se ye great power of God how he wil punish thee and thy sede. After him they brought ye sixte, whiche beinge, at the point of death, sayd: Be not

disceaued) O kynge (for this we suffre for our owne sakes, because we haue offended our God, & therfore marueilous thinges are shewed vpon vs. But thinke not thou, whiche takest in hand to stryue agaynst God, that thou shalt escape vnpunished. This excellent mother (worthy to be wel reported of, and D had in remenbraunce) saw her seuen sonnes dye in one daye / and suffered it paciently, because of the hoope that shee had in God: yet she exhorted eueri one of them in especyall, and that boldely & stedfastly wt perfite wisdome, wakynge vp her womans thought with a manly stomake / and sayde vnto them: I can not tell howe ye came in my wombe, for I nether gaue you brethe ner soule, no ner lyfe. It is not I that ioyned ye membres of your bodies together, but the maker of ye worlde, which fashioned the byrthe of man, & beganne all thinges. Euen he also of his owne merci shal geue you breathe and lyfe agayne lyke as ye now regarde not your owne selues for his lawes sake. Now thought Antiochus that she had despisedhim, therefore he let her go with her reproues, ad beganne tortoure the yongest sonne (which yet was left) not onli wt wordes but swore vnto him wt an ooth, that he shoulde make him a riche and welthye Manne (if hee woulde forsake the la- lawes of his Fathers.) yea and that he shoulde geue hym what socurt were ne-E cessary for hym. But when the younge man wolde not be moued, for all these thynges, he called hys mother, and counceled her to saue her Sonnes lyfe.

And when he had exhorted her wt many wordes, she promised him that shee shoulde speake vnto her sonne.

So she turned her vnto him (laughing the cruel tirannt to scorne, and spake wt a bolde voyce: O my sonne, haue pytie vp, on me, that bare the .ix. monethes in my wombe that gaue the socke, norished thee and broughte thee vp vnto thys age.

I beseche the (my sonne) loke vpon heauen and earth and al that is therin, and considre that God made them and mans generacion of nought: so shalte thou feare this hagman: but suffre deth stedfastly like as thy brethre haue done it, ye I mai recyue the agayn in the same mercy with thy brethren.

Whyle she was yet speaking these wordes, the yong man sayd: whome loke ye for? Wherfore do ye tary? I wyl not obeye the kinges commaundement, but the lawe that god gaue vs by Moises. Leuit. Deut.
As for thee that imaginest all mischeafe against the Jewes, thou shalt not escape the hande of god, for we suffre these F things because of oure sinnes.

And though god be angrye with vs a lytle wyle (for oure chastening and reformacion) yet shall he be at one agayn with his seruauntes. But thou (O shameful and moost abhominable person) Pryde not thy selfe throwe vayne hope in bring so malycious vpon the seruauntes of god: for thou hast not yet escaped the iudgemet of ye god which is almightye, and seeth all thinges. My bretheren that haue suffred a lytle paine are now vnder the couenaunt of euerlasting lyfe: but throwe the Judgemente of god, thou shalt be punished ryghteouslye for thy pride. Iud.

As for me (lyke as my bretheren haue don) I offre my soule and my bodie for the lawes of our fathers calling vpon God, that he wyll sone be mercyfull vnto oure people: yea and wyth payne and punishement to make the graunte that he onely is God. In me now and my Bretheren the wrathe of almightye God is at an ende, whiche righteouslye is fallen vpon oure people. ii. Mac.

Then the kinge being kindled in anger was more cruell vpon him then vpon all the other, and toke indignacion, that he was so lyghtly regarded.

So this yonge man dyed vndefiled, & put his trust styll in the Lorde. Last of al after the sonnes, was the mother put to death also. Let this now be ynough spoken concerning the offringes and extreame cruelnes.

Judas gathered to gether his host. Nicanor is sent agaynst Judas. Judas comforteth his souldears to stande. Nicanor is ouercom. The Jewes geue thanks after they had put their enemies to flyght, deuyding the spoyle vnto the fatherles & vnto ye wydowes. Nicanor fleeth vnto Antiochus.

The .viii. Chapter

A Then Judas Machabeus, & they that were wyth hym, went preuilye into the townes, called theyr kinsfolkes and frendes together, toke unto them all suche as continued yet in the fayth & law of the Jewes, & brought forth vi.M.men.

So they called upon the Lorde, that he woulde haue an eye unto hys people whiche was troden downe of euerye manne to be gracious unto the temple, that was defiled of the ungodly, to haue compassion upon the destruction, of the city, which was shortly like to be laied waste, to heare the voyce of the bloude that cryed unto him: to rememember the moste unrighteous deathes of yong innocēt childrē, ẏ blasphemyes also don unto his name, and to punysh them.

Now when Machabeus had gathered thys multitude together, he was to mightye for the heathen (for the wrath of the Lorde was turned into mercy) he fel upon the townes ād cities unawares, brent them, toke the moost commodious places / and slew many of the enemies. But speciall he made much chasses by night, in so much that his manlynesse was spoken of euery where.

B So when Phylippe sawe that the manne encreaced by lytle and lytle, and that the Matter prospeared wyth hym for the moost parte he wrote unto Ptolomy (which was a captayne in Celosyria and Phenices) to help hi in the kinges busynes. Thē sent he Nicanor Patrocly (a specyal frende of hys) in all ẏ haste, and gaue hym of the comen sorte of the heathen no lesse then xx.M. harnessed men, to route out ẏ whole generacyon of the Jewes, hauing to help hi one Gorgias, a man of warre, which in matters concerning battels had greate experiēce. Nicanor ordened also ẏ trybute (which the Romaynes shulde haue had) to be geuen unto the kinge, out of the captiuitye of the Jewes, namelye ii M. Talentes. And immedyatly he sent to the cytees of the see coast requiringe them for to bye Jewes to be theyr seruauntes & bondmen, promysing to sell them, lxx and ten for one talent: but he considred not the wrath of almightye god that was come upon hym.

C When Judas knew of this, he told the Jewes that were wyth hym of Nycanors commynge. Now were there some of them fearfull / not trustinge unto the rightuousnes of God and fledde their waie.

But the other that remayned, came together and besought the Lord to delyuer them from that wicked Nicanor, which had solde theym or euer he came nye them: and though he wolde not do it for their sakes, yet for the couenaunt that he made with their fathers, and because they called upon hys holy & glorious name. And so Machabeus called his men together, namely about vi M exhorting them not to agre unto theyr enemyes nether to be a fraid for ẏ multitude of their aduersaries comming agaynst thē unrighteously, but to fight manly, considering the reprofe ẏ they had done to the holy place wt out cause how they had dispised and oppressed ẏ cytye, yea and destroyed the Lawes of the fathers. For they (saide he) trust in their weapons and boldnesse, but oure cōfidence is in the almightey lord which in the twincklyng of an eye maye bothe destroie them that come againste us, & al the worlde. Jere.xvii.b. Psalm.xx.b

D He exorted them also to cal to remēbraunce the help, that God shewed unto their fathers: as when there perished an C. and lxxxv. M of Sennacherybes people: And of the batail that they had in Babilon against ẏ Gallacians: how ẏ al the Macedonyans ẏ came to helpe them, stode in feare: and how they beig but onely, vi. M slewe an C and xx. M thorow the help that was geuen theym from heauen, wherby they also had receaued many benefites. iiii.re.xix.g. Esa.xxxvii.f. i.Mac.vii.e Thorow these wordes the men toke good hertes unto them, ready to dye for the lawe and the countre. So he set upon euery company a captaine, one of his owne brethern: Symon, Joseph ād Jonathas: geuinge ech one xv.C men. He caused Esdras also to reade the holy boke unto them / and to geue them a token of the helpe of god. i.Ma.iiii.b

Then he him selfe being captayne in

the fore fronte of the battail, buckled wt Nicanor. And God was their helpe, in so much yt they slew aboue. ix. M men and cõpelled ye more parte of Nicanors host to flee, they were so wounded and E feable. Thus they toke ye moneye from those yt came to bye them, and folowed vpon them on euery syde. But when the tyme came vpõ them, they returned, for it was the Sabbath/ ytherfor they folowed nomore vpon thẽ. So they toke their weapons and spoyles and toke ye Sabbothes, geuing thãckes vnto the Lord, which had delyuered them yt day, Num, xxxi.b ii, reg. viii, c Deut, xx, b, and shewed them his mercy. After the Sabbath they distributed ye spoyles to the sycke, to the fatherles and to wyd-dowes, and the resydue had they them selues wt theirs. When this was done, and they al had made a general praier: they besought the mercyful Lord to be at one with his seruauntes.
Of those also that were wt Tymo-theus and Bachides, which fought against them, they slewe. xx. M wãne hie & strong holdes, & destroied moo spoy-les: euer geuing an equal porcion vnto the sicke, to the fatherles to widdowes & to aged persons. And when they had F diligently gathered their weapens together, they laied them all in conueniẽte places, and the remnaunt of the spoiles broughte they to Jerusalẽ. They slew Philarches ye wicked persõ, which was wt Timotheus/ a had vexed many Je-wes. And when thei held ye thanckesgeuinge, at Jerusalem for ye victory they brent those that set fire vpon the portes of the tẽple: namely Calisthenes, whych was fled into an house: & so they gat a worthy rewarde of their wickednes.
As for that moost vnworthy Nycanor which had brought a M. marchauntes to bye the Jewes, he was thorowe the help of the Lord brought downe, euen of them whõ he regarded not: in so much yt he put of his glorious rayment/ fled by sea, and came alone to Antioch wyth greate shame and dyshonoure, which he gat thorow ye destruccion of his host.
Thus he yt promised the Romaines to paie them their trybute, when he toke Jerusalem: began now to saye planely that god was the defender of the Jew-es, and therfore not possible to wounde them, because they followed the lawes whych god had made.

Antiochus wyllyng to spoyle Persopolys is dry-uen to flyght. As he persecuteth the Jewes, he is stryken of the Lorde. The fayned repentaunce of Antiochus. He dyeth.

The ix. Chapter.

At the same tyme came An-tiochus agayne with dysho- A nour out of Persis: for whẽ i. Mac. vi. he came to Persepolys, and vndertoke to robbe the temple, and to subdue the cytie, the People came together and defended them sel-ues, in so muche that he and hys were fayne to fle with shame. And so after ye flyght, it happened, that Antiochus came agayne wt dishonour. But when he came to Eghbathana, he gat knowledg what was happened vnto Nicanor and Timotheus. Now as he was aduauncynge hym self in hys wrath, he thought he was able to aduenge the iniury that was done to them, vpon the Jewes: & therfore commaunded to make readye his charet, hasting in hys iourney wythout ceassinge, the iudgement of god prouo-king hi because he had spoken so proudly, that he wolde come to Jerusalem, and make it a graue of the Jewes. But the lord god of Israel that seeth all thiges, smote him with an inuisible plage, which no man coulde heale.
For as sone as he had spokẽ these wor- B des there came vppon hym an horryble payne of his bowels, and a sore grefe of the charmes. And that was but ryghte: for he had martyred other mẽs bowels with dyuerse and straunge tormentes, how be it he wolde in no wyse ceasse frõ his malyce. Yea he was yet the prouder and more malicious against the Jewes.
But while he was commaunding to ma ke haste in the matter, it happened that he fel down vyolentlye from the charet so that it brosed hys body, and dyd him great payne.
And so he that thought he myght commaunde the floudes of the see (so prou-de was he beyond the condition of mã) and to weye the hye mountaynes in a paire of scoales, was now brought doune to the grounde, and caryed vppon an horslitter, knowledging the manyfest power of god vpon him: so that þ wycked bodye of hys was full of wormes, which in his paine fel quick out of hys flesh: In so muche that his hooste was greued with the smel and stinke of him. Thus he that a lytle afore thought he might reache vnto the starres of heuē, him might no mā now abide nor heare, for the vehemence of stynke.

Therfore he beyng brought from his great pryde, beganne for to come to knowleg of hi selfe: for the punishment of god warned him, and hys paine increased euer more and more. And when he hi selfe might not abyde his owne stincke, he saide these wordes: It is reason to be obedient vnto god, and that a mā desire not to be like vnto him. Thys wicked person prayed also vnto þ lord of whom he shoulde haue optained no mercy. And as for the citie that he came vnto so hastely, to bring it downe to the groūd, and to make it a graue for dead men: Nowe he desyreth to delyuer yt free.

And as touching the Jewes, whome he had iudged not worthy to be buried, but wold haue cast thē out for to be deuoured of the foules & wild beastes, sayenge, that he wold haue destroyed both olde & yōg: Now he promiseth, to make them lyke the citiling of Athens. And wher as he had spoiled the holy temple afore, nowe he maketh promyse to garnysh it w greate giftes, to increase the holi ornamentes, and of his owne rētes to beare the coastes, and charges belōging to the offerynges: yea and that he wolde also become a Jewe him self, to go thorow euery place of the world, ād to preache the power of god.

But when hys paynes wold not ceasse (for the righteous iugmēt of God was come vppon hym) oute of a verye dyspaire he wrote vnto the Jewes a letter of intercession/conteynig these wordes: The kyng and prince Antiochus wysheth vnto þ uertuous citesins of þ Jewes, much health and good psperyte.

If ye and your children fare well, and yf al thinges go after youre mynd: wee geue great thanckes. In my sycknesse also doo J remembre you louigly: for as J came out of Persia, and was taken wyth sore disease: J thought it necessarye to care for the cōmen wealth. Neyther despayre J in my selfe, but haue a good hoope to escape thys sicknes.

But consydering that my father led an hoost somtime in the hyer places, ād shewed who shoulde raygne after hym, that (yf there happened any controuersye, or any harde thing were declared) they in the lande myghte knowe theyr chefe Lord, that there shoulde be no insurrection: Agayne, when J poudre by my selfe, how that all the myghtye men & neyghbours rounde aboute, are layinge wayte, and loke but for oportunitie to do harme: J haue ordeyned that my sonne Antiochus shal raygne after me, whome J often commended to many of you, when J was in the hyer kingdomes, and haue written vnto hym as it foloweth here after. Therfore J pray you and require you, to remēber the benefittes that J haue done vnto you generally and in especyall. For J hope þ he shalbe of sober/ & louing behauiour, and yf he folowe my deuice, he shalbe indifferent vnto you.

Thus that murtherer and blasphemer of God was sore smytten: and lyke as he had entreated other men/so he died a miserable death in a straunge coūtree vpon a mountaine. And hys bodye dyd Phylyppe (that wente wyth hym) cary awaye: which fearing the sonne of Antiochus, wente into Egipte to Ptolomy Phylometor.

¶ Judas Machabeus taketh the citie & the temple. He beginneth to shew þ actes of Eupator. The Jewes fyght agaynst the Idumeans: Timotheus sugdeth Jewry, w whome Judas ioyneth battel. v. men apeare in the ayre, to the helpe of the Jewes. Timothy is slayne.

The .x. Chapter.

Machabeus now ād hys company (throw the help of the lord) wanne the temple and the citye agayne, destroyed the aulters and chapels that the heathen had buylded thorow the stretes: clensed the temple, made an other aulter of bryche stone, and after two yeares they offered sacryfices, set forth the incence, the lyghtes & shew dread. When that was don, they fel dow ne flat vpon the grounde, and besought the Lorde, that they myght come no more in to soch trouble: but yf they synned eny more agaynst him, he him self to chasten thē wt mercy, & not to come in ye handes of ye aleauntes ād blasphemous men.

B Nowe vpon the same daie that the straungers poluted the tēple it happened that on the verye same daye it was i.Ma.iiii. clensed agayne: namely, the .xxv. day of the moneth called Casleu. They kepte viii daies in gladnesse, lyke as in the feast of the tabernacles: remembringe ye not longe afore, thei helde the feast of ye tabernacles vpon the mountaines and in dennes like beastes. And to the same token they bare greene bowes, braunches ād palmes before him that had ge-uē them good fortune to clense his place. They agreed also together, & made a statute, ye euery yere those dayes shuld be solēply kept of all ye people of ye Jewes.

Now Antiochus then (that was called the noble) died, it is sufficiently told.
Now wil we speke of Eupator the sonne of that wicked Antiochus, howe it happened wyth him: and so with few wordes to comprehende the aduersite that chaunsed in the warres. When he had taken in the kyngdome, he made one Lisias (which had bene captaine of the host in Phenices and Siria) ruler ouer the matters of the realme. For Ptolomi that was called Macrō, beinge a ruler for the Jewes (and speciallli, to sit in iudgment for soch wronge as was done vnto them) vnder toke to dea le peaceably with them. For the which cause he was accused of the frendes before Eupator: and whē he was suspec-te to be a traytour (because he had left Cipres that Philometor had commytted vnto him: and because he departed from noble Antiochus, that he was co me vnto) he poysoned hi selfe, & died.

C Now when Gorgias was gouer-nour of the same places, he toke straun gers and vnder toke oftimes to warre i.Ma.v.a wyth the Jewes. Moreouer ye Idumeans that helde the stronge holdes, rece-aued those that were dryuen from Jeru salem, and toke in hande to warre also.
But they that were with Machabeus besoughte and praied vnto the lorde, ye he wold be their helper: and so they fell into the strong holdes of ye Idumeās, & wan many places by strength: Soch as came against thē they slew, and kyl-led no lesse (of al together) then twenty M. Neuertheles some, no lesse then .x. thousand, were fled in two strong tow-res, hauing al maner of ordinaunce to with stande them.

Then Machabeus leauing Symō D Josephus, zachaus ād those that were wt them (which were very many) wente to besege them, & to fight where moost nede was. Now they ye were wt Symō, beyng led wt couetousnesse, were intre-ated for money, throw certaine of those ye laye in ye towres: toke .lxx. M. drachmas, & let som of thē escape. But whē it was tolde Machabeus what had happened, he called ye captaines of ye people together, accusing those persones, ye thei had sold ye brethrē for money, & let their enemies go. So he slew those traitores & immediatly went i hād wt ye .ii. towres ād whē they had ordred thē selues ma-ly wt their weapēs & hādes, they slew i two castels moo then .xx. M.

Now Timotheus whō the Jewes had ouercome afore, gathered a multy- i.Mach.v. ii.Ma.viii tude of straūg people, brought an host also of horsmen of ye Assirians, to winne Jewry by strenght: But when he drewe nye, Machabeus & they ye were wt him E i.Ma.xi. fell into their praier, sprinckled asshes vp on their heades, being girded with hea-rye cloth about their loines, fell downe before the aulter, and besought ye lorde that he would be mercyful to them, but an enemy vnto their enemies, and to take parte against their aduersaryes, ac-cordyng as it is promised in the lawe.
So after the praier thei wēt on further from the citie: and when they came nye the enemies, they prepared them selues against them.

And by tymes in the mornynge at ye breake of the daye, both the hostes buekled together. The one parte had the Jere.xvii.
Lord for their refuge, which is ye geuer of prosperite, strength and vyctory.

The other had a manly stomack, which is a captayne of warre.

The battail now beynge great, there appeared vnto the enemyes frō heauen v. men vpon horsbackes wt brydles of golde, leadīg the Jewes, and two of thē hauyng Machabeus betwixte them, ye kepte hym safe on euery syde with theyr weapons, but shot dartes and lightenynges vpon the enemyes: wherthorow they were confounded with blindnes & so sore afraied, that they fel downe. There were slaine of fote men twentye thousand and fyue hundreth / and syxe hundreth horsmen. As for Timotheus hi self, he fled vnto Gazar a very strōg F hold, wherin Cereas was captain. But Machabeus and hys companye layed sege to it chearfully .iiii. dayes.

Now they that were within trustīg to the strength of the place, cursed and banned exceadinglye, and made greate crakynge wt wicked wordes. Neuerthelesse vpon the fifth daie in the mornynge .xx. yonge men of Machabeus companye, beynge sette on fyre in their myndes because of the blasphemy came manfully vnto the wal, and with bolde stomackes they and their other companions clymmed vp vpō the towres, vndertakīg to set fire vpon the portes / & to burne those blasphemous persones quicke. Two daies were they destroiēg the castel, which when they founde Tymotheus (that was crepe into a corner) they killed him, and slewe Cereas hys brother in like maner with Appollophanes. Whē this was done, they sunge psalmes, wt praises & thākes geuīges vnto the lord, which had done so great thinges for Israel, and geuen them the vyctorye.

Lysias goeth aboute to ouercome the Jewes, but come is sent from heauen vnto the Jewes. The letter of Lysias to the Jewes. The letter of kinge Antiochus vnto Lisias. A letter of the same vnto ye Jwes. A letter of the Romaynes to the Jewes.

The xi. Chapter.

A NOt long after this, Lysias the kynges steward and a kynsmanne of hys (whiche had the gouernaūce of his matters) toke sore displeasure for the thynges that had happened: and whan he had gathered .lxxx. M. men of fote with al the host of the horsmen / he came agaynst the Jewes, thynkynge to wynne the Cytie, to make it an habytacion for the Heathen, and the temple wolde he haue to be an house of lucre, lyke as the other goddes houses of the Heathen are / and to sel the prestes offyce & euery yeare: Not consideryng the power of God, but was wylde in hys mynde / trustynge in the multitude of fote men / in thousandes of horsmē, and in his .lxxx. Elephantes. Jhon.ii.b.

So he came in to Jewry and then to Bethsura (a castell of defence lyinge in a narow place .v. furlonges from Jerusalem) and wanne it. Now when Machabeus and his company knew that ye stronge holdes were taken, they fell to their prayers with wepyng and teares before the Lorde: And all the people in lyke maner besoght him / that he wolde sende a good angell to deliuer Israel. Machabeus hym selfe was the fyrst that made him ready to the battayll / exortyng the other that were with him, to ieoperde thē selues and to help their brethrē. And whē he was goynge forth of Jerusalē together with a redy and wyllyng mynde, there apeared before them vpon horsback a mā in whyte clothyng with harnesse of golde, shakynge his speare. Then they praysed ye Lorde all together, which had shewed thē mercy, & were comforted i their myndes: in so moche that they were ready not only to fyght with men, but with ye most cruel beastes, ye and to runne thorowe walles of yron. B

Thus they went on willingly hauinge an helper from heauen, and the Lorde mercifull vnto them. Thei fell mightely vpon their enemies like lions, brought downe .xi. M. fote men .xvi. C. horsmen, put al the other to flight, mani of them being wounded, & some gat awai nakedde. Yee Lisias him selfe was faine to fle shamefully, & so to escape. Neuerthelesse the mā was not with out vnderstanding, but considered bi him selfe that his power was mynished and pondred how the Jewes beynge defended bi the helpe of Almighti God, were not C able to be ouercome: wherfore he sent them word, and promysed, that he wol-de consente to all thynges which were reasonable, and to make the kyng their fred. To ẏ which praier of Lysias Ma-chabeus agreed seyng in al thynges ẏ comen welth: and what soeuer Machabeus wrote vnto Lysias concernynge the Iewes, the kyng graunted it. For there were letters wryte vnto the Iew-es from Lysias conteynyng these wor-des.

Lysias sendeth greating to the peo-D ple of Iewes. Ihon and Absalon which were sente from you, delyuered me wrytynges, and requyred me to fulfyll the thynges concernyng their arande. Therfore loke what myghte be graunted, I certifyed the kynge thereof: and whatsoeuer was conuenient, I agreed therto, If ye now wyl be faithful in the maters.
I shal endeuer my selfe herafter also to do you good. As concernyng other thin-ges by euerye article therof: I haue cōmytted them to youre messaungers: & to those whom I sent vnto you to commen with you of ẏ same/ fare ye wel, In ẏ hundreth & .xlviii. yeare, ẏ .xxiiii. daye of ẏ moneth Dioscorinthius.

Now the kinges letter conteyned these wordes. Kynge Antiochus sendethe greating vnto his brother Lisias. For somoch as our father is now deed/ oure wyl is/ that they which are in oure realme, lyue without eny insurreccyon, and euery man to be dyligent in his owne matters. We vnderstande also/ that ẏ Iewes wolde not consente to oure father, for to be brought vnto the custome of the Gentyles, but stedly to kepe their owne statutes: for the which cause they requyre of vs also, to lette thē remay-ne styll by their awne lawes.
E Wherfore our minde is, that this people shalbe in rest: we haue concluded & determined also/ to restore them their temple agayne: that they may lyue accordyn-ge to the vse and custom of their forefathers. Thou shalt do vs a pleasure therfore, yf thou sende vnto them and agre with them:
That whē they are certified of our mīd they maye be of good chere, and loke to their ownewealth.

And thys was the letter that the kynge wrote vnto the Iewes: kynge Antiochus sendeth greatig vnto the councel & the other people of the Iewes: Yf ye fare well, we haue oure desyre: as for vs we are in good health. Menelaus came and tolde vs, how that your desyre was to come downe to youre people, whiche are wyth vs.
Wherfore those that wyl come, we wyll geue them fre lybertie, vnto the .xxx. day of the moneth of Aprill, that they maye F vse the meates of the Iewes and their owne lawes/ lyke as afore: and none of thē by any maner of wayes to haue har-me, for thynges done in ignorāūce. Me-nelaus whome we haue sent vnto you, shall comen with you at large, fare ye well, In the .Cxlviii. yeare, the .xv. day of the moneth Aprill.

The Romaynes also sent a letter, cōteynyng these wordes: Quintus Men-tius and Titus Manilius, Embassytoures of the Romaynes, sende grea-ting vnto the people of the Iewes. Loke what Lisias ẏ kinges kinsman hath graunted you, we graunt you the same also. But as concernynge the thynges whych be referred vnto the king, sede hyther some wyth spede, and pondre the matter dylygently amonge your sel-ues that we maye cast the best to youre profyte, for we must departe now to Antioch. And therfore wryte shortly agayne, that we maye knowe youre mynde: Fare well. In the Cxlviii. yeare, the .xv day of the moneth of Aprill.

Timotheus troubleth the Iewes. The wicked dede of the Ioppites against the Iewes: Iudas is auenged of them. He setteth fire on the gate of Iamnya The pursuyte of the Iewes against Timothye. Timothy is taken and let go vnhurt. Iudas pursueth Gorgias. Iudas offring sacrifice for the deth sheweth the hope of the resurrection

The .xii. Chapter.

When these couenauntes were made, Lisias wente vn- A to the king, and the Iewes tylled the yre grounde, but Tymotheus, Apolonius the sonne of Gennei, Ierom and Demophon the proude, Nicanor the capetayne of Cypres, and they that laye in those places woulde not let them lyue in reste and peace. They of Ioppa also did euē such a shamful dede. They prayed the Iewes that dwelt amōg them, to go wt their wiues ād children into the shippes which they had prepared, and did with thē, as though they had oughte thē no euel wil. For so much thē as ther was gone forth a general proclamaciō thorow the citie because of peace, they consented therto, and suspect nothing but when they were gone forth into ÿ depe, they drouned no lesse then .ii. hundreth of them.

When Iudas knewe of this cruelty shewed vnto his people, he commaunded those that were wyth him to make them ready, exhortyng them to call vpō god the righteous iudge: went forth against those murthurers of his brethrē, set fyre in ÿ hauen by night, brent vp ÿ shyppes, and those that escaped from ÿ fyre, he slew wt the swearde. And whē he B had don thys, he departed as thoughe he welde come agayne and rote out al them of Ioppa. But when he had gettē worde that the Iamnites were minded to do in lyke maner to the Iewes which dwelt among them, he came vpon ÿ Iamnites by nighte, and set fire in the hauen wt the shippes: so that ÿ lyghte of the fyre was sene at Ierusalem, vpō a .ii. C. & .xl. furlonges.

Now when they were gone frō thēce ix. furlonges, in their iourney towarde Timotheus. v M. men of fote ād .v. C horsmen of the Arabians foughte with him. So when the battail was earnest & prospered wt Iudas thorow ÿ help of God: ÿ residue of ÿ Arabiās beig ouercome, besought Iudas to be at one wt them, and promised to geue him certain pastures, and to do hym good in other thinges. Iudas thinkynge that they shoulde in deade be profytable concernynge manye thynges, promysed them peace: wherevpon they shoke handes, and so they departed to their tentes. Iudas went also vnto a citie, which was verye faste kepte wyth brydges, fensed rounde a bout wyth walles, and diuers kyndes of people dwellynge therin, cal
C led Caspin.

They that were wythin it, put soch trust in the strēgth of ÿ walles, & i their stoare of vittayles: that they were the slacker in theyr doinges, cursynge and reuylyng Iudas with blasphemyes, and speaking such wordes as it becommeth not. But Machabeus callynge vppon the greate Prince of the worlde (whych wythout any battayll rammes or ordynaunce of warre, did cast down the walles of Iericho, in the tyme of Iosue) fel Iosue. vi. a manfully vpon the walles, toke the citie, & (thorow the helpe of the Lord) made an exceading great slaughter: in so muche that a lake of two fourlongs broade which laye therby, semed to flowe wyth bloude of the slayne.

Then departed they from thence. vii C. and L. fourlonges, and came to Caraca, vnto the Iewes that are called Tubianei. But as for Timotheus, they coulde not gett hym there: for (not one mater dispatched) he was departed frō thence, and had lefte certayne menne in a verye stronge holde. But Dositheus and Sosipater, which were capteynes wyth Machabeus slew those that Tymotheus had lefte in the house of defēce, euen ten thousand men. And Machabeus prepared hym wyth the .vi. thousand men that were aboute hym, set thē in ordre by companyes, and went forth agaynst Timotheus, whyche had with hym an C. and xx. thousand men of fote, ii. M. and v. C. horsmen.

When Timotheus had knowledge of Iudas comming, he sent the women, D chyldren and the other baggage vnto a castel called Carnyō (For it could not be wonne, and was harde to come vnto, the ways of the same places were so narow) and when Iudas company came first in sight, the enemyes were smitten with feare, thorow the presēce of god whych seeth all thynges: In soo muche ÿ they fleyng one here, an other there, were rather discomfited of theyr owne people, and wounded with the strockes of their owne swerdes. Iudas also was very earnest in folowing vpō the punyshing those vngodly, and slewe .xxx. M. Iudith. vii. c / i. Reg. xiiii. c / ii. Para. xx. b men of them. Tymotheus also hym self fell into the handes of Dositheus and Sosipater whome he besoughte wyth many prayers, to let hym go wyth hys lyfe: because he had many of the Iewes fathers and brethren in preson, which (yf they put hi to death) myght be disapoynted. So when he had promysed faythfully to delyuer the agayne acordinge to the condicion made, they let hi go without harme, for the health of the bretheren. And when Judas had slayn xxv. M. he went from Carnion.

Now after that he had chased away
C and slayne hys enemyes, he remoued ẏ hoost towarde Ephron a stronge cytye, wherin dwelte many dyuerse people of the heathen, and the stronge yonge mẽ kepte the walles, defendyng them myghtelye. In this citie was much ordinaunce, and prouision of dartes. But when Judas ⁊ hys companye had called vpon almyghty god (which with hys power breaketh the strength of the enemies) they wanne the cytie, and slewe xxv. M. of them, that were withi. From thence went they to the citie of the Scithians, which lyeth .vi C. furlonges from Jerusalem. But whẽ the Jewes which were in the cytie testifyed, that the cytesyns dealte louingly with them, yea and intreated them kindly in ẏ tyme of their aduersitie. Judas and hys companye gaue them thanckes desyring theym to be frendly styll vnto theym: and so they came to Jerusalem the hye feast of the wekes beinge at hande. And after ẏ feast they wẽt forth against Gorgias the gouernour of Idumea, wyth .iii. thousãd men of fote, and .iiii. C. horsmẽ. Whiche when they met together: it chaunsed a fewe of the Jewes to be slayne.
D And Dositheus one of the Bacenors a myghti horsman of Thracia fell vpõ him/ and smote of his arme, so that Gorgias escaped ⁊ fled i to Morosa. Whẽ they now ẏ were of Gorgias syde, had foughte longe and were weary: Judas called vpon the Lorde that he wolde be theyr helper, ⁊ captayne of ẏ felde: and w that, he beganne with a manly voyce to take vp a song of prayse, ⁊ a crie, In so moch that hee made the enemyes afrayed, and Gorgias men of warre to ke theyr flyghte. So Judas gathered his host, ⁊ came in to the cytie of Odolla ⁊ whẽ the seuenth daye came vpõ the ẏ clensed thẽselues (as the custome was) ⁊ kepte the Sabboth in the same place. And vpon the daye folowinge, Judas and his companye came to take vp the bodies of them that were slaine, and to bury them in the fathers graues. Nowe vnder the cotes of certaine Jewes whiche were slayne, they founde Jewels ẏ they had taken oute of the temple and from the Idoles of the Iamnites: whiche thing is forbiddẽ the Jewes by the lawe. Then euery man saw ẏ this was the cause/ wherfore they were slayne. C

And so euery man gaue thankes vnto the Lord for his righteous iudgmẽt which had opened the thynge that was hid. They fel downe also vnto their prayers, and besoughte God, the fawte which was made, might be put oute of remembraunce. Besydes that, Judas exorted the people earnestly, to kepe thẽselues from suche a synne: for so muche as they saw before their eyes, that these men were slaine, for the same offence. So he gathered of euery one a certain in so muche that he broughte together two thousand drachmas of siluer, which he sent vnto Jerusalẽ, ẏ there might a sacryfice be offered for ẏ misdede. In the which place he dyd wel and righte: for he had some consideracion and pondring of the lyfe that is after this time. For yf he had not thoughte that they/ which were slain, did yet lyue/ it had bene superfluous ãd vayne, to make anie vowe or sacrifyce, * for them, that were dead. But for so much as he saue, that they whiche dye in the fauoure and beleue of God, are in good rest and ioye; he thought it to be good and honorable for a reconciling, to do ẏ same for those which wer slain, that the offence might be forgeuen.

* Judge vpon this place whether ẏ opinion doth seme to praye for the deede, as to bee baptised for the i. Corin. xv. d. which thynge was onely done to confirme the hope of the resurreccyon of ẏ deed, not to delyuer the sowles payne. S. Paul dyd not alow ẏ ceremony of Christenyng for the ded, no more doth any place of the canonycal Scripture alow these many of offerynge for the deed.

Furthermore: This hole boke of Machabees, ⁊ specyally this second is no sufficient autorite to make an article of our fayth: as it is before sufficiently proued by the authorite of S. Jerome in the prolog of these bokes called Apochripha.

¶ The commynge of Eupator in to Iewry. The deeth of Menelaus. Machabeus goyng to fyght agaynst Eupator, moueth his souldiers vnto prayer. He killeth xiiii. thousande men in ẏ tentes of Antiochus. Rhodocus the betrayer of the Jewes is taken. Antiochus maketh frendship with ẏ Jewes

¶ The .xiii. Chapter.

3 In the .C.xlix. yere gat Iudas knowlege, that Antiochus Eupator was commynge wyth a greate power in to Iewry, and Lysias the stewarde and ruler of his matters with hym: hauyng an .C. x. x. M. men of fote. v. M. horsmen. xxii. Elephantes, and .iii. C. charettes. Menelaus also ioyned him self wyth them (but wyth greate dyssease) and spake fayre to ý kynge, not for eny good of the countre, but because he thought to haue bene made som greate man, of auctorite. But the kinge of kinges moued Antiochus mynd agaynste thys vngodly persone, and Lysias infourmyd the kynge, that thys Menelaus was the cause of all myschefe: so ý the kynge commaunded to take him, and (as the maner of them is) to put hym vn to death in the same place.

There was also in the same place a tower of .L. cubytes hye, heapped with asshes: but aboue it was so made, that men myght loke downe on euery syde.

B Where in to the kynge commaunded ý shamefull person to be caste amonge ý asshes, as one that was cause of al vngraciousnesse. And reason it was, that the vnthrifte shulde dye, soch a death, and not to be buryed: for he had done moch myschefe vnto the aulter of God (whose fyre and asshes were holy) therfore was it righ, that he him self also shulde be destroyed wt asshes.

But ý kynge was wood in his mynde and came to shewe hym selfe more cruell vnto the Iewes, then hys father was. Whych when Iudas perceaued, he commaunded the people to call vpon the Lorde nyght and daye: that he wolde now helpe them also, lyke as he had done alway: For they were afrayed to be put from their lawe, from their natural countre and from the holy temple: and not to suffre the people (whych a lytle whyle afore began to recouer) to be subdued again of the blasphemos nacyons So when they had done thys together and besought the Lorde for mercye, wt

C weping and fasting thre days long flat vpon the ground Iudas exhorted thē to make them selues readye, But hee and the elders together deuysed to goo forthe fyrste with theyr people, afore the kynge brought hys hoost in to Iewry, and afore hee beseged the cytie, and so to committe the matter vnto God.

Wherfore he ascribed the power of all thynges vnto God the maker of the worlde, exortynge his people to fyghte manfully, (yee euen vnto death) for the lawes, the temple, the citye, their awne natiue countree, and to defende ý cytesins: and set his hoost before Modyn. He gaue them also that were wt hym, a token of the victory of God, chosyng out the manlyest yonge men, wente by nyght in the kynges pauilyon, and slewe of the hoost .xiiii. M. men, and ý greatest Elephauntes, wt those that sat vpon them.

Thus when they had broughte a greate feare and rumour amōge the tentes of theyr enemyes, and all thinges wente prosperously wt them, they departed in

D the breake of the day, God being their healper and defendre. Nowe when the kynge perceaued the manlinesse of the Iewes, he wente aboute to take ý strōg places by crafte, and remoued hys hoost vnto Bethsura, which was a well kepte house of defence of the Iewes: but they were chased awaye, hurt and dyscōfited. And Iudas sent vnto them ý were in it, soch thinges as were necessary. In the Iewes hoost also ther was one Rhodochus which tolde the enemyes their secretes: but they sought hym out, and whē they had gotten hym, they put hym in presō After this dyd the kynge comen wt thē that were in Bethsura, toke truce wt thē departed, and stroke a battayll wt Iudas, which ouercame him.

But when he understode, that Phylyp (whom hee left to be ouerseer of his busynesses at Antioche) beganne to rebel agaynst him, he was astonnied in hys minde: so that he yelded him selfe to the Iewes, and made them an othe, to do whatsoeuer they thought ryght.

Now when he was reconsyled wt them he offred, made moch of the temple, gaue greate gyftes vnto it, and embrased Machabeus, makynge hym captayne and gouernour from Ptolomais vnto the Gerrenes:

Neuertheleße when hee came to Ptolomays, the people of ŷ cyty were not content wyth that bonde of frendshyppe: for they were afrayed, that he wolde breake the couenaunt. Then wente Lysias vp in to the seat, ād enfourmed the people, shewed them the cause why, & pacyfyed them. So he cam agayn to Antyoch. Thys is now ŷ mater concernynge the kynges iourneye, and hys returne.

¶ By the mocyon of the Lord, Demetrius sendeth Nicanor to kyl the Jewes. Nicanor maketh a compacte with ŷ Jewes, which he yet breaketh through the mocion of the kyng. Nicanor cōmaundeth Razia to be taken, The boldnes of Razia.

A After thre yeares was Judas infourmed, howe ŷ Demetrius the sonne of Seleucus was come vp with a greate power and shyppes, thorow the hauen of Tripolis, to take certayne commodyous places and countrees, agaynst Antiochus and his captayn Lysias. Now Alcimus (which had bene hye Priest, & wylfully defyled hym self, in the tyme of the myxtynge) seing, that by no meanes he coulde be helped, nor haue any more intraunce to ŷ aultar: he came to kyng Demetrius in the hundreth and one and fyftye yeare, presentyng vnto him a crowne of golde, a palme and an olyue tree: which (as me thought) belonged to the temple, and ŷ daye he helde his tonge. But when he had gotten oportunytye for his madnes, Demetrius called him to councel, and asked hym, what thinges or councels the Jewes leaned vnto. He answered: The Jewes that bee called Assidei (whose capteyn is Judas Machabeus) maynteyne warres, make insurreccyons, and wyl not let the realme be in peace.

For I beynge depryued of my fathers B honoure (I meane the hye presthode) am come hither: partly because I was faythfull vnto the kynge/ and partly because I sought the profyt of the cytesyns. And why, all our people thorow ŷ wickednesse of them are not a lytle troubled. Wherfore I beseche the (O kynge) consydre al these thynges dylygently and then make some prouision for the lande and the people, accordynge to the kyndnesse that thou hast offered vnto them. For as long as Judas hathe the vpperhande, it is not possible ŷ men can lyue in peace.

When he had spoken these wordes, other frendes also hauynge euell wyll at Judas, sett the kynge Demetrius on fyre agaynst him. Which immediatly sent Nicanor (ruler of the Elephantes) a captayn, in to Jewry: commaundyng him, to take Judas him self alyue, but to slaye them ŷ were with him, & to make Alcimus hye preste of the temple.

Then the Heathen whych fled oute of Jewry frō Judas, came to Nicanor bi flockes, thinking the harme and de- C caie of the Jewes to be their welfare. Now whē ŷ Jewes herde of Nicanors comminge, and the gathering together of the Heathen they sprenckled them selues with earth ād besought him which made them hys people, and euer defen- ii. Mach.
ded his owne porcion with euident tokens, that he wolde preserue the styll. So at the commaundement of the captaine thei remoued from thence, and came to a towne called Dessaú. And Simon Judas brother fel in hande wyth Nicanor but thorow the sodane cōminge of the enemyes, he was afrayed.

Neuertheles Nicanor hearinge ŷ manlynes of them that were wt Judas, and ŷ bolde stomakes that they had to fight for their naturall countree, durste not proue the mater wt bludshedyng. Wherfore he sent Possidonius, Theodocyus & Mathias before, to geue & to take peace. So when they had taken long aduisement there vpon, and the captayne shewed it vnto the multitude: they were agreed of one mynde, to haue peace. And they appoynted a daye to syt vpō these matters quietly amonge them selues, the stoles also were brought and set forth. Neuertheles Judas commaunded certayne men of armes to wayte in conuenyent places, lest there shuld sodenly aryse any euel thorow the enemyes. And soo they commoned reasonably together.

Nicanor, whyle he abode at Jerusalem D ordred hym self not vnreasonably, but let awaye the people that were gathered to-together. He loued Iudas euer wt hys D herte and fauoured him. He prayed hi also to take a wyfe, and to bringe forth children. So he maried, lyued in reste, & thei led a comõ life. But Alcimus perceauynge the loue that was betwyxte thẽ, & how thei wer agreed together, came to Demetrius, & tolde him that Nycanor had taken straunge matters i hã-de, and ordened Iudas (an enemy of the realme) to be the kynges successor. Thẽ the kynge was sore displeased, and thorow ye wicked accusations which Alcymus made of Nicanor, he was so prouoked, that he wrote vnto Nycanor, saiynge: that hee was verye angrie for the frenshipp and agrement, which he had made wt Machabeus. Neuerthelesse he cõmaunded hym in al the haste, that hee shulde take Machabeus presoner, and sende him to Antioche.

Whych letters when Nycanor had E sene, he was at his wittes end, and sore greaued, that hee shoulde breake the thynges wherevn they had agreed: specially, sayenge Machabeus was ye mã that neuer dyd him harme. But because he myght not wtstande ye kynge hee sought opportunite to fulfil his commaundement. Not wtstandinge, when Machabeus sawe that Nicanor begã to bee churlyshe vnto him/ and that he intreated him more rughli then he was woute, he perceaued yt such vnkyndnes came not of God/ and therfore hee gathered a few of his men, ad withdrewe him selfe from Nicanor. Which when he knew that Machabeus had manfully preuented him, he came in to the great and most holy temple: and commaun ded the prestes (which were doyng their vsual offeringes) to delyuer him the mã.
And whã they sware that they could not tell where the man was whom he sought he stretched out his hande/ & made an othe, sayenge: If ye wyl not delyuer me Iudas captiue, I shall remoue thys tei. Ma. vii. e. ple of God in to ye playn feld, I shal breake downe the aulter, & consecrate this temple vnto Bacchus. After these wor-des he departed.

F Then the prestes lyft vp their hãdes toward heauen, and besought him that was euer the defender of their people, saienge. Thou O lord of all/ which haste nede of nothynge, woldest that the tem ple of thy habitaciõ shuld be amõg vs. i. Ma. iiii. f.
Therfore now O most holy Lord, kepe ii. Ma. x. a. this house euer vndefyled, which lately was clensed. Now was there accused vnto Nicanor, one Razis an Aldermã of Ierusalem, a louer of the whole citie and a man of good reporte: whiche for the kinde hert that he bare vnto ye people was called a father of ye Iewes.
This man oft tymes, when the Iewes were minded to kepe them selues vnde-filed, defended and deliuered thẽ, being content stedfastly to spende his body & his lyfe for his people.

So Nicanor wylling to declare the hate/ that he bare to the Iewes sente. v C. men to take him: for he thoughte, yf G he gat him he should bringe the Iewes in great decaye. Nowe when the people began to rushe in at his house/ to breake the doares, and to set fire on it: he be inge now taken/ wold haue defended hi selfe with the swerde: chosing rather to ¶ Nicanor goeth aboute to s[?]e vpon Iudas on the Sabboth day. The blasphemy of Nicanor. Machabeus exhortinge vnto the Iewes the vision both with theyr hertes. The prayer of Machabeus After the hoste of Nicanor is once ouercome Machabeus commaundeth his heade & hys handes to be cut of & his tong to be geuen vnto fowles.

¶ The xv. Chapter.

A i. Ma. vii. d NOwe when Nicanor knewe that Judas was in the coűtre of Samaria, he thoght wyth al his power to stryke a felde wyth hym, vppon a Sabbeth daye. Neuertheles the Jewes that were compelled to go wt hym, said: O do not so cruelly and vnkindlye but halowe the Sabboth day, and worship hym that seyth all thynges. For all this yet sayde the vngracious personne: Is there a myghtey one in heauen, that commaunded the Sabbath day to be kepte?
iii. reg. xx. c. And when they sayde: yea the lyuing god, the myghtie Lorde in heauen commaunded the seuenth daye to be kepte, he sayd: And I am myghty vpő earth, to commaunde them for to arme theym selues/ and to performe the kynges bu-Exod. xx. b. synesse. Notwithstanding he myght not haue hys purpose.

Nicanor had deuised wyth the greatte pryde to ouercome Judas, and to brynge awaye the victorye. But Machabeus had euer a fast confydence and a perfec-
B te hope in God that he wolde help hym, ād exhorted hys people, not to be afraid at the commyng of the heathen: but alwaye to remembre ÿ help that had bene shewed vnto them from heauen, yea & to be sure now also, that almighty God wolde geue them the victorye. He spake vnto them out of the lawe and prophetes, putting them in remembraunce of the battayles, that they had striken afore, and made them to bee of a good corage.

So when theyr hertes were pluct vp he shewed them also the dyscetfulnes of the heathen, and how they wold kepe no couenaunt nor oth. Thus he weaponed thē not wyth the armour of shyld & speare, but with wholsome wordes and exhortatiős. He shewed them a dreame also, wherethorowe he made theym all glad, whych was thys: he thought that he sawe Onias (whych had bene a hygh prest, a vertuous and louing man, sad, and of honest conuersation, wel spoken, and one that had bene exercysed in godlynes from a chyld) holding vp hys hādes towarde heauen and prayinge for hys people. After thys there appeared vnto hym another mā, whych was aged honourable and glorious.

And Onias sayde: This is a louer of the brethren, and of the people of Isra- C ell. This is he that prayeth moch for the people, and for al the holy cytie: Jeremy the prophet of God. He thought also ÿ Jeremy helde out hys ryght hād and gaue hym (namelye vnto Judas) a swearde of gold/ sayinge. Take this holy swearde, a gyfte from God, wherwith thou shalte smyte downe ÿ enemyes of the people of Israell. And so they were well comforted thorow ÿ wordes of Judas, and toke corage vnto them/ so that the yonge men were determed ī theyr myndes to fyght, and to byde styfly at it. In so moch that in the thinges which they toke in hand, theyr boldnesse shewed the same, because the holy cytye and the temple were in parell: for ÿ which they toke more care/ thē for their wyues, children, brethren and kynsfolckes. Agayne, they that were in the cytie, were most careful for those which were to fyght. Now when they were all ī a hope that the iudgement of ÿ matter was at hande, & the enemyes drew vpe, the host beynge set in aray, the Elephātes and horsmen euery one standynge ī D his place: Machabeus consydered the commynge of the multitude, the ordynaunce of dyuerse wepens, the cruelnes of the beastes, and helde vp his hādes iiii. Ma. iii. Judit. ix. b pens and power of the host (but to them iiii. re. xix. that please him) accordyng to hys awne wille. Therfore ī his prayer he sayd these wordes, O Lord, thou that dyddeste sende thyne Angell in the tyme of Ezekiah kynge of Juda, and in ÿ hoste of Sennaheryb slewest an hundreth ād fyue and foure score thousande: sende now also thy good Angel before vs (O Lorde of heauens) in the fearfulnesse & dreade of thy myghtye arme, that they which come agaynst thy holy people to blaspheme them, may be afrayed. And so he made an ende of his wordes. Thē Nicanor and they that were with hym, drewe vpe with shawmes and songes: but but Judas & hys company wyth prayer and callynge vpon God.

Wyth theyr handes they smote, but wyth theyr hertes they prayed vnto the Lorde, and slew no lesse thē .xxxv. thousande menne: For thorowe the presente helpe of God they were gloryously comforted.

Nowe when they left of, and were turnynge agayne wt ioye they vnderstode that Nicanor him selfe was slayne wt the other. Thē they gaue a great shoute and a crye, praysynge the Almightye Lorde wt a loude voyce. And Judas (which was euer ready to spend his body and lyfe for his citesins) cōmaunded to smite of Nicanors head, wt his arme and hande, & to be brought to Jerusalem. When he came there, he called all the people, and the prestes at the aulter withe those that were in the castell, and shewed them Nicanors head, and hys wycked hande, which he had presumptuously holden vp agaynste ỹ temple of God. He caused the tonge also of ỹ vngodly Nicanor to be cut in lytle peaces, & to bee cast to the foules/ and the cruell mans hande to be hanged vp before the tēple. So euery mā gaue thankes vnto the Lorde, sayenge: Blessed bee hee, that hath kepte his place vndefyled.

As for Nicanors head, he hanged yt vp vpon the hye castell, for an euydent and playn token of ỹ helpe of God. And so they agreed all together, to kepe ỹ daye holy, nameli the .xiii. daye of the moneth Adar, which in the Syrians lāguage is called the next daye before Mardocheus daye. Thus was Nicanor slayne, & from that tyme forth the Jewes had ỹ citye in possessyon: And here wyll I nowe make an ende.

The.ii. Chapter.

A When Jesus was borne at Bethlehē in Jurye, in ỹ tyme of Herode the king. Beholde ther came a* wyse men frō ỹ east to Jerusalē saying: wher is he that is borne kynge of Jewes? We haue sene hys starre in the East, & are come to worshyp hym.

When Herode the kyng had heard thys, he was troubled, & al Jerusalē with hym, & he gathered al the chefe Prestes & Scribes of ỹ people, & asked of thē wher christ shuld be borne. And they said vnto him: at Bethleem in Jury. For thus it is wrytten by the prophet. And thou Bethleem in the lande of Jury, arte not the b* leest concernyng the Princes of Juda. For out of the shal come the captayne, that shal c* gouerne my people Israell.

B Thē Herode preuely called ỹ wyse mē and diligently enquyred of them, the tyme of the starre that appered, and sent thē too Bethleem saying: Go & searche diligently for the chylde. And when ye haue founde him bringe me worde, that I maye come & worshippe him also.

✠ Whē they had heard the king, they departed: & lo the starre whyche they sawe in the East wēt before thē, tyl it came & stode ouer the place wher the chyld was. When they saw the starre, they were marueiously glad: & went into the house, & foūd ỹ chyld wyth Mary hys mother, & kneled downe & d* worshipped hym, & opened theyr treasures, & offred vnto him gyftes, gold frankynsēce & myrre. And after they were warned of God in a dreame, that they shoulde not go agayne to Herode, they returned in to theyr owne countrey another way. ✠

When they were departed: behold ỹ angel of ỹ Lord appered to Joseph in a dreame saying: aryse & take the chyld and hys
C mother, & flye in to Egypte, & abyde there tyll I bringe the worde. For Herode wyll seke the chylde to destroye hym. Thē he arose and toke the chylde & hys mother by nyght and departed into Egypt, and was there vnto the death of Herode to fulfylle that which was spoken of the Lord by the Prophet whych sayth, out of Egypt haue I called my sonne.

Thē Herode perceauing ỹ he was mocked of the wyse mē was excedyng wroth & sent forth & e* slue al the chyldren ỹ were in Bethleem, and in all the coastes thereof, as many as were two yere old & vnder, acording to the tyme which he had diligently searched out of the wyse men.

Thē was fulfylled that which was spokē by the prophet Jeremy saying: On the hylles was a voyce heard, mournyng, weping, and great lamentacion. Rachel wepyng for her children, & wolde not be comforted, because they f* were not. ✠

D ✠ Whē Herode was dead: behold, an angel of the Lord appered in a dreame to Joseph in Egipt sayinge: aryse and take the chyld and his mother, & goo into the lande of Israel. For they are dead which sought the chyldes lyfe. Then he arose vp, & toke the chylde & his mother, and came into the lande of Israel. But when he hearde that Archelaus dyd raygne in Jury, in the roume of his father Herode, he was afrayd to go thither. Notwythstandyng after he was warned of God in a dreame he turned asyde into the parties of Galile, & went and dwelt in a cytie called Nazareth, to fulfyl that which was spoken by the Prophetes he shalbe called a* Nazarite. Judic.xiii.

The Notes

a* These were nether kynges nor princes but as Strabo sayth, which was in theyr tyme, sage mē amōg the persians as Moses was among the Hebrues, he seyeth also that they were the prestes of the Persians.

b* Vnderstand because Christe was borne ther Bethlee betokeneth the Churche: which in the eyes of the worlde is lytle & vyle: but in the eyes of god is great and precious.

c* To gouerne is, to order & rule ỹ people by lerninge & example. Act.xx.f.1. Timo.v.a where he speaketh of wedowes.

d* The Hebrues do often vse this worde worship, for doynge reuerence wyth inclinacion and bowing of the body, as ye haue. Ge. xxiii.a. and.i.Regum.xx.g.and.c.

e* Of thys is also mencyon made in Macrobius, in the second boke & fourth Chapter of his Saturnalles how Augustus Cesar, hearinge that Herode had lykewyse kylled hys owne sonne, sayd: It is better to be Herodes swyne than hys sonne.

f* That is because they were al putte too death and remayned not vnto hyr.

✠ When Jesus had hearde that John was taken, he departed into Galile & lefte Nazareth, & went & dwelt in Capernaum whych is a cytie upon the see, in the costes of Zabulon & Nepthalim, to fulfyll that

C that whych was spoken by Esay the Prophet, sayinge: * The land of Zabulō and Esa. ix. a Nephthalim, the waye of the see beyonde Iordan, Galile of the Gentils, the people which sat in darknes, saw great light, & to them which sate in the region & shadowe of death, lyght is begon to shyne.

Frō that tyme Iesus began to preach, and to saye: a a repent, for the kingdom of heauen is at hande.

✠ As Iesus walked by the see of Galile he sawe two brethren: Simō which was called Peter, & Andrew his brother, castinge a net into the see, for they were fishers, and he sayde vnto them, folowe me and I wyll make you fyshers of men. And they streyghte waye lefte theyr nettes, and folowed hym.

D And he went forth from thence, & sawe other two brethrē, Iames the sonne of Zebede, & Iohn his brother, in the shyp wyth Zebede theyr father, mendinge their nettes and called them. And they wythout taryinge lefte the shyp and theyr father and folowed hym.

✠ And Iesus went about al Galile, teaching in theyr synagoges, & preachyng the b a gospel of the kingdō, & healed al maner of sycknes, & al maner diseases amōg the people. And his fame spreade abrode thorowout al Siria. And they brought vnto him al sycke people that were taken with diuerse diseases & grypinges, & them that were possessed with deuyls, & those whych were lunatyke, & those that had the palsye and he healed thē. And there folowed him a great noumbre of people, from Galile, and from the ten cytyes & from Ierusalē, and from Iewry, & from the regions that lye beyond Iordan.

a a To repent, is, to forthinke & to leaue & chaunge theyr euel lyfe, for the loue of vertue & hate of synne, as in Math. v. i. b. Actes. iii. b.

b a The gospel is an open shewing and preaching of the grace & redemptiō obtained & geuen thorow Christe.

¶ In thys Chapter & in the two nexte folowing is conteyned the most excellent and louing Sermon of Christ in the mounte: Which sermō is the very keye that openeth the vnderstandinge into the lawe. In this fyfth chapter specially he preacheth of the viii beatitudes or blessinges, of manslaughter, wrath and anger, of aduoutrye, of swearynge, of suffring wrong and of loue euen toward a mans enemyes.

The. v. Chapter. ✠

When he saw the people he went vp into a mountayne, & when A he was set, his disciples came and taught thē saying: blessed are thee a a poore in spryte for theirs is the kyngdom of heauē. Blessed are they y mourne: for they shalbe conforted. Blessed are the meke: for they shal enherete the erth. Blessed are they which b a honger & thurst for righteousnesse: for they shalbe fylled. Blessed are the mercyful: for they shal obteyne mercy. Blessed are the pure in herte: for they shall se God. Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shalbe called the c a chil

Blessed are ye when mē reuyle you, and persecute you and shall falselye saye all maner of euyll sayinges agaynste you for my sake. Reioyce and be gladde, for great is youre d a rewarde in heauen. For so persecuted they the Prophetes whyche were before youre dayes.

✠ Ye are the salt of y earth: but yf the salt haue lost his saltnes, what cā be salted therwith? It is thence forthe good for nothing, but to be cast out, and to be troaden vnder fote of mē. And feare ye not thẽ which kyll ŷ body, and be not able to kil the soule. But rather feare hi, which is able to destroi both soule & body into hel. Are not two sparowes sold for a farthing? And none of thẽ doth light on the grounde, without your father. And now are al the heres of youre heades numbred. Feare ye not therefore: ye are of more value then many sparowes.

Whosoeuer therfore shal knowleg me before mẽ, him wil I knowledg also before my father which is in heuẽ. But whoso euer shal denie me before mẽ, hi wyll I also denye before my father which is in heuen.

Thinke not, that I am come to sende peace into ŷ erth. I came not to send peace, but a swearde. For I am come to set a mã at varyaunce agaynst hys father, and the daughter agaist her mother, and ŷ daughter in lawe agaynst her mother in law: And a mannes foes shall be they of hys owne housholde.

He that loueth hys father, or mother more thẽ me, is not mete for me. And he that loueth hys sonne, or daughter more thẽ me, is not mete for me. And he ŷ taketh not hys crosse and foloweth me, is not mete for me. He that[c]* fyndeth hys lyfe, shal lose it: and he that loseth hys life for my sake, shall fynde it.

He that receaueth you, receaueth me: & he that receaueth me, receaueth hym that sent me. He that receaueth a Prophet in ŷ name of a Prophete, shall receaue a Prophetes rewarde. And he that receaueth a righteous mã in the name of a righteouse mã, shal receiue his reward of a righteous man. And whosoeuer shal geue vnto one of these lytle ones to drynke, a cuppe of colde water only in the name of a disciple: I tell you of a truethe, he shall not lose hys rewarde.

The.xiii. Chapter.

A Mar.iiii.a Luk.viii.a The same day went Jesus out of ye house, and sat by the see syde, and moch people resorted vnto him, so greatly yt he went, & sat in a shyppe, and al the people stode on the shoore. And he spa ke manye thynges to thē in similytudes, saying: Beholde, the sower went forthe to sow. And as he sowed, some fel by ye way-es syde, & ye fowles came & deuoured it vp.
Some fel vpō stony groūd where it had not moch erth, and anone it sprong vp, because it had no depth of erth: & whē the sūne was vp it caught heet, and for lacke of rotyng wydered awaye. Some fel amōg thornes, & ye thornes sprongē vp and choo ked it. Parte fell in good grounde, and brought forth good frute: some an hūdred folde, some sixtie folde some thyrtie folde.

Whosoeuer hath eares to hear let hī heare

And ye disciples came and sayd to him: B Why speakest thou to them in parables?
He answered and sayd vnto them, it is ge uen vnto you to knowe the secretes of the kyngdome of heauen, but to them it is not geuen. a* For whosoeuer hath, to him shal be geuē: and he shall haue aboundaunce.
But whoso euer hath not: from hym shal be taken a way euen that he hathe. Therefore speak I to thē in similitudes: for thou gh they se, they se not: & hearing they heare not: nether vnderstād. And in them is fulfilled the Prophesy of Esaias, which pro phesie saith: with ye eares ye shall heare & shal not vnderstande, and with ye eyes ye shal se, & shal not perceaue. For thys peoples hertes are wexed gros, and their ea-res ar dul of heryng, & theyr eies haue thei closed lest they shuld se wt theyr eyes, and heare with their eares, and shuld vnderstā de with their hertes, & shuld tourne that I myght heale them.

But blessed are your eyes, for they se: & your eares, for they heare. Verelye I saye C vnto you, yt many Prophetes, and perfyte mē haue desyred to se those thinges which ye se, & haue not sene them: & to heare those thinges whyche ye heare, & haue not herde thē. Heare ye therfore the similitude of the sower. Whosoeuer heareth the worde of ye b* kyngdō & vnderstandeth it not, ther co meth the euyll man & catcheth awaye that whych was sowne in his hert. And this is he which was sowne by the way syde. But he that was sowne in the stony grounde, is he which heareth the word of god, & anone wyth ioye receaueth it, yet hath he no rotes in hym selfe, and therfore dureth but a sea sō: for as sone as tribulation or persecutiō aryseth because of the worde, by and by he falleth. He that was sowne amōg thornes is he that heareth ye worde of God: but the care of thys worlde, & the dyssaytfulnesse of ryches choke the word, and so is he made vnfrutefull. He whyche is sowne in ye good ground is he that heareth thee worde and vnderstādeth it: whych also bereth frute and bryngethe forthe, some an hundred folde, some syxtye folde, & some thyrtye folde.

Another

Another symylytude put he forthe vnto them,sayinge: ✢ The kyngdom of heauē is D lyke vnto a mā which sowed good seed in his feld. But whyl men ✢ slept there came his foo & sowed tares amonge the wheate, & went his waie. Whē the blade was sprō ge vp and had brought forth frute, thē ap peared the tares also. Then came the seruā tes to thee housholder, and said vnto him: Syr sowedest not thou good seed in thy closse, frō whence then hath it tares? He sai de to thē:the enuious man hath done this.
Then the seruaūtes sayde vnto him: wylt thou thē that we go & wede them out? But he sayd, nay, lest whill ye go aboute to we= de out ỹ tares, ye pluck vppe also with thē the wheate by the rottes:let bothe grow to gether tyll haruest come, and in tyme of haruest, I wyll saye to the repers, gather ye fyrste the tares, and bynde them in she= ues to be brent:but gather the wheate into my barne. ⊢

✢ Another parable he put forth vnto thē saying:The kingdom of heauē is lyke vn to a graine of mustard seed, which a mā ta keth and soweth in his feld, which is ỹ lest of al seedes. But whē it is growne, it is ỹ greatest amōg yearbes, and it is a tree:so ỹ the birddes of the ayer come & bylde in the braunches of it.

E Another similitude said he to them. The kyngdō of heauē is lyke vnto leuē whiche a woman taketh & hydethe in.iii.peckes of of meele,tyll all be leuended.

All these thinges spake Jesus vnto thee people by similitudes, & wyth oute symylp tudes spake he nothynge to them, to fulfil ỹ which was spoken by the Prophete say= ing: ✢ I wyll open my mouth in symylytu des, & wyl speake forth thynges whych ha ue bene kept secrete from the begynnynge of the worlde. ⊢

✢ Then sent Jesus the people awaye, & came home. And hys dyscyples came vnto him,sayung:declare vnto vs ỹ symplitude of the tares of the feld. Then answered he & sayd to thē. He that soweth the good seed is ỹ sonne of mā. And the feld is ỹ world.
And the chyldren of the kingdom, they are the good seed. And ỹ tares are the childrē of the wicked. And the enemie that soweth them, is the deuil. The haruest is the ende of the world. And the repers be ỹ Angels. For euen as the tares ar gathered & brent in the fyre:so shall it be in the ende of thys world, ✢ The sonne of mā shal send forth F his Angels, and thei shal gather out of his kingdom all thynges that offende, and thē whych do iniquite, & shall cast them into a furnes of fire. There shalbe wayling and gnashing of teth. ✢ Then shal the iust men shine as bright as the sonne in the kingdō of theyr father. Whosoeuer hath eares to heare, let him heare. ⊢ ✢ Agayne the kyngdom of heauen is ly= ke vnto treasure hydde in the felde, ỹ whi= che a man fyndeth and hydeth:and for io[y] thereof goeth and selleth al that he hath, & bieth that felde.

Againe ỹ kingdome of heauē is lyke to a marchaūt ỹ seketh good pearles, whiche whē he had foūd one precious pearle, wēte and solde al that he had, and bought it.

Agayne the kyngdom of heauē is lyke vnto a nett cast into the see, that gathereth of al kyndes of fishes:which whē it is ful, men drawe to lande, & sytte and geather ỹ G good in to vessels, and caste the bad awai. So shall it be at the end of the world. The Aungels shall come oute and seuer ỹ bad from the good, & shal cast them into a fur= nes of fyre:ther shall be waylinge & gnas= shynge of teth.

Jesus said vnto them. Vnderstād ye al these thinges? They sayd:ye Lorde. Then said he vnto thē: Therfore euery ✢ Scri= be whych is taught vnto the kyngdome of heauē is lyke an housholder, whyche brin= geth forth out of his treasure, thīges both newe and olde. ⊢

And it came to pas whē Jesus had fynis= shed these symplytudes, that he departed thence, & came into his owne countre, and taught thē in their sinagoges, in so moche that thei were astonyed & saide: whence co= meth al thys wysdom & power vnto hime

A T Hen came to Jesus Scribes & Pharises from Jerusalem sayinge: why do thy disciples transgres the tradicions of y elders? for they wesh not their handes when they eate bread. He aūswered & sayde vnto them: why do ye all so transgresse the commaundement of God, thorow

C And he called the people vnto hym, and sayd to them: heare & vnderstād. That whi che goeth into y mouth, defileth not y mā: but that whych commeth out of y mouthe, defyleth the man.

Then came his disciples, and sayde vnto

He answered and sayde: a* al plantes why shalbe plucked vp by the rotes. Let thē a-

Then āswered Peter & sayd to him: decla ar ye yet without vnderstanding? perceaue descendeth downe into y bely, & is cast out procede out of the mouth, come frō y herte, & they defyle the man. For out of the heart come euil thoughtes, murder, breaking of wedlock, whordom, theeft, false wytnes beryng, blasphemye. These are thee thynges which defyle a man. But to eate wyth vn wasshen handes, defileth not a man.

✠ And Jesus wēt thence, & departed into the costes of Tire and Sidon. And behold a womā which was a Cananite came out of y same coostes, & cryed vnto hī sayinge: haue mercy on me lord thou sonne of Da-uid, my daughter is pyteouslye vexed wt a deuil. And he gaue her neuer a word to an swere. Thē came to him his disciples, & be sought hym saying: send her away, for she foloweth vs crying. He answered, & sayd: I am not sēt, but vnto the lost shepe of the house of Israel. Then she came & worshyp ped him, saying: master help me. He answe red & sayd: it is not good, to take the chyl-drens bred, & to cast it to b* dogges. She ā swered & sayd: truthe Lorde, neuertheles the dogges eate of the crōmes, whyche fall frō their masters table. Then Jesus answe red & saide vnto her. O womā great is thy faythe, be it to thee, euen as thou desyrest.
And her daughter was made whole euē at that same houre.

The Jesus went awaye from thence, & D came nie vnto y see of Galyle, & wēt vp in to a mountaine & sat downe ther. And moch people came vnto him, hauyng with them, halt, blind, dombe, maimed, and other many: & cast thē downe at Jesus fete. And he healed thē, in so moche that the people won dred, to se the domme speake, the maymed whole, ỹ halt to go, & the blynde to se. And they glorifyed the God of Israel.

Then Jesus called his disciples to him, & sayd: I haue compassion on the people because they haue contynued wt me now .iii. dayes, & haue noughte to eate: and I wyl not let thẽ departe fastynge, leste they perysshe in the waye. And his disciples sayde vnto him: whence shulde we gett so moche bredde in the wyldernes as shuld suffyse so greate a multitude? And Jesus said vnto thẽ: how many loues haue ye? And they sayd: seuen, and a feawe lytle fysshes. And he commaunded the people to sytt downe on the grounde: and toke ỹ seuẽ loues, & ỹ fysshes, & gaue thankes, and brake them, and gaue to his disciples, & the disciples gaue thẽ to the people. And they dyd al eate and were suffysed. And they toke vp the brokẽ meate that was left vii. baskettes ful. And yet they that ate were .iiii. M. men, besyde wemen and chyldrẽ. A — Mat. xii. d; John. vi. d; Luke. xiii. g

Then came the Pharises and Saduces, & dyd tempte hym, desiring him to shew them some signe frõ heuen. He answered & sayd vnto them. *At euen ye say, we shal haue fayre wedder and that because the skye is reed: and in ỹ mornynge ye saye, to daye shalbe foule weder, and that because the skye is cloudye and reed. O ye ypocrytes, ye can discerne ỹ fassyon of the skye: & can ye not dyscerne thee signes of the tymes? The frowarde nacyõ & adououtrous seketh a signe, and ther shal no nother sygne be geuen vnto them but ỹ sygne of the *Prophete Jonas. So lefte he them and departed. (Jonas. i. a)

B And when his disciples were come to ỹ other syde of the water, thei had forgottẽ to take bread wt thẽ. Then Jesus sayde vnto them: Take hede & beware of the *leuẽ of the Pharises & of the Saduces. And they thought in thẽ selues sayĩg: because we haue brought no bred wt vs. Whẽ Jesus vnderstode that, he sayde vnto them. O ye of litel faythe, why are youre myndes cũbred because ye haue brought no bredde? Do ye not yet perceaue, nether remẽber those .v. loues when there were .v. M. men, & how many baskets toke ye vp? Nether thee .vii. loues whẽ ther were .iiii. M. & how many baskets toke ye vp? Why perceaue ye not thẽ, that I spake not vnto you of bred, whẽ I sayde, beware of the leuẽ of the Pharises & of the Saduces? Then vnderstode they, howe that he bad not them beware of the leuẽ of breed: but of ỹ doctryne of the pharises, and of the Saduces.

C — Mark. viii. Luke. ix.

¶ When Jesus *came into the costes of the citie which is called Cesarea philippy, he asked hys dysciples sayinge: whom do men say ỹ I the sonne of mã am? They sayde, some saye that thou arte John Baptist, some Helyas, some Jeremyas, or one of ỹ prophetes. He sayde vnto them: but whom saye ye that I am? Simon Peter aũswered & sayde. *Thou art Christ the sonne of the lyuynge God: And Jesus answered & said to him: happy arte thou Simon ỹ sone of Jonas, for fleshe & bloud hath not opened vnto ỹ that, but my father which is in heauẽ. And I say also vnto ỹ ỹ thou art Peter and *vpon this rock I wyl byld my congregaciõ And *ỹ gates of hel shal not preuayle agaist it. And *I wyl geue vnto ỹ, the keies of the kyngdõ of heuẽ: what soeuer ỹ bindest vpon erth, shall be & bounde in heuẽ: & whatsoeuer thou loosest on erth, shalbe lowsed in heauen.

Then he charged hys dysciples, ỹ they shoulde tell no mã, that he was Jesus chryste. From that tyme forth Jesus began to shewe vnto his disciples, how that he must go vnto Jerusalem, & suffer manye thynges of the elders, & of the hye Priestes, & of the Scribes, & must be kylled, & rise agayne the thyrde daye. But Peter toke hym a syde, and began to rebuke hym saying: master fauer thy self, thys shal not come vnto thee. Thẽ turned he aboute, & sayde vnto peter: come after me Satan thou offendest me, because thou sauourest not godly thinges, but worldly thynges. D

Jesus then sayd to his disciples. If eny mā wil folowe me c* let him forsake hi self & take vp his crosse & folowe me. For who soeuer wil saue hys life, shall loose it. And whosoeuer shal loose hys life for my sake, shall finde it. What shall it proffet a man, though he shuld winne al the whole world yf he loose hys owne soule? Or elles what shal a mā geue to redeme his soule againe w al? For ẏ sonne of mā shall come in the glory of hys father, w hys angels: & then shal he reward euery mā accordyng to hys dedes. Verely I say vnto you, some ther be among them that here stande, whych shall not tast of death, tyl they shall se the sonne of man come in hys kyngdome.

3 And after vi. dayes Jesus toke Peter and James & John his brother, & brought thē vp into an hie moūtaine out of ẏ way, and was transfygured before them: and hys face dyd shyne as ther sunne, and hys clothes were as whyte as thee lyghte. And beholde there apered vnto thē, Moses and Helyas, talkynge wythe hym. Then āswered Peter, & sayd to Jesus: master here is good beynge for vs. If ẏ wilt, lett vs make here .iii. tabernacles, one for the, & one for Moses and one for Helyas. Whyll he yet spake, beholde a bright cloude shadowed them. And, beholde ther came a voyce out of that cloude sayinge: thys is my deare sonne, in whom I delite, heare hī. And when the dyscyples hearde that, they fell on theyr faces and were sore afrayed. And Jesus came and touched them, and sayde: aryse and be not afrayed. And when they looked vp, they sawe no man, saue Jesus onlye.

A The same tyme the disciples ca me vnto Jesus saying: who is the greatest in the kyngdō vnto you, that yf two of you shall agre in erthe vpon any maner thynge, whatsoeuer they shall desyre: it shall be geuen them of my father which is in heuē. For where two or thre ar gathered to gether in my name, there am I in the myddes of them.

Then came Peter to hym, & sayde: ma-sayde they to hym: why did Moses cōmaū de to geue a testymonyal of dyuorsemente sus said: suffre þ childrē & forbidd thē not to come to me: for of such is the kingdō of heuen. And when he had put hys hādes on them he departed thence.

And beholde one came, & sayd vnto hym: C ¶ Christ reproueth wo vnto the Pharises Scribes and ypocrytes, & prophecieth the destruction of Jerusalem.

THē spake Jesus to the people, and to hys disciples sayinge: a * The Scribes & the Pharises syt in Moses seat. Al therfore whatsoeuer they byd you obserue, that obserue & do: but after theyr workes do not: for they say, & do not. Yea they bynd heuy burthens and greuous to be borne, & laye them on mennes shoulders: but they them selues wyll not heaue at them wyth one of theyr fyngers. Al theyr workes they do, for to be sene of mē. They set abroade their philacteries, and make large borders on their garmētes, & loue to sit vppermost at feastes & to haue þ chefe seates in the synagoges, & greetynges in the markettes, & to be called of men Rabbi. I

But ye shal not suffer your selues to be called Rabbi. For one is your master, that is to wit Christ, And all ye are brethrē. And cal no man your father vpon the erth, for B ther is but one your father, which is in heven. Be not called masters, for there is but one your master, and he is Christ. He that is greatest among you, shalbe your servaunt. But whosoever exalteth hym selfe, shalbe broughte lowe. And he that humbleth him selfe, shalbe exalted. Wo be unto you Scribes and Pharises, ypocrytes, for ye shut up the kingdom of heaven before men: ye your selves go not in, neyther suffre ye them that come to enter in.

Wo be unto you Scribes and Pharises Ypocrites: ye devoure widdowes houses: and that under a coloure of praying long prayers wherfore ye shal receave the greater damnation.

Wo be unto you Scribes and Pharises Ypocrites, which compasse see and lande, to bringe one into your belefe: and when he is broughte ye make him two folde more the chyld of hel, then ye your selves are.

Wo be unto you blind gydes, which say whosoever sweare by ther temple: it is nothing: but whosoever sweareth by the gold of the temple, he offendeth. Ye foles and blynd: whether is greater, the gold or the temple that sanctifieth the gold? And whosoever sweareth by the aulter, it is nothing: but whosoever sweareth by the offering that lyeth on the aulter, offendethe. Ye foles and blynde: whether is greater the offring, or the aultar: which sanctyfieth the offrynge? Whosoever therfore sweareth by the aulter, sweareth by it
C and by all that thereon is. And whosoever sweareth by ther temple, sweareth by it and by hym that dwelleth therin. And he that sweareth by heaven sweareth by the seate of God and by hym that sytteth thereon.

Wo be to you Scribes and Pharises, Ypocrites, which tyth mynt, anyse, and commin, and leave the wayghtier matters of the lawe undone: iudgement, mercy and faythe. These ought ye to have done, and not to have left the other undone. Ye blind gydes which strayne out a gnat and swalowe a camel.

Wo be to you Scribes and Pharises Ypocrites, which make cleane the utter syde of the cuppe, and of ther platter: but within they are full of brybery and excesse. Thou blynd Pharyse, clense fyrste the innesyde of the cup and platter, that the outsyde of them maye be cleane also.

Wo be to you Scribes and Pharises Ypocrites, for ye are lyke unto paynted tombes which appere beautiful outwarde: but are wythin ful of dead bones and of al filthines. So ar ye, for outward ye appere righteous unto men, when within, ye ar ful of ypocrysye and iniquite.

Wo be unto you Scribes and Pharises Ypocrytes: ye bylde the tombes of the Prophetes, and garnish the sepulchres of the righteous, and saye: yf we had bene in ther dayes of our fathers, we wold not have bene parteners with them in the bloud of the Prophetes. So then ye be wytnesses unto youre selves, that ye are ther chyldren of them whych kylled the Prophetes. Fulfyl ye lykewyse the measure of your fathers. Ye serpentes and generation of b✱ vipers how shulde ye scape the dampnation of hell. D ✠ Wherfore, beholde I send unto you prophetes, wyse men and scrybes, of them ye shal kyl and crucyfye: and of them ye shal scourge in your synagoges, and persecute from citie to cytie, that uppon you maye come al the ryghteous bloud that was shed upon the earth, from the bloude of ryghteous Abell, unto that bloude of Zacharias the sonne of Barachias, whom ye slew betwene the temple and the aultar. Verely I say unto you all these thynges shal lyght upon this generation. Jerusalem, Jerusalem whyche kyllest Prophetes, and stonest them which ar sent to the: howe often wolde I have gathered thy chyldren together, as the henne gathereth her chickens c✱ under her wynges, but ye wold not: Beholde your habitation shal be lefte unto you desolate. For I saye to you, ye shal not se me hence forth, tyll that ye saye: blessed is he that commeth in the name of the Lorde. ✠

Ether thinkest thou ẏ I cannot now pray to my father, & he shal geue me mo thē .xii. Legions of angelles? But how then shuld the scriptures be fulfylled: for so must it be. The same time sayde Jesus to the multitude: ye be come out as it were vnto a thefe, wt swerdes & staues for to take me. I sate daylie teachinge in ẏ tēple amōg you, & ye toke me not. All thys was done ẏ the scriptures of the Prophetes myght be fulfylled. * Thē al ẏ disciples forsoke him & fled. And they toke Jesus & lede him to Cayphas the hye Preste wher the Scribes & the elders were assembled. And Peter folowed hym a farre of, vnto the hie prestes place: & went in, & sate with the seruauntes to se the ende.

The chefe Prestes & the elders, & all the coūcel, sought false witnes against Jesus for to put him to death, but foūde none: in so moch that whē many false witnesses came, yet foūd they none. At ẏ last came two false witnesses, & sayd: This felowe sayd: I can destroye the tēple of God, & bylde it agayne in .iii. dayes. And the chefe Prieste arose, & said to hym: aūswerest thou nothinge? How is it ẏ these beare witnes agaynst the? But Jesus helde his peace. And ẏ chefe prest answered, & sayd to hym: I charge the in the name of the lyuing God, ẏ thou tell vs, whether thou be Christ the sōne of God. Jesus sayd to hym: thou haste sayd. The .xxvii. Chapter.

A When the morning was come al the chefe prestes & ẏ elders of the people held a counsayl agaynst Jesus, to put him to death, and brought him boūd and delyuered hym vnto Pontius Pilate the debyte.

Thē whē Judas which betrayed him, sawe that he was cōdempned, he repented him self, & brought agayne the .xxx. plates of syluer to the chefe Prestes & elders sayinge: I haue synned betrayinge the innocent bloud. And they sayd: what is that to vs? Se thou to that. And he cast downe ẏ syluer plates in the tēple & departed, & wēt and honge hym selfe.

And the chefe priestes toke ẏ syluer plates & sayd: it is not lawfull for to put thē into ẏ tresure, because it is ẏ pryce of bloude. And thei toke counsel, & bought wt thē a potters feld to bury stragūers in. Wherfore ẏ felde is called the feld of bloud, vntyl thys day. Thē was fulfylled, ẏ which was spoken by Jeremy the Prophet saying: & they toke.xxx.sylver plates, the prise of him yt was valued whō they bought of

B the childrē of Israel, & they gave thē for ye [illegible] potters feld, as the Lord appoynted me.* Jesus stode before ye debite: & ye debite asked him saying: art yu the king of ye Jewes Jesus sayde unto him: Thou sayest. And whē he was accused of ye cheke prestes & elders, he āswered nothig. Thē sayd Pilate unto him: hearest thou not, how mani thinges they laye against the? And he āswered him to never a word: in so moch that the debite marveyled greatlye.

At that feaste, the debyte was wonte to delyver unto the people a presonner, whō they wold desyer. He had thē a notable presonner called Barrabas. And when they were gathered together, Pilate sayd unto [illegible] thē: * whether wyl ye that I geve loose unto you: Barrabas or Jesus which is called Christ? For he knewe well, that for envye they had delyvered hym.

Whē he was sett downe to geve iudgemēt his wyfe sente to hym sayinge: have yu nothing to do with yt iuste mā. For I have suffred many thinges this daye in a dreame about him. But ye chefe prestes & the elders had persuaded ye people, yt they shuld

C aske Barrabas, & shulde destroye Jesus. Thē the debyte answered & sayd unto thē whether of the twayne wyl ye yt I let loose unto you? And they said, Barrabas. Pilate sayd unto thē: what shal I do thē with Jesus which is called christ? They al said to him: let hym be crucyfied, Thē said ye debite: what evel hath he done? & they cried ye more sayēg: let hi be crucified. Whē Pilate sawe yt he prevayled nothige, but yt more busynes was made, he toke water & wasshed hys hādes before the people sayinge:

[illegible] I am innocent of the bloud of thys * iuste person, & ye ye shal se. Thē answered al the people & sayd: his bloud be on us, and on our chyldren. Then let he Barrabas loose unto them, & scourged Jesus, & delyvered hym to be crucified.

Then ye souldiours of ye debite toke Jesus unto ye cōmē hal, & gathered unto hi al the cōpany. And thei stripped him and put on hym a purpil roobe, & platted a crowne of thornes & put upō hys head, & a rede in hys right hād: & bowed their knees before hym & mocked hym, saying: hayle kyng of the Jewes: & spytted upō hym, and toke ye rede and smote him on the head.

D And when they had mocked hym, they toke the roobe of him agayne, & putte hys owne rayment on hym, & led hym away to crucifye hym. And as they came oute, they foūd a mā of Cyren, named Simon: hym they cōpelled to beare hys crosse. And whē they came unto the place, called Golgotha (yt is to saye, a place of dead mens sculles) they gave him vyneger to drincke mēgled wyth gall. And when he had tasted therof he wolde not drincke.

When they had crucified hi, they parted his garmentes, & dyd cast lottes: to fulfyl that was spokē by ye prophet.* They devided my garmētes amōg thē, & upō my vesture dyd cast lottes. And they sate & watched him ther & they set up over his head ye cause of his deeth writtē. This is Jesus ye king of ye Jewes.* And ther were two theves crucified with him, one on ye right hād and another on the lyfte. E

They yt passed by, revyled him, waggīg their heades & sayinge: yu that destroyest ye tēple of god & byldest it in.iii.dayes, save thy self. Yf thou be ye sonne of God, come downe frō the crosse. Lykewyse also ye hye prestes mocking him wyth the Scribes & elders sayd: He saved other, hym self he cā not save. Yf he be the kyng of Israel: lette hym nowe come downe frō the crosse, & we wyl beleve hym. He trusted in god, let him delyver hym now, yf he wyl have him: for he sayd, I am the sonne of God. That same also the theves which were crucified wt hym, cast in hys teeth.

Frō the syxte houre was ther derknes over all ye land unto the ninth houre. And about the ninth houre Jesus cryed with a lowde voyce, sayinge: Eli Eli lama asbathani. That is to saye: * my God, my God why hast thou forsaken me? Some of thē that stode ther, when they heard that, sayd This mā calleth for Helias. And streyght waye one of thē rāne & toke a sponge & filled it ful of vineger & put it on a rede, and gave hym to drinke. Other sayd, let be: let us se whether Helyas wyl come & delyver hym. Jesus cryed agayne wt a loude voyce and yelded up the goost.

And behold the * vayle of the temple did [illegible]

¶ The parable of the sower. Christ stilleth ÿ tempest of the see, which obeyed hym.

The .iiii. Chapter.

A And he begā agayn to teach by the see syde. And ther gathered togeather unto hym mech people, so greatly ÿ he entred into a ship, & sate in ÿ see, & al the people was by the see side on the shoore. And he taught thē many thinges in similitudes and sayd unto thē in his doctrine. Herkē to: behold, ther went out a sower to sowe. And it fortuned as he sowed, ÿ some fel by the way syde, & ÿ fowles of ÿ ayre came & devoured it up. Some fel on stony grounde wher it had not moch erth: & by & by sprāg up, because it had not depth of earth: but as sone as ÿ sunne was up it caught heet, & because it had not roting, withered away.

And some fel among the thornes, and the thornes grewe up & choked it, so that it gave no frute. And some fel upō good ground, & dyd yelde frute that sprong & grew, & brought forth: some thyrty fold some syxtie fold, & some an hundred folde. And he sayd unto thē: he ÿ hath eares to heare, let hym heare.

B And when he was alone, they ÿ were about him wt the .xii. asked him of ÿ similitude. And he said unto thē. To you is it geuē to know ÿ mistery of the kingdō of god. But unto thē that ar wtout shal all thinges be done in similitudes: ÿ whē they se, they shal se, & not discerne: & whē thei heare, thei shal heare, & not understād: lest at any tyme they shuld tourne, & theyr sinnes shuld be forgeven thē. And he sayd unto them: perceave ye not thys similitude? how then shuld ye understād all other similitudes.

The sower soweth ÿ word. And they ÿ ar by ÿ wayes side, wher ÿ word is sowē ar they to whō, assone as thei have herde it Satā cometh immediatly, & taketh away ÿ worde that was sowē in theyr hertes. And likewyse they that ar sowē on ÿ stony ground, are they: which when they have herde the word, anone receave it wt gladnes, yet have no rotes in thē selues, & so endure but a tyme: & anone as trouble & persecution aryseth for the wordes sake, they fal immediatly. And they that ar sowē among ÿ thornes, ar soch as heare ÿ worde: & the care of this world & the disceytfulnes of riches & the lustes of other thinges, entre in & chooke the word, & it is made unfruteful. And those that were sowē in good ground, are thei that heare the word & receave it, & bring forth frute, some thirty folde, some syxty fold, some an hundred folde.

C And he said unto thē: is the cādle lighted to be put under a bushell, or under ÿ table, & not rather to be put on a candelstick? For ther is nothing so prevye, that shal not be opened: nether so secret, but ÿ it shal come abroade. Yf any man have eares to heare let him heare. And he said unto thē: take hede what ye heare. With what measure ye mete, wt the same shall it be measured unto you agayn. And unto you that heare, shall moare be geven. For * unto hym that hath, shal it be geven: & from hym that hath not, shalbe taken awaye, even that he hath.

And he sayd: so is the kingdō of God, euē as yf a mā shuld sow sede i ÿ groūd & shuld slepe & ryse up night & daye: & ÿ sede shuld spring & grow up, he not ware. For ÿ erth bringeth forth frute of her self: first ÿ blade, then ÿ eares, after that ful corne in ÿ eares. And assone as ÿ frute is brought forth, anone he thrusteth in the sykel, because the heruest is come.

And he sayd: wher unto shal we lyken the kingdō of god? or wt what cōparisō shal we cōpare it? It is lyke a grayne of mustardsede, which whē it is sowen in ÿ erth, is the leest of all sedes that be in the erth: but after ÿ it is sowē, it groweth up & is greatest of al erbes: & beareth great braūches, so that the fowles of ÿ ayre may dwel under the shadowe of it.

And wt many soch similitudes he preached the worde unto them, after as they

After two daies folowed Ester, and the dayes of swete bred. And the hye priestes & the Scrybes sought meanes howe they mighte take hym by craft and put him to death. But they sayd: not in the feast daye, leest any busynes aryse among the people.

‡And Judas Iscarioth, one of the .xii. wẽt away unto the hye priestes, to betray him unto thẽ. When they herd that, they were glad, & promised that they wold geue him money. And he soughte, howe he might conueniently betraye hym.

And the fyrst day of swete bred, when men offer the pascal lambe, his disciples sayd vnto him: wher wilt thou ẏ we go & prepare, that thou mayst eate the ester lābe? And he sēt forth two of hys disciples and sayd vnto them. Go ye into the citie and ther shall a mā mete you bearinge a pitcher of water, folow hi. And whether soeuer he goeth in, saye ye to the good mā of ẏ house, the master asketh wher is the gest chāber, wher I shal eate the ester lābe with my disciples. And he wyll shewe you a greate parlour, paued & prepared: there make readye for vs. And his disciples went forth & came to the cytie & foūde as he had sayd vnto thē: & made ready the Ester lambe.

C ‡ And at euē he came with thē .xii. And as they sate at borde & ate, Jesus sayde: Verely I saye vnto you: that one of you shall betraye me whiche eateth with me. And they begāne to mourne, and to say to hym one by one: is it I? And another sayd: is it I? He answered & sayde vnto them: It is one of the .xii. & the same dyppeth with me in the platter. The sōne of man goeth, as it is written of hym: but wo be to that man, by whom the sonne of man is betrayed. Good were it for hym: yf that man had neuer bene borne.

And as they ate, Jesus toke bred, blessed & brake & gaue to them & sayd: Take eate, this is my body. And he toke ẏ cup, gaue thankes, & gaue it to thē, & they all dranke of it. And he said vnto thē: This is my bloud of the newe Testamēt whyche is shed for many. Verely I say vnto you: I wyl drinke nomore of this frute of the vyne, vntyll that daye, that I drinke it new in the kyngdome of God. And when they had sayde grace: they wēt out to mount Olyuete.

And Jesus said vnto thē: Al ye shalbe offended thorowe me this nighte. For it is writtē: I wyll smyte the shepeherde, & the shepe shalbe scattered. But after ẏ I am rysen agayne, I wyll go into Galile before you. ‡ Peter sayde vnto him. And though al mē shuld be offended, yet wolde not I. And Jesus sayd vnto him. Verely I say vnto the, this daye eué in this night before ẏ cock crowe twyse, ẏ shalt denye me thryse. And he spake boldlyer: no, yf I shuld dye with the, I wil not denye the. Lykewyse also sayd they all.

D ‡ And they came into a place named Gethsemani. And he said to his disciples Syt ye here whyl I go apart and pray. And he toke wyth hym Peter, James & John, & he began to waxe abashed, & to be in an agony & sayd vnto thē: My soule is very heuy euē vnto the death, tarye here & watch. And he went forth a lyttle & fel downe on the groūde & prayed, ẏ yf it were possible, ẏ houre might passe frō him. And he sayd: ‡ Abba father al thinges are possible vnto the take away this cup frō me. Neuerthelesse not ẏ I wyll: but that thou wylt, be done.

And he came & found them sleping, & sayd to Peter: Simō slepest thou? Couldest not thou watch with me one houre? watch ye, & praye lest ye enter into temptaciō, the sprete is ready, but the fleshe is weeke. And agayne he wēt away & prayde & spake ẏ same wordes. And he returned & foūd thē a slepe agayn for their eyes were heuy: nether wist they what to answere him. And he came the thyrd time & sayd vnto thē: slepe a hens forth, & take your ease, it is ynough. The houre is come, behold ẏ sōne of mā shalbe delyuered into ẏ hādes of synners. Ryse vp, let vs go. Lo he that betrayeth me, is at hande.

& boūde Jesus & ledde hym away and deliuered hym to Pilate. And Pylate asked hym: art thou the kyng of the Jewes? And he answered & sayd vn to him: thou sayest it. And the hie priestes accused him of many thinges. Wherfore Pylate asked hym agayne sayinge: ‡ mat.xxvii.b / Luk.xxiii.b Answerest thou nothing? Beholde howe

Jesus yet answered neuer a worde, so ẏ Pylate merueiled.

At that feast Pylate was wont to de lyuer at their pleasure a presoner: whom soeuer they wolde desyre. And ther was one named Barrabas, whych lay boūde wt thē that made insurrectiō, & in ẏ insur rection cōmitted murther. And thee people called vnto him, & began to desyre ac cording as he had euer done vnto them.
Pylate answered them & sayd: Wyll ye that I lowse vnto you the king of ẏ Je-wes? For he knew ẏ the hye priestes had deliuered him of enuy. But ẏ hie priestes had moued the people ẏ he shuld rather delyuer Barrabas vnto them.

And Pylate answered agayne, & said mat.xxvii.b / Luk.xxiii.c vnto thē: ‡ What wyll ye then that I do wyth hym whō ye cal the kyng of ẏ Je-

And whē they had crucified him, they parted his garmētes, castinge lottes for thē, what euery man shulde haue. And it was about y thyrd houre, & they crucified hym. And thee tytle of hys cause was writtē: The kyng of y Jewes. And they crucified w hym.ii.theues: the one on y right hād, & the other on his left. And the

The I. Chapter.

I Ther was in the dayes of He rode the king of Jury a cer

Both were perfecte before God, & walc-cause that Elizabeth was barren & both were well striken in age.

And it came to passe, as he executed y Prestes office before God, as his course came (according to the costume of y Pre stes office) hys lot was to burne incense And he went into the teple of the lorde, & the whole multitude of the people were without in prayer whyle the incense was a burninge. And ther appered vnto hym an Angel of the Lorde standinge on the right syde of the aulter of incense. And when Zacharias sawe hym, he was abasshed, & feare came on hym.
B And the angel sayde vnto hym: feare not Zachary, for thy prayer is heard: [illegible] And thy wyfe Elizabeth shal beare the a

And he shal go before hi in ye spret & power of Helias, to tourne ye* hertes of the fathers to ye children, & ye vnbeleuers to the wysdom of the iuste men: to make the people redy for the Lorde.

And zacharias said vnto ye angel: wher by shal I know this, seig that I am old & my wyfe wel stryken in yeres. And the angell answered & said vnto him. I am Gabriel yt stand in the presens of God, & am sent to speake vnto the: & to shew the these glad tidynges. And behold yu shalt be dōme, & not be able to speake, vntyl ye tyme yt these thynges be performed, because yu beleuest not my wordes whyche shalbe fulfylled in their season.

And the people wayted for zacharias & merueyled yt he taried in the temple. And whē he came out, he could not speke vnto thē. Wherby they perceued yt he had sene some visiō in ye tēple. And he beckened vnto them, & remained speachles.

C + And it fortuned, assone as ye tyme of his office was out, he departed home into his owne house. And after those dayes, his wife Elizabeth cōceued, & hyd her self fiue moneths sayig: This wise hath God dealt withe me in ye daies whē a * he loked on me, to take frō me the rebuke yt I suffred amōg mē. And in the syxt moneth the angel Gabriell was sent from god vnto a cytie of Galyle, named Nazareth, to a virgin spoused to a mā whose name was Joseph, of ye house of Dauid, & ye virgins name was Mary. And ye angel wēt in vnto her, & said: b * Hayle ful of grace, the Lorde is wt the: blessed arte thou amonge women.

Whē she sawe hi she was abasshed at his saying: & cast in her mynd what maner of salutatiō that shuld be. And ye angel said vnto her: feare not Mary: for yu hast found grace with God. Lo, yu shalt conceaue in thy wombe, & shalt beare a sōne, & shalt cal his name Jesus. He shal be greate, & shalbe called ye sonne of thee hiest. And ye lord god shall geue vnto hi the seate, of his father Dauid, & he shall raygne ouer ye house of Jacob for euer, & of hys kyngdom shalbe none ende.

Thē sayd Mary vnto the angel: how shal this be, seyng I knowe not a man? D
And the angel answered & said vnto her The holy goost shal come vpō the, & the power of the hyest shal ouershadow the.
‡ Therfore also ye holy thing which shal be borne, shall be called ye sonne of God. Esay.vii.
And behold thy cosen Elizabeth she hath also conceaued a sonne in her age. And thys is her syxte moneth, thoughe she be called barren: for wyth god can nothing be vnpossible. And Mary sayd: behold the handmayden of the Lord, be it vnto me euen as thou hast said. ⊦ And the Angel departed from her.

+ And Mary arose in those dayes, & wēt into the moūtayns with hast, into a cytie of Jury, & entred into the house of zachary, & salūted Elizabeth. And it fortuned, as Elizabeth heard the salutatiō of Mary, the babe sprōge in her belly. And Elizabeth was fylled wyth ye holy goost & cryed wt a loude voyce, & said: blessed E art thou amonge the wemen & blessed is the frute of thy wombe. And whēce happeneth this to me that the mother of my Lord shuld come to me? For lo, as soone as ye voice of thy salutatiō soūded in myne eares, ye babe sprange in my belly for ioye. And blessed art yu that beleuedst: for those thiges shalbe performed which were tolde ye frō the Lord. And Mary sayde:

My soule magnifieth the Lord. And Magnificat my spret reioyseth in god my sauiour. ⊦
For he hath loked on the poore degre of hys hādmayde. Behold now from hence forth shal al generatiōs call me blessed. For he yt is mighti hath done to me greate thinges, & holy is hys name. And hys mercy on thē yt feare him thorow out all generatiōs. He sheweth strēgth c* with his arme, he scattereth thē yt ar proude in the ymagination of their hertes. He putteth down ye mighty frō their seates, & exalteth thē of low degre. He fylleth the hōgry wt good thinges: & sendeth awaye ye rych empty. He remembreth mercy: & helpeth hys seruaunt Israell.

The. ii. Chapter.

And it chaūced in those day-es: yt ther went out a cōmaū A dement frō August the Em perour, yt al the world shuld be taxed. And thys taxinge was the first, & executed whē Syrenius was leftenaūt in Siria. And euery mā went vnto hys owne cytye too be taxed.
And Joseph also ascended from Galile out of a citie called Nazareth, into Jury vnto the citie of Dauid whych is called Bethleem, because he was of the house & linage of Dauid, to be taxed wt Marye his spoused wife which was with chyld.

And it fortuned whyl they were there her tyme was come yt she shuld be deliue red. And she broughte forth her a* firste begotten sonne & wrapped him in swad lynge clothes, & layde hym in a manger, because ther was no rowme for thē with in the ynne.

And ther were in ye same regiō shepher B des abiding in the feld & watching their flocke by night. And lo ye angel of ye lord stode harde by thē, & the brightenes of ye Lord shone roūd about thē, & they were sore afrayed. But the angell sayde vnto thē: Be not afrayed. For behold, I brin-ge you tidinges of great ioye, that shall come too all thee people: for vnto you is borne

borne this day in ŷ citie of Dauid, a saveoure which is christ the lord. And take this for a sygne: ye shall fynd the chylde swadled & layd in a mãger. And streight way ther was wt the angell a multitude of heuenly sowdyers, laudyng god and sayig: Glory to god on hye, and + peace on the erth: & unto men reioysyng. ⊦

And it fortuned, assone as the angels C were gone away frõ thẽ into heuẽ, + the shepherdz said one to another: let vs go euẽ vnto Bethleem, & se this thinge ŷ is hapened, which the lord hath shewed vn to vs. And they came wt hast and found Mary and Joseph and the babe layd in a manger. And whẽ they had sene it, thei published abrode ŷ sayig which was tol de thẽ of ŷ child. And al ŷ herd it, wõdred at those thinges which were tolde thẽ of ŷ sheppardes. But Mary kept al those sayinges, & põdered them in her hert. And ŷ shepherdes retourned, praising & lau-ding god for al ŷ they had herd & sene, euen as it was told unto them. ⊦

+ And when the eyght daie was come that the chylde shuld be circumcised, his name was called Jesus, which was named of ŷ Angel before he was cõceaued in the wombe. ⊦

D + And when the time of their purifyca Leuit. xii. ciõ (after the law of Moses) was come, they brought him to Jerusalem, to present him to the Lord (as it is wryten in ŷ lawe of the Lord: euery mã chyld ŷ fyrst openeth thee + matrix shalbe called holy to ŷ lord) & to offer (as it is sayd in the lawe of the lord) a payre of turtle doues or two yonge pigiõs. And behold there was a man in Hierusalem whose name was Simeon. And the same man was iust & feared god & longed for the conso laciõ of Israel & the holy gooste was in hi. And an aswere was geuen hi of ŷ ho ly goost, that he shuld not se deth, before he had sene the lords christ. And he came by inspyracyon into the temple.

And when ŷ father & mother brought in the child Jesus, to do for hi after thee Nunc dimittis. custome of the lawe, then toke he him vp in his armes and said. Lord, now lettest E ŷ thy seruaũt depart in peace accordyn-ge to thy promes. For myne eyes haue sene the saueour sent from the. Which ŷ hast prepared before the face of all people. A light to lighten the gentyles, and the glory of thy people Israel. ⊦

+ And his father & mother merueyled at those thynges whiche were spoken of him. And Simeon blessed them, & sayd vnto Mary his mother: behold, this chil de shalbe ŷ fal and resurrection of many in Israel, & a signe which shalbe spoken agaiste. And moreouer, + the swerd shal pearce thy soule, ŷ ŷ thoughtes + of ma

And ther was a prophetisse, one Anna, F the daughter of Phanuell of ŷ trybe of Aser: which was of a great age, & had ly ued wt an husbãd. vii. yeres frõ her vyr ginite. And she had ben a wedow about iiii. score & iiii. yere. which wẽt neuer out of the tẽple but serued god wt fasting & prayer nyght & day. And the same came forth that same houre, & praysed the lorde, & spake of him to al that loked for re dempcyon in Hierusalem.

And assone as they had performed al thynges accordyng to the lawe of ŷ Lor de, thei returned ito Galile to their owne cytye Nazareth. And the chyld grewe and wered strong in sprete, and was fyl led wyth wysdome, and the grace of god was wyth hym. ⊦

And his father & mother went to Jeru salem euerye yere at the feste of ester. + And when he was. xii. yere old, they wẽt vp to Jerusalẽ after the custome of ŷ feeste. And whẽ they had fulfilled ŷ day es, as they returned home, ŷ chylde Jesus bode stil in Jerusalem vnknowing to his father & mother. For they supposed he had bene in the cõpany, & therfore G came a daies iorney & sought hym amõ ge theyr kynsfolke & acquaintaũce. And when they foũd hym not, they went back agayne to Jerusalem, & sought hi. And it fortuned after. iii. dayes that they foũ de hi in the temple, syttyng in the middes of the doctours, both hearyng them and posynge them. And al that hearde hym, merueiled at his wit and answeres.

And when they sawe him, they were astonied. And his mother said vnto him: sonne, why hast thou thus deale wt vs?
Beholde thy father & I, haue sought ŷ, sorowenge. And he sayd vnto thẽ: howe is is it that ye sought me? Wist ye not that I must go aboute my fathers busines?

And they vnderstode not ÿ sayinge ÿ he spake to thē. And he went wᵗ them, & came to Nazareth, & was obediēt to them.
But his mother kept al these thinges in her hert. And Jesus increased in wysdō

* And he came to Nazareth where he was noursed & as his custome was, wēt into the synagoge on ŷ Saboth dayes, & stode vp for to rede. And ther was delyuered vnto hī the boke of ŷ Prophete Esaias. And whē he had opened ŷ boke he found the place, wher it was wrytē. * The sprete of ŷ lord vpō me, because he hath anoynted me: to preach ŷ gospell to ŷ poore he hath sent me: & to heale ŷ broke harted: to preach deliueraūce to ŷ captiue, & sight to the blind, & frely to sett at lyberte thē that ar brused, & preache the acceptable yere of the Lorde.

D And he closed the boke, & gaue it agayne to the minister, & sate downe. And the eyes of al ŷ were in the synagoge, were fastened on him. And he began to say vnto thē. This day is this scripture fulylled in your eares. And al bare him wytnes, & wōdred at the gracyousse wordes which proceded out of his mouth & sayde: Is not this Josephs sonne?

And he said vnto thē: Ye may very wel say vnto me this prouerb. Phisiciō, heale thy selfe. What soeuer we haue heard done in Capernaum, do the same here lykewyse in thine owne coūtre. And he sayde, verely I saye vnto you: No prophet is accepted in his owne countre.

E But I tel you of a truthe, * many wydowes were in Israel in ŷ daies of Helias, whē heuen was shut thre yeres and syxe monethes, whē greate famishmente was through out al the lād, & vnto none of them was Helyas sent, saue into Sarepta besydes Sidon vnto a woman ŷ was a widowe. * And many lepers were in Israel in the tyme of Heliseus ŷ prophete: and yet none of thē was heled, sauyng Naaman of Syria.

And as many as were in the synagoge whē they herd that, were filled ŵ wrath: & rose vp, & thrust him out of the citye, & ledde him euen vnto the edge of the hil, wheron their citie was bilte, to caste hym downe hedling. But he wēt his way euē thorow ŷ middes of thē: * & came in to Capernaum a cytie of Galile, & there taught them on the Saboth daies. And they were astonied at his doctrin: for his preachynge was with power. * And in ŷ synagoge there was a man whiche had a sprete of an vncleane deuel, & cryed ŵ a loude voice sayinge: lett me alone, what hast ŷ to do ŵ vs, ŷ Jesus of Nazareth? Art ŷ come to destroy vs? I knowe thee what ŷ art, euē the holy of god. And Jesus rebuked him sayīg: hold thy peace & come out of him. And ŷ deuill threwe hī in the middes of thē & came out of hym, & hurte him not. And feare came on thē al, & they spake amōg thē selues sayinge: what maner a thyng is this. For ŵ auctorite & power he cōmaūdethe the foule spretes, & they come out? And ŷ fame of him spred abrode thorow out all places of the countre round aboute. F

* And he rose vp & came out of ŷ sinagoge, & entred into Simons house. And Simōs motherlaw was taken wythe a great feuer, & they made intercessiō to hī for her. And he stode ouer her, & rebuked the feuer: and it left her. And immediatly she arose & minist[r]ed vnto them.

G When the sonne was downe, all they that had syke taken ŵ diuers diseases, brought them vnto hym: & he layde hys hādes on euery one of thē, & healed thē. * And deuyls also came out of manye of thē crying and saying: thou art Chryste the sonne of god. And he rebuked thē & suffered thē not to speake: for they knew that he was Chryst.

Assone as it was daye, he departed and wēt away into a desert place, & ŷ people soughte him & came to him, & kepte hym that he shuld not depart frō them. And he said vnto thē. I must to other cytyes also preache the kingdom of god: for therfore am I sent. And he preached in ŷ synagoges of Galyle.

¶ Christ preacheth in ŷ ship. The disciples forsake al, and folow him. He clenseth the leper, healeth the man of the palsye, calleth Mathew ŷ customer and eateth with open synners.

He excuseth the disciples, that pluck ẏ eares of corne he healeth the mā with the withred hād, chosed his twelue apostles, maketh a swete sermō, & teacheth to do good for euell.

The. vi. Chapter.

A It chapened on an after Saboth, that he went thorow ẏ corne feld, & ẏ his discyples plucked the eares of corne, & ate, & rubbed thē in theyr handes, And certaine of the pharises sayde vnto them. Why do ye that which is not lawful to do on the Saboth dayes? And Jesus āswered them & said: Haue ye not redde what Dauid dyd, when he him selfe was an hungred and thei which were wt him: how he went into the house of God, & toke and ate the loues of halowed breed, & gaue also to them whych were wt him: whiche was not lawfull to eate, but for the prestes only. And he sayde vnto them: The sōne of mā is Lorde of the Saboth daye.

B And it fortuned i another Saboth also, ẏ he entred into the synagoge & taught. And ther was a mā whose ryght hāde was dried vp. And the scribes & pharises watched him, to se whether he wolde heale on ẏ Saboth day, ẏ they might fynde an accusacyon agaynst him. But he knewe their thoughtes, & said to ẏ mā which had the wyddred hād: Ryse vp, & stand forth in the middes. And he arose & stepped forth. Thē sayd Jesus vnto thē: I will aske you a questiō: Whether is it lauful on ẏ saboth daies to do good or to do euil? to saue lyfe or for to destroy it? And he beheld thē al in cōpas, and said vnto the mā: Stretch forth thy hande. And he did so: & his hād was restored & made as whole as the other. And they were filled full of madnesse, & comuned one with another, what they might do to Jesu.

C And it fortuned in those daies, that he went out into a mountayne for to pray, & continued al nighte in prayer to God. And assone as it was day, he called hys disciples, & of them he chose twelue, whiche also he called apostles. Simō whom he named Peter, & Andrew his brother. James & John, philip and Bartlemew, Mathew & Thomas, James ẏ sōne of Alpheus & Simon called zelotes, & Judas James son: & Judas Iscarioth, whiche same was the traytoure.

And he came downe wt them & stode in the playne felde wt the cōpany of hys disciples, & a great multytude of people out of al parties of Jurie & Jerusalem, & frō ẏ see cost of Tire & Sydō, whych came to here hi, & to be healed of theyr dyseases: & they also ẏ were vered wt foule spretes, & thei were healed. And al ẏ people preased to touch him: for ther wente vertue oute of him, and healed them all.

D And he lifted vp his eies vpō the disciples, and said: Blessed be ye poore: for yours is ẏ kigdō of god. Blessed at ye ẏ hōger now: for ye shalbe satisfied. Blessed at ye ẏ wepe now: for ye shal laugh. Blessed at ye whē mē hate you, & thrust you out of their cōpanie, & raile, and abhorre your name as an euil thige, for the sonne of mānes sake. The similitude is this. The sede is ye word of God. Those ye ar besyde ye waye are they that heare, & afterwarde cometh the deuil & taketh away the word out of theyr hertes leste they shulde beleue & be saued. They on the stones, ar they which when they heare, receaue the word wt ioy But these haue no rotes, which for a whyle beleue, and in tyme of temptaciō go awaye. And that which fel amōg thornes are they which heare, & go forth, & ar choked with cares and with ryches, and voluptuous lyuinge & bring forth no fruyte. That in the good groūd, ar they whyche wyth a good and pure hert, heare the worde and kepe it and bring forth fruyte wyth pacyence. + frō your fete, for a testimonye agaynste thē. And they wēt out, and went thorow the townes, preachinge the Gospell and healynge euery wheare.

And Herode the b Tetrarch heard of y it was sayd of some, y John was rysē agayn frō death: & of some, that Helyas had appeerd: & of some, that one of y old Prophetes was rysen agayn. And Hero B de sayde: John haue I beheaded: who thē is this of whom I heare soche thinges?

And he desyred to se hym.
And y Apostles returned: & tolde him what great thīges they had done. And Mat. xiiii. Mark vi. Iohn. vi. he toke thē & wēt aside into a solitarypla ce, nye to a citie called Bethsaida. And y wyldernes. But he sayd vnto thē. Geue ye thē to eat. And they said. We haue no mo but. v. loaues & .ii. fishes, excepte we shuld go & bye meat for all this people.

And thei were about a. v. M. mē. And he

And he sayd to them al, yf any mā wil take vp his crosse dayly & folowe me. c Whosoeuer wyll saue his lyfe, shal lose

And it folowed about an viii. dayes af ter those sayinges, that he toke Peter, Ja mes, & John & went vp into a mountayne to praye. And as he prayed, the fashio[n] of his countenaunce was chaunged, & his gar ment was whyte & shone. And behold, ii D men talked with him, & they were Moy= ses & Helyas which appered gloriously, & spake of his departing, whych he shul de ende at Jerusale[m]. Peter & they that were with him, were heuy with slepe. And whe[n] they woke, they saw hys glorye, and two men standinge wyth hym.

And it chaunsed as they departed fro[m] him, Peter sayd vnto Jesus: Maister, it is good being here for vs: Let vs make thre tabernacles, one for the & one for Mo ses, & one for Helyas: & wist not what he sayd. Whyl he thus spake, there came a cloud and shadowed them & they feared when thei were come vnder the cloud. And ther came a voyce out of the cloud sayi[n]g This is my deare sonne heare hym. And as sone as the voice was past, Jesus was E founde alone. And they kepte it cloose: & tolde no man in those dayes any of tho= se thynges whych they hadde sene.

And it chaunsed on the next day as they came down fro[m] the hyl, moch people met him. And behold a ma[n] of the co[m]pany cried out saying: Maister, I beseche the beholde my sonne, for he is al that I haue: and se, a teareth him that he fometh agayne, & wyth moch payn departeth fro[m] hi[m], whe[n] he hath rent hi[m], & I besought thy disciples to cast him out, & thei could not. Jesus answered F & sayd: O generatio[n] without fayth, & cro= ked: how long shal I be with you? & shal suffre you? Bring thy sonne hither. As he yet was a coming, the fend rent him, and tare him. And Jesus rebuked the vnclene sprete, & healed the chylde, and deliuered him to his father. And they were al ama sed at the myghty power of God.

Whyle they wondered euery one at all thinges which he dyd, he sayd vnto hys disciples: Let these sayinges synke dow ne into your eares. The tyme wyl come, when the sonne of ma[n] shalbe deliuered in= to the ha[n]des of men. But they wiste not what that word meant, & it was hyd fro[m] them, that they vnderstode it not. And they feared to aske hym of that saying.

a Then there arose a disputatio[n] amo[n]g them who shulde be the greatest. When Jesus perceaued the thoughtes of their hertes, he toke a chyld, & sett him hard by hym, & sayd vnto the[m]. Whosoeuer recea ueth thys chylde in my name, receaueth me. And whosoeuer receaueth me, recea= ueth hym that sent me. For he that is leaste among you al, the same shalbe greate.

not agaynst vs, is wyth vs.

And it folowed whe[n] the tyme was come his face to go to Jerusale[m], & sent messen= gers before him. And they went & entred into a citie of the Samaritans to make to him: foxes haue holes, & byrdes of the ayre haue nestes: but the sonne of men hath not whereon to laye his head.

And he sayd vnto another: folow me
And the same sayd: Lord suffre me fyrst

For the holy goost shal teach you in ẏ same houre, what ye ought to saye.

† One of the company said vnto him: Master byd my brother deuide ẏ enheritaūce wt me. And he said vnto him: Mā, who made me a iudge or a deuyder ouer you? Wherfore he said vnto thē: take hede, & beware of couetousnesse. For no mans lyfe standeth in the aboūdance of C ẏ thīges which he possesseth. And he put forth a similitude vnto thē saying: The groūd of a certayne rych man broughte forth frutes plenteously, & he thought in him self saying: what shal I do? because I haue no roume wher to bestowe my frutes? And he said: This wyll I do. I wyl destroye my barnes, & bilde greater, & therin wil I gather all my frutes and my goodes: & I wyl say to my soule: Soule ẏ hast moche goodes layde vp in store for many yeares, take thine ease: eate, drink, & be mery. But god sayd vnto hī: Thou fole, thys nyght wil they fetche away thy soule agayne frō ẏ: Then whose shal those thinges be which ẏ hast prouided? So is it with hī that gathereth ryches, & is not ryche in God.

And he spake vnto his disciples: Therfore I say vnto you: Take no thoughte for your life, what ye shal eat, nether for your body, what ye shal put on. The life is more then meat, & the bodi is more thē raymente. Consider the rauens, for they nether sowe nor repe, whych nether haue stoore house nor barne, and yet God fedeth them. How moch are ye better then D

Thei labour not: they spin not, & yet I say vnto you, ẏ Salomon in all thys royalte, was not clothed lyke to one of these.

If the grasse which is to day in the felde, & to morow shalbe cast into ẏ fornace, god so clothe, how moch more wyll he clothe you, o ye endued wt lytle faythe: and aske not what ye shal eat or what ye shal drīk, nether clyme ye vp an hye: for al soch thīges ẏ hethen people of ẏ world be seke for. Your father knowethe that ye haue neade of soch thīges. Wherfore seke seke ye after the kingdom of god, and al these thinges shalbe ministred vnto you. *Feare not lytel flocke, for it is your fathers pleasure to geue you a kyngdom. c*Sel that ye haue, & geue almes. And make you bagges, whiche were not olde, & treasure that fayleth not in heuen, wher no theefe cometh, nether mothe corrupteth. For where youre treasure is, there wyll youre hertes be also.

E Let your loines be gerdde about, & youre lightes brenning, & ye your selues like vnto men that wait for their master, whē he wil returne frō a weding: that assone as he cometh & knocketh, they may open vnto him. Happy are those seruāūtes, which the lord whē he cometh shal find waking. Verely I say vnto you, he wil gyrde him self about & make thē to sit doune to meat, & walke by & minister vnto thē. And yf he come in the secōd watch, yea yf he come in the thyrde watch, & shal finde them so, happy are those seruaūtes. Thys vnderstonde, that yf the good man of the house knew what houre the theefe wold come, he wolde surely watche: & not suffre hys house to be broken vp. Be ye prepared therfore: for the sonne of man wyl come at an houre when ye thinke not.

Mat.xxiiii.d
Mark.xiii.c

Then peter sayd vnto him: *Master, tellest thou this similitude vnto vs, or to al men? And the lord said: If ther be a faythful seruaūte & wise, whome his Lorde shal make ruler ouer his houshold, to geue them their dutie of meat at due seasō happy is that seruaūte, whō hys master when he cometh, shal find so doing. The seruaūt that knew his masters wil & prepared not hī self, nether dyd according to his wil, shalbe beten wt many stripes. But he that knewe not, and yet did cōmit thīges worthy of stripes, shal be beatē wt feaw stripes. For vnto whō moch is geuen, of hym shalbe moche requyred. And to whom men moch cōmyt, the more of hym wyl they aske.

I am come to send fyre on erth: & what is my desyre, but that it were all readye kyndled? Notwithstanding I must be baptysed wt a baptime: & how am I payned till it be ended? Suppose ye that I am come to send *peace on earth? I tel you nave, but rather debate. For frō hēce G forthe there shalbe, v, in one house deuyded, thre against two, & two agaist thre. The father shalbe deuided agaist the sonne, & the sōne agaist the father. The mother against the daughter, & the daughter agaist the mother. The motherlaw agaist hyr daughterlawe, and the daughterlawe agaynst her motherlawe.

Then said he to the people: when ye se a cloude ryse out of the west straight way ye saye: we shall haue a shower, and so it is. And when ye se the south winde blowe, ye saye: we shall haue heet: and it cōmeth to passe. Ypocrytes, ye can skyl of the fassiō of the earthe & of the skye: but what is the cause, that ye cannot skyl of this time? Ye and why iudge ye not of youre selues what is ryghte.

Whyl thou goest with thyne aduersary to the ruler: as thou art in the way, geue dylygence that thou mayst be delyuered frō hym, leaste he brynge the to the iudge, & the iudge deliuer the to the iayler, & the iayler cast the in to presō. And he entred in & wēte thorowe Hierico. And beholde, ther was a mā named Zacheus, which was a ruler amōg the Publicans, & was ryche also. And he made meanes to se Jesus, what he shuld be: & coulde not for y^e preace, because he was of a low stature. Wherfore he ran before, & clymed up in to a wylde fyg tree, to se him: for he shulde come y^t waye. And when Jesus came to the place, he loked up, & sawe him and said unto him: zache, come downe atonce for to daye J muste abyde at thy house. And he came downe hastelye & receaued him ioyfully. And when they saw y^t they al grudged saying: He is gone in to tary wyth a man that is a synner. A

And zache stode forth and sayd unto the Lord: beholde Lorde, the halfe of my goodes J geue to the poore, and yf J haue done any man wronge, J wyl restore hym fower fold. And Jesus sayd to him thys daye is helth come unto thys house, for as moche as he also is become the chylde of Abraham. ✠ For thee sonne of mā is come to seke and to saue that whyche was loste. B

As they hearde these thinges, he added therto a symylitude, because he was nye to Jerusalē, & because also they thoughte that the kyngdō of God shuld shortely appere. He sayd therfore: ✠ ‡ a certayne noble man went into a farre countre, to receaue hym a kyngdō, & then to come agayne. C And Pylate called together ÿ hye prestes & the rulers, & the people, & sayd unto them: ye haue brought this man unto me, as one that perverted ÿ people. And behold I haue examined him before you and haue founde no faute in this man of those thinges wherof ye accuse him. No nor yet Herode. For I sent you to hym: and lo nothing worthy of death is done to him. I wyl therfore chasten him & let him louse. ‡ For of necessite, he must haue let one louse unto them at that feast.

And al the people cryed atonce saying away with him, & delyuer to us Barrabas: which for insurrectiō made in the cytie & morther, was cast in preson. Pilate spake agayn to thē wylling to let Jesus lowse. And they cryed saying: Crucifye hym, Crucify him. He sayd unto thē the thyrd tyme. What euyll hath he done? I fynd no cause of death in hi. I wyl therfore chasten him & lett hym lowse. ‡ And they cryed wt a loude voyce, & required ÿ he myghte be crucified. And the voyce of them & of the hye Prestes preuayled.

D And Pilate gaue sentence ÿ it shulde be as they required & let louse unto thē, hym that for insurrectiō & morther, was cast into preson, whō they desyred: & delyuered Jesus to do with him what they wolde. ‡ And as they led him away, they caught one Simō of Syrene, cominge out of the felde: & on hym layde they the crosse, to beare it after Jesus.

And ther folowed him a great cōpany of people & of wemē, which wemē bewayled & lamented hym. But Jesus turned backe unto them, & sayd: Daughters of Jerusalē, wepe not for me: but wepe for your selues, & for your children. For behold, ÿ dayes wil come, whē mē shal say happy are the barrē & the wōbes that neuer bare & the pappes which neuer gaue sucke. Then shal they beginne to say to the mountaynes, fal on us: & to the hylles couer us. For yf they do thys to a grene tree, what shalbe done to the drye.

And there were two euyl doers led wt hym to be slayne. ‡ And when they were come to the place, which is called Caluary, ther they crucified him, & the euyl doers, one on the ryght hand & the other on the left. Thē sayd Jesus: father forgeue them, for they woote not what they doo. And they parted his rayment, & cast lots And the people stode & beheld. And ÿ rulers mocked him wt thē saying: he helpe other mē, let him helpe him selfe, yf he be christ ÿ chosē of god. The souldiars also mocked him, & cam & gaue him vineger & sayd: yf ÿ be ÿ king of the Jewes saue thy self. And his superscriptiō was written ouer hym, in Greke, in Latyn, & Hebrew: This is the king of the Jewes.

E F And one of ÿ euyl doers which hāged, railed on him saying: Yf ÿ be christ saue thy self & us. The other āswered and rebuked him saying: Nether fearest ÿ god because thou art in the same damnatiō? We are righteously punished, for we receaue according to our dedes: But thys mā hath done nothig amisse. And he sayde unto Jesus: Lord remēber me whē ÿ comest into thy kingdō. And Jesus sayde unto him: Verely I saye unto the, to day shalte ÿ be with me in Paradyse.

And it was about ÿ sixt hour. And ther came a darknes ouer al the lād, until the ninth houre, & the sunne was darkened. And ÿ vayle of the tēple dyd rēt euē thorow the myddes. And Jesus cried with a great voyce & sayd. Father into thy hādes I cōmend my spret. And whē he thus had sayd he gaue up the goost. G Whē the Centuriō saw what had happened, he glorified god saying: Of a surtye thys mā was perfect. And al ÿ people ÿ came together to ÿ sight, beholding ÿ thinges whyche were done, smoote their brestes, & returned home. And al his acquayntāce, & the wemē ÿ folowed him frō Galile stode a farre of beholding these thinges.

And behold ther was a mā named Joseph a coūcellour, & was a good mā & a iuste, & did not cōsent to the coūcel & dede of thē, whiche was of Aramathia, a cytie of the Jewes: whyche same also wayted for the kingdō of god: he went unto Pylate & begged the body of Jesus, & toke it down, & wrapped it in a linnen clothe,

The Gospel of S. John.

¶ The euerlasting byrth of Christ, & how he became man. The testimony of John. The calling of Andrew, Peter, &c.

A In the beginninge was the word, & the word was with God: & the word was God The same was in the beginning with God. Al thinges were made by it, and without it, was made nothinge that was made. In it was lyfe & the lyfe was the light of mē, & the lyghte shyneth in the darckenes but the darkenes comprehended it not.

Ther was a mā sente frō God, whose name was John. The same came as a witnes to beare witnes of y light, that al mē through hym myght beleue. He was not y light: but to beare witnes of y light That was a true light which lighteth al men y come into the worlde. He was in y world, & the worlde was made by hym: & yet the world knewe hym not.

He cam among hys owne, & hys owne
B receaued him not. But as mani as receaued hym, to thē he gaue power to be the sonnes of God in y they beleued on hys name: whyche were borne, not of bloude nor of the wyl of the fleshe, nor yet of the wyll of man: but of God.

And y word was made fleshe & dwelt among vs, & we sawe the glorye of it, as the glory of the only begotten sonne of y father, whyche worde was full of grace and veritie. ⊢

+ John bare witnes of him and cryed saying: This was he of whō I spake, he y cometh after me, was before me, because he was yer then I. And of his fulnes haue al we receaued, euē grace for grace. For y law was geuen by Moses, but grace and truthe came by Jesus Christ.
C No man hath sene God at any tyme. The only begottē sonne, whych is in the bosome of y father, he hath declared hi. ⊢

+ And this is y record of John when the Jewes sent prestes & Leuites frō Jerusalem, to aske hym, what arte y? And he cōfessed & denyed not & sayd playnly: I am not christ. And thei asked hi: what the art thou Helias? And he said: I am not. Art thou the prophete? And answered no. Then said thei unto him: what art thou that we may geve an answere to them that sent us: What sayest thou of thy selfe? He said I am the voice of a cryar in the wyldernes, make straight the way of the lorde, as sayd the Prophete Esaias.

thene

D And they which were sent, were of the pharises. And they asked hym, and said unto him: why baptisest thou then yf thou be not christ, nor Helyas, nether a prophete? John answered them saying: I baptyse with water: but one is come amonge you, whom ye know not, he it is that cometh after me, which was before me, whose sho latchet I am not worthy to unlose. These thinges were done in Bethabara beyond Jordan where John dyd baptyse.

✠ The next day John saw Jesus coming unto him, and saide: behold the lambe of god, which taketh away the sinne of the world. This is he of whom I saide. After me cometh a man, which was before me, for he was yer then I, and I knew him not: but that he shuld be declared to Israel therfore am I come baptysing with water.

E And John bare record saying: I saw the sprete descend from heuen, like unto a doue: and abyde upon him, and I knew him not. But he that sent me to baptise in water, the same sayd unto me: upon whom thou shalt se the sprete descend and tary still on him, the same is he which baptiseth with the holy goost. And I saw and bare record that this is the sonne of god.

The next day after, John stode again, and .ii. of his disciples. And he beheld Jesus as he walked by and said: beholde the lambe of god. And the .ii. disciples herde him speke and folowed Jesus. And Jesus F turned about, and saw them folow, and sayd unto them: what seke ye? They said unto him: Rabbi (which is to say by interpretacion, Master) where dwellest thou? he sayd unto them: come and se. They came and saw wher he dwelt: and abode with him that dai. For it was about the tenth houre.

One of the .ii. which herd John speake and folowed Jesus, was Andrew Simon peters brother, the same found his brother Simon first, and saide unto hym: we haue found Messias, which is by interpretacion, anoynted: and brought him to Jesus. And Jesus beheld him and saide: thou art Simon the sonne of Jonas, thou shalt be called Cephas: which is by interpretacion, a stone.

The day folowing Jesus wold go in to galile, and found phylyp, and sayd unto him, folow me. Philip was of Bethsaida the citie of Andrew and Peter. And phylyp found Nathanael, and sayd unto hym. We haue found hym of whom Moses in the lawe and the Prophetes dyd wryte Jesus the sonne of Joseph of Nazareth. And Nathanael said unto him: can there any good thyng come out of Nazareth. Philip sayd to him: come and se.

Jesus saw Nathanael coming to him, and said of him. Behold a right Israelite, G in whom is no gile. Nathanael said unto him, whence knewest thou me? Jesus answered, and said unto him: Before that Philip called the, when thou wast under the fyg tree, I saw the. Nathanael answered and said unto him, Rabbi: thou art the sonne of god, thou art the king of Israel. Jesus answered and said unto him. Because I said unto the, I saw the under the figge tre, thou beleuest. Thou shalt se greter thinges then these. And he saide unto him: Verelye, verely, I sai unto you, hereafter shal ye se heuen open, and the angels of god ascending and descending ouer the sonne of man.

For god so loueth the worlde, that he hath geuē his only sōne, that none ŷ beleue in hī, shuld perysshe: but shulde haue euerlastīg lyfe. For god sēt not his sōne into ŷ worlde, to cōdēpne the worlde: but ŷ the worlde through hī, might be saued. He ŷ beleueth on him, shal not be condēpned. But he ŷ beleueth not, is condempned alreadye, because he beleuethe not in the name of ŷ only sōne of god. And this
C is ŷ cōdēpnacion that lyght is come into the worlde, & the mē loued darknes more then lyght, because their dedes were euil. For euery mā that euil doeth, hateth the light: nether cometh to light lest his dedes shulde be reproued. ¶ The louyng communicacyon of chryst wythe ŷ woman of Samaria by the welles syde. How he healeth the rulers sonne.

The .iiii. Chapter.

As sone as the lord had knowledg, how ŷ pharyses had hearde, that Jesus made & A baptised mo discyples then John (though that Jesus hī self baptised not: but his discyples) he left Jewry, & departed agayne into galile. And it was so ŷ he must nedes go thorow Samaria. Thē came he to a citie of Samaria called Sichar, besides ŷ possession that Jacob gaue to his sonne Joseph. And ther was Jacobs well. Jesus thē weried in his iorney, sate thus on the wel. And it was about the syxt houre, & ther came a womā of Samaria to drawe water. And Jesus sayde vnto her: geue me drinck. For his disciples were gone away vnto ŷ towne to bye meat. Thē sayd the womā of Samaria vnto him: how is it, ŷ thou being a Jew, askest drinke of me, which am a Samaritane. For B the Jewes medle not with the Samarytans. Jesus āswered & sayd vnto hir: yf thou knewest the gift of god, & who it is that sayeth to the geue me drīk, thou woldest haue asked of hym, & he wolde haue geuen ye water of lyfe. The womã sayde vnto him. Syr yu hast nothyng to draw wt, & thee well is depe: from whence then hast thou ye water of life? Art thou greater then our father Jacob which gaue vs ye wel, & he him self dranke thereof, and his children, and his catel?

Jesus answered & said vnto hir: whosoeuer drinketh of this water, shal thirste againe. But whosoeuer shal drink of ye water that I shal geue hĩ, shal neuer be more a thirst, but ye water yt I shall geue him, shalbe in hĩ a wel of water, springige vp into euerlastinge life. The womã said vnto hĩ: Sir geue me of that water, yt I thirst not, nether come hider to draw C Jesus said vnto her. Go & cal thy husbã de, & come hither. And the womã answered & said to him. I haue no husbãd. Je sus said to her. Thou hast wel sayde, I haue no husbãd. For yu hast had .v. husbãdes, & he whom yu now haste, is not thi husband. That saydest thou truely.
The womã said vnto him: Sir I per-ceaue yt yu arte a prophete. Oure fathers worshipped in this mouutaine: & ye say yt in Jerusalẽ is ye place wher mẽ ought to worship. Jesus said vnto her: womã be leue me, ye houre cometh, whẽ ye shal nether in this mouitayne nor yet at Jerusalem, worship the father. Ye worshypp ye wot not what: we knowe what we worship. For saluaciõ cõmeth of the Jewes.
But ye houre cometh & now is, when the true worshippers shal worship ye father in ye sprete, & in trouth. For verely suche the father requireth to worship hĩ. God is a sprete, & they that worshyp hĩ, must worshyp him in sprete and trouthe.
The womã said vnto him: I wot well Messias shal com, which is called christ When he is come, he wil tel vs al thiges: Jesus said vnto hir: I that speke vnto yu am he. And euẽ at ye poit came his discyples, & merueiled yt he talked wt thee wo-D man. Yet no mã said vnto hĩ: what mea nest thou, or why talkest thou with her?
The womã thẽ left her waterpot, & went her way into the citie, & said to thee men.
Come se a mã which told me al thynges yt euer I did. Is not he christ? Thẽ they wẽt out of the citie, and came vnto hym.
And in ye mene while his disciples praied him saying: Master, eate. He sayde vnto them: I haue meate to eat, that ye kno we not of. Then said the disciples betwe E ne thẽ selues: hath any mã brought him to eat? Jesus said vnto thẽ: my meat is to do the wil of him yt sent me. And to finish his worcke. Say not ye rather at yet fou-re monethes, & then cometh haruest? Be hold I say vnto you, lyft vp your eyes, & loke on the regions: for they are whyte alredy vnto haruest. And he yt repeth receueth reward, & gathereth frute vnto li fe eternal: yt both he yt soweth, & he that re peth might reioyce together. And heri is ye saying true, that one soweth and another repeth. I sẽt you to repe yt wheron ye bestowed no labour. Other mẽ labored, & ye are entred into their laboures.
Many of the Samaritãs of that citie F beleued on him, for ye saying of the womã, which testified: he told me al thiges that euer I dyd. Thẽ when the Samari tans were come vnto him they besought hĩ, that he wold tary wyth thẽ. And he abode ther two dayes. And many mo bele ued because of his owne wordes, & sayd vnto ye womã: Now we beleue not becau se of thy saying: for we haue herd hĩ our selues and know that thys is euẽ in dede christ the sauiour of the world.
After two dayes he departed thence, & went away into Galile. * And Jesus hi Mat.xiii. selfe testified that a prophete hathe none marc.vi. honour in his owne coũtre. Thẽ as sone luc.iiii. as he was come into galile, ye Galileans receaued him whych had sene al ye thyn-ges that he dyd at Jerusalem at the fest.
For they wẽt also vnto the feaste daye.
And Jesus came againe ĩto Cana of ga-lile, wher he turned ye water into wyne.
And ther was a certaine ruler, whose G sõne was syck at Capernaũ. Assone as ye same herde yt Jesus was come out of Jewry into Galile, he wẽt vnto hĩ, & besought hĩ, that he wold descend, & heale his sonne. For he was euen ready to die.
Thẽ saide Jesus vnto him: except ye se signes & wõders, ye cãnot beleue. The ru ler said vnto hĩ. Syr come away or euer that my child die. Jesus said vnto hĩ, go thy way, thy sõne liueth. And the mã be-leued the wordes yt Jesus had spokẽ vn to him, & wẽt hys way. And anone as he wẽt on his way his seruauntes met hym,
and

ŷ told him saying: thy child lyueth. Thē enquired he of them the houre whē he began to amend. And they said vnto him: Yester day ŷ seuenth houre, the feuer left the hī. And ŷ father knewe that it was the same houre in which Jesus said vnto hī Thy sonne lyueth. And he beleued, ⁊ all his houshold. ‡ This is againe the secōde myracle that Jesus dyd, after he was come out of Jewry into Galyle.

The Notes.

a. About the syxt houre ⁊c. The Jewes rekened ŷ houres of their dai from the sonne rysyng to the sonne settyng, so that the syxt houre was, vi. houres after thee sonne rysyng which at that tyme of the yere was about none.

b. I haue meat to eate ⁊c. his meat is to do the wil of his father. and the chefe thing of his fathers will is to preach ŷ gospell to al the worlde, Which thing was euen now at hand to be done: as when the corne is rype men must fal to haruest.

¶ He healeth the man that was sycke eight ⁊ thyrtie yere. The Jewes accuse hī ⁊ he answereth for hym self and reproueth them.

The. v. Chapter.

A After that there was a feaste of ŷ Jewes, ⁊ Jesus wente vp to Jerusalē. And ther is at Jerusalē, by the a slaughterhouse a pole called in the Ebrue tōge a bethseda, hauing. v. porches, in which laye a great multitude of syck folk, of blinde, halt and wyddered, wayting for the mouyng of thee water. For an angel went downe at a certayne ceasō into the pole and troubled the water. Whosoeuer then first after ŷ stering of the water, stepped in, was made whole of whatsoeuer disease he hadd. And a certaine mā was ther which had bene dyseased. xxxviii yeres. Whē Jesus saw hī lye, ⁊ knew that he now longe tyme had bene diseased, he said vnto him. Wilt ŷ

And Jesus said vnto hī: rise, take vp thi bedd ⁊ walk. And immediatly the mā was made whole, ⁊ toke vp his bed, ⁊ went. And ŷ same day was ŷ sabothe daye. The Jewes therfore said to him ŷ was made whole. It is ŷ Saboth daye, it is not lawful for the to cary thy beed. He āswered thē: he ŷ made me whole, sayd vnto me: take vp thy beed, ⁊ get ŷ hēce. Thē asked they hī what mā is that which said vnto ŷ take vp thy beed ⁊ walk. And he that was heled, wist not who it was. For Jesus had goten hī self awai, because ŷ ther was preace of people in ŷ place.

C And after that, Jesus foūd hym in the temple, ⁊ said vnto him: beholde ŷ art made whole, synne no more, lest a worsse thinge hapē vnto the. Thys is ÿ work of God, that ye beleue

Thẽ said they vnto him: lord, euer more he sayd: therfore sayde I vnto you: that Frõ y tyme many of his disciples wẽt this mā where he is: but whē christ commeth, nomā shal know whence he is.

Then cried Jesus in the temple as he taught saying: ye know me, & whence I am ye knowe. And yet I am not come of my self, but he that sente me is true, whō ye know not. I knowe hym: for I am of him, & he hath sent me. Thē they sought to take him: but no man layd handes on him, because his tyme was not yet come.
Many of the people beleued on him and sayd: whē Christ cometh, wyl he do moo myracles then thys mā hath done?
E The Pharises heard ỳ the people mur mured soch thinges about him. Wherfo re the Pharises & hye priestes sent ministers forth to take him. Thē sayd Jesus vnto thē: Yet am I a little whyl wt you, & then go I vnto him ỳ sent me. Ye shall seke me, & shal not fynd me: & wher I am thyther cā ye not come. Thē sayd the Je-wes betwene thē selues: whither wyll he go, that we shall not fynde him? Wyl he go amōg the gentils which are scattered al abroade, & teache the gentilles: What maner of sayig is this ỳ he sayd: ye shall seke me, & shal not fynd me: and where I am, thither can ye not come?
F In the last daye: the great day of the feast Jesus stode and cryed sayinge: Yf any man thyrst, let hym come vnto me, & drincke. He that beleueth on me, as sayth the scripture out of hys belly shall flowe ryuers of water of lyfe. Thys spake he of the spirite which they that beleued on hym, shuld receaue. b For the holy ghost was not yet there, because ỳ Jesus was not yet glorifyed.
✠ Many of the people, whē they heard this saying, sayd: of a truth this is a pro phet: other sayd, this is christ: som sayd: Mich.v.a. shal christ come out of Galile? Sayeth matth.ii.a. not ỳ scripture ỳ christ shall come of the G sede of Dauid? & out of ỳ town of Beth leem where Dauid was? So was there dissenciō amōg the people about hi. And some of thē wolde haue takē him: but no mā layde hādes on him. Then came the ministers to the hye preстes & Pharises.
And they sayde vnto them: why haue ye not brought him? The seruātes āswered neuer mā spake as this mā doeth. Then āswered thē the Pharises: are ye also disceaued? Doth any of the rulers or of the pharises beleue on hi? But the comē peo ple which know not ỳ lawe, are cursed. Ni codemus sayd vnto thē: he ỳ came to Je sus by nyght, & was one of them. Doth our law iudge any mā before it heare hi, and know what he hath done? They answered & sayd vnto him: art thou also of Galile? Searche & loke, for out of Gali le aryseth no Prophete. And euery man went vnto his owne house. ✠ brought vnto him a womā taken in aduoutry, & set hyr in the myddes & said vn to him: Master, this womā was takē in aduoutry, euē as the dede was doyng.

Moses in ỳ law cōmaūded vs that soch Luke.xx. shuld be stoned. What sayest thou therfore? And this they sayd to tempt him: ỳ they might haue wherof to accuse hym.
Jesus stouped downe, & with his finger wrote on the groūd. And whyle they cō-tinued asking him, he lyft hym selfe vp, & sayd vnto thē: let him ỳ is among you without synne, cast the first stone at her.
And agayne he stowped downe & wrote on the ground. And as sone as thei hear B de that, they wēt out one by one, ỳ eldest is with me. The father hath not left me alone, for I do alwayse those thinges that please him. As he spake these wordes many beleued on him.

✠ Then sayde Jesus to those Jewes which beleued on him. Yf ye continue in my wordes, then ar ye my very disciples and shal know the truth: & the truth shal make you free. They āswered hym: We be Abrahās sede, and were neuer bonde

Jesus answered thē: verely, verely I E do ye not know my speach? Euē because ye cānot abyde the hearing of my wordes Ye are of your father the deuyl, & the lustes of your father ye will do. He was a murtherer frō the beginning, & abode not in the truth, because ther is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lye, thē spea keth he of his owne. For he is a lyar, & y father therof. And because I tel you the trueth, therfore ye beleue me not.

✠ Whych of you cā rebuke me of syn F swered the Jewes & sayd vnto hī: Saye we not wel that y art a Samaritan and hast the deuil? Jesus answered: I haue not the deuyl: but I honour my father, and ye haue dishonoured me, I seke not myne owne prayse: but there is one that seketh and iudgeth.

Verely, verelye I saye vnto you yf a man kepe my sayinges, he shal neuer see death. Then sayde the Iewes vnto him, Now know we that thou hast ỹ deuil. Abraham is dead, and also the Prophetes and yet thou sayest, yf a mā kepe my say G inge, he shal neuer taste of death. Arte ỹ greater then our father Abraham, which is dead? & the Prophetes are dead. Whō makest thou thy selfe.

Jesus answered, Yf I honoure my selfe, myne honour is nothing worth. It is my father that honoureth me, whyche ye saye, is your God, & ye haue not knowen hym: but I knowe hym. And yf I shuld saye, I know hym not, I shuld be a lyar lyke vnto you. But I know him, and kepe hys sayinge.

Youre father Abraham was glad to se my b* daye, & he sawe it and reioysed. Thē sayd the Iewes vnto him: thou art not yet .l. yere olde, and hast thou sene Abrahā? Jesus sayd vnto thē: Verely verely. I saye vnto you: yer Abraham was I am. Then toke they vp stones to caste at hym. But Jesus hyd hym selfe & wēt out of the temple.

¶ Christ maketh the man to se that was borne blynde.

The .ix. Chapter.

A And as Jesus passed by, he saw a man which was blynde from hys byrth. And his disciples asked him saying: Master who dyd synne: this man or his father & mother, that he was borne blinde? Jesus answered: Neyther hath this man synned nor yet his father & mother: but ỹ the workes of God shulde be shewed on him. I must worcke the workes of him ỹ sent me, whyl it is day.

‡* The night cometh whē nomā cā worke. As long as I am in the worlde, I am the lyght of the worlde.

As sone as he had thus spokē, he spatt B on the ground & made claye of the spetle and rubbed the claye on the eyes of thee blynde, & sayd vnto him: Go washe the in the pole of Siloe, which by interpretacion, sygnifieth sent. He went his waye & washed and came agayne sayinge. The neyghbours & they that had sene him before how that he was a begger, sayde: is not this he ỹ sate & begged? Some sayd this is he. Other sayd: he is lyke hym. C

But he hym self sayde: I am euen he. They sayd vnto him. How are thine eyes opened then? He answered & sayde. The man that is called Jesus, made claye, & anointed mine eyes, & sayd vnto me. Go to the pole Siloe & weshe. And I wēte & weshed & receaued my sight. They sayd vnto hī: wher is he? He sayd: I cānot tel.

Then brought they to the Pharises, hym that a lyttle before was blynde: for it was the Saboth daye whē Jesus made the claye & opened hys eyes. Then agayne the Pharises also asked him how he had receaued his syght. He sayd vnto thē: He put claye vpō myne eyes and I washed & do se. Then sayd some of thee Pharises: this mā is not of God, becau- D se he kepeth not the Saboth day. Other sayd: how can a man that is a synner, do soch myracles? And ther was strife amōge them. Then spake they vnto the blinde agayne. What sayest thou of hym, because he hath opened thine eyes? And he sayd: He is a Prophet.

But the Iewes dyd not beleue of ỹ felow, how ỹ he was blind & receaued hys syght, vntyl they had called the father & mother of him ỹ had receaued his syght And they asked them sayinge: Is thys youre sonne, whō ye say was borne blind How doth he nowe se then? Hys father & mother answered thē and sayd, we wote wel that thys is our sonne, & that he was borne blind: but by what meanes he nowe seyth that can we not tel, or who hath opened his eyes, can we not tel. He is old E ynough, aske hym, lette him answere for him self. Soch wordes spake his father and mother, because they feared the Iewes.

wes. For the Jewes had cōspyred al rea dy that yf any man dyd cōfesse ÿ he was christ he shuld be excōmunicat out of the synagoge. Therfore said his father and mother: he is olde ynough, aske hym.

Then agayn called they the mā ÿ was blinde, & sayde vnto him: Geue God the prayse: we know ÿ thys man is a sinner.
He answered and sayd: whether he be a sinner or no, I cannot tel: One thinge I am sure of, ÿ I was blinde, & nowe I se.
Thē sayd they to him agayn. What dyd F he to ÿ? How opened he thine eyes? He ā swered thē, I told you yer while, & ye did not heare. Wherfore wold ye heare it a gayn? Wyl ye also be his disciples? Thē rated they him, & sayd: Thou art his dis ciple. We be Moses disciples. We ar su re that God spake with Moses. This fe low we know not frō whence he is.

The man answered & sayd vnto thē: thys is a meruelous thinge that ye wote not whēce he is, seing he hath opened my ne eies. For we be sure ÿ god heareth not a* synners. But yf any mā be a worship per of god & do his wyl, hym heareth he.
Sence ÿ world began was it not hearde that any mā opened the eyes of one that was borne blind. Yf thys man were not of god, he could haue done nothīg. Thei answered & sayd vnto hym: thou arte all together borne in synne, & doest ÿ teache vs? And they cast hym out.

G Jesus heard ÿ they had excōmunicate him: & assone as he had foūd him, he said vnto hym: doest ÿ beleue on the sonne of God? He answered and sayd: Who is it Lord, ÿ I might beleue on him? And Je sus sayd vnto him: Thou hast sene hym & he it is that talketh wt the. And he said Lord I beleue, & worshipped him. Je sus sayd: I am come vnto iudgemēt in to this world: ÿ they which se not might se, & they which se might be made blinde And some of ÿ Pharises which were wt hym, hearde these wordes and sayd vnto him: are we then blind? Jesus sayd vnto them: yf ye were blinde ye shuld haue no synne. But nowe ye saye, we se, therfore your synne remayneth.

The .x. Chapter.

Verely, verelye I saye vnto you, he ÿ entreth not in by ÿ A climeth vp some other way ÿ same is a thefe & a robber he ÿ goeth in by ÿ dore, is ÿ shepeherde of ÿ shepe: to him the porter openeth, & ÿ shepe heare his voyce, and he calleth hys own shepe by name, & leade thē out. And whē he hath sent forth his owne shepe, he goeth before thē, & the shepe folowe him: for thei know his voyce. A straūger they wyl not folowe, but wyl flye frō him: for they know not the voyce of straungers.

This similitude spake Jesus vnto them B But they vnderstode not what thinges agayne among the Jewes for these say-inges, & many of them sayd. He hath the deuyll, & is mad: why heare ye hi? Other sayd, these ar not the wordes of him that hath the deuyl. Can the deuyll open the eyes of the blynde?

✠ And it was at Jerusalē the feast of ỹ

E ked in Salomōs porche. Thē came thee Jewes roūde about him, and sayd vnto him: How long doest ỹ make vs doute?
Yf thou be Christ, tel vs playnly. Jesus answered thē: I told you & ye beleue not The workes ỹ I do in my fathers name, they beare witnesse of me. But ye beleue not, because ye ar not of my shepe. As I sayd vnto you: my shepe heare my voice & I know thē, & they folowe me, & I ge-

And I and my father are one.

Thē ỹ Jewes agayne toke vp stones, many good workes haue I shewed you frō my father: for which of them wyll ye stone me? The Jewes āswered hi saying For thy good worckes sake we stone the not: but for thy blasphemye, & because ỹ ỹ being a man, makest thy self god. Je-

Mary which anoynted Jesus with oyntmēt & wyped his fete wyth her hayre, whose brother Lazarus was sycke, & his sisters sent vnto him saying Lord beholde he whō thou louest, is sicke When Jesus heard that, he sayde: thys infirmitie is not vnto death, but for thee laude of God, ỹ the sonne of God might be praysed by the reason of it. Jesus loued Martha & her syster and Lazarus.
Then after he had heard that he was sic Thē after ỹ, said he to his disciples: let D vs go into Jewry agayne. His disciples sayd vnto him: Master, ỹ Jewes lately sought meanes to stone the, & wilte ỹ go not twelue houres in the daye? Yf a man walke in ỹ daye, he stōbleth not, because he seyth the light of this world. But yf a mā walke in ỹ night, he stōbleth, because ther is no light in him. This said he, & af ter that, he sayd vnto thē: our frend Lazarus slepeth, but I go to wake him out of slepe. Then sayd his disciples: Lorde yf he slepe, he shal do wel ynough. Howe beit Jesus spake of hys death: but they thought ỹ he had spoken of the naturall slepe. Then sayd Jesus vnto thē playn-ly, Lazarus is deed, & I am glad for you

Then whe Mary was come wher Je-was a caue & a stone layde on it.

And Jesus sayd: take ye away ye stone.
Martha the syster of hi yt was deed, sai

Father I thank the because that yu hast

And when he thus had spoke, he cryed F

¶ Mary anoynteth Christes fete. Judas murmureth. Christ excuseth her & rydeth into Jerusalem.

A Mat. xxvi. a. Mar. xiiii. a. Luke. vii. f.

Then Jesus sixe dayes before ester, came to Bethany where lasarus was, which was deed & whom Jesus raysed fro deeth. There they made him a supper, & Martha serued: but Lazarus was one of them that sate at the table with him. Then toke Mary a pounde of ointment called Nardus, perfect and precious, & anoynted Jesus fete, & wyped his fete with her heer & the house was fylled of the sauer of the ointmet.

Math. xxvi. a. Mar. xiiii. a.

Then saide one of his disciples named Judas Iscarioth Simons sonne, which afterward betrayed him, why was not this ointmente sold for thre hundred pence and geuen to the poore. This said he, not that he cared for the poore: but because he was a thefe, & kept the bagge, & bare that which was geuen. Then said Jesus: Let her alone, against the day of my burying she kepte it. The poore al wayes shal ye haue with you, but me shal ye not al wayes haue.

B Moch people of the Jewes had knowledge that he was ther. And they came, not for Jesus sake only, but that they myght se Lasarus also whom he raised fro deth. The hye prestes therfore held a counsel that they might put lasarus to dethe also because that for his sake many of the Jewes wente awaye, and beleued on Jesus. ✠

Mat. xxi. a. Mar. xi. a. Luke. xix. f.

✠ On the morow, moche people that were come to the feast when they herd that Jesus shuld come to Jerusalem, toke braunches of palme trees & wete & met him, & cryed Hosanna, blessed is he that in the name of the lord, cometh kig of Israel. And Jesus got a yonge asse & sate theron, accordig to that which was written: feare not daugh-

C ter of Sion, beholde thy kynge cometh syttyng on an asses coolt. These thinges vnderstode not his disciples at the fyrst: but whe Jesus was glorified, the remembred thei that soch thiges were writte of him, & that soch thiges they had done vnto him. The people that was with him whe he called Lazarus out his graue, & raised him from death, bare recorde. Therfore met him the people, because they heard that he hadde done soch a myracle. The Pharises therfore sayde amonge them selues perceaue ye how we preuayle nothinge. Beholde the worlde goeth away after hym.

There were certayne Grekes amonge them, that came to praye at the feast: the same came to Philip which was of Bethsaida a citie in Galyle, & desyred him saying: Syr, we wolde fayne se Jesus. Philip came & told Andrew. And agayn Andrew & Philip tolde Jesus. And Jesus answered them saying: the houre is come that D the sonne of man must be glorified.

✠ Verely verely I say vnto you, except the wheat corne fal into the grounde & dye, it byde alone. Yf it dye, it bringeth forth moch frute. He that loueth his lyfe shal destroy it: & he that hateth his lyfe in this world shal kepe it vnto lyfe eternall. Yf any ma minister vnto me, let him folowe me & wher I am ther shal also my minister be. And yf any ma minister vnto me hym wyl my father honoure. ✠

Nowe is my soule troubled, and what shal I saye? Father delyuer me fro thys houre: but therfore cam I vnto this houre. Father glorify thy name. Then came ther a voyce fro heauē: I haue glorified it & wil glorifye it agayne. Then sayd the people that stode by & heard: it thoundreth. Other sayd an angell spake to hym. Jesus answered & sayd: this voyce came, not because of me, but for your sakes.

✠ Now is the iudgemēt of this world now shal the prince of thys worlde be cast E out. And I, yf I were lyft vp fro the erth wyl drawe al men vnto me. This sayde Jesus, signifying what death he shulde dye. The people answered him: We haue heard out of the lawe that Christ byde euer and how sayest thou then that the sonne of man must be lift vp? who is that sonne of man? Then Jesus sayd vnto them: yet a lytle whyle is the lyghte with you. Walke whyl ye haue light, lest the darcknes come on you. He that walketh in the darcke, wotteth not whither he goeth. Whyl ye haue light beleue on the light, that ye maye be the chyldren of the lyght. ✠

These thinges spake Jesus & departed & hid him self fro them. And though he F had done so many myracles before them, yet beleued not they on him, yt the saying of Esaias ye Prophet might be fulfilled yt he spake. ☞ Lorde who shal beleue oure saying? And to whõ is ye arme of ye Lord opened? Therfore could they not beleue because yt Esaias sayth agayne: he hath blinded theyr eyes & hardened theyr her-tes, yt they shuld not se wt their eyes, & vn derstãd wt their hertes & shuld be cõuer-ted, & I shulde heale thẽ. Such thynges sayd Esaias whẽ he saw his glory, & spa ke of hi. Neuertheles amõg the chefe ru lers many beleued on hi. But because of F ye Pharises they wold not be a knowẽ of it, lest they shuld be excommunicate. For they loued the prayse yt is geuen of men, more then the praise that cometh of god.

And Jesus cryed & sayd: he yt beleueth G on me, beleueth not on me, but on hym yt sent me. And he yt seith me, seith him that sent me. ☩ I am come a light into ye worl de that whosoeuer beleueth on me, shuld not byde in darknes. And yf any mã hea re my wordes, & beleue not. I iudge him not. For I cam not to iudge ye world: but to saue ye world. He yt refuseth me & recea ueth not my wordes, hath one yt iudgeth hi. The wordes yt I haue spokẽ thei shal iudge him in ye last daye. For I haue not spokẽ of my self: but ye father which sent me, he gaue me a cõmaũdement what I shuld saye, & what I shuld speake. And I know yt this cõmaũdemẽt is lyfe euer lasting. Whatsoeuer I speake therfore, euẽ as the father bade me, so I speake ☩

The Notes.

☞ He that hateth his life &c. yt is, he that can be cõtẽt to lose his tẽporall lyfe in thys world for christes sake & his word, shal liue for euer as in Mat. x. Mar. viii. Luk. ix.

¶ Christ wassheth the disciples fete, sheweth that of Judas the traytour, & cõmaũdeth the earnestly to loue one another.

A Before ye feast of Ester whẽ Jesus knew that his houre was come, yt he shuld depar te out of this world vnto ye father. When he loued hys which were in ye world, vnto ye ende he lo ued thẽ. And whẽ supper was ended, after that the deuil had put in ye hert of Ju das Iscarioth Simõs sonne, to betraye him: Jesus knowing that the father had geuẽ all thinges into hys handes, & that he was come frõ god, & went to God: he rose frõ supper, & layd a syde his vpper garmẽtes, & toke a towel, and girde hym selfe. After that, he poured water into a basin, & ☞ began to washe his disciples fete, & to wipe thẽ wyth the towel, wherwith he was girde.
Then came he to Simon peter. And peter sayd to him: Lord shal thou weshe my fete? Jesus answered & sayde vnto him: what I do, thou wotest not nowe, but yu shalt know hereafter. Peter sayd vnto hi: yu shalt not washe my fete whyl ye world stãdeth. Jesus answered hi: yf I wash ye not, thou shalt haue no parte wt me. Simõ peter sayde vnto him: lor B de, not my fete only: but also my hãdes & my hedd. Jesus saide to him: he yt is wes shed, nedeth not saue to wesh his fete, & is clene euery whit. And ye ar clene: but not al. For he knew hys betrayer. Therfore said he: ye are not al clene.
After he had wesshed their fete, & recea-ued his clothes, & was set doune againe, he sayd vnto them: wot ye what I haue done to you. Ye cal me master & lorde, & ye say wel, for so am I: Yf I then youre lord and master haue wesshed your fete, ye also ought to wesh one anothers fete, for I haue geuẽ you an ensãple, yt ye shul de do as I haue done to you. ☩ Verely ve rely I say vnto you, ye seruaũt is not gre ter then his master, nether the messenger greater then he that sent hym.
Yf ye vnderstãd these thynges happy are ye yf ye do them. I speake not of you al, I know whõ I haue chosẽ. But that the scripture be fulfilled: he that eateth bread wt me, hath ☞ lift vp his hele agai C nst me. Now tel I you before it come: yt when it is come to passe ye might beleue yt I am he. Verely verely I saye vnto you. He that receaueth whõ soeuer I send receaueth me. And he that receaueth me, receaueth him that sent me.
Whẽ Jesus had thus said, he was trou bled in ye spirte, & testified saying: verely verely I saye vnto you, that one of you shal betraie me. And when the disciples loked one on another douting of whõ he spake. Ther was one of his disciples, whi ch lened on Jesus bosom, whõ Jesus lo ued. To hi beckened Simõ peter that he Assone thē as he had receaued the sop, he weēt immediatly out. And it was nyght, whē he was gone out. Jesus sayd: nowe is þ sonne of mā glorified. And God is glorified by him. Yf god be glorified by him, God shall also glorifye hym in him selfe: & shal straight waye glorifye hym.

✠ Deare chyldrē, yet a litell whyle am I wt you. Ye shal seke me, & as I sayde vnto þ Jewes whyther I go, thyther can ye not come. Also to you I saye nowe. A new cōmaūdemēt geue I vnto you, þ ye loue together, as I haue loued you, þ euē so ye loue one āother. By this shal al mē know that ye ar my disciples, yf ye shall haue loue one to another. Simon Peter sayd vnto him: Lord whyther goest þ?
Jesus answered hym: whyther I goo þ canst not folowe me now, but thou shalte folowe me afterwardes. ✠ Peter sayde vnto hym: Lorde, why cannot I folowe the nowe? I wyl geue my lyfe for thy sake. Jesus answered him: wilt thou geue thy lyfe for my sake? Verelye, verelye I say vnto the, the cocke shal not crow, tyll thou haue denyed me thryse.

I go to prepare a place for you, I wyll Thomas sayde vnto hym: Lorde we know not whether thou goest. Also how is it possible for vs to know the way? Je sus sayd vnto hym: I am the waye, the truth & þ lyfe. And nomā cometh vnto þ father, but by me. Yf ye had knowen me ye had knowē my father also. And now ye know him, & haue sene hym.

Philip sayd vnto him: Lord shew vs Verely, verely I say vnto you, he that re draweth nie, & is already come that ye shalbe scatered euery mā hys wayes, & shal leaue me alone. And yet am I not alone. For the father is wyth me.

These wordz haue I spoken vnto you y in me ye might haue peace. For in the world shal ye haue tribulatiō: but be of good chere, I haue ouercome y worlde.

The Notes

a* Of synne because they beleue not on me, Vnbelefe is y sinne that cōdempneth y world (By the world vnderstand the wycked reproued, and vnfaythful, not al y creatures that be in the world) and fayth is y ryghtewesnes of beleuers. Thys thyng because the worlde and naturall reason wyll not know, but wyll be iustifyed and saued by theyr owne workes is euen it, wherof the holy goost shal rebuke ther worlde and shew that it shalbe iustly condempned.

¶ The most harty & louyng prayer of chryste vnto his father, for al such as receaue the trueth.

These wordes spake Jesus & A lift vp his eies to heuen, & said: father y houre is come glorify thy sōne, that thi sō-ne may glorify y: as y hast geuen him power ouer al flesh, y he shul-de geue eternal lyfe to as many as thou haste geuē him. Thys is life eternall, y thei might know the that only very god, & whom thou hast sent Jesus Chryst.

I haue glorified the on the erth. I haue finished the worcke which thou gauest me to do: And now glorifye me y father wt thine owne selfe, wt the glory which I had with y yer the world was. I haue * a declared thy name vnto the men whyche thou gauest me oute of the world. Thy-ne they were & thou gauest them me, and they haue kept thy sayinges. Now they know that al thīges whatsoeuer y hast B geuē me, ar of the. For I haue geuē vnto thē the wordes which thou gauest me & they haue receaued thē, & know surely that I cam out frō the: & do beleue that thou dyddest sende me.

b * I pray for them, & praye not for thee world: but for them which thou hast ge-uē me, for they ar thyne. And al myne ar thyne, and thyne are myne, & I am glorified in thē. And now am I no more in y world, but they ar in y worlde, & come to the. ‡ ✠. Holy father kepe in thine owne name, thē whych thou hast geuen me, that they may be one, as we ar. Whil I was wt them in y world, I kept them in thy name. Those that thou gauest me haue I kepte, and none of them is lose, but that lost chyld, that the scripture might be fulfylled.

Now come I to the, & these wordz speke I in the world, that they might haue my ioyeful in thē. I haue geuē them thy C wordes, & the world hath hated them, because thei ar not of y world, eue as I am not of y world. I desyre not y thou shuldest take thē out of the worlde: but that thou kepe them frō euyll. They are not of the world, as I am not of the world.
Sāctifie them wyth thy truth. The saying is truth. As thou dydest send me into the world, euen so haue I sent them into the world, & for their sakes sāctifye I my selfe, that they also myght be sanctify-ed thorowe the truthe.

I pray not for thē alone: but for them also whiche shall beleue on me thorowe their prechig, that they all may be one, as thou father art in me, & I in the, that they maye be also one in vs, that y worl-de may beleue that thou hast sēt me. And that glory that thou gauest me, I haue geuē them, that they maye be one, as we are.

at one. I in them & thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one, & yt the worl de may know that yu hast sent me, & hast loued the as thou hast loued me.

D Father, I wil that they which yu haste geuen me, be with me where I am, that they may se my glory which yu hast geuē me. For thou louedest me before the ma Mark. x. D / Luke. x. D king of the world.* O ryghteousse father, ye very world hath not knowē ye: but I haue knowen the, & these haue knowē that thou hast sēt me. And I haue decla red vnto thē thy name, & wil declare it, yt the loue wherwith yu hast loued me, be in them, & that I be in them.

The Notes

a* I haue declared thy name &c. That is thy same thy renowne & glory that thou art mercyful, forgeuest synnes for my sake, art good, and ryghtwesse. &c b* I pray for them, I praye not for the world, that is, for the those pray I, not for ye wycked, froward, & vnbeleuers.

wed he him self. Ther were together Simon Peter and Thomas, which is called Didimus: & Nathanael of Cana a citie of Galile, & ŷ sonnes of zebedei, & two other of the disciples. Simõ Peter sayd vnto thẽ. I go a fishing. Thei said vnto hi: we also wil go wt the. They went their way & entred B into a ship straight way, & ŷ nyght caught they nothing. But whẽ ŷ morninge was now come Jesus stode on the shore neuertheles the disciples knewe not ŷ it was Jesus. Jesus sayd vnto them: syrs haue ye any meate? They answered him, no. And he said vnto thẽ: cast out the net on the right side of the ship, & ye shal fi(n)d they cast out, & anone they were not able to drawe it for the multitude of fishes.

Thẽ sayd the disciple whõ Jesus lo- C ued vnto Peter: It is the lord. Whẽ Si-mõ Peter heard that it was the Lord, he gyrde his mantel to him (for he was naked) & sprãg into the see. The other disci ples came by ship, for they were not far from lãd, but as it were two hũdred cubi tes, & they drew the net wt fisshes. Assone as they were come to lãd, they saw hoot coles & fisshe layd theron, & breed. Jesus D sayd vnto thẽ: bring of ẏ fisshe which ye haue now caught. Simõ Peter stepped forth & drawe the net to land ful of grea te fisshes, an hũdred & .liii. And for al ther were so many, yet was not the net broke.

Jesus sayd vnto them: come & dyne. And none of the disciples durst aske hi: what art thou? For they knew that it was the Lord. Jesus then came and toke breede, & gaue them, and fysshe lykewyse. And thys is nowe the thyrde tyme that Jesus apered to his disciples, after that he was rysen agayne from deeth.
E Whẽ they had dyned, Jesus sayd to Si mon Peter: Simõ Joãna: louest ẏ me ry tyl I come, what is that to the. The sa me disciple is he, which testifieth of these thynges, and wrote these thynges. And panied with vs, al the tyme that the lord Jesus went in & out amonge vs, begin-ninge at the baptime of John vnto that same daye that he was taken vp fro vs must one be ordeyned to beare witnes w vs of hys resurrection.

And they appoynted .ii. Joseph called Barsabas (whose syrname was Justus) & Mathias. And they prayed saying: thou Lord which knowest the hertes of al me shewe whether of these two thou haste chosen that the one may take the rowme of this ministration & Apostleship, from which Judas by transgression fell, that he might go to hys owne place. And they gaue forth theyr lottes, and the lotte fell on Mathias, and he was counted wyth the eleuen Apostles. ✝

Sence now y he by the ryght hand of God exalted is, & hath receaued of the father the promyse of the holye Ghoste, he hath shed forth that which ye now se and heare. For Dauid is not ascēded into heuē: but he sayd. ‡ The Lord sayde to my Lord syt on my right hād vntyl I make thy foes thy fotestole. So therfore let al the house of Israel know for a suerty, y God hath made that same Iesus whom ye haue crucified, Lord and Christ. F

Psal. cix. a

Whē thei heard this thei were pricked in their hertes, & sayd vnto peter & vnto y other Apostles: Ye mē & brethrē, what shal we do? Peter sayd vnto thē: repente and be baptised euery one of you in y name of Iesus Christ for the remission of synnes, & ye shal receaue the gyfte of the holy ghoste. For the promyse was made vnto you & to your chyldren, & to al that are a farre euē as many as y Lord oure god shal cal. And wt many other wordes bare he witnes & exhorted them sayinge: Saue youre selues frō this vntowarde generation. Thē they that gladly receaued hys preaching, were baptised: & the same day there were added vnto them aboute thre thousande soules. G

And they cōtynued in y Apostles doctrine & felowship, & in breaking of bread and in prayer. And feare came ouer euery soule. And many wōders & signes were shewed by the Apostles. And al y beleued kept thē selues together, & hadde all thinges cōmen, & sold theyr possessiōs & goodes, & departed thē to al mē, as euery mā had nede. And they contynued dayly wt one accorde in y tēple, & brake bred in euery house, & dyd eate theyr meat together, wyth gladnes & singlenes of herte praysing God, & had fauour withall the people. And the Lord added to the cōgregation dayly soch as shuld be saued.

¶ The halte is restored to his fete. Peter preacheth Christ vnto the people.

In Jesus ỹ he was rysen & al shal be ryse by hym.

And it chaunsed on ẏ morow that their rulers & elders & Scribes, as Annas the chefe Prest & Cayphas & John & Alexander & as many as were of ẏ kinred of ẏ hie prestes gathered together at Jerusalẽ, & sett ẏ other before thẽ, & asked: by what power or in what name haue ye do

When they saw the boldnes of peter & John, & vnderstode that they were vnlerned men & lay people, they marueyled, & they knew thẽ, that they were wt Jesu: & beholding also the man which was healed stãding wt them, they could not saye agaynst it. But they cõmaunded thẽ to go a syde out of the councel, and counceled amonge them selues sayinge: what shal we do to these mẽ? For a manyfeste signe is done by them, & is openlye knowẽ to al thẽ that dwel in Jerusalẽ, & we cannot denie it. But that it be noysed no farther amõg the people, let vs threaten & charge thẽ that they speake hẽce forth to no man in this name.

And they called them, & cõmaũded thẽ
D that in nowyse they shuld speake or teache in the name of Jesu. But Peter and John ãswered vnto them and said: whether it be ryght in the sight of god, to obey you more then god, iudge ye. For we cãnot but speke that which we haue sene & herd. So threatened they them & lett them go, and founde nothynge howe to punish them, because of the people. For al men lauded god for the myracle whiche was done: for ẏ mã was aboue fourtie yeare olde, on whom thys miracle of healyng was shewed.

Assone as they were let go, they came to their felowes, & shewed all that thee hye E Prestes & elders had sayd to them. And when they heard that, they lifte vp theyr voyces to God wyth one accord, & sayd: Lorde, thou arte God which haste made heauen & erth the see and al that in them is, which by ẏ mouth of thy seruaũt Dauid hast saide: * Why dyd ẏ hethẽ rage, Psalm.ii.a

nias how is it y Sathã hath filled thine hert, that thou shuldest lye unto the holy ghost, & kepe away part of y pryce of the lyuelod? Pertayned it not unto the only, & after it was solde, was not the pryce in younge men rose up, & put him aparte, & caryed him out, and buryed hym.

And it fortuned as it were aboute the space of .iii. houres after y his wife came in, ignoraunt of y which was done. And Peter sayd unto her: Tel me, gaue ye the buried her by her husbande. And greate feare came on all the congregation, & on as many as hearde it.

C By y handes of the apostles were many signes & wõders shewed amõg y people And they were al together w one accord in Salomõs porche. And of other durst nomã ioyne him self to thẽ: neuerthelater moche y they broughte the sycke into the streetes, and layde them on beddes & palettes, that at the least waye the shadowe of Peter whẽ he came by might shadow some of them. Ther came also a multitu D de out of the cities round about, unto Je rusalẽ bringing sycke folckes & thẽ whi che were vexed wyth uncleane spretes.

And they were healed euery one.
Thẽ the chefe Preste rose up & al they y were with him (which is the secte of the Sadduces) & were ful of indignatiõ, and layd hãdes on the apostles, & put thẽ in y by night opened y preson dores, & brou-ghte thẽ forth, & sayde: go, steppe forth, & speake in y tẽple to the people al the wor des of this lyfe. When they hearde that, they entred into the tẽple early in y morning & taught. The chefe Preste came & they that were w him, & called a counsell

Jesus, whõ ye slew & hãged on tre. Him hath God lyfte up with his right hande, to be a ruler & a sauioure, for to geue re-pẽtãce to Israel & forgeuenes of synnes And we are his recordes cõcerning these thinges & also the holy ghoste whõ God hath geuẽ to them that obey him. When they heard that, they claue a sunder: and sought meanes to slee them. Then stode ther up one in the coũsel, a Pharisey named Gamaliel, a doctour of lawe had in auctoritie amõg al the people & cõmaunded to putte the Apostels a syde a lytle space, & sayde vnto them: men of Israel take hede to your selues what ye entend E to do as touchinge these mẽ. Before these dayes rose vp one Theudas bostinge him self, to whõ resorted a nõbre of men, about a foure hũdred which was slayne, & they al which beleued him were scattered abrode & brought to noughte. After this man, arose ther vp one Judas of ga lile in ÿ tyme when tribute begã, & drew a way moche people after him. He also perished: & al euẽ as many as harkened to him are scattered abrode.

And now I say vnto you: refrayn your selues frõ these men, let thẽ alone. For yf ÿ counsel of this worke be of mẽ, it wil come to nought. But & yf it be of god ye cã not destroy it, lest haply ye be foũd to stri & called the Apostles, & bet them, & commaunded ÿ they shuld not speake in the name of Jesu, and let them go.

And they departed frõ the coũsel, reioy-sing that they were coũted worthi to suf fre rebuke for his name. And dayly in ÿ temple & in euery house they ceased not, teaching & preachynge Jesus Chryst.

a* By the castyng of his mony at ÿ Apostles fete/ would he haue bene couted to bee one of the chrystẽ congregacion, & that one of the chefe. B The men which iorneyed wt him, stode amased, for they heard a voyce, but saw nomā. And Saul arose frō the erth, and opened his eyes, but saw no mā. Thē led they him by the hād, & brought hym into Damasco. And he was .iii. dayes wtout sight & nether ate nor dranke. And there was a certayne disciple at Damasco named Ananias & to hym sayd the Lord in a vision: Ananias? And he sayd: behold I am here Lord. And the Lord sayd vnto him: aryse & go into the strete which is called straight, & seke in the house of Judas after one called Saul of Tharsus. For beholde he prayeth, & hath sene in a vision a mā named Ananias coming in to him, & puttinge hys handes on him, ẏ he might receaue hys syght.

C Then Ananias answered: Lord, I haue heard by many of this mā, how moch euil he hath done to thy sayntes at Jerusalē: & here he hath auctorite of the hye Prestes to bynd al that cal on thy name. The Lord sayd vnto him: go thy wayes for he is a chosen vessell vnto me, to beare my name before the Gentils & kinges and the chyldren of Israell. And immediatly there fell frō hys eyes as it had bene scales, & he receaued syght & rose & was baptysed, & receaued meat & was cōforted. Then was Saul a certen dayes wt
D the disciples whyche were at Damasco. And streyght waye he preached Christe in the Synagoges, how that he was the sonne of god. Al ẏ heard him, were amased & sayd: is not this he that spoyled thē which called on this name in Jerusalē, & came hether for ẏ entent ẏ he shuld bringe them bound vnto ẏ hye prestes? But Saul encreased in strēgth, & cōfounded the Jewes which dwelt at Damasco affyrming that this was very Christ.

And after a good whyle, ẏ Jewes toke coūcel together, to kyl him. But theyr laying awayt was knowē of Saul. And they watched at the gates daye & nyghte to kyl him. Then the disciples toke him by night and put hym thorow the wal & let hym downe in a baskette.

E And whē Saul was come to Jerusalē he assayde to couple him self wt ẏ disciples & they were al afrayed of him, & beleued not ẏ he was a disciple. But Barnabas toke him & brought him to the Apostles & declared to thē how he had sene ẏ Lord in the waye, & had spoken with hym: and how he had done boldely at Damasco in y name of Jesu. And he had his cõuersa ciõ wyth them at Jerusalem, & quit hi selfe boldly in the name of the lord Jesu. And he spake & disputed wyth the Grekes: & they went about to slee him. But whē y brethren knew of that, they brought him to Cesarea, and sent him forth to Thar-

The said peter vnto him: Eneas Jesus Christ make the whole: aryse and make thy bed. And he arose immediatlye. And al that dwelt at Lidda and Assarō, saw him, and torned to the Lord.

There was at Joppa a certaine woman (which was a disciple named Tabitha, which by interpretaciō is called Dorcas) the same was ful of good workes & almes dedes, which she did. And it chaunsed in those daies that she was sick and died. When they had wesshed her & layde her in a chāber: because Lidda was nye to Joppa, & the disciples had harde that peter was there, they sent vnto him, desy

Peter arose & came wyth them. And when G he was come, they brought him into the chāber. And al the wydowes stode roūde about him weping & shewinge the cotes

Then sent I for the immediatly: & thou hast wel done for to come. Now are we al here present before god, to heare al thyn

Then Peter opened hys mouth & saide: Of a trueth I perceaue, that god is not parciall but in all people he that feareth hym & worketh ryghtewesnes, is accepted wyth hym.

Ye know the preaching that God sente vnto ẏ childrē of Israel, preachīg peace F by Iesus Christ, whych is Lord ouer al thinges. Which preachīg was publis-shed thorow out al Iewry, and beganne in Galile, after the baptisme which Iohn preached how god had anoynted Iesus of Nazareth wt the holy gost, & wyth po wer. Which Iesus wēt about doīg good, & healinge al ẏ were oppressed of the deuels, for god was wt him. And we are wit nesses of al thyngis which he dyd in the land of the Iewes & at Ierusalē: whom they slew, & hange on tree. Him god rey-sed vp the third day, & shewed him opely, not to al the people, but vnto vs wyt-nes chosē before of god, which are & dronc ke wt hī after he arose frō deeth. And G he cōmaūded vnto vs to preache vnto ẏ people & testifie, that it is he that is orde ned of god a iudge of quick & deede. To him geue al the Prophetes witnesse, that thorow his name, al that beleue in hym shal receaue remyssyon of synnes.

While Peter yet spake these wordes, the holy gost fell on al thē which herde ẏ preaching. And they of the circumcision which beleued, were astonyed, as manye as came wt Peter, because that on ẏ Gē tyls also was shed out the gyft of ẏ ho ly gost. For they hearde thein speake wt tōgis & magnyfy God. Then answered Peter: cā any man forbyd water, ẏ these shuld not be baptysed, which haue recea ued the holy ghoost as wel as we? And he cōmaunded them to be baptised in ẏ name of the Lord. Then prayde they him: to tary a fewe dayes.

must be iustyfyed by fayth that came by hearyng the glad tydynges preached in Christ. Rom. x. And therfore must ye loke vnto the wordes of Luke in the beginninge of thys Chapter wher he sayeth that he feared god whych thynge he could not haue done, neyther yet haue prayed nor geuen almose, excepte he hadde beleued: for howe shoulde he haue called on hym, on whome he beleued not: Thus are we compelled to ascribe his callinge vnto faythe oute of whyche these fruytes of prayer and fastynge proceaded, specially seynge that Saynte Paule affyrmeth that whatsoeuer is not done of fayth the same is synne. Romaynes. xiiii. d. The Christen then, and suche as wyll the Scripture to be trew in all places and so expounde one texte, that another maye agree with it, doo ryghte well knowe that hys calling and oure saluacyon is freely geuen of God for hys sonne Christes sake: and not for the deseruynge of oure worckes. And because fayth can receaue thys grace and fre benefyte of God, and beleue it to be true, & workes neyther can beleue it nor yet deserue it therfore is it ascrybed vnto faythe and not to worckes. Yf prayer or fastynge or the holiest worcke vnder heauen could saue, Christe hadde neuer neded to haue suffred soche greuouse paynes, but vtterly dyed in vayne Neyther shoulde God freelye chose vs, but oure worckes shoulde chose hym. ¶ Peter sheweth the cause wherfore he wente to the Hethen. Barnabas & Paul preached vnto the Heythen. Agabus prophecieth derth for to come.

The. xi. Chapter.

A AND y Apostles & y brethren that were thorowout Iewry hearde saye that the Hethen had also receaued the worde of god. And whe peter was come vp to Ierusale, they of the circumcysyon reasoned wyth him sayinge: Thou wentest into men vncircumcised, & atest wyth them.

Then peter began & expounded y thynge in order to the saying. I was in y cytie of Ioppa praying, & in a traunce I sawe a visio, a certe vessel descēd, as it had bene a large linnen cloth, let doune from heue by the fower corners, & it came to me Into the which when I had fastened mine eies, I cosydered and saw fower foted beastes of the earth, & vermē & wormes, & foules of ayer: And I herd a voyce sayinge vnto me, arise peter, sley & eate. And I said: God forbyd lord, for nothing comme or vnclene, hath at any time entred into my mouth. But y voyce answered me againe fro heuen, coumpte not y those thīges comen which god hath clensed. And thys was done thre times. And al were taken vp agayne into heuen. B

And behold immediatly ther were thre men come vnto y house wher I was sent fro Cesarea vnto me. And y sprete sayd vnto me, y I shuld go with them, without doutyng. Moreouer the sixe brethre accompanyed me: & we entred into the mas house. And he shewed vs how he had sene an agel ī his house, which stode & said to him: send mē to Ioppa, & cal for Symō, named also peter: he shall tel y wordes, wherby both y & al thine house shal be saued. And as I began to preache, y holy gost fel on them, as he dyd on vs at y beginning. Then came to my remembraūce y wordes of y lord, how he sayd: C John baptist with water but ye shalbe baptysed wythe the holye goost. For as moch thē as god gaue them like giftes, as he did vnto vs, when we beleued on y lord Iesus christ: what was I, y I shulde haue withstand God. Whē they herd thys, they held their peace and glorified god, saying: thē hath god also to y Gentyls graunted repentaunce vnto lyfe. John. i. d of the lord was wyth them, and a greate nobre beleued & turned vnto the Lorde.

Tidinges of these thinges came vnto ȳ eares of the cõgregacyon, whych was in Ierusalem. And they sent forth Barnabas ȳ he shuld go vnto Antioche, which when he was come & had sene ȳ grace of god, was glad, & exhorted thē al, that with purpose of hert, they wold cõtinually cleaue vnto the Lorde. For he was a good mā, and ful of the holy goost & of fayth: & moch people was added vnto ȳ Lord. The departed Barnabas to Tarsus, for to seke Saul. And when he had foūd him, he brought hī vnto Antioche. And it chaūsed ȳ a whole yere they had their cõuersaciō wt the congregaciō ther, and taught moche people: in so moche ȳ ȳ disciples of Antioche were the fyrste ȳ were called Chrysten.

Actu.xxi.b ✠ In those dayes came Prophetes frō Ierusalē vnto Antioche. And ther stode vp one of them named Agabus, and signified by ȳ spirite, that ther shuld be greate derth thorowghout al the world, whyche came to passe in the Emproure Claudius dayes. Then the disciples euery mā accordinge to his abilyte, purposed to sēde socour vnto the brethren which dwelt in Iewry, whych thyng they also dyd, & sent it to the elders, by the hādes of Barnabas and Saul.

¶ Herode persecuteth ȳ Christē, killeth Iames, & putteth peter in prisō, whō the lorde delyuereth by an Angel. The shameful death of Herode.

B IN that tyme Herode ȳ king stretched forthe his handes to vexe certaine of ȳ cõgregaciō. And he killed Iames ȳ brother of Iohn with the swerde & because he saw that it pleased ȳ Iewes, he proceaded farther, & toke Peter also. Then were the dayes of swete bread. And whē he had caught him, he put him in prisō & delyuered him to .iiii. * quaternions of souldiers to be kept, entending after ester to bring him forth to the people. Then was peter kept in prison. But prayer was made without ceasinge of ȳ congregacion, vnto god for him. And whē Herode wold haue brought him out vnto the people, the same nyghte slepte peter betwene two souldiers, bound with two chaynes, and the kepers before the dore kepte the prison.

Quaternyon is foure souldiers

And beholde ȳ angel of the Lorde was ther presēt, & a light shined in the lodge. And he smote peter on the side, & stered hī vp saying: aryse vp quickly. And hys cheines fel of frō hys handes. And ȳ angel said vnto him: gyrd thy selfe and binde on thy sandals. And so he dyd. And he sayde vnto him: cast thy mantle aboute the, & folow me. And he came out and folowed him, and wyste not, that it was truth ȳ was done by ȳ āgel, but thought he had sene a visiō. When they were past the first and the second watch, they came vnto the yron gate, that ledeth vnto the cytye, which opened to them by his owne accorde. And they wente out and passed thorow one strete, and by and by the Angel departed from hym.

And whē peter was come to hym selfe, he sayd: now I know of a surety, that ȳ Lord hath sent his Angel, & hath delyuered me out of the hande of Herode, & frō al the waytynge for of the people of the Iewes. ✠ And as he consydred ȳ thinge, he came to the house of Mary ȳ mother of one Iohn, which was called marke also, wher many were gathered together in praier. As Peter knocked at the entry dore, a dāsel came forth to herken, named Rhoda. And whē she knew Peters voice, she opened not the entre for gladnes, but rā in & told how peter stode before the enter. And they said vnto her: ȳ art mad. And she bare thē downe that it was euen so. Thē said they it is his angel. But peter continued knocking: and when they had opened the dore, & sawe hī, they were astonied. And he beckened vnto thē with the hand, to hold their peace, & tolde them by what meanes the Lorde had brought him out of the prisō. ✠ And he said: go shew these thinges vnto Iames & to the brethren. And he departed & went in to another place.

This Iohn is the same which wrote the Gospel of marke.

Assone as it was day ther was no lytel ado among the souldiers, what was become of peter. Whē Herode had called for hī & found hī not, he examined ȳ kepers, & commaūded them to depart. And he descended from Iewry to Cesarea, & ther abode. Herode was displeased wyth them of Tyre and Sidon. And they came al at once, & made intercessiō vnto Blastus ÿ kinges chamberlein, and desired peace, because theyr countrey was nourished by the kinges land. And vpon a day apointed, Herode arayed him in royal apparell, & set him in hys seate, & made an oracion vnto thē. And ÿ people gaue a shoute, sayinge: it is ÿ voice of a god & not of a mā. And immediatly the angel of the lord * smote him, because he gaue not god the honour, & he was eaten of wormes & gaue vp the gost. And the word of god grew and multiplied. And Barnabas & paul returned to Jerusalē, when they had fulfilled theyr office, & toke with thē John, whych was also called Marcus.

Paul & Barnabas are called to preach among the heythen. Of Sergius Paulus & Elymas ÿ sorcerar. Paul preacheth at Antioche.

The .xiii. Chapter.

A There were at Antioche, in ÿ cōgregaciō certaine * prophetes & teachers: as Barnabas & Simō called Niger, & Lucyus of Cerene & Manahen Herode the Tetrarkes norsfelow, and Saul. As they ministred to the lord and fasted, the holy gost sayd: separate me Barnabas and Saul, for ÿ work wher vnto I haue called thē. Then fasted they & prayed, and put their hādes on thē, and lett them go. And they after they were sēt of the holy gost, came vnto Seleucia, and from thence they sailed to Cipres. And whē they were come to Salamine, they shewed the word of god in the synagogis of the Jewes. And they had John to theyr minister.

When they had gone thorowout ÿ yle vnto the citie of Paphos, they founde a certaine sorcerer, a false prophet whyche

B was a Jew, named Barjesu, which was wt ÿ ruler of thee countre one Sergius paulus a prudent man. The same ruler called vnto hi Barnabas and Saul, & desyred to heare the word of god. But Elimas the sorcerer (for so was hys name by interpretaciō) withstode thē, & sought to turne awaye the ruler from the fayth. Thē Saul, which also is called paul being ful of ÿ holy goost set his eies on hi, and said: O ful of al sutelty and deceitfulnes, ÿ child of ÿ deuyl, and ÿ enemye of all ryghtousnes, ÿ ceasest not to peruert the straight wayes of the Lord. And now beholde the hande of the Lorde is vpō the, & thou shalt be blynd & not se the sunne for a season. And immediatly

C ther fel on hym a myste & a darknes, and he wēt about sekyng thē that should leade hym by the hand. Then the ruler whē he saw what had happened, beleued & wondred at the doctryne of the Lord.

Whē they that were with Paul, were departed by ship frō Paphus, they came to Perga a citie of Pamphilia: and ther John departed frō thē, and returned to Jerusalem. But they wandred thorowe the countreys frō Perga too Antioche a cytie of the coūtrey of Pisidia, & wēt into the synagoge on the Sabothe daye & sate downe. And after the law & the Prophetes were redde, the rulers of the synagoge sent vnto thē saying. Ye men and brethren, yf ye haue any sermō to exhort the people, saye on.

Thē Paul stode vp & beckened wyth the hād, & sayd: Men of Israel, & ye that feare God, geue audience. The God of thys people chose our fathers, & exalted the people whē they dwelte as straūgers in the land of Egipt, & wyth a myghtye arme brought thē out of it, & aboute the tyme of .xl. yeres suffred he their maners in the wyldernes. And he destroyed .vii. nacions in the land of Canaan, & deuyded theyr land to thē by Lot. And afterward he gaue vnto thē iudges aboute ÿ space of .iiii.C. & .l. yeres vnto the tyme of Samuel the Prophet. And after that they desyred a kynge, & God gaue vnto

D thē Saul ÿ sonne of Cis, a mā of ÿ trybe of Beniamin, by the space of .xl. yeares. And after he had put hi downe, he set vp Dauid to be their king, of whō he reported saying: I haue found Dauid ÿ sonne of Jesse, a man after myne owne hert, he shal fulfyll all my wyll.

Of this mās sede hath god (accordyng to hys promes) brought forth to the people of Israel, a sauiour, one Jesus, when John had fyrst preached before hys cōming the baptyme of repentaūce to Israel. And whē John had fulfilled his course, he sayd: whō ye thinke that I am, the same am I not. But beholde ther cometh one after me whose shoes of hys fete I am not worthy to lowse.

¶ Ye men & brethren, chyldren of the generation of Abraham, & whosoeuer among you feareth god, to you is this worde of saluation sent. The inhabiters of Ierusalem & their rulers, because they knew hym not, nor yet ye voyces of ye Prophetes whiche are redde euery Sabboth day, they haue fulfilled the in condempnyng him. And whe they founde no cause of death in him yet desyred they Pylate to kill hym. And whe they had fulfylled al yt were wrytten of him, they toke hym downe fro the tree & put him in a sepulcre. But God raysed him agayne fro death, & he was sene many dayes of the which came with him fro Galile to Ierusalem. Whych are hys witnesses vnto the people.

E — Mat. xxvii. c. Luk. xxiii. c.

And we declare vnto you, how that the promes made vnto ye fathers, God hath fulfilled vnto vs their chyldren, in yt he reysed vp Iesus agayne, euen as it is written in the fyrst psalme: Thou art my sonne, this same day begat I the. As concernyng yt he raysed him vp fro death, now nomore to returne to corruption, he sayde on this wyse: The holye promises made to Dauid, I wyll geue the faythfully to you. Wherefore he sayth also in another place. Thou shalt not suffer thyne holy to se corruption. Howbeit Dauid after he had in his tyme fulfilled the wyll of god he slept, & was layde wyth his fathers, & sawe corruption. But he whom god reysed agayne, sawe no corruption.

F Be it knowen vnto you therfore ye men and brethren, yt thorow thys man is preached vnto you the forgeuenes of synnes, & that by him al that beleue, are iustified fro al thinges fro which ye could not be iustified by the lawe of Moses. Beware therfore lest yt fal on you, which is spoken of in the prophetes: Behold ye despisers and wonder, & perishe ye, for I do a worke in your dayes, which ye shal not beleue, yf a man wold declare it you.

When they were come out of ye Synagoge of the Iewes, the gentils besought that they wold preache the word to them betwene ye Sabboth dayes. Whe the congregation was broke vp, many of the Iewes & relygious conuerts folowed Paul and Barnabas, which spake to the & exhorted the to continue in the grace of god.

¶ And ye next sabboth day came almost ye whole cytie together, to heare ye worde of God. Whe the Iewes sawe ye people, they were ful of indignation & spake agaynst those thinges which were spoken of Paul speaking against it, & raylyng on it. The Paul & Barnabas wared bolde, & sayde: it was mete that the word of god shulde fyrst haue ben preached to you. But seinge ye put it from you, & thinke your selues vnworthy of euerlastyng lyfe: lo, we turne to the Gentils: For so hath ye Lord commaunded vs. I haue made the a lyght to the Gentyls, that thou be saluation vnto the ende of the worlde. G

Esay. xlix. b.

The gentils heard & were glad & glorified the worde of the Lorde, & beleued euen as many as were ordened vnto eternall lyfe. And the word of the Lord was published thorow out al the region. But the Iewes moued the worshipfull & honorable wemen & the chefe men of the citie, & raysed persecution agaynst Paul & Barnabas & expelled them oute of their costes. And they shoke of the duste of their fete agaynst them, & came vnto Iconium. And the disciples were fylled with ioye and wyth the holy ghost. F

They determined yͭ Paul & Barnabas, & certayn other of them shuld ascende to Jerusalẽ vnto the Apostels & elders about thys question. And after they were brought on their way by yͤ cõgregation, they passed ouer Phenices & Samaria, declaring the cõuersion of the Gentyls, and they brought great ioye vnto al the they declared what thinges god had done B by thē. Then rose vp certayn of the secte of the Pharises, which dyd beleue, sayig that it was nedeful to circumcise them & to commaunde them to kepe the law of Moses. And the Apostles & elders came together to reason of thys matter.

And when ther was moch disputinge, Peter rose vp & sayd vnto thē: Ye mē & brethrē, ye know howe that a good whyle a go, God chose amōg vs, that the gentils by my mouth shulde heare the worde of the gospel & beleue. And god which knoweth the hert, bare thē witnes, & gaue vnto thē the holy ghost, euen as he dyd vnto vs: & he put no difference betwene them & vs, but with fayth he purified theyr hertes. Now therfore why tempt ye god, that ye wold put a yocke on the disciples neckes which nether our fathers nor we were able to beare? But we beleue that thorow the

And whē they held theyr peace James answered saying: Men & brethren herkē vnto me. Simeon tolde how God at the beginning dyd visyt the Gentils, & receaued of thē people vnto his name. And to this agreeth the wordes of the prophetes, as it is wryttē. After this I wyl returne, & wil bylde agayne the tabernacle of Dauid which is fallē downe, & the whiches fallē in decay of it, wyl I bylde agayne, and I wyl set it vp, that the resydue of men might seke after the Lord, & also the gentils vppō whō my name is named sayth the Lord, which doth al these thinges. Knowē vnto god are all his workes frō the beginning of the worlde. Wherfore my sentence is that we trouble not them which frō amonge the Gentyls are turned to God: but that we wryte vnto them, that they abstayne thē selues frō fylthynes of ymages, frō fornicatiō, frō strangled & frō bloud.

D For Moses of old tyme hath in euery cytye that preache hym, & he is redde in the synagoges euery Saboth daye.

Then pleased it the Apostles & elders with the whole cōgregation, to send chosen men of theyr owne company to Antioche wyth Paul and Barnabas. They sent Judas called also Barsabas, & Sylas whych were chefe men among the brethren, and gaue them letters in theyr hādes after thys maner.

The apostels, elders & brethrē send gretinges vnto the brethrē which are of the Gentils in Antioche, Siria & Cilicia. For as moch as we haue heard that certayn which E departed frō vs, haue troubled you wt wordes, & cōbred youre myndes saying: Ye must be circumcised & kepe the law, to whō we gaue no soch cōmaundement It semed therfore to vs a good thinge, whē we were come together with one accorde, to send chosen men vnto you, with our beloued Barnabas & Paule, men that haue ieoparded theyr lyues for the name of our Lord Jesu Christ. We haue sente therfore Judas & Silas, which shall also tel you the same thinges by mouth. For it semed good to the holy ghost & to vs, to put no greuous thing to you, more thē these necessary thinges: that is to saye, that ye abstayne from thinges offred to ymāges, frō bloud, from strangled & fornication. Frō which yf ye kepe youre selues, ye shal do wel. So fare ye well.

Whē they were departed, they cam to Antioche & gathered the multitude toge- F ther, & delyuered the pystle. When they had rede it, they reioysed of the cōsolation And Judas & Silas being prophetes exhorted the brethrē with moch preachinge, & strengthed thē. And after they had taried ther a space, thei were let go in peace of the brethren vnto the apostles. Notwithstanding it pleased Sylas to abyde ther styl. Paul & Barnabas cōtinued in Antioche teaching & preaching the word of the Lord wyth other many.

But after a certayn space, Paul sayd vnto Barnabas: Let vs go agayn & vysite our brethren in euery citie where we haue shewed the word of the Lord, & se how they do. And Barnabas gaue coūsell to take with them John, called also Mark G
But Paule thought it not mete to take hym vnto theyr cōpany which departed frō thē at Pamphilia, & went not wt thē to the worke. And the dissention was so sharp betwene them, that they departed a sunder one from the other: so that Barnabas

C Paul preacheth at Corinthū, continuing there a yere & a halfe, goeth agayne into Syria, cometh to Ephesus, Galatia & Antioche. Of Apollos, Aquila and Priscilla.

The.xviii. Chapter.

A After y Paule departed frō Athens & came to Corinthū & foūde a certayne Jewe named Aquila borne in Ponthus, lately come frō Italie w his wife Priscilla (because y the Emperour Claudius had cōmaūded al Jewes to depart frō Rome) & he drew vnto thē. And because he was of y same craft he abode w them & wrought: their craft was to make tentes. And he preached in the synagoge euery Saboth daye, & exhorted the Jewes & the Gentyls.

B When Silas & Timotheus were come frō Macedonia, Paul was cōstrayned by the sprete to testyfye to y Jewes y Jesus was very Christ. And when they sayd cōtrary & blasphemed, he shoke his rayment & sayd vnto thē: your bloud vpō your owne heades, & frō henceforth I go blamelesse vnto the gentyles. And he departed thence, & entred into a certayne mās house named Justus a worshipper of God, whose house ioyned hard to thee synagoge. Howbeit one Crispus y chefe

C ruler of the sinagoge beleued on the Lorde wyth all hys housholde, and many of the Corinthians gaue audiēce, & beleued and were baptysed.

Then spake the Lord to Paule in the night by a vysyon: be not afrayed, but speake, & holde not thy peace: for I am wyth the, & no mā shal inuade the y shall hurt the. For I haue moch people in this cytye. And he contynued there a yeare & syre monethes, and taught the the word of God.

D When Gallio was ruler of y coūtre of Acaia the Jewes made insurrectiō with one accord against Paul, & brought him to the iudgemēt seate, saying: this felow cōsiecleth men to worship god cōtrary to the law. And as Paul was about to opē hys mouth, Gallio sayd vnto the Jewes yf it were a matter of wronge or an euyl and came vnto Cesarea: & ascended & sa luted the cōgregation, & departed vnto Antioche, & whē he had taried ther a why le he departed. And went ouer al the coū tre of Galacia & Phrigia by order, streg thing all the disciples.

And a certayne Jewe named Apollos, borne at Alexandria, came to Ephesus, an eloquent mā, & myghty in the scriptu res. The same was informed in the way G of the Lord, & he spake feruentlye in the spirete, & taught diligentlye the thinges of the Lord, & knew but the b. baptyme of John only. And the same beganne to speake boldelye in the Synagoge. And when Aquila & Priscilla had heard him they toke him vnto thē & expounded vnto hym the way of God more perfectly.

And when he was disposed to go into Acaia, the brethren wrote exhortyng the disciples to receaue him. After he was co me thyther, he holpe them moche whyche had beleued thorow grace. And myghte

A After the vprore was ceased, Paul called the disciples vn-them, & departed for to go into Macedonia. And when he had gone ouer those parties, & geuen the large exhortacions, he came into Grece, & ther abode .iii. monethes. And whē the Ie-

B of Thessalonia Aristarchus & Secundus and Gayus of Derba, & Timotheus: & out of Asia Tychicus and Trophimus.
These went before, & taryed vs at Tro-as. And we sayled awaye frō Philippos after the Easter holy dayes, & came vnto thē to Troas in fyue dayes, where we abode seuen dayes.
And on the morow after the Saboth day the disciples came together for to breake bread & Paul preached vnto thē (redy to depart on the morow) & contynued the preaching vnto mydnyght. And ther were many lyghtes in the chāber where they were gathered together, & ther sate in a windo-falle into a depe slepe. And as Paul declared, he was the more ouercome wyth slepe, & fel downe frō the thyrd loft, and C was take vp dead. & Paul went downe & fel on him, & embraced him, & sayd: make nothing a do for his lyfe is in him. When he was come vp agayne, he brake bread and talked, & comuned a longe whyle euē tyl the mornyng, & so departed. And they brought the yonge man a lyue, and were not a lytle comforted.

And we went afore to shyp, & losed vnto Asson ther to receaue Paul. For so had he appoynted, & wolde himself go a fo-we toke him in, & cam to Mitylene. And we sayled thēce, & came the next daye ouer agaynst Chios. And the next day we ary-ued at Samos, & taryed at Trogilion.

The next day we came to Miletum: For Paul had determined to sayle by Ephesus, lest he shulde spende the tyme in Asia.
For he hasted to be (yf he Pentecoste. Wherfore frō Mileton he sent to Ephesus, & called the elders of the congregaciō. And when they were come D to him, he sayd vnto thē: Ye know frō the fyrst daye that I came into Asia, after what maner I haue bene with you at al ceasons, seruyng the Lord with al humble-nes of mynde, & with many teares, & tēptacions which happened vnto me by the layinges awayte of the Iewes, & how I kept backe nothyng that was profitable but that I haue shewed you and taught you openly and at home in youre houses, wytnessyng both to the Iewes, & also to the Grekes, the repentaunce toward God and fayth toward our Lorde Iesus.

And now behold I go bounde in the sprete vnto Ierusalē, & know not what shal come on me there, but that the holy goost wyt- E nesseth in euery cytie saying: that bandes & trouble abyde me. But none of those thin-ges moue me: nether is my lyfe dere vnto my selfe, so that I myght fulfyl my course wyth ioye, & the ministracion which I haue receaued of the Lord Iesu, to testyfie the Gospel of the grace of God.
And now behold, I am sure that hēceforth ye al (thorow whō I haue gone preachin-ge the kyngdō of god) shal se my face no more. Wherfore I take you to recorde F thys same day, that I am pure frō the bloud of al men. For I haue kept nothyng backe, but haue shewed you al the counsell of God. Take hede therfore vnto your sel-ues & to al the flocke, wherof the holy ghost hath made you ouerseers, to rule the congregaciō of god, whiche he hath purchased wyth his bloude. For I am sure of thys, that after my departyng shal greuous wolues entre in amōg you, which wyl not spare the flocke. Moreouer of your awne sel-ues shal men aryse speakyng peruerse thin-ges to drawe disciples after thē. Therfore awake & remēber, that by the space of .iii. yeares I ceased not to warne euerye one of you both nyght & daye with teares.
And now brethren I commende you to god & to the worde of his grace, which is able to buylde further & to geue you an inheritaūce G amonge al thē which are sanctified. I haue desyred no mans syluer, gold or vestu-

When he had thus spoken, he kneled downe & prayed with them al. And they wept al abundantly, & fel on paules neck, & kissed him, sorowinge most of all for the wordes which he spake, that they shulde se his face no more. And they accompanyed him vnto the shyppe.

¶ Paule sayleth to Tyre. [illegible] prophesieth, and certaine disciples warneth paul not to go to Jerusalem. He remaineth stedfast in his purpose, and is taken in the temple.

The .xxi. Chapter.

A And it chaunsed that assone as we had lanched forthe, & were departed from the, we came with a straight course vnto Choon, & the daye folowing vnto the Rodes, & fro thence vnto Patara. And we founde a shyppe redy to saile vnto Phenices, & went a borde & set forth. Then apered vnto vs Cyprus, & we left it on the left hande, & sayled vnto Siria, & came vnto Tire. For there the shyp vnladed her burthen. And whe we had founde brethren we taryed there .vii. dayes. And they told paul thorow y spret, that he shuld not go vp to Jerusalem. And when the dayes were ended, we departed & went oure waye, and thei al brought vs on our waye, with their wives & children, tyll we were come out of the cyte. And we kneled downe in the shore &

B prayed. And when we had taken oure leave one of another, we toke shyppe, and they returned home agayne.

When we had ful ended the course fro Tyre, we arrived at Ptolomaida, & salued the brethre, & abode with them one day. The next day, we that were of paules company departed & came vnto Cesarea. And we entred into the house of Philip the Euangelist, which was one of the seven deacons, & abode with him. The same man had .iiii. doughters virgins, which did

C prophesy. And as we tarried there a good many of dayes, ther came a certayne prophet from Jury named Agabus. When he was come vnto vs he toke paules girdel, & bounde his hondes & his fete, & sa-

ye. Thus sayth the holy gost: so shal the Jewes at Jerusalem binde the man that oweth this girdel, and shal deliver him into the handes of the Gentyls.

When we herd this, both we & other of the same place besought him that he wold not go vp to Jerusalem. The paul answered & sayd: what do ye weping and breaking mine herte? I am redy not to be bounde only, but also to dye at Jerusalem for the name of y lord Jesu. When we could D not turne him our myndes, we ceased, saying: the wyl of the lord be fulfilled. After those dayes we made our selves redy, & went vp to Jerusalem. Ther went with vs also certaine of the disciples of Cesarea, & brought with them one Mnason of Ciprus an old disciple with whom we shuld lodg. And when we were come to Jerusalem, the brethren receaued vs gladlye. And on the morow paul went in with vs vnto James, and al the elders cam together. And when he had salued them, he told by order al thinges, y god had wrought amonge the gentyls by his ministracion. And whe they herd it, they glorifyed y Lord, & said vnto him: Thou seest brother, how many thousad Jewes ther ar which beleue, and they ar al zelous over the law. And they are informed of the, that y teachest all the Jewes which are among the gentyles, to forsake Moses, & sayst that they ought not to circumcise their children nether to liue after the customes. What is it therfore? The multitude must nedes come together: For they shall heare that thou art come. Do therfore this that we say to the.

We have .iiii. men, which have a vow E on them. Them take & purifie thy selfe with them, and do cost on them, y they may shaue their heddes and al shal knowe y those thinges which they have herd concerning the, are nothinge: but that thou thy selfe also walkest & kepest the lawe. For as touchinge the gentyls which beleue we have writen & concluded, that they observe no soche thynges: but that they kepe the selves from thinges offred to ydoles, fro bloud, fro strangled, & from fornicacion. Then the next day paul toke the men, and purified him selfe with them and entred into the temple, declaring y be absent the dayes of the purificacio, vntil that an offeringe shulde be offered for euery one of them.

And as the .vii. dayes shulde haue ben ended, the Iewes which were of Asia, when they sawe him in the temple, they moued al the people, & layed handes on him, cryenge:

F Men of Israel helpe. This is the man that teacheth al men euery where against the people and the lawe, & this place. More ouer also he hath brought Grekes into the temple, & hath polluted this holy place. For they sawe one Trophimus an Ephesian with him in the cite, whom they supposed paul had brought into the temple. And al the cite was moued, & the people runned together. And they toke paul & drue him out of the temple, and forthwith the dores were shut to.

As they went about to kil him, tydinges came vnto the hie captayne of the souldiers, that al Ierusale was moued. Which immediatly toke souldiers & vnder captaines, & ran doune vnto them. When they saw the vpper captayne & the souldiers

G they left smiting of paul. Then the captayne came neare & toke him, & commaunded him to be bound with .ii. chaines, & demaunded what he was, & what he had done. And one cryed this, another that, among the people. And when he could not knowe the certaintie for the rage, he commaunded him to be caried into the castle. And when he came vnto the steares, it fortuned that he was borne of the souldiers for the violence of the people. For the multitude of the people folowed after, crying: Away with him.

And as paul [illegible]

And it fortuned, when I was come agayne to Jerusalem & prayde in the teple, that I was in a traunce, & saw him saying vnto me. Make haste, & gett thee E quyckly out of Jerusalem: for they wyl not receaue thy witnes that thou bearest of me. And I sayd: Lord they know that I presoned, & bet in euerye synagoge thé that beleued on thé. And whé the bloude of thy witnes Steuë was shed, I also stode by, & cösëted vnto his deeth & kept the raymet of them y slew hym. And he sayd vnto me: depart, for I will sende the farre hence vnto the Gentyls.

They gaue hi audyéce vnto this worde, & then lyft vp their voyces & sayd: a-F way wyth soch a felow from the erth: it is pytie that he shuld lyue. And as they cried & cast of their clothes, & threw duste into the ayer, the captaine bad him to be brought into the castle, & cömaüded him to be scourged, & to be examined, that he might know wherfore they cried on him And as they bound him wt thöges, paul said vnto y Centurion that stode by: Is it lauful for you to scourge a mä that is a Romayn & vncödewned? When the Centurion herd that, he went, and told y vpper Captayn saying. What intedest y to do? This mä is a Romayne.

Then the vpper captayne came, & sai-
G de to him: tell me, arte thou a Romayne? He sayd: Ye. And the captayne äswered: with a great somme obtayned I this fredö. And paul said: I was fre borne. Thë strayght way departed from hym, they which shuld haue examined hym. And y hye captayne also was afrayde. after he knewe that he was a Romayne: because he had bounde hym.

On the morowe because he wolde haue knowen thee certayntye wherfore he was accused of the Jewes, he lowsed hi from hys bondes, and commaunded the hye Prestes & al the councill to come together, & brought paul and sett hym before them.

¶ Paul pouerly before the councel. The debate ariseth among the people, the Captayne deliuereth him. God comforteth hym.

The.xxiii. Chapter.

Paul beheld the coücel & say- A de: men and brethren, I haue liued in al good cöscience before God vntyll thys Josu.xxiii.b day. The hye prest Ananyas cömaüded thé that stode by, to smyte him on the mouth. Then said paul to hi: God smite thé thou painted wal. Sittest thou and iudgest me after the lawe: and cömaundest me te be smitten contrary to the lawe? And they that stode by sayd: reuylest thou Goddes hye preste? Thé saide paul: I wist not brethren y he was the hye prest. For it is wrytten: y shalte not Exo.xxii.d curse the ruler of thy people.
Whë paul perceued that the one parte B were Saduces, & the other pharises: he cried out in the councel. Men & brethre, * I am a pharisay, the sonne of a pharisay. Of the hope & resurrection frö deeth Phil.iii.a I am iudged. And when he had so saide, ther arose a debate betwene the Pharisayes & the Saduces, and the multitude was deuided. For the Saduces say Mat.xxii.d that ther is no resurrectiö, nether angell, nor spirite. But y pharisaies graüt both. And ther arose a great crye, and the scribes which were of y Pharisayes part, arose and stroue sayinge: we fynde none euyl in this man. Though a spirite or an angell hath appered to hym, lette vs not stryue agaynst God.
And whé ther arose, greate debate, the C captaine fearig lest paul shuld haue ben plucke a sondre of them, cömaunded the souldiers to go doune, & to take hi frö amög them & to bring him into y castell. The nyght folowyng god stode by him & sayd: be of good cheare paul: for as y hast testified of me i Jerusalé, so must y beare wytnes at Rome. Whé day was come, certaine of the Jewes gathered them selues to gether, and made a vow, sayinge, that they wold nether eat nor drynck tyl they had kylled paul. They were about.xl. which had made this cöspiració. And they came to y cheife preste & elders, and sayd: we haue bound our selues w a vowe, that we wyll eate nothynge vn- D tyl we haue slayne paul. Now therefore geue ye knowledg to the vpper captaine & to the councel, that he bryng him forth vnto

unto vs to morow, as though we wolde know some thyng more perfectly of him But we (or euer he come neare) are redy in the meane season to kyl hym.

When Pauls systers sonne heard of their laying awayte, he went and entred into the castle, and tolde paul. And paul called one of the vnder captaynes vnto him, and said: bringe this yonge man vnto the hye captayne: for he hath a cer-tayne thyng to shew him. And he toke hi & sayd: Paul the presoner called me vnto him, & prayed me to bryng this yōge man vnto the, whych had a certaine mat ter to shewe the.

The hye captayne toke him by the hād C & went a part wyth him out of ŷ waye: & asked him: what hast thou to saye vnto me? And he said: the Jewes are determined to desire the that thou woldest bring forth paul to morow into the councel, as though they wold enquyre somwhat of him more perfectly. But folow not their myndes: for there lye in wayte for hym of them, mo then .xl. men, whyche haue bound them selues wt a vowe, that they wyll nether eate nor drynke tyll they haue killed hym. And nowe are they redy, and loke for thy promes.

The vpper captayne let the yōge mā depart & charged hym: se thou tell it out to no man that thou haste shewed these F thynges to me. And he called vnto hym two vnder captaines saying: make redy two hūdred souldiers to go to Cesarea & horsmen thre score & ten, & speare mē .ii. hundred, at the thyrde houre of the night And deliuer them beastes that they may put Paul on, and brynge hym safe vnto Felix the hye debyte, and wrote a letter in this maner.

Claudius Lisias vnto the most migh ty ruler Felix, sendeth gretynges. Thys mā was take of the Jewes, & shuld haue bene kylled of thē. Then came I wt sou-diers, & rescued him, & perceiued that he was a Roma ne. And whē I wold haue knowē the cause, wherfore they accused hī, I broughte hym forth into their coū-cel. There perceaued I that he was accu G sed of questyons of their lawe but was not gilty of any thyng worthy of death or of bondes. Afterward whē it was she wed me how that ŷ Jewes layd wait for the mā, I sent him straight way to the, & gaue commaundement to his accusers, yt they had oughte against him, to tel it vn to ŷ: fare wel. Thē ŷ souldiers as it was commaunded them, toke paul, & broughte him by night to Antipatras. On ŷ moro we they lefte the horsmen to go wt him, & returned vnto ŷ castle. Which whē they came to Cesarea, they deliuered ŷ epistle to the debite, & presented Paul before hī.
Whē the debite had redde the letter, he asked of what cōtre he was. And when he vnderstode ŷ he was of Cicil, I wyll heare the (saide he) when thyne accusars ar come also: & cōmaunded hī to be kept in Herodes pallys.

C Paul is accused before Felix, he answereth for hym selfe.

The .xxiiii. Chapter.

After fyue dayes, Ananyas ŷ hye prest descended, wyth elders & wt a certaine Ora- A tour named Tartullus, and enfourmed ŷ ruler of Paul.
Whē paul was called forth, Tartullus begā to accuse him saying: Seing ŷ we liue in great quietnes by ŷ meanes of ŷ, & that many good thinges are done vnto this naciō thorow thy prouidēce: that alow we euer & in al places most mighti Felix wt al thanckes. Notwythstādyndyng, that I be not tedious vnto the, I pray the, that ŷ woldest heare vs of thy came vpō vs, & with great violēce toke hym away oute of our handes cōmaun dyng hys accusers to come to the. Of whom ŷ mayst (yf thou wylte enquyre) know ŷ certaine of al these thīges wher-of we accuse him. The Jewes likewyse C affyrmed, saying that it was euen so.

Thē paul (after that the ruler him selfe had beckened vnto hī that he shuld spea ke) aūswerd: I shal wt the a more quiete minde aūswere for my selfe, for as moche

as I vnderstāde ÿ thou hast bene of many yeres a iudge vnto this people, becau se that thou mayst knowe that ther ar yet but .xii. dayes sence I went vp to Ieru-D salem for to pray, & they nether foūd me in the temple dysputynge wyth any mā, ether raysynge vp the people, nether in ÿ Synagoges, nor in the cytye: Nether cā they reproue thee thynges wherof they accuse me.

But this I cōfesse vnto the, that after the way (which they cal heresye) so worshyp I the god of my fathers, beleuinge al thinges which ar wrytten in the lawe & ÿ prophetes & haue hope towardes god, that the same resurreccyō of ÿ dead (which they them selues loke for also) shalbe, both of iust & vniust. And therfore stodi I to haue a cleare conscyence towarde god, and toward mā also.

But after many yeres I came & brought almes to my people & offerynges, in the which they foūd me purified in ÿ tēple, nether with multitude nor yet wyth vn quietnes, howbeit ther were certaine Ie-wes out of Asia, which ought to be here presēt before the, & accuse me, yf thei had ought agaynste me, or els let these same E here say, yf they haue founde anye euyll doyng in me, whyl I stāde here in ÿ coū-cell, except it be for thys one voyce, that I cryed standinge amonge them, of the resurreccyō from deeth am I iudged of you thys daye.

Whē Felix herd these thinges he defer de them, for he knewe very well of ÿ way, & sayde: when Lysias the captayne is cō me, I wyll knowe the vttmoste of youre matters. And he commaunded an vnder captaine to kepe Paul and that he shuld haue rest, & that he shuld forbid none of F his acquayntaunce to mynister vnto hī, or to come vnto him.

And after a certaine dayes, came Felix & his wife Drusilla which was a Iewe, & called forth paul, and herde him of the fayth which is towarde Christ. And as he preached of ryghtewesnes, temperaūce, & iudgmēt to come, Felix trembled & ansue G red: Go thy waye for thys tyme, when I haue a conuenient tyme, I wyl sende for the. He hoped also ÿ money shuld haue bene geuē him of paul, that he might louse him: wherfore he called hī the ofterner and comened with him. But after two yere, Festus Porcius came in to Felix rowme. And Felix willig to shew the Iewes a pleasure, left Paul in prison bounde.

¶ The Iewes accuse paul before Festus, he appealeth vnto the Emperour, and is sent to Rome.

The .xxv. Chapter.

When Festus was come into ÿ prouince, after .iii. day- A es, he ascended frō Cesarea vnto Ierusalē. Then enformed him the hie priestes and the chefe of the Iewes of paul. And thei besought hym and desyred fauoure against hym, that he wolde sende for hym to Ierusalē: & layde awayte for hym in ÿ way, to kyll hym. Festus answered that paul shuld be kept at Cesarea: but that he hym selfe wold shortly depart thither.
Let them therfore (sayde he) which amō-ge you ar able to do it, come downe with vs and accuse him, yf ther be anye faute in the man.

When he had taryed ther more thē ten B dayes, he departed vnto Cesarea, & the next day sate downe in the iudgmēt sea-te, & cōmaunded Paule to be broughte.
When he was come, the Iewes whyche were come frō Ierusalem, came aboute hym & layd many and greuous cōplaintes against paul, which they coulde not proue as longe as he answered for hym self, that he had nether agaynste the law of the Iewes, nether agaynste the temple, nor yet agaynst Cesar offended any thynge at al.

Festus willing to do the Iewes a plea C sure āswered paul & saide: wylt thou go to Ierusalem and there be iudged of the se thinges before me? Then sayd paul: I stand at Cesars iudgment seat, wher I ought to be iudged. To the Iewes ha ue I no harme done, as thou verye wel knowest. If I haue hurte them, or cōmit-ted any thyng worthy of death I refuse not to dye. If none of these thinges ar, wherof they accuse me, no mā ought to delyuer me to thē. I appeale vnto Cesar.
Then spake Festus with delyberacion: & D answered. Thou hast appealed vnto Ce sar: vnto Cesar shalt thou go.

After

After a certayne dayes, kynge Agrippa & Bernice came vnto Cesarea to salute Festus. And whē they had bene ther a good season, Festus rehersed Pauls cau se vnto ye kyng saying: ther is a certaine mā left in preson of Felix, about whom whē I came to Jerusalem ye hye prestes & elders of the Jewes enformed me, & de sired to haue iudgmēt against him. To E whō I ãswered: It is not the maner of ye Romains to delyuer eny mā, yt he shul de perish, before that he which is accused haue the accusers before hym, & haue ly cence to answere for him selfe concernyn ge ye cryme layd agaynst him: when they were come hider without delaye on the mo rowe I sate to geue iudgmēt, & cōmaun ded the man to be brought forth. Agaist whō whē ye accusers stode vp, thei brou ght none accusaciō of soch thinges as I supposed: but had certaine questions a-gaynst hym of their owne superstition, & of one Jesus whych was deed whom Paul affirmed to be aliue. And because F I douted of soche maner questiōs, I as ked hym whether he wolde go to Jerusalem, & ther be iudged of these matters.
Then when Paull had appealed to be kept vnto the knowledg of Cesar, I cōmaūded him to be kept, til I might send hym to Cesar. Agrippa sayde vnto Festus: I wold also heare the mā my selfe.
To morow (said he) thou shalt heare hi.
And on the morow when Agrippa was come and Bernice wyth great pompe, & were entred into the coūcel house wyth the captaynes & chefe men of the citie, at Festus cōmaundement Paul was brou-G ght forth. And Festus sayd: kyng Agrip pa, & al men which are here presente wt vs: ye se this man about whom al ye mul titude of the Jewes haue bene wt me, both at Jerusalem, and also here, crying that he ought not to lyue any lenger. Yet founde I nothyng worthy of deeth that he had committed. Neuertheless seinge that he hath appealed to Cesar, I haue determined to send him. Of whō I haue no certayne thynge to write vnto my Lord. Wherfore I haue brought hi vn to you, & specially vnto the, kyng Agrip pa, yt after examynacyon had, I myghte haue sumwhat to wryte. For me thinketh it vnreasonable, for to send a presoner, & not to shewe the causes whych are layde agaynst hym.

The .xxvi. Chapter.

AGrippa sayd vnto Paul: yu A art permitted to speake for thy selfe. Then Paul stretched forth ye hād, & ãswered for hym selfe. I thynke my selfe happy kynge Agrippa, because I shal answere this day before the, of al ye thynges wherof I am accused of the Je wes namely because yu art experte in all customes & questions, whych are amōge the Jewes. Wherfore I beseche thee to B heare me pacyently.
My lyuyng of a chyld, whych was at the fyrst amōg myne owne nacyō at Je rusalē know al the Jewes which knewe me from the begynnyng, yf they wolde testify it. For after the most straitest sect of our lay, lyued I a pharyse. And now I stād & am iudged for the hope of the C promes made of god vnto our fathers: vnto whych promes our xii. tribes instāt ly seruing god daye and nyghte hope to come. For whych hopes sake, kynge Agrippa, am I accused of ye Jewes. Why shuld it be thoughte a thynge incredible vnto you, that God shuld rayse agayne ye deed. I also verely thought in my selfe, that I ought to do many contrary thyn ges, clene agaynst the name of Jesus of Nazareth: whych thyng I also did in Je rusalē. Wher many of the saintes I shut vp in preson, & had receaued auctorytye of the hye prestes. And when they were put to deeth, I gaue the sentence. And I D punished them oft in euerye synagoge, & compelled them to blaspheme: & was yet more mad vpō thē, & persecuted thē, euē vnto straunge cytyes. About which thinges as I wēt to Damasco wt auc-torytie & lycence of the hye prestes, euē at mydday (o kyng) I saw in the way a ly-ght from heuen, aboue the brightnes of the sūne, shyne, round about me & thē whi che iorneyed wyth me.
When we were al fallen to the erthe, I E heard a voyce speakyng vnto me, & say- Actu.ix.a. ing in the Hebrew tong: o Saul, Saul, and.xxii.b.

why persecutest thou me? It is hard for the to kyck agaynst the prycke. And I sayd: Who art thou lorde? And he sayde I am Jesus whō thou persecutest, but ryse & stād up on thy fete. For I haue apered unto the for this purpose, to make ỹ a minister & a witnes both of those thi ges which ỹ hast sene, & of those thinges in the which I wil apere unto the, deliuering the frō the people, & frō ỹ gētyls, unto which now I send the, to opē their eyes, ỹ they might turne frō darknes to lyghte, & from the power of Satā unto god, that they may receaue forgeuenesse F of sinnes & inheritaūce among thē whiche are sāctyfyed by fayth in me.

Wherfore king Agrippa, I was not disobedient unto the heuenly vision: but shewed first unto them of Damasco, & at Jerusalem, & thorow out al the costes of Jewry, & to the gentils, ỹ they shulde repent, & tourne to god, & do ỹ right wor kes of repentaūce. For this cause the Je wes caught me in the tēple & wēt aboute to kil me. Neuertheles I obtained helpe of god & cōtinew unto thys day witnessing both to smal & to greate saying none other thinges, then those whyche the G prophetes & Moses did say shuld come, that christ shulde suffre, & that he shulde be the first that shuld ryse from deeth, & shuld shew lyght unto the people, & to the gentils. And he thus āswered for hi self: Festus sayd w a lowd voice. Paul, thou arte besydes thy selfe. Moch learnyng hath made the mad. And paul say de: I am not mad, most dere Festus: but speake the wordes of trueth and sober-nes. The king knoweth of these thīges, before whome I speake frely: nether thi ke I that any of these thynges ar hidden frō him. For this thing was not done in a corner. Kyng Agrippa beleuest ỹ the Prophetes? I wote wel thou beleuest.
Agryppa sayde unto Paul: Sumwhat thou bringest me in mynd for to become a chrysten. And Paul sayde: I wold to god that not only ỹ: but also al that hea re me to daye, were, not sumwhat onely e but altogether soch as I am, except these bondes. And when he had thus spoke, the kyng rose up, & the debyte, & Bernice, and they that sate wyth thē. And whē they were gone aparte, they talked betwene them selues saying: This mā doeth nothing worthy of deeth, nor of bon des. Then sayde Agrippa unto Festus: This mā might haue bene lowsed, yf he had not appealed unto Cesar.

¶ Paul shyppyng toward Rome. Julius the cap tayne intreateth hym courteously. At the last they suffre shypwrake.

The. xxvii. Chapter.

When it was cōcluded that A we shuld sayle into Italye, they delivered paul & certai ne other prisoners unto one named Julyus, an under captaine of Cesars souldiers. And we en tred into a ship of Adramicium, & lowsed frō lāde: apoited to saile by the costes of Asia, one Aristarcus out of Macedonia of the contre of Thessalia: being w us.
And ỹ next day we came to Sydon. And Julius courteously entreated paul, & ga ue him liberte to go unto his frendes, & to refresh him self. And from thēce lanched we, & sayled hard by Cipers, becau se the windes were contrary. Then say-led we ouer the see of Cylicia, & Pāphylia, & came to Myra a citie in Lycia.
And ther ỹ under captaine foūd a ship B of Alexādre, redy to sayle into Italye, & put us therin. And when we had sayled slowly many daies, & scace were come ouer against Gnidon (because ỹ wind w stode us) we sailed hard by the costes of Candy, ouer against Salmo, & wyth moch work sailed beyōd it, & came unto a place called goodport. Nie wher unto was a citie called Lasea. When moch ty me was spēt & sailing was now ieoper deous, because also ỹ we had ouerlonge fasted, Paul put them in remembraūce, C & said unto them. Syrs, I perceiue that thys viage wilbe with hurt & moch domage, not of ỹ lading & ship only: but al so of our liues. Neuerthelater the under captaine beleued ỹ gouerner & the master, better thē the thinges which were spo kē of paul. And because the hauen was not cōmodius to winter in, many toke coū sel to depart thēce, yf by any meanes they might attaine to Phenices & ther to winter which is an hauen of Cādy, and serueth to the southwest and northwest wynde.
When the south wind blew, they suppo sing to obtayne their purpose lowsed vn to Asson, and sayled past al Candy.

But anone after, ther arose agaynst their purpose, a flaw of wynd out of the northeeste. And whē ÿ ship was caught & could not resist the wind, we let her go

D & draue wt ÿ wether. And we came vnto an yle named Clauda, & had much worke to come by a bote, which they toke vp & vsed help, vndergerding the ship, fearig lest we shuld haue falle īto Syrtes, & we let downe a vessel & so were caried. The next day whē we were tossed wt an excedyng tēpest, they lyghtened ÿ ship, & the third day we cast out wt our owne hādes ÿ tackling of ÿ shyppe. Whē at ÿ last nether sūne nor starre in many dayes apered & no smal tēpest lay vpō vs, al hope that we shuld be saued, was thē taken away. Then after long abstynence, Paul stod forth in the myddes of thē & sayde: Syrs ye shuld haue harkened to me, & not haue lowsed from Candy, nether to haue brought vnto vs this harme & los. And now I exhort you to be of good chere. For ther shalbe no los of any mās life among you, saue of ÿ ship only. For ther stode by me this night ÿ angell of God, whose I am, & whō I serue, sayig: feare not Paul for ÿ must be brought before Cesar. And lo, God hath geuen vnto the al ÿ sayle with the. Wherfore syrs be of

E good chere: for I beleue god, ÿ it shalbe euē as it was told me. Howbeit we must be cast into a certayne ylonde.

But when ÿ fourtenth nyght was come as we were caried in Adria about mid nyght, the shypmen demed that ther apered some countre vnto them: & sounded, & found it .xx. feddoms. And when they had gone a litell further, they sounded agayne, & found .xv. feddōs. Then fearig lest they shuld haue falle on some rocke, they cast .iiii. ancres out of the sterne, & wyshed for the day. As the shipmen were about to fle out of the ship, & had let downe ÿ bote into ÿ see, vnder a coulour as though they wold haue caste ancres out of the fore shyp: Paul sayd vnto the vnder captaine & the Souldiers: except these abyde in the shyp, ye cānot be safe.

F Thē the Souldiers cut of the rope of ÿ bote, and let it fall awaye.

And in the meane time betwyxt that & day, Paul besought thē al to take meate, sayig: this is ÿ fourtenth day ÿ ye haue taryed and cōtinued fastyng, receauīge nothing at al. Wherfore I pray you to take meat: for this no dout is for your helth: for ther shal not an here fall from the heed of anye of you. And whē he had thus spoke, he toke bred & gaue thākes to god in presence of thē al, & brake it, & began to eate. Thē were they al of good cheare, and they also toke meat. We were altogether in the shyp, two hūdred .iii. score & sixtene soules. And whē they had eaten ynough, they lyghtened the ship, & cast out the wheate into the see.

When it was day, they knew not ÿ lāde but thei spied a certaine hauē wt a bāke into ÿ which they were mynded (yf it were possible) to thrust in the shyp. And whē they had take vp ÿ ancres, they cōmitted thē selues vnto ÿ se, & lowsed ÿ rudder bōdes & hoysed vp ÿ maine sayle to the wind & drue to lād. But thei chaūsed on a place, which had ÿ see on both ÿ sydes, & thrust in ÿ ship. And the fore parte stuck fast & moued not but the hynder brake with the violence of the waues. G

The souldiers councel was to kil the presoners, lest anye of them, whē he had swomme out shuld fle a way. But ÿ vnder captayne wyllyng to saue Paull kepte thē frō their purpose, & cōmaunded ÿ they ÿ could swime shuld cast thē selues fyrste into thee see, and scape to lād. And the other he commaunded to go, some on bordes, and some on broke peces of the shyp. And so it came to passe, ÿ they cam all safe to lande.

The Notes.

Lest we shuld haue fallen into Syrtes. Syrtes are perelouse sandy places in the see about the costes of Aphrica of ther nature of whirlpoles.

¶ The vyper hurteth not Paulus hande, he healeth Publius father, and preacheth Christe at Rome.

The .xxviii. Chapter.

And when thei were scaped, thē they knew that ther yle was called Milete. And the A people of ÿ countre shewed vs no lytel kindnes: for they kyndled a fyre & receaued vs euery one, because of the pseēt rayne & because of the cold. And when paul had gathered a bondel of styckes, and put them into thee fire, ther cam a viper out of ŷ heet & lept on his hād. When the men of the coūtre saw the worme hang on his hād, they sai de among them selues: this mā must ne-des be a mortherer: whō (though he ha ue escaped the see) yet vengaūce suffreth B not to liue. But he shouke of the vermē into ŷ fire & felt no harme. Howbeit they waited whē he shu d haue swolne, or fal len downe deed sodenly. But after they had loked a great while, & saw no harme come to hym, they chaunged theyr myndes, and sayd that he was a god.

In the same quarters the chefe mā of ŷ yle whose name was publius, had a lord ship: the same receued vs, and lodged vs iii. dayes courteously. And it fortuned ŷ the father of publius lay sick of a feuer and of a bloudy flixe. To whom paul en tred in & prayde, and layd his handes on C hym and healed him. When this was done other also which had dyseses in the yle, came and were healed. And they did vs great honour. And whē we departed, they laded vs wt thynges necessarye.

After thre monethes we departed in a ship of Alexādry, which had wintred in ŷ yle, whose badge was Castor & Pollux.
And when we came to Siracusa, we tari ed ther .iii. daies. And frō thence we fet a cōpasse & came to Regiō. And after one day ŷ south wid blew, & we came ŷ next daye to Puteolus: wher we founde brethren, & were desyred to tary withe them seuen dayes, & so came to rome. And frō D thence, when the brethren herd of vs, they came agaīst vs to Appiphorū, & to the .iii. tauernes. When paul saw them, he thāc ked god, & wexed bold. And whē he came to rome, the vnder captayne deliuered ŷ presoners to ŷ chefe captaine of the host but paul was suffred to dwel by hī selfe wyth one Souldyer that kept hym.

And it fortuned after thre daies, ŷ paul called the chefe of the Jewes togeather.
And when they were come, he sayd vnto them. Men and brethrē though I haue cōmitted nothing against ŷ people or la wes of our fathers: yet was I deliuered presoner frō Jerusalem into the hādes of ŷ Romains. Which when they had ex amined me wold haue let me go, because they fouūd no cause of dethe in me. But when the Jewes cried cōtrary, I was cō strayned to appeale vnto Cesar: not be- E cause I had ought to accuse my people of. For this cause haue I called for you, euen to se you, & to speake wyth you: because that for the hope of Israel, I am bound with thys chayne.

And they sayde vnto hym: We nether receued letters out of Jewry pertaining vnto the, nether came any of ŷ brethren that shewed or spake eny harme of thee.
But we wil heare of ŷ what ŷ thinkeste.
For we haue herd of this sect, that euery where it is spoken agaynst. And when they had apoynted him a day, there came many vnto hī into his lodging. To whō F he expoūded & testified the kingdome of god, & preached vnto them of Jesu: both out of the law of Moses & also out of ŷ prophetes, euē from mornyng to nyght.
And some beleued the thinges which we re spoken, & some beleued not.

When they agreed not amōg them sel ues they departed, after that Paull had spoken one word. Well spake the holye gost by Esay the prophet vnto oure fathers, sayinge: Go vnto thys people & (Esaye. vi. e. Mat. xiii. b. Mar. iiii. b. Luk. viii. b. John. xii. f.) say: wt your eares shal ye here, & shal not vnderstand: and wt youre eyes shal ye se and not perceaue.

For the hert of this people is wexed gros & their ears were thick of hearing, & their eyes haue they closed: lest they shul de se wt their eyes, and heare wyth theyr eares, & vnderstād with their hertes, and shuld be cōuerted, & I shuld heale them.
Be it knowen therfore vnto you, ŷ thys G saluaciō of god is sent to the gentyles, and they shall heare it. And when he had sayd that, the Jewes departed, and had great despycions among them selues.

And paul dwelt .ii. yeres ful in his lodging, & receued al that came to him, prea chynge the kyngdome of God, and teachynge those thinges whyche concerned thee Lorde Jesus wyth all confydence, vnforbodden.

Thus endeth the Actes of ŷ Apostles.

The Prologe of the Epistle of Saint Paul to the Romaynes.

For as moch as this Epistle is the pryncipall and most excellent part of the newe Testament and most pure Evangelion, that is to saye, glad tidynges, and that we cal Gospel, and also a lighte and a waye in, unto the whole scripture, I thinke it mete that every Christen man not only knowe it by rote and without the boke: but also exercise hym selfe therin evermore continually as with the dayly breade of the soule. No man verely can rede it to ofte or study it to wel: for the more it is studyed the easier it is, the more it is chewed, the pleasanter it is, & the more groundely it is serched, the precioser thinges are found in it, so great treasure of spiritual thinges lieth hid therin.

I will therfore bestowe my labour & diligence, thorowe this lytell preface or prologe, to prepare a way in ther unto, so farforth as God shal geve me grace, that it may be the better understanded of every man. For it hath bene hetherto evel darkened with glosses and wonderful dreames of Sophisters that no man coulde spye out the entent and meaning of it. Which neverthelesse yet of ye selfe, is a bryght lyght, & sufficient to geve lighte unto al the scripture.

Fyrst we must marke diligently the maner of speakinge of the Apostel, and above al thinge knowe what Paule meaneth by these wordes, the Lawe, Synne, Grace, Fayth, Righteousnes, Flesh, Spirite & soche lyke, or els rede thou it never so ofte, thou shalt but lose thy laboure. This worde lawe maye not bee understand here after the commune maner and so use Paules terme, after the maner of men or after mans wayes, that thou woldest saye the lawe here in this place where nothing but lerninge which teacheth what ought to be done and what ought not to be done, as it goeth wyth mannes law, where the lawe ys fulfilled with outwarde workes only, though the hert be never so farre of. But God iudgeth the ground of the herte ye & the thoughtes and the secret movinges of the mynde, and therfore his lawe requireth the grounde of ye herte and love from the botome there of and is not content with the outwarde worke only: but rebuketh those workes most of al which springe not of love from the ground & lowe botome of ye herte, though they appere outwarde never so honest and good. As Christ in the Gospel rebuketh ye Pharises above al other that were open synners, and calleth them ypocrites, that is to saye dyssemblers & paited sepulcres which pharises yet lived no man so pure as pertayneth to the outwarde dedes & workes of the lawe: ye & Paul in the thirde Chapter of his Epistell unto the Philippians confesseth of hi self, that as touchyng the lawe he was soch a one as no man could complayne on & not withstâding was yet a murderar of ye Christen persecuted them and tormented them so sore that he compelled them to blasphemie Christ, & was al together mercilesse, as many which now fayne outward good workes are.

> How Paul useth these wordes must be dilygently understâde

> The law of God requireth love.

For this cause the .cxv. Psalme calleth al men lyars, because that no man kepeth ye lawe frô ye grounde of the herte nether can kepe it though he appeare outwarde full of good workes.

For al men are naturally enclyned unto evel and hate the lawe: we finde in oure selves unlust & tedi ousnes to do good, but lust & delectacion to do evel: Now wher no free lust is to do good, there the botome of the hert fulfylleth not the lawe: ther no doubt is also sinne, & wrath is deserved before God, though ther be never so great & outward shewe and apperaunce of honest lyvynge. For this cause concludeth saint Paul in the seconde Chapter, ye the Iewes are al sinners and transgressors of the law, though they make men beleve, thorowe ypocrisy of outwarde workes, how that they fulfil the lawe, & sayeth that he only which doth the lawe is righteous before God, meanynge therby that no man wyth outwarde workes fulfylleth the lawe.

Thou sayth he, to the Iewe teachest a man shulde not breake wedlocke and yet breakest wedlocke thy selfe, where in thou iudgest another man, therein condemnest thou thy self, for thou thy selfe doest even the very same thinges which thou iudgest. As though he wolde saye, thou lyvest outwardely wel in the workes of the lawe, and iudgest them that live not so. Thou teachest other men, and seest a mote in another mans eye, but art not ware of the beame that is in thyne awne eye. For though ye kepe the law outwardly with workes, for feare of rebuke, shame & punishement, other for love of reward vauntage & vayne glory, yet doest thou al without lust and love towarde the lawe: and haddest lever a greate deale otherwise do yf thou haddest not feare the lawe: ye inwardly in thine herte, thou woldest ye there were no lawe, no nor yet God, the auctor and vengear of the lawe, yf it were possible: so paynefull it is unto thee to have thyne appetites refrayned, & to be kepte doune. Wherfore then it is a playne conclusion that thou from the ground & botome of thine hert, arte an enemy to the law, what prevayleth it now, that thou teachest an other man not to steale, when thou thyne owne selfe arte a theefe in thyne herte, and outwardlye woldeste fayne steale yf thou durst, though the that the outwarde dedes abyde not awaye behinde with soche ypocrytes and dyssimulars, but breake forth, amonge euen as an evell scabbe or a pocke cannot al wayes be kept in wt violence of medicyne.

Thou teachest another man, but teachest not thi selfe ye thou worest not what thou teachest, for ye understandest not the lawe aright, how that it cannot be fulfilled and satisfied, but wt an unfayned love & affeccion, so greatly it cannot be fulfilled wt outwarde dedes and workes only. More over ye law encreaseth synne as he sayth in the fifte Chapter, because that man is an enemy to the lawe for as moch as it requireth so many thinges clene contrarie to his nature, wherof he is not able to fulfyll one poynte or tytle, as the lawe requireth it. And therefore are we moare provoked, and have greater lust to breake it. For which causes sake as he sayth in the seventh Chapter, that the law is spiritual though he wold saye, yf the lawe were fleshly and but mans doctrine, it myght be fulfilled, satisfied and stilled wyth outwarde dedes. But nowe is the lawe goostly, and no man fulfilleth it excepte that al that he doth, springe of love frô ye botom of the hert. Such a new hert & lusty corage unto the lawe ward, canst ye never come by of thine owne strenght and enforcement, but by the operacion and working of the spyrte. For the spyrte of God only maketh a man spiritual and lyke unto the lawe, so that now henceforth he doeth nothing of feare or for lucre vauntages sake or vayne glory, but of a fre herte and of inwarde lust. The lawe is spiritual and wil be the loved and fulfilled of a spirtual hert, and therfore of necessite requireth it the spyrte that maketh a mannes hert fre, and geveth him lust and courage unto the lawwarde. Where soeva a spyrt is not, there remayneth sinne, grudgyng and hatered agaynst the lawe, which lawe neverthelesse is good rightewes and holy.

> The lawe encreaseth sine

> The spyrt is required yet we can kepe the lawe.

Acquaynte thy selfe therfore with the manner of speakinge of the Apostel, and let this new styke fast in thine herte, that it is not both one to do dedes and workes of the lawe and to fulfil the lawe. The worke of the lawe is what soever a man doth or can do of his owne free wyl, of his owne proper strenghte and enforsing. Notwithstanding thought there be never so greate workinge yet as long as there remayneth in the herte unlust, tediousnes, grudginge, grief, payne lothsumnes and compulsion towarde the law so long are al the workes unprofitable, lost, ye & damnable in the syght of God. This meaneth Paul in the thirde Chapter where he sayeth, by the dedes of the lawe shal no flesh be iustified in the sight of god. Here by perceavest thou that those sophisters are but dysceavers which teache that a man may and must prepare him self to grace and to the fauour of God with good workes before he hath the spirite and true fayth of Christ. How can they prepare them selues vnto the fauour of God, & to that which is good, when they them selues can do no good, nor cannot once thinke a good thought or consent to do good the deuel possessyng their hertes, myndes and thoughtes captiue at his pleasure? Can those workes please god thinkest thou, which are done with grefe, payne and tediousnes, with an euell will, with a contrary groudgynge mynde? O holy saincte Prosperus how mightely, with the scripture of Paul didest thou confounde this heresye about (I trowe) a twelue hundred yeres ago or ther vpon.

> To do ye dedes of ye lawe & to fulfyll ye lawe are two thynges.

Prosperus.

To fulfil the lawe what it is.

To fulfil the lawe, to do the workes therof and whatsoeuer the lawe commaundeth with loue, lust & inwarde affection and delectacion: and to liue godly and wel, frely, willingly, & without compulsion of the lawe euen as though there were no lawe at al. Suche luste and fre liberte to the lawe, commeth only by the workyng of the spirite in the herte, as he sayth in the .i. Chapter. Now is the spirit none otherwyse geuen then by fayth only, in that we beleue the promises of God, with out wauering, how that God is true, & wil fulfil al his good promises toward vs, for Christes bloudes sake, as it is playne in the first Chap. I am not ashamed sayth Paul, of Christes gladde tidinges, for it is the power of God vnto saluacion to as many as beleue. For at once and to gether euen as we beleue the glad tydinges preached to vs the holy gost entreth into oure hertes, & lowseth the bondes of the deuel which be fore possessed our hertes in captiuite & held them that we colde haue no lust to the wyl of God in the lawe. And as the spirite commeth by fayth only, euen so fayth commeth by hearing the worde or glad tidinges of God when Christ is preached, how that he is Goddes sonne and man also, deed and rise agayn for our sakes as he sayth in the .iii. iiii. & x. Chapters. All our iustifieng then commeth of fayth, and fayth & the spirite come of God & not of vs.

The spirite cometh by fayth.

Fayth cometh by hearing the glad tidinges.

When we saye fayth bringeth the spirite, it is not to be vnderstande that fayth deserueth the spirite, or that the spirite is not present in vs before fayth. For the spirite is euer in vs, and fayth is the gifte & workyng of the spirite. But thorow preaching, the spirite beginneth to worke in vs. And as by preaching the lawe, he worketh the feare of god, so by preachinge the glad tydynge he worketh fayth. And now when we beleue and are come vnder the couenaunt of God, then are we sure of the spirite by the promyse of God & then the spirite accompanieth fayth inseparably, and we beginne to fele hys workinges. And so faithe certifyeth vs of the spirite, and also bryngeth the spirite wyth her vnto the workinge of all other gyftes of grace, and to the workyng out of the rest of oure saluacion, vntyll we haue altogether ouercome synne, death, hell and Sathan, and are come vnto the euerlastinge lyfe of glory. And for this cause say we, fayth bryngeth the spyryte. Here of commeth it, that fayth onely iustifieth, maketh rightuous, and fulfylleth the lawe, for it bryngeth the spirite thorow Christes deseruynges, the spyrite bryngeth lust, loseth the herte, maketh hym fre, setteth hym at libertie, and geueth hym strength to worke the dedes of the lawe wyth loue, euen as the lawe requireth. That at the last out of the same fayth so workinge in the herte, springe all good workes by their owne accorde. That meaneth he in the thyrde Chapter, for after he hath cast awaye the workes of the law, so that he soundeth as though he wolde breake and disanull the lawe thorow fayth, he answereth, to that myght be layde agaynst, saying, we destroye not the lawe thorow fayth but mayntayne further or stablysh the lawe thorow fayth. That is to saye, we fulfill the lawe thorow fayth.

Fayth onely iustifyeth.

Workes springe of fayth.

Synne.

Synne in the scripture is not called that outward worke only committed by the body, but all the whole busines and whatsoeuer accompanieth, moueth or styrreth vnto the outward dede, & that whence the workes springe, as vnbelefe, pronenes and redines vnto the dede in the grounde of the herte with all the power, affections and appetites, wherwith we can but synne. So that we saye, that a man then synneth, when he is caryed awaye hedlonge into synne altogether asmuch as he is, of that poyson inclynacion and corrupte nature wherin he was conceyued and borne. For there is none outward synne commytted, excepte a man be caryed awaye altogether, with lyfe, soule, herte, body lust and mynde therevnto, the scripture loketh singularly vnto the herte, & vnto the rote and original fountayne of al synne, whyche is vnbelefe in the botome of the hertes. For as fayth onely iustifieth and bryngeth the spirite and lust vnto the outwarde good workes, euen so vnbelefe onely damneth and kepeth out the spyrite, prouoketh the fleshe and stereth vp luste vnto the euel outward workes, as happened to Adam and Eue in paradise. Genesis. iii.

Fayth is the mother of al good workes & vnbelefe of euil.

For this cause Christ calleth synne vnbelefe, and that notably in the .xvi. Chapter of saint Iho. The spirite sayeth he shall rebuke the worlde of synne, because they beleue not in me. And Iohan. viii. he sayeth. I am the lyght of the worlde. And therfore in the .xii. of Iohn, he byddeth them, whyle they haue lyght to beleue in the lyght, that ye maye be the chyldren of lyght, for he that walketh in darknes woteth not whether he goeth. Now as Christ is the lyght, so is the ignoraunce of Christ, that darknes wherof he speaketh, in which he that walketh, woteth not whether he goeth, that is, he knoweth not how to worke a good worke in the syght of god, or what a good worke is, and therfore in the .ix. he sayeth, as long as I am in the worlde, I am the lyght of the worlde, but there commeth night when no man can worke, which night is but ignoraunce of Christ, in which no man can se to do any worke that pleaseth God. And Paul exhorteth, Ephe. iiii. that they walke not as other heathen whych are straungers from the lyfe of God, thorow the ignoraunce, that is in them. And agayn in the same chap. Put of (sayth he) the old man which is corrupte thorow the lustes of erroure that is to saye ignoraunce. And Roman. xiii. Let vs caste away the dedes of darknes, that is to saye of ignoraunce & vnbelefe. And, i. Pet. i. Fashion not your selues vnto your olde lustes of ignoraunce, & .i. Iohn. ii. He that loueth his brother dwelleth in lyght, & he that hateth hys brother walketh in darkenes, and woteth not whether he goeth for darkenes that blynded hys eyes. By lyght he meaneth the knowledge of Christ and by darknes, the ignoraunce of Christ, for it is impossible that he that knoweth Christ truly, should hate his brother.

Furthermore, to perceaue this thing more clearly thou shalt vnderstand, that it is impossible to sinne any sinne at al, except a man breake the fyrst commaundement before. Now is the fyrst commaundement deuyded into two verses. Thy Lorde god is one god, and thou shalt loue the lord god with al thine hert, with al thy soul, with al thy power and with al thy myght. And the whole cause why I synne agaynst any inferyour precept, is that thys loue is not in myne hert, for were thys loue wrytten in my hert, and were ful and perfect in my soule, it wolde kepe myne hert from consentyng to any synne. And the whole and onely cause why thys loue is not wrytten in our hertes, is that we beleue not the fyrst parte, that our lord god is one god. For wyst I what these wordes, one Lorde and one god meaneth, that is to saye, yf I vnderstode that he made al, & ruleth al, and that what soeuer is done to me, whether it be good or bad, is yet hys wyl, & that he only is the lorde that ruleth, and doth it, and wyst therto what thys worde, myne, meaneth, that is to saye, yf myne hert beleued and felt the infynyte benefytes and kyndnes of God to me warde, and vnderstod and earnestly beleued the manyfolde couenauntes of mercy wherwith God hath bounde him selfe to be myne whole and altogether, with al hys power, loue, mercy, & myght, then shulde I loue hym with al myne hert, soule, power, & myght, and of that loue euer kepe hys commaundementes. So se ye now that as fayth is the mother of al goodnes, & of al good workes, so is vnbelefe the grounde & rote of al euell & al euel workes. Fynaly, yf any man hath forsaken synne & is conuerted to put hys truste in Christ, and to kepe the lawe of God doth fal at a tyme, the cause is, that the flesh thorow negligence hath choked the spirite, and oppressed her and taken fro her ye fode of her strenght with the fode of her meditacion in God and in hys wonderful deades, and in the manifolde couenauntes of hys mercye.

Wherfore then before all the good workes as good frutes, there must nedes be faith in the herte whence they sprynge. And before all bad dedes as bad frutes, there must be vnbelefe in the herte, as in the route, fountayn, pyth and strenght of all synne. Whych vnbelefe, and ignoraunce is called the heade of the Serpent, and of the olde dragon, which the womans sede Christ must treade vnder foote, as it was promysed vnto Adam. Grace and gifte haue thys difference. Grace properly is Goddes fauoure, beneuolence or kynd mynde, which of hys owne selfe, without deseruinge of vs, he beareth to vs, wherby he was moued and enclyned to geue Christ vnto vs, wyth all hys other gyftes of grace. Gift is the holy ghost and hys workyng whome he powreth into the hertes of them, on whome he hath mercye, and whome he fauoureth. Though the gyft of the spirite, encrease in vs dayly, and haue not yet theyr full perfection, yea and though there remayne in vs yet euell lustes and synne, which fyght agaynst the spirite, as he sayth here in the, vii, chapt. and in the, v, to the Galathyans, and as it was spoken before in the, iii, Chapter of Genes. of the debate betwene the womans sede, and the sede of the serpent: yet neuertheles Goddes fauoure is so greate and so stronge ouer vs for Chrystes sake that we are counted for full, hole and perfecte before God. For Goddes fauoure towarde vs, deuideth not her selfe, encreasing a lytle & a lytle, as do the gyftes, but receaueth vs hole and altogether in full loue for Chrystes sake oure intercessour and mediator, and because that the gyftes of the spirite and battayle betwene the spirite and euell lustes, are begonne in vs already.

Of thys now vnderstandest thou the, vii Chapter, where Paull accuseth hym selfe as a synner, and yet in the, viii. chapt. sayeth, there is no dampnacion to them that are in Chryste, and that because of the spirite, & because the gyftes of the spirite are begon in vs. Synners we are because the fleshe is not full kylled and mortefied. Neuertheles in as much as we beleue in Chryst, and haue the earnest and beginnings of the spryte, and wold fayne be perfecte. God is so louynge and fauorable vnto vs, that he wyll not loke on suche synne, neyther wyll counte it for synne, but wyl deale wyth vs accordynge to oure belefe in Chryste, and accordinge to hys promyses, which he hath sworne to vs, vntyll the synne be slayne and mortyfyed by death.

Faythe is not mans opynion and dreame, as some ymagyne and fayne, when they heare the storye of the Gospell, whych when they se that there foloweth no good workes nor amendemente of lyuinge, though they heare, and yet can bable many thynges of fayth, then they fall from the right waye and say, faythe onely iustifieth not, a man must haue good workes also, if he wyll be righteous and safe. The cause is when they heare the gospell or glad tydinges, they fayne of theyr owne strenght certayn imaginacions, & thoughtes in theyr hertes, sayinge: I haue herd the gospell, I remember the story, lo I beleue. And ye they counte right fayth, which neuertheles as it is but mans imaginacion & fayning, euen so profiteth it not, nether foloweth any good workes or amendement of lyfe. But right faith is a thing wrought by the holy gost in vs, which changeth vs, turneth vs into a new nature, & begetteth vs anew in god, and maketh vs the sonnes of god, as thou redest in the .i. of Johan, and kylleth ye olde Adam and maketh vs altogether newe in the herte, mynde, will, lust and in all oure affections and powers of the soule, the holy goste euen accompanyinge her and rulinge the herte. Faith is a lyuely thinge mightie in workinge, valeaunt and stronge, euer doinge, euer frutefull so that it is vnpossible that he which is endued therwith shulde not worke alwayes good workes without ceasinge. He asketh not whether good workes are to be done or not, but hath done them already, yer mencion be made of them, and is alway doinge, for such is hys nature, now quicke fayth in hys herte, and lyuely mouinge of the spirite, dryue hym, and stere hym therunto. Who soeuer doth not good workes, is an vnbeleuing person and faythlesse, and loketh rounde about, gropinge after fayth and good workes, and woteth not what fayth and good workes meane, though he bable neuer so manye thynges of faythe and good workes.

Faith is not the worke of man.

Right fayth is a thing wrought by the holy gost / is of ye workyng of ye spirite of god.

Fayth is then a lyuelye and stedfaste trust in the fauor of god, wherwith we commit our selues altogether vnto god, & that trust, is so surely grounded and sticketh so fast in our hertes, that a man wold not ones doute of it, though he shoulde dye a thousand tymes therfore. And suche trust wrought by the holy gost thorow fayth, maketh a man glad, lustye, cherefull and true herted vnto god and to all creatures. By the meanes wherof willingly without compulsion he is glad and redy to do good to euery man, to do seruyce to euerye man, to suffre all thinges, that god maye be loued and praysed, which hath geuen hym such grace: so that it is impossible to separate good workes from fayth, euen as it is impossible to separat heate and burninge from fyre. Therfore take hede to thy selfe, and beware of thyne owne fantasies, and ymaginacions, whyche to iudge of fayth and good workes wyll seme wyse, when indede they are starke blind & of al thinges most folysh. Praye god that he wyll vouchesafe to worke faythe in thyne herte, or els shalte thou remayne euer more faythlesse, fayne thou, ymagine thou, enforce thou, wrastell thou with thy selfe, and do what thou wylt or canst.

Faith what it is.

Righteousnes is euen such fayth, and is called Goddes righteousnes, or righteousnes that is of valoure before god. For it is goddes gyfte, and it altereth a man, and chaungeth hym to a newe spirituall nature, and maketh him fre and lyberall to paye euery man hys dutie. For thorowe fayth is a man purged of his synnes, and obtaineth luste vnto the lawe of god, wherby he geueth god hys honoure, and payeth hym that he oweth hym, and vnto men he doth seruice wyllingly wherwith soeuer he can, and payeth euerye man his dutie. Suche righteousnes can nature, frewyll and oure owne strenght neuer bringe to passe. For as no man can geue hym selfe fayth, so can he not take awaye vnbelefe, how then can he take away one thing at all. Wherfore all is false ypocrysy and synne, what soeuer is done without faythe, or in vnbelefe, as it is euident in the xiiii. Chapter vnto the Romaynes, though it appeare neuer so glorious or beautyfull outwardes.

Faith is ryghteousnes.

Fleshe and spryte mayest thou not here vnderstande, as thought fleshe were only ye which pertayneth vnto vnchastite, & the spryte, which inwardly pertayneth to the herte: but Paul calleth flesh here, ye as Christ doth John iii. Al ye is borne of fleshe ye is to wete the whole man with lyfe, soule, body, witte, wil, reason & whatsoeuer he is, or doth within & without: because that those al & al that is in man study after the worlde & the fleshe. Cal fleshe therfore what soeuer (as longe as we are without the spirite of god) we thinke or speke of god, of fayth of good workes and of spirituall matters. Call flesh also all workes which are done without grace and without the workyng of the spryte, how soeuer good holy and spirituall they seme to be, as thou mayest proue by the, v Chapter vnto the Galathians, where Paul numbreth worshipping of Idoles, witchcrafte, enuy and hate, among the dedes of the fleshe, and by the .viii. vnto the Romaynes, where he sayeth that the lawe by the reason of the flesh is weake. Which is not vnderstande of vnchastitie onely, But of al synnes, and moost specially of vnbelefe, which is a vyce most spirituall, and ground of all synnes.

And so thou callest hym which is not renewed with the spirite and borne agayne in Christ, fleshe: and all his workes, even the very mocions of his hert and mynde, hys lernyng, doctrine and contemplacion of hye thinges, hys preachinge, teaching and study in the scripture, buyldinge of churches, foundinge of Abbeyes, gevinge of almes, masse, mattences and what soever he doth, though it seme spirituall and after the lawes of god: So contrary wyse call hym spirituall, which is renewed in Christ and all hys dedes, which springe of fayth seme they never so grosse, as the wasshinge of the disciples fete, done by Christ, and Peters fysshing after the resurrection, yea and all the dedes of matrimonye are pure spirituall, yf they procede of fayth and what soever is done within the lawes of God, though it be wrought by the body, as the very wypinge of shewes, and such lyke, how soever grosse they appeare outwarde. Without suche understandinge of these wordes canst thou never understande thys epistle of Paul, nether any other place in the holy scripture. Take hede therfore, for who soever understandeth these wordes other wyse, the same understandeth not Paull: what soever he be. Nowe wyll we prepare our selues unto the Epistle.

The.i.Cha. For as much as it becommeth the preacher of Christes glad tydinges, fyrst thorow openinge of the lawe, to rebuke all thinges, and to prove all thinges synne, that procede not of the spirite and of fayth in Christ, and to prove all men sinners and chylderen of wrath by enheritaunce, and how that to synne is their nature, and that by nature they can none other wyse do then synne, and therwith to abate the pryde of man and to bringe hym unto knowledge of hym selfe, and to mysery and wretchednes, that he myght desyre helpe. Even so doth saynct Paull, and beginneth in the fyrst Chapter to rebuke unbelefe and grosse sinnes, which all men se, as ydolatry, and as the grosse synnes of the heathen were, and as the synnes nowe are of all them which lyve in ignoraunce withoute fayth, and without the favoure of God, and say the. The wrath of the God of heaven appeareth thorow the gospell upon all men for theyr ungodlynes and unholy lyuing. For though it be knowen and dayly understande by the Creatures, that there is but one God, yet is nature of her selfe without the spirite and grace, so corrupt and so poysoned that, men nether can thanke him, nor worship him, nether geve hym his due honoure, but blynde them selues and fall without ceasing into worse case, even untyll they come unto worshipping of ymages and worckinge of shameful synnes, which are abhominable and agaynst nature, and moreover suffre the same unrebuked in other, havinge delectacion and pleasure therin.

The.ii.cha. In the.ii. Chapter, he proceadeth further, and rebuketh al those holye people also which without lust and love to the lawe, lyve well outwardly in the face of the worlde and condemne other gladly, as the nature of all ypocrites is, to thinke them selves pure in respect of open sinners and yet hate the lawe inwardly, and are ful of covetousnes and envy and of al unclenes, Math.xxiii. these are they whych despise the goodnes of god, and accordinge to the hardnes of theyr hertes, heape together for them selues the wrath of god. Furthermore saynt Paul as a true expounder of the lawe, suffreth no man to be withoute synne, but declareth that all they are under synne whych of frewyll and of nature wyll lyve well and suffreth them not to be better then the open sinners, yea he calleth the hard harted & such as cannot repente.

Third cha. In the.iii. Chapter he mingleth together bothe the Jewes and the Gentyles, & saieth that the one is as the other both sinners, and no difference betwene them, save in this onely, that ye Jewes had the worde of God comitted unto them. And though many of theym beleved not theron, yet is Goddes truthe and promyse therby, nether hurt nor minished, and he taketh in his way & allegeth the saying of the.l. Psal. ye God which might abyde true in hys wordes and overcome whe he is Judged: After ye he returneth to his purpose agayn & proveth by ye scriptur, ye al men wout difference or exceptio are sinners and that by the workes of the lawe no man is iustifyed: but that the lawe was geven to utter and declare synne only.

The law iustifieth not: but uttereth the synne only and condemneth. Then he begynneth and sheweth the right waie unto ryghtwesnes, by what meanes me must be made righteous and safe, & sayeth. They are al sinners & without prayse before God, and must without their owne deservinge be made righteous thorow fayth in Christ, whych hath deserved such ryghtwesnes for us and is become unto goddes mercy stole for the remission of sinnes that are past, therby provynge ye Christes righteousnes which commeth on us thorow faith, helpeth us only. Which righteousnes, saith he is now declared thorow the gospel, and was testyfied of before by the lawe of the Prophets. Further more (sayth he) the lawe is holpe & fordred thorow fayth, though ye the workes therof wt al their boste are brought to naught and proved not to iustyfye.

iiii.Chap In the.iiii. Chapter (after that now by the.iii. fyrste Chapters, the synnes are opened, and the waie of fayth unto ryghtwesnes layd) he begynneth to answere unto certayne objections & cavillacions. And fyrst he putteth forth those blynde reasons, which commenly they that wyl be iustified by their owne workes, are wonte to make when they here that faith only with out workes, iustifieth, sayinge: Shall men do no good workes, ye and yf fayth only iustifie, what nedeth a man to study for to do good workes. He putteth forth therfore Abraham for an ensample, saying, what dyd Abraham wt his workes: was all in vayne, came his workes to no profite: and so concludeth ye Abraha wout and before al workes was iustifyed and made righteous. In so muche that before the worke of circumcision he was prayсed of the scripture and called righteous by his fayth onely. Gene.xv. So that he dyd not the worke of circumcision for to be holpe therby unto righteousnes, which yet god commaunded him to do, & was a good worke of obedience. So in like wyse no doute none other workes helpe any thyng at al unto a mans iustifying, but as Abrahams circumcision was an outwarde sygne wherby he declared his righteousnes whyche he had by faith, and hys obedience and readynes unto the wyl of God, even so are other good workes outwarde sygnes and outward frutes of fayth and of the spirite, which iustify not a man, but that a man is iustyfied already before God inwardly in the hert, thorow faith and thorow the spirite purchased by Christes bloud. here wt now stablisheth sainct Paul his doctrine of faith afore rehersed in the.iii. Chapter, and bringeth also testimony of David in the.xxxii. Psal. which calleth a man blessed, not of workes, but in that his sinne is not rekened and in that fayth is imputed for righteousnes, though he abyde not afterwarde wout good workes, when he is once iustified. For we are iustified and receave the spirite for to do good workes, nether were it other wyse possible to do good workes, except we had fyrst the spirite.

For howe is it possible to do any thynge well in the syghte of God, while we are yet in the captivitie & bondage under ye devel, & the devel possesseth us altogether & holdeth our hertes, so that we canot once consent unto ye wyl of god. No man therfore can prevent the spirite in doing good, but the spirite must fyrst come and wake hym out of his slepe, & with the thunder of the lawe feare hym, and shew him his myserable estate & wretchednes, & maketh him abhorre & hate hym selfe & to desyre helpe, & then comforte him agayne with ye plesant rayne of the Gospell, that is to saye wt the swete promises of God in Christ, & stere up faith in hym to beleve the promises. Then when he beleveth the promises, as god was merciful to promyse, so is he true to fulfyl them, & wyl geve him the spirite and strength, both to love the wyll of God and to worcke there after. So se we that god onely which accordinge to the scripture worketh al in all thinges

ges worketh a mans iustifienge, saluacion and health, yea and powreth faith and beleve, lust, to love Goddes wyl, and strength to fulfyl the same, into us, euen as water is poured into a vessel, & that of his good wyl and purpose and not of our deseruynges and merites. Goddes mercy in promisynge, and trueth in fulfyllynge his promyses saueth us and not we our selues. And therfore is al laude, prayse, and glorye, to be geuen unto god for hys mercy and trueth, and not unto us for our merites and deseruinges. After that he stretcheth his ensample out agaist al other good workes of the lawe, & concludeth that the Jewes can not be Abrahams heyres because of bloud and kynred only, and much lesse by the workes of the law, but must inherete Abrahās faith, yf they wyl be the ryght heyre of Abraham, for as much as Abraham before the lawe, both of Moses and also of cyrcumsysion, was thorow fayth made ryghtewes, & called father of al them that beleue, and not of them that worke. Moreouer the lawe causeth wrath, in as much as no man can fulfyl it with loue and lust. And as longe as suche grudgyng, hate, and indignacion agaynste the lawe remayneth in the herte, and is not taken awaye by the spyrte, that cometh by fayth, so long, no dout, the workes of the lawe, declare euydently that the wrath of God is upon us and not fauoure. Wherfore faith onely receaueth the grace promysed unto Abraham. And these ensamples were not wrytē for Abrahams sake only, sayth he, but for oure also to whom if we beleue, fayth shalbe rekened lykewyse for ryghteousnes, as he sayth in the ende of the Chapter.

In the. v. Chapter he commendeth the frutes or workes of faith, as are peace, reioysing in the cōscience, inward loue to God, and man, more ouer boldnes, trust, confidence and a strong and lusty mynd and stedfaste hope in tribulacyon and sufferinge. For al such folow, where the right fayth is, for the abundante graces sake and gyftes of the spyrte, which God hath geuen us in Jesu Christe, in that he gaue him to dye for us yet his enemyses. Now haue we then that faith only before al workes iustifieth, and that it foloweth not yet therfor that a man shuld do no good workes, but that the right shapen workes abyde not behinde, but accompany faith, euen as brightnes doth the sonne, and are called of Paul the frutes of the spyrte. Where the spyrte is, there it is al wayes somer and there are al wayes good frutes, that is to saye: good workes. The. v. chap

Paules order is that good workes spryng of the spyrte, the spyrte commeth by fayth and fayth commeth by hearyng the worde of God, when the glad tydynges and promyses which God hath made to us in Chryste, are preached truely, and receaued in the grounde of the hert with out wauerige or doutyng, after that the lawe hath passed upon us and hath damned our conscyences. Where ye worde of God is preached purely and receaued in the herte, there is fayth and the spyrte of god, and there are also good workes, of necessitye whensoeuer occasyon is geuen: where goddes word is not purely preached but mens dreames, tradycyons, ymagynacyons, inuencyons, ceremonyes & supersticyon, there is no fayth: and consequently no spyrte that commeth of god. And where Goddes spyrte is not, there can be no good workes, euē as wher ye appel tre is not, there can growe no appel, but there is unbelefe, the deuels spyrte & euel workes. Of thys goddes spyrte & his frutes, haue oure holy ypocrytes once knowen, neither yet tasted how swete they are, though they fayne many good workes of their owne ymagynacyons, to be iustyfyed with al, in which is not one crome of true fayth of spyrytual loue, or of inwarde ioye, peace & quietnes of conscyence, for as moch as they haue not the word of god for them, that such workes please god, but they are euen the roten frutes of a roten tre. Good workes are the frutes of the spyrte.

After that he breaketh forth, and runneth at large and sheweth whence both synne and ryghteousnes death and lyfe come. And he cōpareth Adam and Chryst to gether, thus wyse reasonynge and dysputynge that Chryst most neades come as a second Adam to make us heyres of his ryghtewesnes thorow a newe spyrytuall byrth wythout oure deseruynges euen as the fyrst Adam made us heyres of synne thorowe the bodely generacyon wythout our deseruinge. Whereby it is euydently knowen & proued to the uttermost that no man can brynge hymselfe oute of synne unto ryghtewesnes, no more then he could haue withstand that he was borne bodely. And that is proued herewyth, for as moche as the verye lawe of God whiche of ryghte shoulde haue holpe, if any thynge coulde haue holpen, not only came and broughte no helpe wyth her, but also increased synne, because that the euel and poysoned nature is offended and utterly dyspleased with the lawe & the more she is forbyd by the lawe, the more is she prouoked and set on fyre to fulfyl & satysfy her lustes. By the lawe then we se clearly that we must nedes haue Chryst to iustify us wyth his grace, and to helpe nature.

In the. vi. he setteth forth the chefe and pryncypal worke of fayth, the batayll of the spyrte agaynste the flesh, how the spyrte laboureth & enforseth to kyll the remnaunt of synne and lust which remaine in the fleshe, after our iustifyenge. And this Chapter teacheth us, that we are not so free from synne thorow faith, that we shoulde hence forth go up & down ydle, carles & sure of our selues, as though ther were now no more synne in us. Yes there is synne remayninge in us, but it is not rekened, because of fayth and of the spyrte, which fyghte agaynst it. Wherfore we haue ynough to do all oure lyues longe, to tame oure bodyes, and to compell the membres to obeye the spyrte and not the appetites, ye thereby we myght be like unto Christes death & resurrection, & might fulfyl our baptyme, which sygnyfieth the mortifieng of lustes, and the new lyfe of grace. For this batayl ceaseth not in us until the last breth, & untyl that synne be utterly slayne by the death of the bodye. The. vi. chapiter.

Baptyme is a witnes betwene God & us that we haue promysed to mortyfye the lustes and synne ye remayneth in the flesh.

This thinge, I meane to tame the body and so forth) we are able to do (sayeth hee) seinge we are under grace, and not under the lawe, what it is, not to be under the lawe, he hym selfe expoundeth. For not to be under the lawe, is not so to be understande that euery man maye do what hym lusteth. But not to be under the lawe, is to haue a free herte renewed with the spirite, so that thou hast luste inwardly of thyne owne accorde, to do that which the lawe commaundeth without compulsion as though there were no lawe. For grace that is to saye Goddes fauoure bringeth us the spirite, and maketh us loue the lawe: so is there now no more synne, nether is the lawe now any more against us, but at one, and agreed with us, and we with it. But to be under the lawe, is to deale with the workes of the lawe, and to worke with oute the spirite and grace, for so longe no doubte, synne raygneth in us thorowe the lawe, that is to saye, the lawe declareth that we are under synne, and that synne hath power and dominion ouer us, seinge we can not fulfyll the lawe namely with in the herte, for as muche as no man of nature fauoureth the lawe, consenteth there unto and delyteth therin. Which thynge is exceadinge greate synne, that we cannot consent to the lawe, which lawe is nothinge else saue the wyll of God. Not to be under the lawe what it meaneth.

This is the right fredome and lybertie from synne, and from the lawe wher of he wryteth unto the ende of thys chapter, that it is a fredome to do good onely with luste, and to lyue wel without compulsion of the lawe, wherfore thys fredome is spiritual fredome which destroyeth not the law but ministreth that which the lawe requireth, and wherwith the lawe is fulfylled: that is to understande luste and loue, wherwith the lawe is stylled, and accuseth us no more, compelleth us no more nether hath ought to craue of us any more. Euen as though thou were in dette to an other man, & were not able to paye, two maner wayes myghtest thou be losed. One waye, yf he wolde requyre nothynge of the, and breke thyne oblygaci To be under ye law what it is.

or another waie, yt some other good man wold paie for ye, & geue ye as moch as ye myghtest satisfy thine obligacion w al. Of this wise hath christ made ye fre from ye lawe, & therfore is this no wyld fleshely lyberte, that shulde do nought, but that doth al thinges, and is fre from ye crauinge & dette of the lawe.

The .vii. chapiter.

In the .vii. confirmeth he the same with a similitude of the state of matrimony. As when the husbande dyeth, the wyfe is at hyr lyberte, & the one lowsed and departed from the other, not that ye woman shulde not haue power to marye vnto an other man but rather now fyrste of all is she fre, and hath power to marye vnto an other man whych she coulde not do before, tyll she was lowsed from hyr fyrst husband. Euen so are oure conscyences bound and in daunger to the lawe vnder olde Adam the flesh, as long as he lyueth in vs. For the lawe declareth that oure hertes are bound and that we can not disconsent from him. But when he is mortified and kylled by the spyrte, then is the conscience fre and at lyberte: not so that ye conscience shal nowe nought do, but now fyrst of al cleueth vnto another, that is to wete Christ, and bringeth forthe the fruites of lyfe. So nowe to be vnder the lawe, is, not to be able to fulfyll the lawe, but to be detter to it, and not able to paye that whych the lawe requyreth. And to be lowse from the lawe, is to fulfyll it and to paye that whych the lawe demaundeth, so that it can now hence forth axe the nought.

To be vnder the lawe. To be lowse from the law

Consequently Paul declareth more largely the nature of synne and of the law, how that thorowe the lawe synne reuyueth, moueth hyr self, and gathereth strength. For the olde man and corrupte nature, the moare he is forboden and kepte vnder the lawe, is the moare offended and displeased there wyth, for as moche as he cannot paye that whych is requyred of the lawe. For synne is his nature and of hym selfe, he cannot but synne. Therfore is the lawe death to hym, tormente and martyrdome. Not that the lawe is euyll but because that the euyll nature cannot suffre that whych is good, cannot abyde that the lawe shoulde requyre of hym any good thynge, lyke as a syche man cannot suffre that a man shulde desyre of hym to runne, to lepe and to do other dedes of an whole man. For whych cause saynct Paul concludeth, that where the lawe is vnderstande and perceaued of the beste wyse, there it doeth no moare but vtter synne, and brynge vs vnto the knowledge of oure selues, and therby kyll vs and make vs bonde vnto eternall dampnacyon and detters of the euerlastyng wrath of God, euen as he wel feleth and vnderstandeth whose conscyence is truely touched of the lawe. In suche daunger were we yer the lawe came, that we knewe not what sinne ment, nether yet knowe we the wrath of God vppon sinners, tyl the lawe hath vttered it. So seest thou that a man must haue some other thinge, ye and a greter and a more myghty thinge then the lawe, to make hym ryghteous and safe. They that vnderstande not the lawe on this wyse, are blinde and go to worke presumptuously, supposyng to satisfye the lawe with workes. For they knowe not that the lawe requyreth a fre, a willinge, a lusty and a louynge herte. Therfore they se not Moses ryght in the face, the vayle hangeth betwene and hydeth hys face, so that they cannot beholde the glorye of hys countenaunce, how that ye law is spirituall and requireth the hert. I maye of myne awne strength refrayne that I do myne enemye no hurte, but to loue him with all myne herte, and to put awaye wrathe clene oute of my mynd, can I not of myne awne strength. I maye refuse money of myne awne strenght, but to put away loue vnto ryches out of myne herte, can I not do of myne awne strenght. To abstayne from adultery as concernynge the outwarde dede, can I do of myne awne strenght, but not to desyre in myne hert is as vnpossyble vnto me as is to chose whether I will hongre or thurst, and yet so the lawe requireth. Wherfore of a mannes awne strength is the lawe neuer fulfylled, we must haue therunto goddes fauoure, and his spirite, purchased by Christes bloude. Neuertheles when I saye a man maye do many thinges outwardlye clene agaynst his herte, we must vnderstande that man is but dryuen of diuers appetites, and the greatest appetite ouer commeth the lesse & caryeth the man awaye vyolently with hyr. As when I desyre vengeaunce, and feare also the inconuenience that is lyke to folow, if feare be greater I abstayne, yf the appetite that desyreth vengaunce be greater, I cannot but prosecute the dede, as we se by experience in many murtherers and theues, which though they be brought into neuer so great perel of deeth, yet after they haue escaped, do euen the same agayne. And commen wemen prosecute their lustes because feare & shame are away, whe other which haue the same apetites in their hertes, abstaine at the least way outwardly or worke secretly beyng ouercome of feare and of shame, and so lyke wyse is it of al other appetites.

Flesshe spirit fyghte togeder

Further more he declareth, how the spyrite and the flesshe fyghte to gether in one man, and maketh ye ensample of him selfe, that we myght lerne to knowe how to worke a right, I meane to kyl sinne in our selues. He calleth both the spyrte and also the flesh a lawe, because that lyke as the nature of Goddys lawe is to dryue, to compell and to craue: euen so the flesshe dryueth, compelleth, craueth and rageth agaynst the spyrite, and wil haue her lustes satisfyed. On the other syde dryueth the spyrite, cryeth and fyghteth agaynst the flesshe, and will haue his luste satisfied. And this stryfe dureth in vs, as longe as we lyue, in some moare and in some lesse, as the spyrite or the flesshe is stronger, and the veri man his owne selfe is bothe the spyrite and the flesshe, which fyghteth with his awne selfe vntyll synne be vtterlye slayne, and we all together spiritual. In the .viii. Cha. he comforteth suche fyghters that they dispere not because of suche flesshe, other thinke that they are lesse in fauour w god. And he sheweth how ye synne remaining in vs hurteth not, for there is no daunger to them yt are in Christ which walke not after the flesshe, but fight against it.

The .viii. ch.

And he expoundeth more largely what the nature of the flesshe and the spyryte is, & how the spyrite cometh by Christ, which spyrte maketh vs spirituel, tameth, subdueth and mortifieth the flesh, and certifieth vs yt we are neuertheles the sonnes of god, and also beloued though that sinne rage neuer so muche in vs, so longe as we folow the spyrite and fight against sinne to kyl and mortifie it. And because nothig is so good to the mortifienge of the flesh, as ye crosse and tribulacion, he comforteth vs in our passions & afflictions by the assistence of the spyrite which maketh intercessione to god for vs mightely with gronynges yt passe mans vtteraunce, so that mas speache can not comprehende them: & with the mourninge also of the creatures with vs, of greate desire that they haue, that we were lowsed from sinne & corupcion of ye flesh. So se we that these thre Chapters, vi. vii. viii, do none other thinge so moche as to dryue vs vnto the ryghte worke of faith, which is to kil the old mane mortifie the flesshe.

The .ix. x. & xi chapters.

In the .ix. x. & xi. Chapters, he treateth of Gods predestinacion, whence it spryngeth altogether, whether we shal beleue or not beleue, be lowsed from synne or not be lowsed. By whiche predestinacion oure iustifiyng and saluacion are cleane taken out of oure handes, and put in the handes of god only which thinge is moost necessary of al. For we are so weake and so vncerteyne, that if it stode in vs there shoulde of a trueth no man be saued, the deuell no doubte would deceaue vs. But now is god sure that his predestinacion can not disceaue hym, nether any man withstande or let hym: and therfore haue we hope and trust agaynst synne. But here must a marke be set vnto those vnquiet, busye and hye clymminge spirites, how farre they shall go which fyrste of all brynge hether theyr hye reasons and pregnant wittes, and begin first from an hye to serche the botomles secretes of goddes predestinacion, whether they be predestinat or not.

This do ye lyke wise vnderstand

These must nedes ether cast them selues downe headlonge into desperation, or els comit them selues to fre chaunce careles, but folowe thou the ordre of thys Epistle, and nosel thy self w Christ & learne to vnderstand what the lawe & the gospel meane, & the office of both two yt thou mayest in the one knowe thy selfe, & how that thou hast of thy selfe no strenght, but to synne, and in the other the grace of Christe. And then se thou fyght against synne, and the fleshe as the .vii. fyrst. Chapters teache the. After that when

Harte comt, to the .viii. Chapters and art vnder the crosse and sufferinge of trybulacyon, the necessyte of predestinacion wyl ware swete, and thou shalt wel fele how precyous a thynge it is. For except thou haue borne the crosse of aduersyte and temptacyon, & hast felte thy selfe brought vnto the very brimme of desperacyon, yea and vnto hel gates thou canst neuer medle with the sentence of predestynacion wyth oute thyne own harme, and with out secret wrath and grudgyng in wardly agaynst God, for other wyse it shal not be possyble for the to thynke that God is ryghteous and iuste. Therfore must Adam be wel mortyfied and the fleshely wytte brought vtterly to nought, yer that thou mayst awaywith this thing, and drinke so stronge wyne. Take hede therfore vnto thy selfe, that thou drynke not wyne, whyle thou art yet but a suckling. For euery lerninge hath hys tyme, measure and age, and in Chryst is there a certayne chyldhod in which a man must be content wyth mylke for a season, vntyl he waxe stronge and growe vp a perfecte man in Christ, and be able to eate of more stronge meate. In the .xii. Chapter he geueth exhortacions. For this maner obserueth Paul in al his Epistles, fyrst he teacheth Chryst and the fayth, then exhorteth he to good workes, and vnto contynual mortyfieng of the fleshe. So here teacheth he good workes in dede, & the treue seruynge of God, and maketh al men Prestes, to offer vp not money & beastes as the maner was in the tyme of the lawe, but their owne bodyes with kyllyng and mortyfieng of the lustes of the fleshe. After that he descrybeth the outwarde conuersacyon of christen men how they ought to behaue them selues in spiritual thynges, how to teache, preache and rule in the congregacyon of Chryst, to serue one to another, to suffer al thinges pacyently, and to commyt the wrake and vengaunce to god, in conclusion how a Christen man ought to behaue hym selfe vnto al men, to frend, foo, or what so euer he be. These are the right workes of a Chrysten man which sprynge out of fayth. For faith kepeth not holy daye, nether suffereth any man to be ydle, wheresoeuer he dwelleth. In the .xiii. he teacheth to honoure the worde and temporal sweard. For though a mans lawe or ordinaunce make not a man good before God, nether iustifye him in the hert, yet are they ordeined for the furtheraunce of the comen welth, to maintain peace, to punish the euel and to defende the good. Therfore ought the good to honoure the temporal swerd and to haue it in reuerence, though as concernyng them selues, they nede it not, but wolde abstayne from euel of their owne accorde, ye and do good with out mans law, but by the lawe of the spirite which gouerneth the herte, and gydeth it vnto al that is the wyl of god.

Finally he comprehendeth and knitteth vp all in loue. Loue of her own nature bestoweth al that she hath and euen her owne selfe on that which is loued. Thou nedest not to byd a kind mother to be louinge vnto her onely sonne. Much lesse spirituall loue which hath eyes geuen her of God, nedeth not mans law to teche her to do her dutie. And as in ẏ begynnyng he dyd put forth Christ as the cause and auctoure of our ryghtewesnes and saluacion, euen so here setteth he him forth as an ensample to contersayte, that as he hath done to vs, euen so shoulde we do one to another.

In the .xiiii. Chapter he teacheth to deale soberly with the conscience of the weake in the fayth which vnderstand not yet the lybertie of Christ perfectly ynough, & to fauour the of Christen loue, & not to vse the lybertye of the fayth vnto hynderaunce, but vnto the furtheraunce and edifienge of the weake. For where such consideration is not, there foloweth debate and despisinge of the Gospell. It is better therfore, to forbeare the weake a whyle vntyll they waxe stronge, then that the learning of the Gospell should come altogether vnder fote. And such worke, is the singular worke of loue, and where loue is perfect there must nedes be such a respecte vnto the weake, a thinge that christ commanded and charged to be had aboue al thinges.

In the .xv. Chapter, he setteth forth Christ agayne to be folowed, if we also by hys ensample shoulde suffre other that are yet weake, as them that are fraile, open synners, vnlerned and vnexpert, and of lothsome maners, and not to caste them awaye forth withe, but to suffre them tyll they waxe better, and exhorte the in the meane tyme. For so dealt Christ in the Gospell, & now dealeth with vs dayly, sufferinge our imperfectnes, weaknes, conuersation, and maners not yet fashioned after the doctryne of the Gospell, but smell of the fleshe, ye and somtime breake out in outwarde dedes. After that to conclude with all he wysheth them encrease of fayth, peace and ioye of conscience, prayseth them, and committeth them vnto God and magnifieth hys office and administracion in the Gospell, and soberlye, and with greate discretion desyreth succoure and ayde of them for the poore saintes at Ierusalem, and it is all pure loue that he speaketh or dealeth with all. So finde we in thys pistle plenteously, vnto the vttermost, what soeuer a christen man or woman ought to knowe, that is to wete, what the lawe, the Gospell, synne, grace, fayth, righteousnes, Chryst, God, good workes, loue, hope, and the crosse are, and euen wherin the pythe of all that that pertayneth to the Christen faythe standeth, and how a Chrysten man, ought to behaue hym self vnto euery man, be he perfecte or a synner, good or bad, stronge or weake, frend or foo: and in conclusyon howe to behaue our selues both toward God, and towarde our selues also. And al thinges are profoundly grounded in the scriptures, and declared with ensamples of hym selfe, of the fathers and of the prophetes, that a man can here desyre no more. Wherfore it appeareth euidentlye, that Paules minde was to comprehende brefely in thys pistle all the whole learninge of Christes Gospell, and to prepare an introduction vnto all the olde testament. For without doubte, who soeuer hathe thys pistle perfectly in hys herte, the same hath the lyght and the effect of the old testament, wyth him, wherfore let euery man wythout exception exercise hym selfe there in dilygently, and recorde it nyght and daye continually vntyll he be fully acquainted therwith.

This epistle to ẏ Romayns is the [illegible] into al the scripture, ye and the herte that openeth the vnderstandinge of it.

The last cha.

The last Chapter is a Chapter of recommendacion, wherein he yet mingleth a good monycion that we shoulde beware of the tradicions and doctryne of men, which begyle the symple with sophistrye and learning that is not after the Gospel and drawe them from Chryste, and nosel them in weake & feble, (as Paul calleth them in the Epistell to the Galathians) in beggerly ceremonies for thentent that they wold lyue in fatte pastures and be in auctoritye and be taken as Christ, yea and aboue Chryste, and syt in the temple of God, that is to wite in the consciences of men, where god onely, hys worde, and hys Christ oughte to syt. Compare therfore al maner doctryne of men vnto the scripture & se whether they agree or not. And commit thy self whole & altogether vnto Christ & so shal he wyth hys holy spirite & wyt al his fulnes dwel in thy soul.

The somme and hole cause of the writing of this Epistle, is, to proue that a man is iustified by fayth onely: which proposytion who so denyeth, to him is not only this Epistle and al that Paul wryteth, but also the holy scripture so locked vp, that he shal neuer vnderstand it to his soules health. And to brynge a man to the vnderstanding & feeling that faith only iustifieth: Paul proueth that the hole nature of man is so poysoned and so corrupte, yea & so dead concernyng godly lyuing or godly thinking, ẏ it is impossyble for her to kepe ẏ lawe in ẏ sight of God. ẏ is to say, to loue it, & of loue & lust to do it as naturally as a man eateth or drinketh, vntil she be quickened againe & healed thorow faith. And by iustifienge vnderstande none other thinge then to be reconciled to God & to be restored vnto his fauour, and to haue thy synnes forgeuen thee. As when I saye God iustifieth vs, vnderstand therby, that God for Christes sake, merites and deseruinges onely receaueth vs vnto his mercy, fauoure and grace, and forgeueth vs our sinnes. And when I saie Christe iustifieth vs, vnderstad therby that Christe hath onely redemed vs, bought & delivered vs out of the wrath of god and damnacion, and hath with his workes only, purchased vs ẏ mercy, fauor, & grace of God & ẏ forgeuenes of our sinnes. And when I saie that faith only iustifieth, vnderstand therby ẏ faith & trust in ẏ trueth of god & in ẏ mercy promised vs for Christes sake, & for his deseruing & workes only, doth quiet ẏ conscience & certifi her ẏ our sinnes be forgeuen & we in the fauor of god

Iustifienge.

Furthermore sett before thyne eyes Christes workes and thyne owne workes. Christes workes onelye iustifye thee, and make satisfaction for thy synne, and thine owne workes not: that is to saye, quieteth thy conscience, and make thee sure that thy synnes are forgeuen thee, and not thyne owne workes. For the promise of mercye is made thee, for Christes workes sake, and not for thyne owne workes sake. Wherfore seing god hath not promysed that thyne owne workes shal saue thee, therfore fayth in thyne owne workes can neuer quiet thy conscience nor certifye thee before God (when god commeth to iudge or to take a recouering) that thy synnes are forgeuen thee. Beyond al thys, myne owne workes can neuer satisfye the lawe or paye her that I owe her. For I owe the lawe to loue her with al myne herte, soule power and myght. Which thinge to paye I am neuer able whyle I am compassed with fleshe. No, I can not ones beginne to loue the lawe, except I be fyrst sure, by fayth that god loueth me, and forgeueth me. Finally, that we saye fayth onelye iustifieth ought to offende no man. For if thys be true, that Christ onely redemed vs, Christ onely bare oure synnes, made satisfaction for theym, and purchased vs the fauoure of God, then must it nedes be true, that the trust only in Christes deseruing and in the promises of god the father made vs for Christes sake, doth onelye quyet the conscience, and certifye hes that the synnes are forgeuen. And when they saye, a man must repent, forsake synne, and haue a purpose to synne no more, as nye as he can and loue the lawe of God. Ergo fayth onely iustifieth not, I answere, that and all lyke argumentes are nought, and lyke to this. I must repente and be sory, the Gospell muste be preached me, and I must beleue it or else I cannot be partaker of mercye which Christ hath deserued for me, Ergo Christe only iustifieth me not, or Christ only hath not made satisfaction for my synnes. As this is a naughtie argument, so is the other.

Now go to reader, and accordinge to the ordre of Paules writing, euen so do thou. First beholde thi selfe dilygentlye in the lawe of God, and se there thy iust dampnacion. Secondarelye turne thine eyes to Christ, and see there the exceadinge mercye of the moost kinde and louinge father. Thyrdly remembre that Christ made not this attonemēt that thou shouldest angre god again, neyther died he for thy synnes, that thou sholdest liue still in them, nether clensed he thee, that thou shouldeste returne, as a swine, vnto thyne olde podell agayne. but that thou shouldeste bee a newe creature and lyue a newe lyfe after the wyll of God, and not of the fleshe.

And be dyligent least thorow thyne owne negligence and vnthanckfulnes, thou lose this fauoure and mercye agayne.

Farewell.

The ende of the prologe to the Romaynes.

¶ The Epistel of the Apostle Saynct Paull to the Romayns.

¶ Paul declareth his loue towarde ye Romaines, sheweth what the Gospell is with ye frute therof, & rebuketh the beestlynes of the fleshe.

The fyrst Chapter.

Paull the seruaunte of Jesus Christ called to be an Apos-A tle, put a parte to preache ye Gospell of God, which he promysed afore by his Prophetes in ye holy scriptures ye make mencion of his sonne, the which was begotten of ye seed of Dauid, as pertayninge to ye fleshe: and declared to bee ye sonne of God, wt power of the Holy goost ye sanctifyeth, sence ye time that Jesus Christ our Lorde rose agayne from deathe, by whome wee haue receaued grace & Apostleshyp to bring all maner Heathen people vnto the obedyence of fayth, that is in his name: of ye which Heathen are ye a part also, which are Jesus Christes by voca-cion.
To all you of Rome beloued of God, & a* sayntes by callynge. b* Grace be wt you and peace from God oure father, & frõ the Lorde Jesus Christ.
Fyrst verely I thanke my God thorow B Jesus Christ, for you all, because you-re fayth is publisshed throughout all the worlde. For God is my witnes, whõ I serue wt my spirite in the Gospell of his sonne, that wt out ceasynge I make mencion of you al wayes i my prayers, besechinge that at one tyme or other, a prosperous iorney (by the will of God) myght fortune me, to come vnto you.
For I longe to see you, that I myghte bestowe among you some spyritual gyfte, to strenghte you with all: that is, yt I might haue consolacion to gether with you, through the commen fayth, which both ye and I haue.
I wolde that ye shulde knowe brethren, howe that I haue often tymes purposed to com vnto you (but haue be let hytherto) to haue som frute amonge you, as I haue amounge other of the Gentyles.
For I am detter both to the Grekes & to them which are no Grekes, vnto the learned and also vnto the vnlearned.
Lyke wyse, as moche as in me is I am redy to preach the Gospel to you of Rome also. For I am not asshamed of the gospel of Christ because it is the power of God vnto saluacyõ to al that beleue, namely to the Jew, and also to the Gen tyle. c* For by it ye ryghtewesnes which commeth of God/ is opened, from fayth to d* faythe. As it is written: the Juste shall lyue by fayth. C For the wrath of God apereth from heauen agaynst al vngodlynes, & vnryghtewesnes of men which withholde ye trueth in vnrighte wesnes: seyng/ what maye bee knowen of God, that same is manifeste among them. For God did shew it vnto them. So that hys inuisible thynges: that is to say, hys eternall power and godhead/ are vnderstande and sene, by the workes from the creacion of ye world. So that they are wyth oute excuse, in as moche, as when they knewe God, they glorified him not as God, nether were thankfull but were full of vanities in their imaginacions, and their folisshe hertes were blynded.
When they counted them selues wyse, they became foles and turned the glory of the immortall God, vnto the similitude of the ymage of mortal man, and of byrdes, and foure foted beastes, and of serpentes. Wherfore God lyke wyse gaue them vp vnto their hertes lustes, vnto vnclennes, to defyle their aw-ne bodyes betwene them selues: which tourned hys truthe vnto a lye, and wor shypped and serued the creatures more then the maker, which is blessed for euer. Amen. For this cause God gaue them vp vnto shamfull lustes. For eue their wemen dyd chaunge the naturall D vse vnto the vnnatural. And lyke wyse also the men lefte the natural vse of the woman, and brent in their lustes one to another. And mã wt mã wroght filthines, and receued in them selues the re-warde of their errour, as it was accor dynge.
And as it semed not good vnto them to be a knowen of god, euen so god deli uered them vp vnto a leawd mynde, yt they shuld do those thinges which were not comely, beinge full of all vnrighte ous doynge, of Fornicacion, wickednes, couetousnes, maliciousnes, full of enuie, morther, debate, disceyte, euell condicyoned, whisperers, backbyters, haters of god, doers of wrong, proude bosters, bringers vp of euell thynges, disobedient to father ād mother, wout vnderstādig, couenaūt breakers, vnlovig trucebrekers ꝫ mercyles. Which mē thogh they knew ꝧ rightwesnes of god how ꝧ they which comit such thiges are worthy of death, yet not onely do the sa me, but also haue * pleasure i them that do them.

The Notes

a * Saynctes by callyng is as much to saie, as called to be saynctes, called to holines and holy lyuige: for the scripture is acustomed to cal them that be a liue saintes, & it ought to be al one, to saye, a saynct and a Chrysten man or a Christian b * Grace be with you and peace. By grace, here vn derstand the fauour of god wher wt he freiye forgeueth synnes. By peace, the tranquylite of consciēce procedyng therof.

c * For by it the ryghtwesnes which cometh of god, is opened, that is by the preching of the gospel, the imputacyon of ryghtewesnes wherwith God reputeth and pronounceth vs rightwes freilye thorowe mercy, is euydently declared.

d * From fayth to fayth, that is from an vnperfect fayth to a perfect, from a weake fayth to a strōger, & from one batayle of fayeth to another, for as wee haue escaped one ieopardy thorow fayth, another inuadeth vs, thorow which we muste wade by the helpe of fayth also

* To haue pleasure in another mans synes is grea ter wyckednes then to synne thy selfe.

¶ He rebuketh the Iewes, which as touching sin-ne are lyke the heathen, yea worse then they.

¶ The .ii. Chapter.

A Therfore arte thou inexcusa ble O man, whosoeuer thou be that * iudgeste. For in ꝧ same wherin thou iudgeste another, thou condemnest thy selfe. For thou that iudgest doest e uen the same self thynges. But we are sure that the iudgment of god is accor dyng to trueth, against them which cōmyt such thinges.

Thinckest thou thys O thou man ꝧ iudgest them which do such thynges, & yet doest euen the very same, that thou shal escape ꝧ iudgmēt of God. Eyther dyspisest thou ꝧ ritches of his goodnes membrest not how ꝧ the kyndnes of god

But thou after thyne harde herte that cannot repent, heapest ꝧ to gether the treasure of wrath agaīst the dai of ve vnto them that are rebellious ād diso-bey the trueth, ād folowe iniquytie, shal come indignacion and wrath, tribulacion and angwyshe vpon the soule of euery man that doth euyll: of ꝧ Iewe fyrst, and also of the Gentyl. To euery B man that doth good shall come prayse, honoure, and peace, to the Iewe fyrst, and also to the Gentyl. For ther is no parcialite wt God. But whosoeuer hath synned with out lawe, shall perishe wt out law: And as many as haue sined vnder the law, shalbe iudged bi ꝧ lawe:

* For before God they are not ryghte-ous which heare the lawe; but the doers of the law shalbe iustified. For yf ꝧ Gentyles which haue no law, do of nature the thynges contayned in the lawe then they hauynge no lawe, are a lawe vnto them selues, which shew ꝧ dedes of the law writen in their hertes: while their conscience beare the witnesse vnto them and also their thoughtes, accu synge on another or excusynge, at the dai whē god shal iudge ꝧ secretes of mē by Iesus christ, accordig to my gospel.

Beholde, thou arte called a Iewe, and trustest in the lawe and reioysist in god, and knowest his will, and hast experience of good and bad, in that ꝧ art informed by the lawe: and belevest ꝧ circumcision verely auayleth, yf thou kepe the lawe. But yf thou breake the lawe, thy circumcision is made vncircumcision. Therfore yf the vncircumcised kepe the ryght thinges conteyned in ẏ lawe: shal not his vncircumcisiō be counted for circumcision? And shall not vncircumcision which is by nature (yf it kepe ẏ lawe) iudge the, whiche beynge vnder ẏ letter and circumcisiō, dost trāgresse the lawe? For hee is not a Jewe, which is a Jewe outwarde. Nether is that thinge circumcision which is outwarde in the flesshe. But hee is a Jewe which is hid within, & the circumcision of the herte is ẏ true circūcisiō, which is ẏ sprete & not iṅ ẏ letter. whose praise is not of men, but of God.

The Notes

a. To iudge, here (as in many other places) signyeth to condemne other and esteame thy selfe rightwes.

b. Which wyl rewarde euery man accordynge to his dedes. This saieng may no man so vnderstād, as though workes dyd iustify before God: for thē maketh he this whole Epistle false, which only laboureth to proue that our synnes are forgeuen frely through mercy, for Christes sake, and not for our deseruinges or workes. Know ye therfore that. S. Paul doth here ascribe iustifycatyō to workes, but describeth them that are rightwes, by the thing ẏ foloweth, that is by their fruites what they be. He wyl reward euery man &c, ẏ is to the rightwes wyll he geue lyfe, and to the vnrightwes payne.

c. For before God they are not righwes, &c, but the doares of the lawe shalbe iustified, that is, shal be pronounced iust and rightwes. This sentence is onely spoken to the rebuke of the Jewes, settynge no smal stoare by them selues in the behalfe of the law, which yet they kept not.

This thing layeth Paul to their charges, on thys wyse. It is not ynough for ẏ O thou Jewe to here the lawe only and to be a professour therof, & a lerner to it, but if thou wilt nedes be iustified & made rightwes in the syght of God by the lawe, as thou so greately crakest, then must thou kepe the lawe, not onely here it, now that doste thou not, but are gyltie of the breaking of it, and therfore must thou haue another waye to be com rightwes in ẏ syght of god, then by the keping of the lawe, which is, as this whole Epistle both after and before playnely proueth fayth, that fastly beleueth synnes to be forgeuen frely by Christ, not for our workes or deseruynges, no not when we haue done the best that we can. Luke. xvii.

And to this purpose doth. S. Ambrose wryting on this selfe same text expound Paul, sayeng, not they are rightwes which heare the lawe, but which beleue in Christe whome the lawe promised affyrmynge playnelye, that to beleue in hym, is to do the lawe.

¶ He sheweth what preferment the Jewes haue, & that both ẏ Jewes and Gentiles are vnder synne, & are iustifyed only by the grace of God in Christ.

¶ The. iii. Chapter.

What preferment then hath A the Jewe? other what auauntageth circumcision? Surely very moche. First vnto them was committed the worde of God. What then though some of them dyd not beleue? shal their vnbeleue make the promes of God without effecte? god forbid: Let god be true, ād all men lyars, as it is written: that ẏ myghtest be iustifyed in thy sayinge, and shuldest ouercome, when ẏ arte iudged.
Yf oure vnryghtewesnes make the rightwesnes of God more excellēt: what shall we saye? Is God vnrighteous which taketh vengaunce? I speake after ẏ maner of mē. God forbid. For how then shall God iudge the worlde? If the veritie of God appeare more excellent thorow my lye, vnto his prayse, why ā I hence forth iudged as a synner? and say not rather (as men euyll speake of vs, and as some affyrme that we saye) let vs do euil ẏ good maye come therof. Who- B se damnacyon is iuste.
What say we then? Are we better thē they? No, i no wyse. For we haue alredy proued how ẏ both Jewes & Gētils are al vnder sine, as it is wrettē there is non righteous no not one: ther is none ẏ vnderstandeth, there is none ẏ seketh after god they are al gone out of ẏ waye, they are al vnprofitable/ ther is none ẏ doeth good, no not one. Their throte is an opē sepulchre/ wyth their tonges they haue disceaued: the poyson of aspes is vnder their lyppes. Whose mouthes are full of cursynge and bytternes. Their fete are swyfte to shed bloud. Destruccyon and wretchednes are in their wayes.
And the way of peace they haue not knowen. There is no feare of God before their eyes.
Ye and we knowe that whatsoeuer the lawe sayth, he saith it to them which are vnder ẏ lawe. That al mouthes maie be stopped, and all the worlde be subdued to God because that by ẏ dedes of the lawe shall no flesshe be iustifyed in ẏ sight of God. For by the law cōmeth the knowledge of synne. C Now verely is the ryghtewesnes that cometh of God declared with out fulfyllinge of the lawe/ hauynge witnes yet of the lawe and of the Prophetes.

The

The ryghtewesnes no doute whiche is good before God, cometh by the fayth of Jesus Christ, unto all and upon all that beleue.

Ther is no dyfference: for all haue synned and lacke the praise that is of ualoure before God: but a * are iustified frely by his grace, through the redempcion that is in Christ Jesus, whom God hath made a seate of mercy thorow faith in his bloude, to shewe ÿ ryghtewesnes which before him is of ualoure, in ÿ he forgiueth the synes that are passed, which God dyd suffre to shewe at this tyme, the ryghtewesnes that is alowed of hi, that hee myght bee counted iust, and a iustifier of hi which beleueth ō Jesus. B

Where is thē thi reioysinge? It is excluded. By what lawe? bi the lawe of workes? Naye: but by ÿ lawe of fayth.

Therfore wee holde ÿ a man is iustifyed by fayth without the dedes of ÿ lawe. Is hee the God of the Jewes onlye? Is hee not also ÿ God of ÿ Gentiles? Yes, euen of the Gentiles also. For it is God only which iustifieth circūcision whiche is of fayth, and uncircūcisyō thorow fayth. Do wee thē destroie ÿ lawe thorow faythe? God forbid. But wee rather maynteyne the lawe.

a * Are iustifyed freely by his grace. This sayenge doeth. S. Ambrose expounde on this wise: they working nothing nor acquyting him any whit, are iustyfied by faith alone, by the gyft of god. Thys word, alone, (although many be therwith unwisely offended) is also euydentely expressed by. S. Paul hymselfe, in these wordes, frely wout the lawe, wout workes, it is a gyft and such lyke, which ÿ must marke, for they are alone w this forsaide exposicion of. S. Ambrose, by faith alone we are iustyfyed which sayenge signyfieth this much. Onely by the belefe wherw we beleue that the mercy of god graūted in Christes bloude doth saue us, are wee pronounced rightwes. This word alone excludeth workes, not that thou shouldest not do thē: for unto al good workes commaunded in the scripture art thou bounde and called to walke in them, and must earnestly studie and endeuoure thy self to leue none of them undone: but that thou shuldest in no condycion thincke, that thou art therby iustyfyed or made rightwes before God.

He declareth by the example of Abraham, ÿ faythe iustyfyeth, and not the lawe, nor the workes

The .iiii. Chapter.

A What shal we saye then, ÿ Abrahā our father as pertaynynge to the fleshe, dyd fynde? If Abraham were iustified by dedes, then hathe he wherin to reioyce: but not wyth God. For what sayth ÿ scripture? Abraham beleued God, and it was counted unto him for ryghtewesnes. To him ÿ worketh, is the reward not reckened of fauoure, but of duty. To him ÿ worketh not but beleueth on him that iustifieth the ungodly, is his fayth coūted for ryghtewesnes. Euen as Dauid descrybeth the blessedfulnes of the man unto whom God ascribeth ryghtewesnes wythout dedes. Blessed are they, whose unrightewsnes are forgeuen and whose synnes are couered. Blessed is that man to whom the Lorde imputeth not synne.

Came this blessednes then upon ÿ circūcised or upon the uncircumcised? B
We saye uerely how that fayth was rekened to Abraham for rightewesnes. How was it rekened? in the time of circumcisyon? or in the tyme before he was circumcised? Not in the tyme of circumcision: but when he was yet uncircumcised. And he receaued the signe of circūcysyon, as a seale of the ryghtewesnes which is by faith, which fayth he had yet beynge uncircumcised: that he shulde be the father of all them that beleue, though they be not circumcised, ÿ rightewesnes myght be imputed to them alse: and that he myght be the father of ÿ circumcised, not because they are circūcised only: but because they walke also in the steppes of that fayth that was in oure father Abraham before the tyme of circumcisyon.

For the promes that he shuld be the heyre of the worlde, was not geuen to Abraham or to hys seed thorow the lawe: but thorow the ryghtewesnes which cometh of fayth. For yf they which are of the lawe, be heyres, then is fayth but uaine, and the promes of none effecte. Because the lawe causeth wrath. For where no law is, there is no transgressyon. a * Therfore by fayth is ÿ inheritaunce geuen ÿ it might com of fauoure: & ÿ promes myght be sure to al ÿ seed. Not to thē only which ar of ÿ law: C but also to them which are of the faith of Abrahā, which is ÿ father of us all. As it is wrytten: I haue made the a father to many nacions, euen before God whi-whome thou hast beleued, which quyckeneth the deed, ãd calleth those thiges which be not, as though they were.

D Which Abraham contrary to hope, beleued in hope, that he shuld be the father of many nacyons, accordynge to ẏ which was spoken: So shal thi sede be.
And he faynted not i ẏ fayth, nor yet cõsydered his owne body which was now dead, euen when he was al most an hũ-dreth yeare old: nether yet ẏ Sara was past chylde berynge. He stakered not at the promes of God thorowe vnbelefe: but was made stronge in the fayth, and gaue honoure to GOD full certyfyed, that what he had promysed, that he was able to make good. And therfore was it rekened to hym for ryghtewesnes.

It is not wrytten for hym onelye, ẏ it was rekened to him for righte wesnes but also for vs, to whom it shalbe coũted for ryghtewesnes, so we beleue on hym that raysed vp Jesus oure Lorde from death: whych was delyuered for oure synnes, & rose agayne for to iusty-fye vs.

a* Therfore by fayth. &c. that ẏ promes might be sure. that is therfore are ye pronoũced righteous by fayth (by whiche vnderstande euen the mercye of God, receaued by faith, that the conscience might be surely certified of the wil of God, and of the promises of the gospel that is of remission of sinnes, of reconsiliacion or reputacion of righteousnes, ãd of the gyft of euerlasting life, that these thinges shall surely be performed, which were not possyble yf the promes shulde depende or hange on oure workes. For then shulde the conscience be vnsure doutinge whether we had workes ynowghe, whether God wolde be merciful, whether the law which we knowe we haue transgressed; wolde condemne vs &c.

Now when doutefulnes remayneth in vs there remayneth also fearfulnes, by which cometh desperacion and deeth: for so longe as the lawe sheweth vs ẏ anger of God, feare & deeth cã not be ouercõe. Therfore must we nedes stickefastly to fayth in the merciful promises of God surely certifieth ẏ they shalbe fulfilled al though our workes haue not deserued ẏ fulfillinges of them.

The power of fayth, hope & loue: & how death raigned from Adã vnto Christ, by whome onely we haue forgeuenesse of sinnes.

The .v. Chapter.

A Because therfore that we are iustifyed by faith, a* we are at peace with God thorow our Lord Jesus Christ: by whome we haue a waye in thorowe fayth, vnto thys grace wherin we stand and reioyce in hope of ẏ praise that shalbe geuen of god. Nether do we so onely: but also we reioyce in the trybulacyon. For we know that trybulacy on bringeth pacience / pacyẽce bryngeth experyence, experyence bryngeth hope.
And b* hope maketh not ashamed for ẏ loue of God is sheed abrode in our her-tes by the holy goost, whyche is geuen vnto vs.

For when we were yet weake, accor dynge to the tyme: Christe dyed for vs whych were vngodly. Yet scace wil ani man dye for a ryghtwes man. Peraduẽ ture for a good manne durste a manne dye. * But god setteth oute hys B loue ẏ he hath to vs, seynge ẏ while we were yet sinners, Christ died for vs.
Muche more then now (seynge we are iustyfyed in hys bloude) shal we be saued from wrath thorow hym.
For yf when we were enemies, we were recõciled to God by ẏ death of his sonne: moche more, seynge wee are recõcyled, wee shalbe preserued by his life.
Not only so, but wee also ioye in God by ẏ meanes of our Lorde Jesus Chri-ste, by whom wee haue receaued reconciliation. Wherfore as by one mã sinne entred ito the worlde / & deeth by ẏ mea C nes of sinne. And so deeth went ouer all men, in so muche ẏ all men sinned. For euen vnto the tyme of the lawe was sine in ẏ worlde / but synne was not regarded, as longe as ther was no lawe: ne uertheless deeth raygned from Adã to Moyses, euen ouer them also ẏ sined not, w lyke transgression as did Adam: which is the similytude of him that is to come. But the gyfte is not lyke as ẏ sine. For yf thorow the sine of one, ma ny bee deed: moche more plenteous vp on many was ẏ grace of God and gyfte by grace whiche grace was geuen by one man Jesus Christ.
And ẏ gyft is not ouer one sine, as deth cã thorow one sine of one ẏ sined. For dãnacion came of one sine vnto cõdẽna ciõ: but ẏ gift came to iustify frõ many synnes. For yf by the sinne of one, deeth raygned by the meanes of one: moche more shall they which receue aboundãce of grace and of the gifte of ryghtewes nes / raigne in lyfe by the meanes of one (ẏ is to saie) Jesus Christ.

Lyke wise then as by the synne of one condemnacion came on all men: euē so by the iustifyinge of one commeth the ryghtewesnes that bryngeth lyfe vpon al mē. For as by one mannes dysobedience many became synners: so by ÿ obediēce of on shal many be made ryghte⁹. But the * lawe, in the meane tyme entred in, that synne shoulde encrease. Neuertheles where aboundance of sinne was, there was more plenteousnesse of grace. That as sin had rayned vnto death, euen so might grace raygne thorow ryghtewesnes, vnto eternall lyfe, by the helpe of Jesu Christ.

a * To be at peace wyth god is non other thing then to haue trāquillite and rest in oure hertes toward god knowing asuredlye that we be accepted of him and do please him, which thing we finde by fayth onely in that it receaueth forgeuenes of synnes, & geuenes of lyfe euerlasting by mercy obtaynede at Christes bloude. Oure awne workes cā bryng no soch trāquilite, because they be vnsure and engender doubt, of which foloweth desperacion and of it dampnacion. * b We are not ashamed of our hope for we are sure by the death of Christ that god loueth vs & wyll bringe oure hope to passe.

Adās disobedience damned vs al, yer we oure selues wrought euel. And Christes obedience saueth vs al yer we our selues, worke any good.

The lawe encreaseth synne and maketh our nature more gredy to do euel because ÿ law ministre the no power nor lust to that she biddeth, or to refraine from that she forbiddeth. Gala. iii. d

¶ For so much as we be deliuered thorow christ frō synne, we must facion our selues to lyue as the seruauntes of god, and not after our owne lustes. The onlyke rewarde of ryghtewesnes & synne.

¶ The. vi. Chapter.

A What shal we say then? Shal we contynue in sinne, ÿ ther maye be aboūdaūce of gra ce? God forbid: How shal we that are deade as touchyng synne, lyue any lenger therin? *
Remembre ye not that al we which are baptised in ÿ name of Jesu Christe are baptised to dye wyth him? We are bury-ed wyth him by baptime, for to dye ÿ lyke wise as Christ was raised vp frō deeth by the glory of the father, euen we so also shulde walke in a newe life. For if we be graft in death like vnto hym: euē so must we be in the resurreccion. That we must remembre that our olde mā is crucified wyth him also, that the bodye of synne might vtterly be destroied, ÿ hence forth we shoulde not be seruauntes of B synne. For he ÿ is dead, is iustifyed frō sinne. Wherfore yf we be ded wyth Christ, we beleue that we shal liue wyth hi: remēbring ÿ Christ once raised frō death dyeth no more, deth hath nomore power ouer hi: for as touchig ÿ he died, he died cōcerning sine, once. And as touchig ÿ he liueth, he liueth vnto god. Lyke wise imagē ye also, that ye are a * dead concernyng sinne, but are aliue vnto god thorow Jesus Christe oure Lorde. b Let not sinne raigne therfore in your mortal bodies, that ye shuld therunto obey in the lustes of it. Nether geue ye youre menbres as instrumentes of vnrightewesnes vnto synne: but geue your selues vnto God as they that are a lyue from deth. And geue your members as instrumentes of ryghtewesnes vnto god, let not sinne haue power ouer you. For ye are not vnder the lawe/ but vnder grace. What then? Shall we synne, be cause we are not vnder ÿ lawe: but vnder grace? God forbyd. * Remember ye C not how that to whō soeuer ye commyt your selues as seruauntes to obei: his seruantes ye are to whō ye obeye: whether it be of synne vnto death, or of obedience vnto ryghtewesnes? God be thanked, that though ye were once the seruauntes of synne, ye haue yet obeyed wyth herte vnto the forme of doctrine where vnto ye were delyuered. Ye are thē made fre from synne, and are become the seruauntes of ryghtewesnes. k

I will speake grosly because of the infirmitie of youre fleshe. As ye haue geuen youre menbers seruauntes to vnclenes and to iniquitie from iniquitye vnto iniquitye: euen so nowe geue your members seruantes vnto ryghtewesnes, that ye maye be sanctifyed. For when ye were the seruauntes of synne/ye wer not vnder ryghtewesnes. What D frute had ye thē in those thinges, wherof yee are now asshamed. For the ende of those thinges is death. But now are ye deliuered frō synne, & made ÿ seruaūtes of God, & haue youre frute that ye shuld be sanctified, & the ende euerlastinge life. For the rewarde of synne is death: but eternall * life is the gifte of God, thorow Jesus Christ our Lord a * To dye vnto synne is, not to obey the desires and concupiscences of synne.

Eternal lyfe is the deseruynge of Christ.
¶ Christ hath delyuered vs from the lawe and death. Paul sheweth what the fleshe and outwarde man is, and calleth it the lawe of the membres.

The .vii. Chapter.

Remembre ye not brethren (I A speake to them yt know ye lawe) how yt ye law hath power ouer a mã as long as it endureth: For the woman which is in subiection to a man, is bounde by ye lawe to the man, as long as he lyueth. If the man be dead, she is lowsed from the lawe of the man. So then yf whyle the man lyueth she couple her selfe wt an other man, she shalbe counted a wedlocke breaker. But if the man be deed, she is fre from the lawe: so that, she is no wedlock breaker, though she couple her selfe with an other man.
B Euen so ye my brethren, a are dead concernyng the lawe by the body of Christ, that ye shoulde be coupled to an other (I meane to hym that is rysen agayne from death) that we should bring forth frute vnto god. For when we were in ye fleshe, the lustes of sinne which were stered vp by ye lawe, raigned in our mẽbres, to bryng forth frute vnto death. But now are we delyuered from the lawe & dead frõ yt wher vnto we wer i bõdage yt we should serue in a new conuersacion of the spyrete, and not in the old conuersacion of the letter.
C What shal we saye then? is the lawe sinne? God forbid: but I knewe not what sine ment but by ye lawe. For I had not knowne what lust had meant, excepte ye lawe had saide, * yu shalt not lust. But sinne toke an occasiõ by ye meanes of ye cõmaũdement & wrought in me al maner of concupiscẽce For verely wtout ye lawe, sinne was dead. I once liued wtout law. But whẽ ye cõmaũdemẽt came sinne reuiued, & I was deed. And ye very same cõmaũdemẽt which was ordened vnto lyfe, was foũde to be vnto me an occasion of death. For synne toke occasyon by the meanes of ye cõmaundemẽt, & so disceaued me, & by ye selfcõmaũdment slewe me. Wherfore ye lawe is holy, & ye cõmaũdement holy, iust ãd good. Was yt the which is good, made death vnto me? God forbid. Naye sinne was death vnto me, yt it might appere, how yt sine by ye meanes of yt whych is good, had wroghte death i me: yt sinne which is vnder ye cõmaũd mẽt myght be out of measure sinful. For we know yt ye lawe is spiritual: but I ã carnal solde vnder sin, because I wot not what I do.
For what I wolde, that do I not: but what I hate, that do I. If I do nowe that which I wold not, I graunte, to the lawe that it is good. So thẽ now it is not I that do it, but synne that dwelleth i me. For I know, that in me (that is to saye in my flesh) dwelleth no good thing. To wyl is present with me: but I fynde no meanes to performe that which is good. For I do not that good thinge, whych I wolde, but that euill do I, which I wolde not. Finally yf I do that I wolde not, then is it not I yt do it, but sinne that dwelleth in me doth it. I fynde then by the lawe, that when I wolde do good / euell is present with me. I delyte in the lawe of god, concernyng the inner man. But I se an other lawe in my mẽbres rebelling agaynste the lawe of my minde, and subduing me vn to the lawe of Sinne which is in my membres . O wretched man yt I am who shal delyuer me from this body of deathe? I thanke god thorow Jesus Christ oure lord. So then I my self in my mynde serue the lawe of god, and in my fleshe the lawe of synne.

The Notes.

a. Are deed concernyng the lawe. To be deed concernynge the lawe is to be made free from the lawe and from the burthen therof, and to receaue the spyryte by which we may do after ye law. And the same is to be delyuered from the lawe of deth.
To be solde vnder synne, is to be made a bondmane to the wyll of Sinne onely.

¶ The lawe of the spirite geueth lyfe. The spirit of God maketh vs good chylderen and heyres wt Christ The aboundant loue of god cannot be separated.

The viii. Chapter. ✠

There is then no dampnacion A to them which are in Chryste Jesu, whych walke not after the flesh: but after the spirite.
For the lawe of the spiryte,

The .ix. Chapter.

A I Saye the truth in Christ, & lye not, in that wherof my conscyence beareth me wytnes in the holy gost, that I haue gret heuynes and continual soro-we in my herte. For I haue wysshed mi selfe to be cursed from Chryste, for my brethren ad my kynsmen as pertayninge to the fleshe, which are the Israelites. To whome pertaineth the Adopcion, and the glorie, and the couenauntes and the lawe that was geuen, and ÿ seruice of God and the promyses: whose also are the fathers and they of who-me (as concernynge the fleshe) Christe came, which is God ouer al thinges blessed for euer: Amen.
I speake not these thiges as though the wordes of god had take non effect. For they are not al Israelites which came of Israel: nether are they al childre straighte waye because they are the seede of B Abraham. But in Isaac shall thy seed be called: that is to saye, they which are the children of the fleshe, are not ÿ children of God. But the childre of promes are counted ÿ seede. For this is a worde of promes, aboute this time will I come, and Sara shall haue a sonne.
Nether was it so wt her onely: but also when Rebecca was wt childe by one, I meane by our father Isaac, yer the children were borne, when they had nether done good nether bad: that the purpose of God which is by election, myghte stande, it was sayde vnto her, not bi ÿ reason of workes, but by grace of the caller: the elder shall serue the yonger.
As it is wrytten: Jacob haue I loued, but Esau haue I hated.

What shall we saye then? is there anye vnrighteousnes wt God? God forbyd.
For he saith to Moses: I wil shew mercy to whom I shewe mercy: & wil haue compassion on whõ I haue compassiõ.
So lieth it not then in a mãs wil or rũnyng, but in the mercy of God. For the scripture sayeth vnto Pharao euen for this same plesure haue I stered the vp, to shewe my power on thee, ãd that my name might be declared thorow out all C the world. So hath he mercy on whom he wyll, and whome he wyll, he maketh herde herted.
Thou wilt saie then vnto me: why then blameth he vs yet? For who cã resist his wil? But O man, what art thou which disputest wt * God? Shal ÿ worke saye to the workeman: why haste ÿ made me on this fashion? Hath not the potter power ouer the claye, euen of the same lompe to make one vessell vnto honoure, and another to dishonoure?
Euen so, God willig to shew his wrath and to make his power knowẽ, suffred with long pacience ÿ vessels of wrath, ordeined to damnacion, that he mighte declare ÿ riches of his glori on ÿ vessels of mercy, whiche he had prepared vnto glory: that is to saie, vs whiche he cau-led not of the Jewes only, but also of ÿ gentiles. As he saieth in Osee: I wyll call theym my people: and her beloued.
And it shal come to passe in the place where it was said vnto them, ye are not mi people: that ther shalbe called ÿ children of the lyuing god.
But Esaias crieth concernig Israel, thoughe the nombre of the chyldren of Israel be as the sonde of ÿ sea, yet shal but a remnaunt be saued. He fynyssheth D the worlde vtterly, and maketh it shorte in righteusnes. For a short word wyll God make on erth. And as Esaias said before: excepte the lorde of Saboth had lefte vs seede, we had bene made as so-doma, ãd had bene lykned to Gomor-ra.
What shal we saye then? We saye ÿ the gentyles which folowed not righte-wesnes haue ouertakẽ rightewesnes: I meane the rightewesnes which cometh of fayth. But Israel which folowed ÿ lawe of ryghtewesnes, coulde not at-tayne vnto the lawe of ryghtwesnes. And wherfore? Because the soughte it not by fayth: but as it were by the workes of the law. For they haue stumbled at the stumbling stone. As it is written: Beholde I put in Sion a stombling stone, and a rocke which shal make me faule. And none that beleue on hi shal be ashamed.

¶ The vnfaythfulnes of the Jewes. Two maner of ryghtwousnes.

The x. Chapter.

Brethren, my hertes desyre & praier to god for Israel is, that they myght be saued. For I A beare them recorde y they haue a feruent mid to godwarde but not according to knowledg. For they are ignoraunt of the rightwesnes which is alowed before God, ad go a boute to stablish their owne rightwesnes, and therfore, are not obedyent vnto the righewesnes which is of valewe before god. For a Christe is the ende of the lawe, to iustifie al that beleue.

Moses descrybeth the rightwesnes which cometh of the lawe, how that the man which doth the thynges of y lawe, shal liue there in. But the rightwesnes which cometh of faith, speaketh on this wyse. Saye not in thine hert, who shall ascende into heauen (y is nothynge els then to fetche Chryst downe) other who B shal ascende into the depe (y is nothig els but to fetch vp Christe from death) But what saith y scripture? The word is nye thee, euen in thy mouthe and in thyne herte?

This word is the worde of faith which we preache. For if thou shalte knowledge with thy mouth y Jesus is y Lorde/and shalte beleue with thine hert that God raysed him vp from death y shalte be safe. For the beleke of y herte iustifieth, and to knowledg with y mouth maketh a man safe. For y scripture sayeth: whosoeuer beleueth on him shalnot be ashamed.

There is no dyfference betwene the Jewes and the Gentiles: For one is Lord ouer all which is ryche vnto all y call on him. For whosoeuer shall call on the name of the Lorde, shal be safe. But how shal they cal on hi who they beleued not? how shal they beleue on him of whom they haue not herde? how shal they heare with out a preacher? And howe shal they preache b except they be sent?
As it is written: how beautyfull are y C fete of them which bringe glad tydinges of peace, and bringe glade tydynges of good things. But they haue not alobeyed to the Gospel. For Esaias sayth Lorde who shall beleue oure sayinges? So then fayth cometh by the worde of God. But I aske: haue they not herde? No doute, their soude wet out ito all lades, and their wordes i to the endes of the worlde.

But I demaunde whether Israell dyd knowe or not? First Moyses sayth: I will prouoke you to enuy, by them that are no people and by a foolisshe natio I will anger you. Esaias after y, is bolde and sayth: I am foude of the y sought me not: ad haue appered to the y asked not after me And agaynst Israel he sayth: al daye long haue I stretched forth my handes vnto a people y beleueth not, but speaketh agaynst mee.

The Notes

a Christ is the ende of the lawe, that is, Christ is y fulfilling of the lawe: so that who so hathe him & beleueth y he with shedyng of hys bloud hath washed awaye synnes and ther wyth ouer come death and hell, and obtayned the fauour of hys father for al that thus beleue, is counted ryghtewes although he do not in deade satisfye the lawe.

a Though fayth iustifye from synne and though he Christ deserueth the rewarde promysed yet ys that promys made on the condycyo y we embrace Chrystes doctryne and confesse hym wyth wordes & dede So that we are instructed to do good workes, ad in them to walke to the saluacion promysed.

b Except they be sent, y is, except the word be geuen them of god: Except they be sent: ye wil aske of whom? Verely of him which is the owner of y gospell, that is God. Of hym be they sent, which preache Christ truely without the desire of vaine glory or gaynes. Of the same maner doth Christ proue y he is sent of hys father: because he spake to the glory of hys father, not of himselfe. John vii. But soch as vnder the pretence of preaching the Gospel preache mens tradytions wherby they seke the praise of them selues, are false Apostles, and sent of Antychrist not of Christ.

¶ All the Jewes are not caste away, therfore paule warneth the gentyles that be called not to be hygh minded, nor to despise the Jewes. For the iudgementes of god are depe and secrete.

The xi. Chapter.

A I Saye then: hath God caste away his people? God forbyd. For euen I verely am an Israelite, of the seade of Abraham, and of the trybe of Beniamin. God hath not cast away his people whiche he knewe before. Ey-ther wot ye not what the scripture saith by the mouth of Helias how he maketh intercession to God against Israel, saying? * Lorde they haue kylled thy prophetes, and dygged downe thyne aulters: and I am lefte onely and they seke my lyfe. But what saith the answere of God to hym agayne? I haue reserued vnto me vii. thousand men whych haue not bowed the knee to Baall. Euen so is there a remnaunt left thorow the election of grace. If it be of * grace, then is it not of workes. For then were grace no more grace. If it be of workes the is it no more grace. For then were deseruing no lenger deseruing. What then? Israel hath not obtayned, that he soght. No but yet the electiō hath obteined it. The renaunt are blynded, accordinge as it is written. * God hath geuen them the spi-rite of vnquietnes: eyes that they shold not se, and eares that they shoulde not heare vnto thys daye, * And Dauid sayeth: Let theyr table be made a snare to take them wyth all, and an occasion to faule / and a rewarde vnto them. Let theyr eyes be blynded that they se not, & euer * bowe downe their backes.
B I say then: haue they therfor stombled that they shoulde, but faule onely? God forbid, but thrō w theyr faule is salua-cion happened vnto the gentiles, for to prouoke them w all. Wherfore if the faull of them be the riches of the world & the minishinge of them, the ritches of the gentyles: How much more shoulde it be so / if they all beleued. I speake to you gentiles, in as muche as I am the Apostle of the gentyles, I wyll magni-fye myne office, that I might prouoke them whych are my flesh: & might saue some of them. For if the casting awaye of thē be the reconcilinge of the worlde: what shall the receauinge of them bee, but lyfe again frō death? For yf one peace be holy the whole hepe is holy. And yf the rote be holy, the braunches are holy also Though some of the braunches be broken of, and thou beynge a wyld olyue tree, art grafte in amonge them, and made partaker of the rote and fatnes of the oliue tree, bost not thy selfe agaynst the braunches. For yf thou bost thy selfe, remember that thou bearest not the rote / but the rote thee. Thou wilte saye then: the braūches are broken of, that I myght be grafte in. Thou sayst wel: because of vnbeleue theye are broken of, and thou standest stedfast in fayth. C Be not hye mynded, but feare seynge that God spared not the naturall braunches, lest haply he also spare not the.
Beholde the kindnes and rigorousnes of God: on them whych fell, rigoro-usnes: but towardes the, kyndnes: yf thou continu in his kyndnes: Or els thou shalt be hewen of, and they yf they byde not styll in vnbeleue shalbe graffed in agayne. For God is of power to graffe them in agayne. For yf thou wast cut out of a naturall wilde olyue tree, & wast graffed contrarye to nature in a true olyue tree: how moche more shall the naturall braunches be graffed in their awne olyue tree agayne.
I wolde not that this secrete shul-de be hyd from you my brethren (lest ye shuld be wyse in youre awne conseytes ) that partli blindnes is happened i Israel, vntyll the fulnes of the gentyles be come in: and so all Israel shalbe saued.
As it is written: * There shal come out of Sion he that doth delyuer / and shal turne awaye the vngodlynes of Iacob.
And this is my couenaūt vnto thē, when I shall take awaye their synnes. As cōcerning the gospell they are enemyes for youre sakes: but as touchinge the eleccion they are loued for the fathers sakes.
For verely the gyftes and callin- D ge of God are soche, that it cannot repent him of thē: for loke, as ye in tyme passed haue not beleued god, yet haue now obtayned mercy thorow their vnbelefe: euen so now haue they not beleued the mercy whych is happened vnto you, that they also may obtaine mercy. God hath wrappedde all nacyons in vnbeleue, that he myght haue mercye on all.
O the depnes of the aboundaunt wysdome and knowledge of God: how vnsercheable are his iudgmentes, and his ways past fīdig out: for who hathe knowen the

the mynde of the Lorde? Or who was hys counseller? other who hath geuen vnto him fyrst, that he might be recompenced againe? For of him, and thorow him, and for him are al thinges. To him be glorye for euer: Amen.

A I Beseche you therfore Brethern, by the mercyfulnes of God, that ye make your bodies a quicke Sacrifice, holye and acceptable vnto God: which is youre resonable seruing of God, and fashion not your selues lyke vnto this world: but be ye chaunged in youre shape/by the renuing of youre wittes, that ye maye fele, what thinge ÿ good, that acceptable/ and perfecte wil of god is. LEt euery soule submit him selfe vnto that auctorytie of the hyer powers. For there is no power but of god. A The powers ÿ be, are ordeined of God. Who soeuer therfore resisteth power/resisteth the ordinaunce of God. And they that resiste, shal receaue to them selfe damnacyon. For rulers are not to be feared for good workes, but for euyll. Wilt thou be without feare of the power? Do wel then: and so shalte thou be praysed of the same. For he is the minister of God, for thy welth. But and yf thou do euyll, then feare: for he beareth not a swearde for nought, but is the minister of God, to take vengeaunce on them, that do euyl. The god of hope fil you wyth all ioye and peace in beleuinge: ÿ ye maye be ryche in hope thorowe the power of the holy gooste. +

I my selfe am full certified of you C my brethren, that ye your selues are ful of goodnes and fylled wyth all knowledge, and are able to exhorte one another. Neuertheles brethren I haue somwhat boldly wrytten vnto you, as one that putteth you in remembraunce, thorow the grace that is geuen me of God, that I shulde bee the mynyster of Jesu Christ among the Gentiles, & shuld minister the glad tydinges of God, that ÿ gentyles myght be an acceptable offering sanctyfyed by the holy gost. I haue therefore where of I maye reioyse in Christ Jesu/ i those thīges which pertaine to god. For I dare not speake of eny of those thynges which Christ hath not wroght by me, to make the gentyles obe D diente, with worde and dede, in myghty sygnes and wonders, by the power of ÿ spirite of god: so that from Jerusalem and the coastes round about vnto Illyricum, I haue fylled all countres wyth the glad tydynges of Christ.

So haue I enforsed my selfe to preache the gospell, not where Christe was named, lest I shuld haue bylt on another mannes foundacyon: but as it is wrytten. To whome he was not spoken of, they shall se, and they that heare not, shall vnderstande. For thys cause I haue bene ofte let to come vnto you: but now seyng I haue no more to do in these countreis, and also haue ben desyrous manye yeares to come vnto you, when I shal take my iourneye into Spayne, E I wyll come to you. I trust to se you in my iorney, and to be broght on my way thytherwarde by you, after that I haue somwhat enioyed you.

Now go I vnto Ierusalem, ⁊ minister vnto the sayncres. For it hath pleased them of Macedonia and Achaia to ma ke a certayne distribucion vpō ẏ poore a * sayncres which are at Ierusalem. It hath pleased them verely/and their det ters are they. For yf ẏ Gentiles be made partakers of their spirituall thiges, their dutye is to mynyster vnto theym in carnall thinges. When I haue per-fourmed this, and haue brought them this frute sealed. I wil come backe agayne by you into Spayne. And I ā B sure when I come, that I shal come wt aboūdaūce of the blessinge of ẏ Gospel of Christe. I beseche you brethrē for our Lord Iesus Christes sake, and for ẏ loue of ẏ sprete, that yee helpe me in my busynes wt youre prayers to God for me, that I maye be delyuered from them which beleue not in Iesus, and ẏ this my seruice, which I haue to Ieru pysed crosse of God.

maye be blamelesse in the daye of oure B Lord Jesus Christ. ✝ For God is fayth full by whome ye are called unto the felowship of his sonne Jesus Christ oure Lorde. I beseche you brethren in the name of oure Lord Jesus Christ/ that ye all speake one thynge and that there be no dissencion amounge you: but be ye knyt to gether in one mynde a in one me-anynge: It is shewed unto me (my bretheren) of you, by them that are of ÿ house of Cloe, that ther is stryfe amonge you.
And this is it that I meane: how that comenlye amonge you, one saith: I hol de of Paule: another I holde of Apollo, the thyrd I holde of Cephas: the fourth I holde of Christ. Is Christ devided? was Paul crucified for you? ether were ye baptised in the name of Paul?
I thanke God that I christened none of you, but Crispus & Gayus, lest eny shulde saye that I had baptised in my-ne awne name. I baptised also the hou- C se of Stephana. Forthermore knowe I not whether I baptised eny man or no.
For Christ sent me not to baptyse, but to preache the Gospell, not with wysdom of wordes, lest the crosse of Christ shulde have bene made of none effecte.
For the preaching of the crosse is to the that perisshe folishnes, but unto us which are saved it is the power of god.
For it is wrytten: I wyll destroye the wysdome of the wyse, and wyl cast awaye the understandynge of the prudente.
Where is the wyse? Where is the scribe? Where is the searcher of this worl-de? Hath not God made the wysdome of this worlde folishnes?
For when the worlde thorow ÿ wysdome knew not God, in the wysdome of God: it pleased god thorow folishnes of preachynge to save thē that beleve.
For the Jewes requyre a sygne, and the Grekes seke after wysdome. But we D preach Christ crucified, unto the Jew-es an occasion of falling, and unto the Grekes folyshnes: but unto them whiche are called bothe of the Jewes, and ✝ Grekes, we preach Christ the power of God and the wisdome of god. For the folishnes of god is wiser then men: and the weaknes of God is stronger then men. Brethren loke on youre cal-linge how that not many wyse men after the flesh, not many myghtie, not ma ny of hye degree are called: But god hath chosen the folyshe thynges of the worlde, to confounde the wyse.

And God hath chosen the weake thin-ges of the worlde, to confound thinges which are myghtie. And vyle thinges of the world, and thinges which are despised, hath god chosen, ye and thinges of no reputacion, for to bring to naught thinges of Reputacion, that no Fleshe shoulde reioyce in his presence. And vn to hym pertayne ye, in Chryste Jesus, which of god is made vnto vs wisdom, and also rightuousnes, and sanctifying and redemption. That accordinge as it is written: he which b* reioyceth, shuld reioyce in the Lorde.

The Notes.

a* The Grekes signify some tyme theyr owne nacion onelye, as in the Actes, vi, a. Some tyme all the Gentiles, as here, and Roma. i, b. b* He reioyseth in the lorde whych knoweth certely that god willeth hym good, and fauoreth hym, so that that thinge whyche he dothe pleaseth god: and that which he doth not as he should do, is forgeuen hym, and not imputed vnto hym. Jeremy. vi, g and Roman. viii, c ¶ It is not eloquence, & glorious paynted wordes of worldly wisdome, that can edyfye & conuert soules vnto Christ, but the playne wordes of the scripture, for they make mencion of hym, and hys crosse.

¶ The .ii. Chapter.

B AND I brethren when I came to you, came not in glo-riousnesse of wordes or so wisdom, shewing vnto you the testimony of god. Neyther shewed I my selfe that I knewe any thig among you, saue Jesus Christ, euen the same that was crucified. And I was amonge you in wekenes, and in feare, and in muche tremblinge. And my wordes and my preachinge was not wt entisinge wordes of mans wisdom: but in shewinge of the spirite and of power, that your faithe shulde not stand in the wysdomme of men: but in the power of God.

That we speake of, is wysdom amon-ge them that are perfect: not the wysdo of this world, nether of ẏ rulers of thys world (which go to nought) but we speke the wysdome of God whiche is in secrete and lyeth hyd, whiche God ordeyned before the worlde vnto oure glorye: D which wisdo none of ẏ rulers of ẏ worl-de knewe. For had they knowen it, they wold not haue crucified the lord of glory But as it is written: The eye hath not sene, and the eare hath not heard, nether haue entred into the herte of manne, the things which god hath prepared for the that loue hym.

But God hath opened them vnto C vs by his sprete. For the sprete sear-cheth al thynges, ye the bottome of God-des secretes. For what man knoweth ẏ thinges of a man: saue ẏ sprete of a ma which is wt in him. Euen so the thinges of God knoweth no ma, but ẏ sprete of god: & we haue not receued the sprete of ẏ world: but the sprete which cometh of God, for to knowe the thynges ẏ are geuen to vs of god, which thynges also we speake, not in the connynge wor-des of mannes wysdome, but with the connynge wordes of the holy gost, makyng spirituall comparysons of spiritu all thynges. For the naturall man perceaueth not the thinges of the sprete of God. For they are but folishnes vnto hi nether can he perceaue them, because he is spiritually examined. But he that is Esay. xl, d spirituall, discusseth all thinges: yet he him selfe is iudged of no ma. For who knoweth the mynde of the Lord, o- Roman. xi, d ther who shal informe hi? But we vnderstande the mynde of Christ.

The Notes

Perfect are they that vnderstande the lawe, fayth and workes truly, and professe them.
The spirite vnderstandeth godly thinges. The natural man that is not renued in Christ ca not perceaue the thynges of God.
¶ Paul rebuketh the sectes and authors therof. Christe is the foundacyon of hys church. No man ought to reioyce in men, but in God.

The .iii. Chapter

AND I could not speake vnto you brethren as vnto spyritual: but as vnto car-nall, euen as it were vnto A babes i Christ. I gaue you mylke to drinke and not meate. For ye then were not strong, no nether yet are.
For ye are yet carnall. As longe verely as ther is amonge you enuyenge, stryfe and dissencyon: are ye not carnall, and walcke after ẏ maner of men? As lõge as one sayth, I holde of Paull, & another I am of Apollo, are ye not carnal?
What is Paul? what thynge is Apol lo? Only mynisters are they by whome ye beleued, euen as the Lord gaue eue-ry ma grace. I haue planted, Apollo watred: but God gaue the encrece. So the, nether is he that planteth eny thinge, nether he that watreth, but god ẏ gaue the encreace. He that planteth and he ŷ watereth, are nether better thē ŷ other.

Every man yet shal receaue his reward C accordyng to his laboures. We are Goddes labourers, ye are goddes husbandry, ye are goddes building. Accordynge to the grace of god geuen vnto me, as a wyse buylder haue I laid foūdacion. And another buylt theron: But let euery mā take hede how he buildeth vpon. For other foundacion can no mā laye, then that which is layd, whych is Jesus Christ. If any mā buyld on this foundacion, golde/siluer, precious stones: timber, haye or stuble: euery mans worke shal appeare. a* For the daie shal declare it, and it shall be shewed in fyre. And the fyre shal trie euery manes worke what it is. If any mans worke that he hath buylt vpon/byde, he shall receaue a reward. If any manes worke burne, he shal suffer losse, but he shalbe safe hi selfe: neuertheles yet as it were thorow fyre.

÷ Are ye not ware that ye are ŷ tem D ple of God, and how that the spryte of God dwelleth in you? If any mā defile the temple of god him shal god destroy for ŷ tēple of god is holy, which temple ye are. Let no man deceaue him selfe.
If any man seme wyse among you, let him be a fole i this world, that he maie be wise. For the wisdome of this world is folishnes with god. For it is written he compasseth the wise i their craftines.
And agaie/ God knoweth the thoughtes of the wyse that they be vaine.
Therfore let no man reioyce in menne.
For all thynges are youres/ whether it be Paull/ether Apollo, ether Cephas: whether it be the world, ether lyfe, ethere death, whether they be presente thyn-ges or thinges to come: all are youres: and ye are Christes, and Christ is god-

These thinges brethren I haue described in myne owne Parson, and Ap- B learne by vs, that no man counte of hi what hast thou, that thou hast not re-ceaued it? If thou haue receued it, why reioycest thou as though thou haddest not receaued it? Nowe ye are full, nowe ye are made rich: ye raygne as Kinges without vs: and I wolde to God ye did raygne, that we might raigne with you.

Me thincke that God hath set forthe

We are foles for Christes sake, and yea ked and are buffeted wyth fistes, and haue no certeyn dwellyng place/and laboure worckinge withe oure owne han des, we are reuyled, and yet we blesse.

We are persecuted, & suffer it. We are euel spoken of, and we praie. We are made as it were the filthines of ÿ world the of scowringe of al thinges, euen vnto this tyme.
D I write not these thinges to shame you: but as m beloued sonnes I warne you. For though ye haue ten thousand instructours in Christ: yet haue ye not many fathers In Christ Iesu. I haue begotten you throw the Gospel. Wher fore I desire you to folowe me. For this cause haue I sent vnto you Timo theus, which is my deare sonne & faith-full in the Lorde, which shall put you i reme mbraunce of my wayes whyche I haue in Christ, euen as I teache euerye whee in al congregations. Some swel as though I wold come no more at you.
But I wyl come to you shortely, if god will: and wyll know, not the wordes of them which swel/ but the power: for the kingdome of god is not in wordes, but in power. What wyl ye? Shal I come vnto you with a rodde, ar els in loue ãd in the sprete of mekenes?

The. v. Chapter

A There goeth a comen saying that there is fornication among you once named amonge the gentiles: that one shulde loue his fathers wyfe. And ye swel and haue not rather sorowed, ÿ he which hath done this deade, myghte cyon of the flesh/ that the sprete may be saued in the daie of the Lorde Iesus.

Youre reioysinge is not good: know B ye not that lytle leuen sowreth ÿ whole lumpe of dowe.
Pourge therfore the olde leuen/ that ye maye be new dowe, as ye are swete breed. For Christ oure ester lambe is offe red vp for vs. Therfore let vs kepe holy daye/ not with olde leuen, nether with the leuen of maliciousnes and wickednes: but with the swet breed of purenes and truthe. ⁋
I wrote vnto you in a pistle that ye shuld not company with fornicatours.
And I meante not at all of the fornica-tours of this worlde, ether of the coue-tous, or of extorsioners, ether of the ido C laters: for then must ye nedes haue gon out of the world. But now I wryte vn to you, that ye cõpany not to gether, yf eny that is called a brother be a fornica tor, or couetous, or a worshipper of ima ges, ether a raylar, eyther a dronckard, or an extorcionar: w hym that is soche

The. vi. Chapter.

How dare one of you hauyn A ge busines with another to go lawe vnder ÿ wycked/ãd not rather vnder the sa-yntes? Do ye not know ÿ ÿ sayntes shall iudge the worlde? If the worlde shalbe iudged by you: are ye not good ynough to iudge smal trifles: kno we ye not howe ÿ wee shall iudge ÿ angels? How moch moare maie we iudge thynges that pertayn to ÿ lyfe? If ye ha ue iudgementes of worldely matters, ta ke them which are despysed in the congregacyon, ãd make thẽ iudges. This I saye to youre shame. Is ther utterly no wyse man among you? What not one at all/ ÿ can iudge betwene brother & brother, but one brother goeth to lawe with another: & ÿ vnder ÿ vnbeleuers. B Nowe therfore there is vtterly a faute amonge you, because ye go to law one with another. Why rather suffer ye not wrong? why rather suffer ye not your sel ues to be robbed? nay, ye your selues do wrong, & robbe: & yt ye brethren. Do ye not remembre how that ye vnrighteous shall not inherett the kingdome of God? Be not deceaued. For nether fornicatours, nether worshippers of ymages, nether whoremongers / nether weaklynges, nether abusers of them selues wyth the mankinde, nether theues / nether couetouse, nether dronkerdes, nether cursed C speakers, nether pillers, shal inherett the kingdome of god. And suche were ye verely: but ye are wesshed: ye are sanctyed: ye are iustified by the name of ye lord Jesus, & by the spryte of oure God.

All thinges are lawful vnto me: but al thinges are not profitable. I maye do al thinges: but I wil be brought vnder no mās power. Meates are ordeined for the bely, & the belly for meates: but god shal destroie both it and them.
Let not ye body be applied vnto fornycacion, but vnto the lorde, and the lorde vnto the body. God hath raised vp the Lord, & shal rayse vs vp by his power.
D + Ether remembre ye not / that your bodyes are the * membres of Christ? shall I nowe take the membres of Chryst, & make them the membres of an harlote?
God forbid. Do ye not vnderstād that he which coupleth him self with an har lot is become one body? For two (saith he) shalbe one flesh. But he that is ioyned vnto the lorde, is one spryte.

Fle fornycacyon. All sinnes ye a man doth, are without the bodi. But he that is a fornicator, sinneth against his awne body. Ether know ye not how ye your bo dyes are the temple of the holye goost, which is in you, whom ye haue of god, and how that ye are not your owne? for ye are dearly bought. Therfore glorify god in your bodies and in youre sprytes, for they are Goddes. ⊢

¶ Of mariage, vyrginitie and widdowheade.

The. vii. Chapter.

A Now concernig ye thiges wher of ye wrote vnto me: yt is good for a man, not to touche a woman.

Neuerthelesse to auoyde fornycacyon, let euery mā haue his wife: and let euerye woman haue her husbande. Let the mā geue vnto the wife due beneuolēce.
Lykewyse also the wyfe vnto the mā.
The wyfe hath not power ouer her aw-ne body: but the husband. And like wyse the husbande hath not power ouer his awne body: but the wyfe. Wythdrawe not youre selues one frō another, excepe it be wt consent for a time / for to geue youre selues to fastynge and prayer.
And afterwarde come agayne to the sa me thyng, lest Satā tempte you for you-re incontinencie. ⊢ This I saye of fauoure, & not of commaundemet. For I wold that al mē we- B re as I my selfe am: but euery man hath hys proper gyfte of God / one after this manner, another after that. I saye vnto the vnmaried men & wyddowes: it is good for them yf they abyde euen as I do. But and yf they cannot abstayne, leet them mary. For it is better to mary then to * * burne.

Unto the maried commaunde not I, but the Lord: that the wyfe seperate not her selfe from the man. If she separate her selfe, let her remayne vnmaried or be reconsiled vnto her husbande agayne.
And let not the husbande put a way his wife from him.

To the remnaunt speake I ād not to the Lorde. If eny brother haue a wife ye beleueth not, yf she be content to dwell C with hym, let him not put her awaye, & the woman which hath to her husbande an infidell, yf he consente to dwel wt her let her not put him awaye. For the vnbeleuig husbād is sāctified by ye wife, & ye vnbeleuing wife is sanctified bi ye hus bād. Or els were your childre vncleane: but * now are they pure. But & if ye vnbe leuing departe, let hi departe. A brother or a sister is not in subieccion to soch.
God hath calleth vs in peace. For how knowest thou o woman whether thou shalte saue that man or no? Other how knowest thou o man whether thou shalt saue that woman or no? but euen as god hath destributed to euery man.
As the Lorde hath called euery per son, so let him walke: ād so ordeine I i al congregacions. If any man be called beyng

Theis & such like haue no part in christ

Sanctifieng & iustifieng cometh by Christe and hys spryte.

beinge circumcised, let him adde nothing therto. If any be called vncircumcised: let him not be circumcised. Circumcision is nothing, vncircumcisyon is nothinge, but the keping of the commaundementes of God D is all together.
Let euerye man abyde in the same state wherin he was called. Arte thou called a seruaunte? care not for it. Neuertheles yf thou mayest be free, vse it rather. For he ŷ is called in the Lorde beinge a seruaunte is the lordes free man, Likewyse he that is called beinge free, is Christes seruaunt. Yee are dearely bought, c* be not mennes seruauntes. Brethren let euery man, where in he is called, there in abyde with God. + As concerninge virgins, I haue no commaundemente of the Lorde: yet geue I counsel as one that hath obtayned mercye of the Lord to be faythfull. I suppose that it is good for the present + necessitye. For it is good for a man so to be. Art thou bounde vnto a wyfe? seke not to be losed. Art thou loused from a wife? seke not a wife. But E ād if thou take a wyfe thou sinnest not. Lykewyse if a virgin marie she sinneth not. Neuertheles suche shal haue trouble in theyr flesh: but I fauoure you.

Thys saye I bretheren, the tyme is shorte, it remayneth that they which haue wyues, be as though they had none, and they that weepe, bee as though they wepte not, and they that reioyce, be as though they reioyced not: and they that bye, be as thoughe they possessed not: & they that vse thys worlde, be as though they vsed it not. For the fasshyon of thys worlde goeth awaye. I wolde haue you without care. The syngle mā careth for the thinges of the Lord how he maye please the Lorde. But he that hath maryed, careth for the thinges of ŷ worlde, how he maye please hys wyfe. There is F difference, betwene a virgin ād a wife. The syngle woman careth for the thynges of the Lorde, that she maye be pure both in body, ād also in spirite. But she that is maried, careth for the thinges of the worlde, how she may please her husbande, This speake I for your profyt, not to tangle you in a snare: but for that which is honest & comely vnto you, and that ye may quietly cleaue vnto the lord without separation.

If any man thinke that it is vncomly for his virgin, yf shee passe the tyme of mariage, and if so nede requyre, let hym do what hee lysteth, hee sinneth not, let them be coupled in mariage. Neuertheles he that purposeth surely in hys herte hauinge none neade: But hathe power ouer hys owne wyl: and hath so decreed G in his herte, ŷ he wyll keape his vyrgin, doeth well. So than he that ioyneth his virgin in mariage, doeth well. But he that ioyneth not his virgin in mariage, doth better. The wyfe is bounde to the lawe as lōg as her husband lyueth.

If her husband slepe, she is at lybertie to mary with whom she wyll, only in the Lorde. But she is happyar yf shee so abyde in my iudgmente. And I thynke verely that I haue the spyrete of god.

The notes.

a * To burne after S. Ambrose, is, when the wil consenteth to the lust of the flesh.
b * Now are they pure, Not that children are cleane ād pure by nature, for that were against the Apostle himselfe, which proueth Rom. v. that al are vnder original sinne, and naturaly the children of Gods wrath, as Ephe ii. But hys meaninge is here, that lyke as al thinges are cleane vnto the cleane Tit. i. Euen so to a Christen mā an vnchristē wyfe is cleane, so that he maye be conuersaunte wyth her, & not offende in so doing, and that the chylderen of them are not to be reputed as vnlawful, and vncleanne.
c * Be not mens seruauntes. To be the seruauntes of men here is, to do anye thynge for the fauoure of men, by which they fal from ŷ fauour of God, while they despisynge Christ do hange on men, and more regarde mennes preceptes and ordinaunces thē the verye institucyons of God, yea, than God hym selfe.
This forbiddeth S. Paule here, and not that wee shoulde deny to be seruauntes to oure masters to whom we be bounde accordinge to the commen order apoynted in commen welthes.
To these we are straytly commanded in sundry places of the scripture to be obedyent wyth loue ād diligēce in al thinges aggreable to Goddes holy worde.
* If a man haue the gyft, chastyte is good, ŷ more quietly to serue god. For the maried haue ofte moch trouble, but yf the mynde of the chaste be combered with other worldly busines, what helpeth it? & yf ŷ maried be the more quiet mynded therby, what hurteth it? Nether of it selfe is better then the other, or pleaseth god more thē ŷ other. Nether is outward circumcisyon or outwarde baptyme worth a pynne of them selues, saue that they put vs in remēbraūce to kepe the couenaunte made betwene vs & God.

He rebuketh them ŷ vse their liberte to ŷ sclaunder of other, and sheweth how we ought to behaue them towarde such as be weake.

TO speake of thiges dedicate vnto idoles, we are sure ŷ we al haue knowledg. Knoweledge maketh a mā swell but loue edifyeth. If any mā A thinke y^t he knoweth any thinge, he knoweth no thing yet as he ought to know. But yf any Man loue God, the same is knowen of him.

To speake of meate dedicate vnto ydolles, we are sure that there is none ydolle in the worlde, and that ther is none other God but one. And though there be that are called Goddes, whether in heauen either in earth (as ther be goddes many and lordes many) yet vnto vs is there but one God/which is the father, of whom are all thinges, and we in him: and one Lord Jesus Christe, by whome are all thynges and we by him. But euery man hath not knowledge. For some suppose that ther is an Ydoll vnto this houre, and eate as a thinge offered vnto the

C ydole/ and so their consciences beynge yet weake, are defyled. Meate maketh vs not acceptable to God. Neither if we eate are we the better: Neither yf we eate not, are we the worsse.

But take hede that youre libertye cause not the weake to falle. For yf some man se thee which hast knowledge, syt at meate in the ydoles temple, shal not the conscience of him which is weake, be bolde bened to eate those thynges which are offered to the Ydole? And so thorow thy knowledge shall the weake brother perishe for whom Christe dyed. When ye synne so agaist the brethren, and wound their weake Consciences ye Synne agaiste Christ. Wherfor yf meate hurte my brother, I wyl eate no flesh while the worlde standeth, because I wyl not hurte my brother.

In all oure dedes we shulde haue a respecte to our neyboures wealthe.

Charitie what it doth

¶ Loue forbeareth the thinge that she maye do by the law. He exhorteth them to runne on forth in the course that they [illegible] begonne.

Am I not an Apostle? Am I not fre? haue I not sene Jesus Christ oure Lorde? Are ye not my worke in y^e Lorde? If I be not an Apostle vnto other/ yet am I vnto you. For the seale of myne Apostelshype are ye in y^e Lord. Myne aunswere to them that aske me is this. Haue we not power to eate and to drynke? Either haue we not power to leade about a sister to wife/ as well as other Apostles, and as the brethren of the Lorde and Cephas? Ether only I and Barnabas haue not power thys to do? Who goeth a warfare any tyme at hys owne coste? who planteth a vyneyarde, and eateth not of the frute? Who feadeth a flocke and eateth not of the mylke?

Saye I these thiges after y^e maner of men? Or saith not the lawe the same also? For it is written in the law of Moyses: Thou shalt not mossel y^e mouth of y^e oxe that treadeth out the corne. Doth God take thought for oxen? Ether saith he it not al to gether for our sakes? For our sakes no doute this is written: that he which eateth shulde eate in hope, and that he which throsheth in hope, shuld be partaker of his hope. If we sow vnto you spirytuall thinges: is it a greate thinge: yf we repe youre carnall thinges?

The preacher hath right to [illegible] for his labour.

If other be partakers of this power ouer you, wherfore are not we rather?

Neuertheles we haue not vsed this power: but suffer all thinges lest we shulde hynder the gospell of Christ. Do ye not vnderstande how that they which minister in the temple, haue theyr fyndynge of the temple. And they which wayte at the aulter, are partakers with the aulter. Euen so also dyd the Lorde ordaine, that they which preache y^e Gospel, shulde lyue of the Gospel. But I haue vsed none of these thinges.

Nether wrote I these thinges that it shoulde be so done vnto me. For it were better for me to dye, then that anye man shulde take this reioysing from me In that I preache the gospel. I haue nothinge to reioyce of. For necessite is put vnto me. Woo is it vnto me if I preach not the Gospel. If I do it with a good wil, I haue a rewarde. But if I do it agaist my wil, an office is committed vnto me. What is my reward then? Verely that when I preache the Gospel, I make the Gospel of Christ fre, that I misuse not mine auctorite in the gospel.

For though I be fre from al men, yet haue I made my selfe seruaunt vnto al men, that I might winne the moo. Unto the Jewes, I became as a Jew, to winne the Jewes. To them that were vnder ÿ lawe, was I made as though I hadde bene vnder the lawe, to wynne them that weare vnder the law. To thē that weare without law, became I as thoughe I had bene withoute lawe (when I was not without lawe as per taynyng to god, but vnder a lawe as cō cernyng Christ) to winne them that were with out lawe. To the weake became I as weake/ to winne the weake. In all thinges I fasshoned my selfe to al me, to saue at the lest waye some. And this I do for the Gospels sake that I myghte D haue my perte therof.

✢ Perceaue ye not how that they which runne in a course, runne all/ yet but one receaueth the rewarde. So runne that ye maye obtayne.
B Euery man that proueth masteries, abstayneth from all thinges. And they do yt to obtayne a corruptible crowne: but we to obtaine an vncorruptible crowne.
I therfore so runne, not as at an vncer tayne thing. So fyght I not as one ÿ beateth the ayer. but I tame my body, & bringe it into subieccion, lest after that I haue preached to other I my selfe shuld be e a cast awaye.

Paul prouveth him selfe an Apostle equal to the best in that ÿ spirite beareth recorde to his preachinge & in that as many were by him conuerted as by the other Apostles.
He feareth them with the ensamples of the old testament, and exhorteth them to a Godly conuersacion.

The .x. Chapter.

Bretheren I wolde not that ye shoulde be ignoraunce of this: how that oure fathers
A were all vnder a cloude. And al passed thorowe the sea, and were all baptised vnder Moyses, in the cloude and in the Sea: and did al eate of one spiritual meate, and did ✢ al drincke of one maner of spiritual drincke. And they dranke of that spirituall rocke that folowed them, whiche rocke was Christ. ✢ But in many of thē had god no delyte. For they were ouerthrowen in the wildernes.

These are ensamples to vs ✢ that B we shulde not lust after euel thinges, as they lusted. Nether be ye worshippers of images as were some of thē according as it is written:
The people sate downe to eate and drincke, and rose vppe agayne to playe Nether let vs commit fornicacion ✢ as some of them committed fornication ād were destroyed in one daye .xxiii. thou- Num. xxv. a. Psalme. cv.
sād. Nether let vs tempte Christ as som of them tēpted, ād were destroyed of ser pentes. Nether murmure ye as some of them murmured and were destroyed C of the destroyer.
Al these thinges happened vnto thē for ensamples, and were wrytten to put vs in remembraunce, whome the endes of the worlde are comen vpon. Wherfore let hym that thincketh he standeth take hede least he fall. Ther hath none other temptacion take you, but such as foloweth the nature of man. But God is faythfull, which shall not suffre you to be tempted aboue youre strengthe: but shall in the myddest of the temptacion/make a waye to escape out.
✢ wherfore my deare beloued, flee from D worshyppinge of idoles.
I speake as vnto them which haue discretion, iudge ye what I saye. Is not the cup of blessinge, which we blesse par- Cuppe. Breade takynge of the bloude of Christe? is not the breade which we breake, partakyng of the body of Christe? because that we (though we be many) yet are one bread and one body in as moche as we are all partakers of one bread. Beholde Israel el which walketh carnally. Are not they which eate of the sacrifice partakers of the aulter.
What saye I then? ÿ the image is any E thinge? or that it which is offered to Images is any thinge? Naye, but I saye, that these thinges which the gentyles offer they offre to deuels, & not to god.
✢ And I wolde not that ye should haue fellowshyp wyth the deuels. Ye can not drincke of the cuppe of the Lorde, & of the cup of the Deuels. Ye can not be the partakers of the Lordes table, & of the table of Deuelles. Ether shall we prouoke the Lorde? Or are we stronger then he? All thinges are lawful vn to me but all thinges are not expediente All thinges are laufull to mee, but all F thinges edifie not. Let no man seke his We haue profit one er nother to seke a nothers welth owne profyte, but let euery man seke an others welth.
What soeuer is sold in ÿ market, ÿ eat and aske no questions for cōscience sake

For the earth is the lordes, and all þ ther in is, if any of the which beleue not, bid you to a feast, & if ye be disposed to god, G what soeuer is set befor you, eate askig no question for conscience sake. But and if any man say vnto you: this is dedicate vnto idolles, eate not of it for hys sake that shewed it, and for hurtinge of conscience. The earth is the Lordes, and all that therin is. Conscience I say, not thy-ne: but the cõscience of that other. * For why shoulde my lybertie be iudged of ã-other mannes conscience. For if I take my parte with thankes, why am I euel spoken of, for that thing wherfore I ge-ue thanckes.
Whether therfore yee eate or drincke, or whatsoeuer yee do, do al to the prayse of God. + See that ye geue none occasion of euell, nether to the Iewes/nor yet to the gentyles, neyther to the congregacy-on of God: euen as I please all men, in all thinges, not sekinge myne owne profit/but the profet of man, þ they mighte be saued. Folowe me as I do Christ.

The notes.

* We should be so ful of loue and so cyrcumspecte, that we should geue none occasyon vnto the ignoraunte for to speake euel of vs for our lybertie, and for doynge that which we may lawfully do before God.
+ Loue seketh her neyboures profyte.
He rebuketh them for the abuse and misordre that they had about þ sacrament of þ bodye & bloude of Christ, & bringeth thẽ agayne to þ first institucion.

The .xi. Chapter.

I Commende you brethren þ A ye remember me in all thin-ges and kepe the ordinaun-ces euen as I delyuered them to you. I wold yee knew that Christ is þ head of euery mã.
And the man is the womans head. And God is Christes head. Euery man prayinge or prophesiynge hauing ani thyng on his head, shameth hys head. Eue-ry women that prayeth or prophesieth bare headed/dishonesteth hyr head. For it is euen al one, ãd the very same thige euen as though she were shauen.
If the woman be not couered, let her al so be shorn. If it be shame for a womã to be shorne or shauen, let her couer her head.
B A man ought not to couer his head, for as moche as he is the Image and glorye of god. The wemã is the glory of þ mã. For þ mã is not of the womã, but þ woman of the man. Nether was the mã created for the womans sake: but the Woman for the mans sake. For thys cause ought the womã to haue * power on her heade, for the Angeles sake.
Neuertheles nether is the mã wyth out the woman, nether is the woman wyth- C out the man in the Lord. For as the woman is of the man, euen so is the mã by the woman: but all is of god.
Iudge in youre selues whether it be cõ-lye that a woman praye vnto god bare headed. Or els doth not nature teache you, þ yt is a shame for a man, yf he haue longe heare: and a prayse to a womã yf she haue longe heare? For her heare is geuen her to couer her with all. If there be many men among you that lusteth to striue, let hi knowe that we haue no suche custome, nether the congrega-cions of god.
This I warne you of, and cõmende not that ye come to gether: not after a better maner but after a worsse. + Fyrst D of al when ye come to gether in the con-gregacion. I heare that there is dissen-cyon among you: and I partely beleue it. For ther must be sectes among you, þ they which are parfect amõg you might be knowen. When ye come to gether, a The Lords supper. man cannot eate the lordes supper. For euery man begynneth afore to eate hys owne supper. And one is hongry, and a nother is dronken. Haue yee not houses to eate and to drinke in? Or els despyse yee the congregaciõ of god, and shame them that haue not? What shall I saye vnto you? shall I praise you? In thys praise I you not. E + That whiche I delyuered vnto you Mathew xxvi. Marke xiiii. Luke xxii.
I receaued of the Lorde. For the Lorde Iesus the same nighte in which he was betraied/toke bread: and thanked and brake, and sayd. Take yee, and eate yee: The institucion of þ Sacrament. this is my body which is broke for you.
* This do ye in the remembraunce of me. After the same maner he toke þ cup whẽ supper was done, sayig: this cuppe is the newe testamẽt in my bloud: This do as oft as ye drinke it, in remẽbraũce of me. For as often as ye shall eate this bread/and drinke this cup ye shal shew

the Lordes death, tyl he come. Wherfore whosoeuer shall eate of thys bread/or drincke of this cup vnworthely, shalbe gyltye of the body and bloud of the Lor de. Let a man therfore examen him sel-D fe, and so let hym eate of the bread and drincke of the cup. For he that eateth or drynketh vnworthely, eateth and drinc-keth hys owne damnacyon, because he maketh no difference of the Lordes bo dy. For this cause many are weake & syck amonge you/& many slepe. If we haue truly iudged our selues, we shuld not haue bene iudged. But whe we are iudged of the Lorde, we are chastened, because we shoulde not bee dampned wyth the worlde. Wherfore my bretheren when ye coumme to gether to eate, tary one another. If any man honger, let him eate at home, that ye come not together vnto condenacio. Other thin-ges will I set in order when I come.

The notes

✠ Power is as moche to saye, as a sygne that the woman is in subieccyon and hath an heed ouer hyr.

¶ The dyuersytye of the gyftes of the holy goost. geuen to the comfort and edyfiyng of one another, as the membres of a mans body serue one another.

The. xii, Chapter,

A IN spyritual thynges brethe ren I wolde not haue you ignoraunte. ✠ Ye knowe that ye were gentyles, and wet your re wayes vnto domme ydoles euen as ye were ledde. Wherfore I declare vnto you that no man speaking in the sprete of God, defieth Iesus. Also no ma can say that Iesus is the Lorde: but the holy goost. There are dyuersi-tes of gyftes verely, yet but one sprete.
And ther are differences of admynystra cyons, & yet but one Lorde. And there are dyuers maners of operacions, and yet but one God which worketh all thin ges that are wrought in all creatures.
The gyftes of ✠ the spirite are geuen to euery manne, to profyte the congrega-cion. To one is geuen throw the spirite/the vtterace of wisdo. To an other is ge-ue the vtteraunce of knoledge by the same spirite. To an other is geuen fayth, by the same spirite. To an other the gif-tes of healynge, by the same spyrite. To an other power to do miracles. To a other prophecye. To an other iudgement of spirites. To another diuers tonges.
To another the interpretacion of ton-ges. And these all worketh euen the selfe same spirite, diuidyng to euery man seuerall giftes, euen as he wyll. ✠ For as the bodye is one, and hathe many membres, and al the membres of B one body, though they be many, yet are but one bodye: euen so is Chryste. For in one spirit, are we al Baptised to make one bodye, whether wee be Iewes or Gentyles, whether we be bound or free, and haue all drouncken of one spirite.
For the body is not one membre, but many. If the fote saye: I am not the hand, therfor I am not of the body: is he ther fore not of the bodye? and if the eare say, I am not the eye: therfore I am not of the bodye: is it therfore not of the bo-dye. If all the bodye were an eye, where were than the eare? If all were C hearing, where were the smellynge? But now hathe God dysposed the membres euerye one of them in the bodye, at hys owne pleasure. If they were all one me bre: where were the body? Now are there many membres, yet but one body, & the eye canot say vnto the had, I haue no nede of the: nor the head also to the fete/I haue no nede of you. Ye rather a great deale those membres of the bodi, which seme to be moost feble, are moost neces sary
And vpon those membres of the bodye, whiche we thincke least honeste/ put wee D most honesty on: & our vngodly partes haue most beautye. For our honest me bres neade it not. But God hath so disposed the bodye, and hath geuen moste honoure to that parte whiche lacketh, leaste there shoulde be any stryfe in the bodye, but the members should indif-ferently care one for another. And yf one membre suffre: al suffer with him, if one me bre be had in honoure, al mebres be glad also.

Ye are the body of Chryst, and mem bres, one of another. And God hathe also ordened in the congregacion, first the Apostles, secondarelye Prophetes, thyrdly teachers, then them that do mi= racles: after that the gyftes of healing, helpers, gouerners, diuersitie of tōges.
Are all Appostels? Are all Prophe= tes? Are all teachers? Are all doers of miracles? haue al the giftes of healing?
Do all speake with tonges? Do all in= terpretee? Couet after the beste gyftes.
And yet shewe I vnto you a moare ex= cellent waye.

The nature and conditions of loue.

The xvi. Chapter.

A Though I spake wyth the tonges of men and angels, and yet had no loue, I were euen as sounding brasse: or as a tincklynge cymball.
And though I could prophecy, and vn derstand all secretes, and al knowledg: yea, yf I had a* al fayth, so that I coul= de moue mountaynes out of their pla= ces, ād yet had no loue, I were nothig.
And though I bestowed all my good= des to fede the poore, and though I ga B ue my bodye euen that I burned, and yet had no loue, it profiteth me nothig.
Loue suffereth longe and is curte= ous, loue enuieth not. Loue doth not fro wardly, swelleth not, dealeth not disho nestly, seketh not her owne, is not pro= uoked to anger, thinketh not euell, re= ioyceth not in iniquite: but reioyceth in the trueth, suffereth al thinges, beleueth al thinges, hopeth al thinges, endureth in all thinges. Though that prophecy= ing fayl, other tonges shal cease, or kno wledge vanish awaye, yet loue falleth neuer awaye.
For oure knoweledge is vnperfecte and our prophesienge is vnperfecte, C But when that which is perfecte, is co= me, then that which is vnperfecte, shal be done awaye. When I was a chylde, I spake as a child, I vnderstode as a child, I imagined as a child. But assone as I was a man I put awaye childish nes. Now we se in a glasse, euen in a dar ke speakyng: but then shal we se face to face. Now I know vnperfectly: but thē shal I know euen as I ā knowē. Now abydeth faith, hope, ād loue, euen these thre, the chefe of these is loue.

The notes.

a* Al fayth is as muche to say as so strong fayth. b* The chefe of these is loue. Not cōcerning iustifi cation, but concerning the applienge of al thinges to the profet of the congregation. Nothing letteth some one peculyar thing diuerslye referred to be no= we inferior now superyor to another. Loue concer= nyng prouydinge for the necessitie of thy neighboure is, cheafe and aboue fayth. But cōcernig the obtay nynge of iustifycation and saluacyon dothe faythe excede loue.

Paul sheweth that the gifte of prophesy, inter pretynge of preachinge excelleth the gyft of tonges and how they both ought to be vsed

The xiiii. Chapter.

Laboure for loue and couet spirituall giftes: and most A chefely for to prophecy. For he that speaketh with ton= ges speakethe not vntoo men, but vnto god. For no man heareth him. How be it in the sprite he speaketh misteries. But he that a* prophecyeth, speaketh vnto men, to edifieng, to exhortacyon and to cōfort.
He that speketh with tonges, profiteth hym selfe: he that prophecyeth, edifieth the congregacyon. I wolde that ye all spake wyth tonges, but rather that yee prophecyed. For greater is he that pro phesieth, then he that speaketh wt ton= ges, excepte he expounde it also: that ye congregacion maye haue edyfienge. B Now brethren, yf I come vnto you spe= akynge with tonges: what shall I pro= fite you, excepte I speake to you, other by reuelacion or knowledg, or doctrine.
Moreouer when thinges without lyfe geue sounde: whether it be a pype or an harpe: except they make a distinccion in the soundes: how shal it be knowē what is pyped or harped? And also yf the trompe geue an vncertayne voyce, who shall prepare hym selfe to fyghte? Euē so lyke wyse when ye spake wt tonges, excepte ye speake wordes that haue sygnificacion, howe shall it be vnder= stand what is spoken? For ye shal but speake in the ayer.
Many kindes of voyces are in the worl C de, and none of them are withe ut syg= nification: If I know not what ye voice meaneth keaneth. I shalbe vnto him that speaketh, an aliaūt, & he that speaketh shal-be an aliēt vnto me. Euen so ye (for as moch as ye couet spirituall giftes) seke that ye maye haue plentye vnto the edifyinge of the congregacion.

Wherfore let him that speaketh wͭ tonges praye that he maie interpret also. If I praye wͭ tonges my spyrite prayeth: but my mynd is without frute What is it then? I wyll praye with the b - sprete, and wyll praye with the myn-de also. I will singe with the sprete/and wyll singe with the mynde also.
For els when ẏ blessest with the sprete, how shall he that occupieth the rowme of the vnlearned, saye Amen at thy ge-uinge of thanckes, seynge he vnderstandeth not what thou sayst. Thou verely geuest thankes well/but ẏ other is not D edified. I thank my God, I speake wͭ tonges moare then ye al. Yet had I leuer in the congregacion, to speake fy-ue wordes with my mynde to the informacyon of other rather then ten thousand wordes with the tonges.

Brethren/be not chyldren in wytte.
Howbeit as concernyng maliciousnes be chyldren but in witte be perfect.
In the lawe it is written with other ton ges, and with other lippes wyll I spea ke vnto this people, and yet for all ẏ, will they not heare me, sayth the Lord.
Wherfore, tonges are for a sygne, not to them that beleue: but to them that beleue not. Contrary wyse, prophesyinge serueth not for thē that beleue not: but for them whych beleue.

If therfore when al the congregacion is come to gether, and all speake wͭ tonges, there come in they that are vn-lerned or they which beleue not: wil they not saye that ye are oute of youre wit-tes? But and ẏ al prophesy, and ther co me in one that beleueth not, or one vnle E arned, he is rebuked of all men, and is iudged of euery man: and so are the secretes of his hert opened, and so falleth he doune on hys face, and worshippeth God, and sayth that God is with you in dede.

How is it then brethren? When ye co me to gether, euery man hath his songe, hath his doctrine, hath his tonge, hath his reuelacion, hath his interpretacion.
Let all thinges be done vnto edifynge If eny man speake wͭ tonges, let it bee two attonce or at the most thre attonce and that by course/ and let another interprete it. But yf there bee no interpre ter, let him kepe sylence in the congregacion, & let him speake to hi selfe ād to God.

Let the prophetes speake two attonce, or thre attonce/ and let the other F iudge: If any reuelation be made to another ẏ sitteth by, let ẏ first holde hys peace. For ye maye al prophecy one by one, ẏ al maye learne, & al maie haue cō fort. For the spirites of ẏ Prophets are in ẏ power of the Prophetes. For God is not causer of stryfe: but of peace, as he is i al other cōgregatiōs of ẏ saītes Let youre wyues kepe sylence in the cō gregacions. For it is not permitted vnto them to speake: but lette them be vnder obedience, as sayth the lawe. If 1. Timo. ii. A Genesis iii. c they will learne eny thing, let them aske their husbandes at home. For it is a shame for wemen to speake in the con-gregacion. Spronge the word of God fro you? Ether came it vnto you only?
If eny man thinke hym self a Prophe-te, ether spiritiall: let him vnderstande, what thynges I wryte vnto you. For they are the commaundementes of the Lord. But and yf eny man be ignorant let hym be ignoraunt. Wherfore bretheren couet to prophesye, and forbyd not to speake with tonges. And let al thin-ges be done honestly and in order.

a. ✱ Prophesyinge is here taken for expoundynge.
b. ✱ To speake wͭ tonges, or with the spirite, is to speake that other vnderstand not as Priestes saye their seruyce: To speake wͭ the mynde is to speake that other vnderstande, as when the preacher preacheth.

The resurrection of the deade.

The xv Chapter. ✠

B Retherē as pertaynyng to the Gospell which I preached vnto you, whych ye ha- A ue also accepted and in the whiche ye continue, by the whiche also ye are saued: I do you to wete after what maner I preached vnto you, yf ye kepe it except ye haue beleued in vayne. For fyrst of all I delyuered vnto you that whych I receaued

how

how that Christ dyed for our synnes, agreynge to the scriptures: and that he was buried, ād that he rose againe the thirde daye accordig to the scriptures, and that he was sene of Cephas, then of the twelue. After that he was sene of moo then fyue hundreth brethrē at ōce of which many remaine vnto this daie, and manye are fallen a slepe. After that appered he to James / then to all the B Apostles.
And last of all he was sene of me, as of one that was borne out of due time.
For I am ẏ lest of Al ẏ apostles whiche am not worthye to be called ā Apostle, because I persecuted ẏ congregacion of God. But by the grace of God I am ẏ I am. And his grace which is in me / was not i vaine: ⁑ but I labored more aboundauntly then they all, yet not I / but the grace of God which is with me.
Whether it were I or they, so we preache, and so haue ye beleued.
✝ If Christ be preached how that he rose from the dead: how saye some that are among you / that there is no resur-reccion of the dead? If there be no ry-C synge againe of the dead: then is christe not rysen. If Chryst be not rysen / then is our preaching in vayne, & your faith is also in vayne. Ye and we are found false witnesses of god. For we haue testifyed of god, how that he raysed vp Christ whome he raysed not vp, yf it be so that the dead ryse not againe. For if the dead ryse not agayne, thē is Christ not rysen againe. If it be so that Christ rose not, then is your fayth in vaine, ād yet are ye in youre synnes. And there to they which are fallen a slepe in Chryst are perished. If in thys life only we beleue on Christ, then are we of al men the miserablest.
But now is Christe rysen from the dead, & is be come the first frutes of thē that slepe. For by a man came deeth, & by a man came the resurrectyon of the deed. For as by Adam al die: euen so by Christ shal al be made aliue, and euery man in his owne ordre. ⁑ The fyrste is Christe, then they that are Chrystes at his comming. Then commeth the end, when he hath delivered vp the kingdōe to god ẏ father, whē he hath put doune al rule, auctoritie ād power. For he must reygne tyll he haue put his enemies vn der his fete. The last enemy that shalbe destroied, is death. ✝ For he hath put all D thiges vnder his fete. But whē he saith al thiges are put vnder hī, it is manifest ẏ he is excepted, which dyd put al thiges vnder hī. When al thiges are subdued vnto hī, then shal ẏ sōne also hī selfe be subiecte vnto him that put thynges vn der hym, ẏ God maie be al in all thiges.
Ether els what do they which are baptysed ouer the dead, yf the dead rise not at al? Why are they thē baptised ouer the dead? Ye and why stande we i ieo-pardy euery houre? But our reioysynge which I haue in Christ Jesu our lord, I dye dayly. That I haue fought wt beastes at Ephesus after the maner of men, what auauntageth it me / if ẏ deed rise not agayne? Let vs eate ād drinke to morow we shal die. Be not disceued, malycyous speakynges, corrupte good E manners. Awake truly out of slepe / & synne not. For some haue not ẏ know ledge of god. I speake thys to your rebukes.
But some man wil saye: how aryse the deed? with what bodies come they in?
Thou foole, that which thou sowest, is not quickned except it dye. And what sowest thou? Thou sowest not that bo dye ẏ shalbe: but bare corne (I meane ether of whete, or of some other) & God geueth it a body at his pleasure, to eue ry seede a seueral body.
✝ All flesh is not one maner of flesh but there is one maner fleshe of men, another manner Fleshe of Beastes, another maner flesh of fyshes, and another of byrdes. There are celestyall bodies, F and there are bodyes terrestryall. But the glory of the celestiall is one, and the glory of the terrestrial is another. There is one maner glorye of the Sunne & another glory of the Moone / and another glory of the starres, For one starre differeth from another in glory. So is the resurrection of the dead. It is sowē in corruption, and ryseth agayne in incorrupcion. It is sowen in dishonoure, and ryseth in honor. It is sowen in we-kenes and ryseth in power. It is sowen a natural a body, and ryseth a spirituall body.

body. There is a natural body ⁊ ther is a spiritual body: as it is wrytte: the first man Adam, was made a lyuyng soule, and the last Adam was made a quickenyng spirite. How be it, that is not firste which is spyrytuall: but that whyche is naturall, and then that whyche is spy-rytuall.

✝ The fyrste man is the erth, erthy: G And the seconde man is the Lorde fro̅ heauen. As is the erthy, suche are they that are erthy. And as is the heuenly, suche are they that are heuenly. And as we haue borne the image of the er-thye, so shal we beare the image of the heuenlye.

This saye I brethren, that [b] ✝ flessh and bloud ca̅not inheret ẏ kingdom of god.
Nether doth corrupcion inheret incorrupcion. Behold I shewe you a mistery.
We shall not all slepe: but we shall all be chaunged, and that in a momente, and in the twyncling of an eye, at the sounde of ẏ last trompe. For the trompe shall blowe, and the deed shall ryse incorruptible, and we shalbe chaunged. For this corruptyble must put on incorruptybilite: and this mortal must put on immor-talite.

When this corruptible hath put on incorruptibilite, a̅d this mortal hath put on immortalite: then shal be broght to passe the sayinge that is wrytte̅.
Death is co̅sumed into victory. Death where is thy stynge? Hell where is thy victory? The stynge of death is synne: ⁊ the strength of synne is the lawe. But thankes be vnto God, which hath geuen vs victory, thorow oure Lorde Jesus Christ. Therfore my deare brethren be ye stedfast and vnmouable, alwayes ry-che in the workes of ẏ Lord, for as mo-che as ye knowe how that youre labour is not in vayne in the Lorde.

The notes

a ✝ Baptised ouer the deathe. Some men say that in token of the generall resurrection certen Chrysten men were baptysed ouer dead mens graues, sygnifyeng, that the same dead men shulde ryse agayn. b ✝ Flesh and bloud can not enheryte the kingdome of God. Oure belefe is that there shalbe a generall resurrection of the flesh, acordyng to the scrypture Esay. xxvi. Dan. xii. Job. xix. Jhon. v. Neuerthelesse it shall be pourged from corrupcyon, and be cha̅ged to immortalyte, for it must be a̅ vncorrupt flesh ẏ shal inheret the kyngdome of god.

To speake of brother Apollo: I greatly desyred him to come vnto you with

The fyrst Chapter.

A Paule an Apostle of Jesus Chryst, by the wyll of God, and brother Tymotheus.

Unto the congregacion of God, whych is at Corinthum wyth all the sainctes, whych are in all Achaia. Grace be wyth you & peace from God oure father, and from the Lorde Jesus Chryst.

Blessed be God the Father of oure Lorde Jesus Christ, the father of mercy, and the God of al comfort, which cōforteth vs in all oure tribulacion, in so much that we are able to comforte them whiche are trobled, in what soeuer trybulacion it be, with the same comforte, wherwith we our selues are comforted of God. For as the afflictions of christ are plenteous in vs, euen so is our cōsolacion plenteous by Christ.

B Whether we be troubled for your consolacion and saluacion, which saluaciō sheweth her power in that yee offer the same afflictions, which we also suffer; or whether we be cōforted for your consolacyon and saluacyon: yet oure hope is stedfaste for you, in as muche as we knowe how that as ye haue your parte in afflictions, so shal ye be partakers of consolacion.

Brethren I woulde not haue you ignoraunt of our troble/ whych happened vnto vs in Asia. For we were greaued out of measure passing strength/ so greately that we despeyred euen of life. Also we receaued an answere of death i our selues/ & that because we shuld not put our troust in our selues: but in god whiche raiseth the dead to life agayne, & which deliuered vs frō so great a death & doth deliuer. On whom we trust, ÿ yet herafter he wyll delyuer, by ÿ helpe of youre prayer for vs, that by the meanes of many occasions, thankes maye be geue of many on our behalfe, for the grace geuen vnto vs.

Our reioysing is this, the testimony C of our conscience, that in singlenes and godly purenes and not in fleshly wisdome, but by the grace of god we haue had our conuersacion in the world, and most of al to yowwards. We write non other thinges vnto you, then that yee reade & also knowe. Yea and I trust ye shall finde vs vnto the ende, euen as ye haue founde vs partlye: for we are youre reioysyng, euen as ye are ours in the day of the Lorde Jesus.

And in this confidence was I minded the other tyme to haue come vnto you that ye myght haue had yet one pleasure more, and to haue passed by you in to Macedonya, ād to haue come agayne out of Macedonia vnto you, and to haue bene ledde forth to Jewrye warde of you/ when I thus wyse was minded, D thus dyd I vse lyghtnes? Or thinke I carnallye those thinges whiche I thincke, that with me shulde be yea yea, and naye naye. God is faythfull: For our preaching to you, was not yea and naye. For Goddis Sonne Jesus Christ which was preched amōg you by vs (that is to saye, by me and Siluanus, and Timotheus) was not yee ād naye: but in him it was yee:

For all the promises * of God, i him are yee and are in him Amen, vnto the laude of god thorowe vs. For it is god which stablisshed vs and you in Christ, ād hath annoynted vs, which hath also sealed vs, and hath geuen the ernest of the sprete into oure hertes.

a * yee yea, and nave naye is here put for vnstablenes inconstantnes, sayyng or speaking of wyth wor-des.
* Al the promyses of God are geuen vs onlye for Christes sake.
He sheweth the cause of hys absence & exhorteth them to forgeue the man that was fallen, & to receaue him agayne wyth loue.

¶ The .ii. Chapter.

A I Call God for a recorde vnto my soule, that for to fauer you wyth al I came not eny more vnto Corinthum.
Not that we be lordes ouer youre fayth: but helpers of your ioye.
For by fayth ye stande. But I determined this in my selfe, y I wold not come agayne to you in heuynes. For yf I ma ke you sorye, who is it that shuld make me glad, but y same which is made sory by me? And I wrote this same episle vnto you, lest yf I came, I shuld take heuynes of them, of whom I ought to reioce. Certaynly this confidence ha ue I in you all, that my ioye is the ioye of you all. For in great affliccion and anguysshe of hert I wrote vnto you w manye teares: not to make you sorye, B but that ye might perceaue y loue whiche I haue, most specially vnto you.
If eny man hath caused sorow, y same hath not made me sory, but partely: lest I shulde greue you all. It is sufficient vnto the same mā that he was rebuked of many. So that now contrary wyse ye ought to forgeue him and comforte him: lest that same persone shuld be swalowed vp with ouer moche heuynes. Wherfor I exhorte you y loue ma ye haue strength ouer him. For this cau se verily dyd I wryte, that I myghte knaw the profe of you, whether ye shul de be obedient in all thynges. To whom ye forgeue eny thyng, I forgeue also. And verely yf I forgaue eny thin ge, to whom I forgaue it, for youre sa kes forgaue I it, i the roume of Christ, C lest Satan shuld preuent vs. For his thoughtes are not vnknowen vnto vs.
When I was come to Troada for Christes Gospels sake (and a great dore was opened vnto me of the Lorde) I had no rest in my sprete, because I foūd not Titus my brother: but toke my lea ue of them and went away into Macedonia. Thankes be vnto god which al D waies geueth vs the victory in Christ, and openeth the sauer of his knowlege by vs in euery place. For we are vnto to God the swete sauour of Christ, both amonge them y are saued, and also among them which perish. To the one parte are we y sauour of deth vnto death: & vnto y other part are we y sauor of life vnto life. And who is mete vnto these thinges? For we are not as many are which choppe & chaung w the word of God: but euen out of purenes, ād bi the power of God, & in the sight of god so speake we in Christ.

¶ He prayseth the preachyng of the Gospel aboue y preachyng of the lawe.

¶ The .iii. Chapter.

We begin to praise oure sel-ues agayne. Nede we as A some other, of Epistles of recommendacio͂ vnto you? or letters of recommendacyo͂ from you? Ye are our Epistle wri-ten in oure hertes, which is vnderstand and red of all men, in that ye are knowe howe that ye are the Epistle of Chryst, ministred by vs and written, not wyth incke: but wyth the spirite of the lyuing God, not in tables of stone, but in flesh ly tables of the herte.
* Such trust haue we thorow Chryste B to God ward, not that we are sufficient of oure selues to thinke any thynge, as it were of oure selues, but our ablenes commeth of God, which hath made vs able to minister the new Testament not of the letter, but of the spirite. For * * the * letter killeth: but y * spirit geueth life.
If * the ministracion of death thorow the letters figured in stones was glory ous, so that the children of Israell coulde not beholde the face of Moses for y glory of hys countenaunce (which glory neuertheles is don away) why shal not the * ministracion of the spirite be much more glorio*? For if y * ministrig of co͂de C nacio͂ be glori*: much more doth the mi nistracion of righteousnes excede in glo tye. For no doute ÿ which was there glorified, is not once glorified i respecte of this excedyng glory. Then if* that which is destroied was glorious, moche moare shal that which remayneth, be glorious.

Seing then that we haue such trust, we vse great boldnes & do not as Moses, which put a vayle ouer hys face ÿ the chyldren of Israel shulde not se for D what purpose ÿ serued which is put awaie. But their mides were blided. For vntil this daye remaineth ÿ same couering vntaken awaye in ÿ old testamet whe they read it, which i Christ is put awaie. But euen vnto thys daye when Moyses is redde, the vayle hangeth before their hertes. Neuertheles whe they turne to the Lord, the vayle shalbe taken awaye. The Lord no doute is a spirite. And where the spirite of the Lorde is, there is lybertie. But we all beholde the glori of the Lord with hys face open, and are chaunged vnto the same similitude, frõ glory to glorye, euen of the spirite of ÿ Lorde.

The notes.

 The letter killeth. &c. The letter here and in the ii. of the Romaines. b. and in diuerse other places of the scripture, signifieth the lawe or olde testament. And that the spryte, the Gospell or newe testament: And so doth S. Austyn expounde them in soundrye places of his boke, which he wrote of the letter and the spryte: And Erasmus also doth in his Paraphrasis and Annotacions. Because ÿ lawe fyndeth vs gyltye, and therupon condemneth vs, therfore sayth the Apostle rightfully that it kylleth, and ÿ Gospel because it pronounceth vs rightwesse by Christ & sheweth vs that by him we are iustyfyed from al thinges wherof we coulde not be iustyfyed by the lawe. Act. xiii. f. doth therfore bryng life. As for such as by the letter wil vnderstande the lyteral sence, & by ÿ spryte, ÿ spiritual, [illegible]. For these wordes letter, a ministration of death, a ministrynge of condempnacyon and that which is destroyed sygnyfy all one thyng: And these, spret, ministracio of ÿ spret, ministracio of ryghtwesnes & ÿ which remaineth, be they very contraryes. Now wordes meanyng one thynge, must haue one interpretacyon. And by some of the fyrst cannot the lyteral sence be vnderstande, nor by som of the last the spirituall: ergo nether by these wordes, letter or spryte. [illegible] the letter is all one wyth the spryte, and the spryte wyth the letter.

¶ Yf the preachers in dyly great, he corrupteth not the worde of God, he preacheth not hymselfe, but seketh the honour of Christ yea though it be to ÿ parel of hys lyfe.

The iiii. Chapter.

Therfore seing that we haue such an office, euen as mercy is come on vs, we fayne not: but haue cast from vs the cloakes of vnhonestye, and walke not in craftines, nether corrupte we the worde of God: but walke in open truth, and reporte oure selues to euery mans conscience in the sight of god. If our gospel be yet hid, it is hid amonge them that are loste, in whome  the god of thys world hath blynded ÿ mindes of them which beleue not, least the lyghte of the glorious gospel of Christ which is the image of God shuld shyne vnto them.

+ For we preache not our selues, but Christ Jesus to be the Lord, and oure selues youre seruauntes, for Jesus sake. For it is God, that commaunded the lyghte to shyne out of darknes, which hath shyned in oure heartes, for to geue the lyghte of the knowledge of the glorye of GOD, b* in the face of Jesus Christ.

But we haue thys treasure in erthe B vessels ÿ the excellẽt power of it might appeare to be of God, and not of vs. We are troubled on euery syde, yet are we not without shift. We are in pouerty: but not vtterly without somwhat. We are persecuted, but are not forsake. We are cast downe, neuertheles we perishe not. And we alwayes beare in our bodyes the dyenge of the lorde Jesus, that the lyfe of Jesu myght appeare in our bodyes. +

For we which lyue, are allwayes delyuered vnto death for Jesus sake, that the lyfe also of Jesu myghte appeare in oure mortall flesh. So then death worketh in vs, and lyfe in you. + Seynge then that we haue ÿ same spirite of faith, accordinge as it is wrytten: I beleued, and therfore haue I spoken. We also beleue, and therfore speake. For we knowe that he which raysed vp the Lorde Jesus, shall rayse vp vs also, by the meanes of Jesus, and shall set vs wyth you. C
For all thynges do I for youre sakes, that the plenteous grace by thanckes geuen of manye, maye redounde to the prayse of God.

Wherfore we are not weryed, but though thoug our c* outwarde mã perish, yet ỹ inward mã is renewed daie by daie. For our exceding tribulatiõ which is momentary and light, prepareth ã excedinge an eternall waighte of glory vnto vs/while we loke not on ỹ thiges which are sene, but on ỹ thiges which are not sene.

For thiges which are sene are tẽporall: but thiges wich are not sene, are eternal.

¶ The rewarde for sufferyng trouble.

¶ The.v.Chapter.

A We know surely yf oure erthy mácion wherin we now dwel were destroyed/that we haue a building ordeyned of God, an habitacion not made with handes, but eternall in heauen.
And herefore sygh we, desyring to be clo thed with oure mancion which is from heauen: so yet yf that we be founde clothed, ꝛ not naked. For as longe as we are in this tabernacle, we sigh ãd are gre ued, for we woulde not bee vncloathed, but woulde bee cloathed vppon, that mortalite myght be swalowed vp of lyfe. He that hath ordeyned vs for this thing, is God: which very same hath geuen vnto vs the ernest of the sprete.

B Therfore we are alway of good chere, ꝛ knowe well ỹ as longe as wee are at home in the body, we are absent from God. For we walke in fayth and se not.
Neuerthelesse we are of good comfort, and had leuer to be absent from the body and to be presente with the Lord. Wher fore, whether we be at home or from home, we endeuour our selues to please hi.
For we must al appeare before ỹ judgement seate of Christ, that euery mã may receaue the workes of his body acordynge to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad.

C Seinge then that we knowe, how the Lorde is to be feared, a* we fare fayre wt men. For we are knowen well ynough e vnto God. I trust also that we are knowen in youre consciences.

We prayse not oure selues agayne C vnto you, but geue you an occasyon to reioyce of vs, ỹ ye may haue some what agaist thẽ which reioyce in ỹ face, ꝛ not in ỹ hert. For if we be to feruent, to God are we to feruẽt. If we kepe no measure for youre cause kepe we measure.
For the loue of Christ constrayneth vs, because we thus iudge, yf one be deade for all, that then are all deade, and that he dyed for all, that they whyche lyue shoulde not henceforth lyue vnto them selues, but vnto hym which dyed for thẽ and rose agayne.

D Wherfore hence forth knowe we no man after the flesh. In so much though we haue knowen Christ after the flesh, nowe hencefor the knowe we hym so no more. Therfore if any man be in Christ, he is a newe creature. Olde thynges are passed away, beholde all thynges are be A new creacome new. Neuertheles all thynges are ture. of God, which hath reconcyled vs vnto hym self by c* Jesus Christ, and hath geuen vnto vs the office to preach the attonement. For God was in Christe, and made agrement betwene the worl-de and hym selfe and imputed not their synnes vnto them: and hath commited to vs the preachinge of the attonement.
Now then are we messengers i the roume of Christe, euen as though God di-besech you thorow vs. So praye we you in Christes stede, that ye be at one wyth God: for he hath made hym b* to be sin-ne for vs whiche knewe no synne, that we by hys meanes shuld be that rightousnes which before god is alowed.

¶ An exhortacyon to receaue the worde of God wyth thankefulnes and amendement of lyfe. The dylygence of Paul in the gospel, and how he warneth them to eschue, the company of the heathen.

The . vi. Chapter.

A WE as helpers therfor exhorte you, that ye receaue not the grace of God in * vayne. For he saith: I haue herd thee in a tyme accepted: and in ỹ daye of saluacion, haue I succered thee. Beholde, nowe is that wel accepted time: behold now is that day of saluacion. Let vs geue no man occasion to euel, ỹ in oure offyce be founde no faute: but in al thynges let vs behaue our selues as the mynisters of God.

In moche pacience, in afflictions, in necessytye, in anguysse, in stryppes, in presonment, in stryfe: in laboure, in watch-
B inge, in fastinge in purenes in knowledge, in long suffering, in kyndnes, in the holy goost in loue vnfayned, in the wordes of trueth, in the power of God, by ỹ armoure * of rightewesnes of ỹ ryght hande and on ỹ lyfte, in honoure & dishonour, in euel repoꝛt & good repoꝛt, as deceauers & yet true, as vnknowen, & yet knowen: as dyenge, & beholde we yet lyue: as chastened, & not killed: as sorowyng, & yet alwaye mery: as poore, & yet make many riche: as hauing no thyng/ & yet possessing all thinges. b

O ye Corinthyans, oure mouthe is open vnto you. Oure hert is made large: ye are in no strayte in vs, but are in a strayte in youre awne bowelles: I pro-
C mysse you lyke reward to me, as my children. Set youre selues therfore at large, and * beare not a straungers yoke with the vnbeleuers. For what felloship hath ryghtewesnes with vnryghtewesnes? What company hath light wt darknes? What concorde hath Christ with Belial? Ether what parte hath he that beleueth, with an infidell? howe agreeth the temple of God with ymages? And ye are the temple of ỹ lyuinge God, as sayde God. * I wyll dwell amonge them & walke amonge them: & wylbe their God: & they shalbe my people. Wherfore come out from amonge them, & separate youre selues (sayth the Lorde) and touche none vncleane thinge: so wyll I receaue you, & wilbe a father vnto you/ & ye shalbe my sonnes & daughters, sayeth the Lord almyghty.

¶ He exhorteth them to receiue the promyse of God thankfully. The Corinthyans are commended for their obedience and loue to warde Paul.

¶ The . vii. Chapter

SEynge that we haue suche promyses derelye beloued, let vs clense oure selues frõ all fylthynes of the flesh ãd spirite, & grow vp to full holynes in the feare of God. Vnderstande vs, we haue hurte no man: we haue corrupt no mã: we haue defrauded no mã: A I speake not this to condẽpne you, for I haue shewed you before, that ye are in our hertes, to dye and lyue wyth you. I am very bolde ouer you, and reioyce greatly in you. I am fylled with cõforte & am exceadinge ioyouse in al our tribulatiõs. For whẽ we were come into Ma- B cedonia, our flesh had no rest, but we were troubled on euery syde. Outwarde was fightinge, inwarde was feare. Neuertheles God that cõforteth the abiect comforted vs at the cõmyng of Titus.

And not wyth his comminge onely: but also wyth the consolacyon wherwt he was comforted of you. For he tolde vs youre desyre/ your mourninge, your feruent mynde to me warde: so that I now reioyce the more. Wherfore though I made you sory wyth a letter, I repente not: though I did repent. For I perceaue that the same Epistle made you sory though it were but for a ceason. But I nowe reioyce not that ye were sory, but ỹ ye so sorowed that ye repented. For ye sorowed godly: so that in nothynge ye were hurt by vs. For godly sorow cau- C seth repentaunce vnto saluacion not to be repented of: when worldly sorow causeth death.

Beholde what diligence, this godly sorow that ye toke hath wroughte in you: yea it caused you to cleare your selues, it caused indignacyon, it caused feare, it caused desyre, it caused a feruent mynde, it caused punishement/ for in all thinges ye haue shewed youre selues ỹ ye were cleare in that mater. Wherfore though I wrote vnto you, I dyd it not for his cause that did hurte, neyther for his cause that was hurte: but that oure good mynd which we haue toward you in the syght of god, might appeare vnto you.

Therfore we are comforted, because ye are comforted: yea and excedinglye the more ioyed we, for ẏ ioy that Titus had because his sprete was refresshed of you al. I am therfore, not nowe ashamed though I bosted my self to hym of you.
For as al thiges which I preached vnto you are true, euen so is oure bostyng that I bosted my selfe to Titus with al founde true. And nowe is his inwarde affeccion moare aboundaunte towarde you, when he remembreth the obedience of euery one of you: howe wt feare and tremblynge ye receaued hym. I reioyce that I maye be boulde ouer you in all thinges.

¶ He putteth them in remembraunce to helpe the poore saincetes at Jerusalem, acordinge as the Macedonians did.

¶ The. viii. Chapter.

A I Do you to wit brethren, of ẏ grace of God which is geuen in ẏ congregations of Macedonia, howe ẏ the abundaūce of their reioysig is, ẏ they are tryed wt much tribulation.
And therto though they were exceding poore yet haue they geuen exceadynge richly, & ẏ i synglenes. For to their powers (I beare record) yea & beyond their power, they were willyng of their owne accord, & praied vs wt great instaūce, ẏ we wold receue their benefit, & suffer thē to be pertakers wt other i ministring to ẏ saincetes. And this they did, not as we B loked for: but gaue theyr owne selues first to ẏ lord, & after vnto vs by ẏ will of god: so ẏ we could not but desyre Titus to accomplisshe the same beniuolēce among you also / euē as he had begōne.
Now therfore, as ye are ryche in all parties, in faith / in worde, i knowledge, in al feruentnes, and in loue, whiche ye haue to vs: euen so se ẏ ye be plenteous in this beniuolence. This saie I not as commaūding: but because other are so feruēt, therfor proue I your loue / whether it be perfect or no. Ye know the ly-beralitie of our lord Jesus christ, which though he were riche yet for your sakes became pore, that ye thorow his pouer-tie / might be made ryche.
And I geue councell here to. For this is expedient for you, which beganne, not to do only: but also to wyl a yeare ago.
Now therefor perfourme the dede: that as there was in you a redynes to wyll, euen so ye maye perfourme the dede, of that which ye haue. For if there be first C a wyllynge mynde, it is accepted acor-dinge to that a man hath, and not acor-dinge to that he hath not.
It is not my mynde, that other be sett at ease, and ye brought into combraun-ce, but that ther be egalnes now at this tyme, that youre aboundaunce maye succour their lackes. ẏ their abundaūce maye supplie your lacke: ẏ ther maye be equalite, agreing to that which is wri-ten. He that gathered much: had neuer Exo. xvi. the more aboundaunce, and he that gathered lytle, had neuertheles. Thankes be vnto god / which put in the herte of Titus, ẏ same good mind toward you.
For he accepted the request, yea rather he was so wel wyllyng, that of hys owne accorde / came vnto you.
We haue sēt wyth hym that brother whose laude is in the gospell / thorow- D out all ẏ congregacions: & not so only / but is also chosen of ẏ congregacions, to be a felow wt vs in our iourney con-cerninge thys beneuolence ẏ is mynis-tred by vs vnto the prayse of ẏ Lorde and to stirre vp your prompte mynd.
For thys we eschue, that eny man sholde rebuke vs in thys plenteous distribucition that is ministred by vs, & therfore make prouision for honest thynges, not in the syght of God onely, but also in ẏ syght of men
We haue sente with them a brother of oures whome we haue proued dylygent in many thinges, but nowe muche more dyligente. The greate confydence which I haue i you hath caused me this to do: partly for Titus sake, whyche is mi felow ād helper as concerning you, partly because of other whych are our bretheren, and the messengers of the cō-gregaciōs, ād the glory of Chryst: wherfore shew vnto them proffe of your loue and of the reioycinge ẏ we haue of you / that the congregacions maye se it.

¶ In thys chapter doth he the same, that he dyd in the Chapter goynge before, that is, moueth them to helpe the poore Bretheren at Jerusalem.

¶ The. ix. Chapter.

* What saintes signifyeth in scripture, loke act. ix.

Of the ministringe to the * saintes is but superfluous for me to write vnto you: for I know youre redines of mide wherof I bost my selfe vnto them of Macedonia, & saye that Achaia was prepared a yeare a goo, and youre feruentnes hath prouoked many. Neuertheles yet haue I sente these brethren, lest oure reioysinge ouer you shuld be in vaine in this behalfe, and that yee (as I haue sayde) prepare youre selues, leste paraduenture if they of Macedonia come with me, and finde you vnprepared, the bost that I made in this matter, shulde be a shame to vs, I saye not vnto you.

B Wherfore I thought it necessary to exhorte the brethrē, to come before hād vnto you, for to prepare your good blessing promised afore, that it might be redy: so that it be a blissing, and not a defrauding. + This ye remembre, howe that he which soweth litle shal reape litle, ād he that soweth plenteouslye shall reape plenteously. And let euery man do acording as he hath purposed i his hert, not groudgingly, or of necessite. For God loueth a chearful geuer.

Eccle. xxxv.

C God is able to make you riche in al grace, that ye in al thynges hauing sufficient vnto the vtmost, maye be riche vnto al good workes / as it is written.* He hath sparsed abroade and hath geuē to the pore, his rightwesnes remayneth for euer. He that fyndeth the sower sede, shal minister bread for fode, & shal multyplie youre sede and increace the frutes of your rightwesnes + that on all parties, ye maye be made riche in all singlenes, which causeth thorow vs, thankes geuinge vnto God.

Psalm. cxi.

D For the office of this ministracyon, not only supplieth the nede of the saintes: but also is abundaunte herein, that for this laudable ministrig, thākes might be geuen to god of many, which prayse god for the obedience of your professig the gospell of Christe, and for your singlenes in destributing to thē ād to al men, and i their praiers to god for you longe after you, for the aboundaūce grace of God geuen vnto you. Thanckes be vnto god for his vnspekeable gifte;

¶ He toucheth the false Apostles, & defendeth his autorite and calling.

¶ The x. Chapter.

I Paul my selfe beseche you by the mekenes of Christe, which when I am present a monge you am of no reputacion, but am boulde toward you being absente. I beseche you that I nede not to be bould when I am present (with that same cōfidēce, where wt I am supposed to be boulde) against some which repute vs as though we walked carnally. Neuertheles though we walke compassed with the fleshe, yet we warre not fleshlye. For the weapens of oure warre are not carnal thinges, but thinges mighty in god / to caste downe strong holdes, wherwith we ouer throw imaginacions, ād euery hie thing, that exalteth it selfe against the knowledge of God, and bringe into captiuite al vnderstanding to the obedience of Christ, and are ready to take vengaunce on all disobedience, when youre obedyence is fulfilled. Loke ye on thiges after the vtter appearaunce.

C If any man trust in him self that he is Christes, let the same also considre of him selfe, that as he is Christes, euē so are we christes. And though I shulde bost my selfe some what moare of oure auctorite which the Lorde hath geuen vs to edifie and not to distroye you, it shulde not be to my shame. This say I, lest I shulde seme as though I went a boute to make you afraid with letters. For the Epistles (saith he) are stronge: but his bodely presence is weake, and his speache is rude. Let hī that is suche thīke on this wise, that as we are i wordes by letters when we are absent, such are we in dedes when we are present.

D For we cannot find in our hartes to make oure selues of the numbre of thē, or to compare our selues to them, which laude them selues, neuertheles while they measure them selues with them selues, and compare them selues with thē selues, they vnderstand nought. But we wil not reioyce aboue measure: but according to the quantite of the measure which God hath destributed vnto vs, a measure that reacheth euen to you.

For

For we stretche not out oure selues beyond measure, as though we had not reached unto you. For euen to you haue we come with the gospell of Christ, and we bost not oure selues out of measure in other mens labours. Ye and we hope/when youre fayth is increased amonge you/ to be magnified accordynge to oure measure/ more largely, and to preache the gospell in those regions which are beyonde you: and not to reioyce of y which is by an other mans measure pre pared al redy. Let him y reioyseth/ reio-yse in the * Lord. For he y prayseth him selfe is not alowed: but whom the Lorde prayseth.

* Let euery man reioyse in that Christ dyed for him, and not in the holynes of hys awne workes.

¶ Paul (vnder sufferaunce) commendeth him selfe, and defendeth his auctoryte agaynst the false prophetes.

The .xi. Chapter.

Wolde to God, ye could suffre me a lytell in my folishnes: ye and I praie you for beare me. For I am gele-us ouer you with godli gelousye. For I coupled you to one man, to make you a chaste virgin to Christ.
But I feare lest as the serpent begyled Eue thorow his sutteltie, euen so youre wittes shulde be corrupte from the sin-glenes that is i Christ. For yf he that co meth, preache a nother Jesus then him whome we preached: or yf ye receaue an other spirite the that which ye haue rece ued: ether another gospell then that ye haue receaued, ye myght right well ha-ugh I be rude in speaking, yet I am not so in knowledge. How be it amōge you we are knowen to the vtmost what we are in all thynges. Dyd I ther i synne/be cause I submytted my selfe, that ye myghte be exalted, and because I preached to you y gospel of God free I robbed other congregacions, and toke wages of them to do you seruice w al. And when I was present, with you and had

C which was lacking unto me, the brethrē whiche came from Macedonia, supply-

I shuld not be greuous to you: and so will I kepe my selfe. If the trueth of Christ be in me, thys reioysinge shal not be take frō me in the regions of Achaia.
Wherfore because I loue you not? god knoweth. Neuertheles what I do/ that wyll I do to cut awaye occasion from theym whiche desyre occasyon, that they myghte be founde lyke unto vs in that wherin they reioyce. For the false Apostles, are discea[t]ful workers, and fassiō them selues lyke unto the Apostles of Christ. And no meruell, for Satan him selfe is chaunged into the fassion of an angell of lyght. Therfore it is no great thynge though hys ministers fassion D them selues as though they were the ministers of righteousnes: whose end shal be accordinge to their deades. I saye againe, lest anye man thinke that I am folysh: or els euen nowe take me as a fo le that I maye boast my selfe a lytle.
That I speake, I speake it not after y wayes of the Lord, but as it were folyshly, whyle we are now come to bostin-ge. Seinge that manye reioyce after the fleshe, I wil reioyce also. + For ye suffre fooles gladly/ because that ye your sel-ues are wyse. For ye suffre eue if a man bringe you into + bondage: if a man deuoure, if a man take: yf a man exalt him selfe: if a man smite you on the face. I E speake as concernig rebuke, as though we had bene weake.
How be it wherin soeuer eny man dare be bolde (I speake folishly) I dare be bolde also. They are Ebrues, so am I: They are Israelites, eue so am I. They are the seede of Abraham, euen so am I. They are y ministers of Christ (I spe ake as a foole) I am moare: In labou-res moare aboundant: In strypes aboue measure: In preson moare plenterously: In death ofte. Of the Jewes fyue tymes receaued I euery tyme, xl strypes, saue one. Thryse was I beten with rod des. I was once stoned. I suffered thryse shipwracke. Nyght and daye haue in fastinges often, in colde and in nakednes. And besyde the thinges which out wardly happen vnto me, I am combred daily, and do care for all congregaci-ons. Who is sicke, and I am not sicke?

Who is hurte in the fayth and my hert burneth not? If I must nedes reioyce, I will reioyce of myne infirmityes.

The Notes.

* To moche mekenes and obedience is not alowed in the kyngedome of God, but al must be according to knowledge.

¶ Paul is taken vp into the thyrde heauen, and hereth wordes not to be spoken of.

B ne infirmities. And yet though I wolde reioyce, I shuld not be a fole: for I wol be saye the trouth. Neuer thelesse I spare, lest eny man shulde thinke of me aboue that he seythe me to be, or heareth of me.

And lest I shuld be exalted out of measure thorow the aboundance of reue lacyons, ther was geuen vnto me * + vnquietnes of the fleshe, the messengers of Satan to buffet me: because I shuld not be exalted out of measure. For this C thinge besought I the Lord thryse y it myght departe fro me. And he sayd vnto me: my grace is sufficiente for y. For my strength is made perfect thorow weakenes. Very gladly therfor wil I reioyce of my weknes, y the strength of Christ maye dwel in me. + Therfor haue I de-lectacio in ifirmites, in rebukes, i nede, in persecutions, in anguysh, for Christes sake. For when I am weake, then am I stronge.

I am made a fole in bosting my selfe: Ye haue copelled me: I ought to haue be comended of you. For in nothig was I inferyoure vnto the chefe Apostles, though I be nothing, yet the tokes of an Apostle were wrought amonge you wt al pacience, with signes, ad wonders D ad mightie dedes. For what is it where in ye were inferiors vnto other congregatios except it be therin y I was not greuous vnto you. Beholde nowe the third time I am redy to come vnto you: ad yet wyl I not be greuous vnto you.
For I seke not yours, but you. Also y children ought not to laie vp for the fa thers and mothers: but the fathers ad mothers for the children.

I wyl very gladly bestowe, and wil be bestowed for your selues: though y moare I loue you, the lesse I am loued againe. But be it that I greued you not: neuertheless I was craftie & toke you wyth gyle. Dyd I pyll you by any of them which I sent vnto you? I desired Titus, and with him I sent a brother. Dyd Titus defraude you of anye thig? walked we not in our spirite? walked we not in like steppes? Again thin-ke ye that we excuse oure selues?
Wee speake in Chryste in the syghte of God.

But we do all thynges dearly be loued for youre edifieng. For feare lest it come to passe, that when I come, I shal not fynde you suche as I wolde: ad I shalbe foud vnto you such as I wold not: I feare lest there be founde amog you debate, enuieng, wrath, strife, back bytinges, whisperinges, swellinge and discorde. I feare lest when I com agayn ne, god bringe me lowe amounge you, and I be constrained to bewaile manye of them which haue sinned al ready, ad haue not repeted of the vncleness, fornication & wantonnes which they haue committed.

a ✝ Unquietnes of the fleshe is here the violent withstanding and agaynstayng and euil the persecuting of euill mē which cōtinually troubled him, brabled against his preaching. This was the minister of Satan/that as it had bene wyth buffettes vexed hym. His aduersaries which with their blasphemouse & contrariouse teaching dyd dysquiet and tormente him, destroiyng as fast as he edified, were the verye pricke and vnquietnesse of the fleshe, from which he desireth the Lorde to be delyuered.

I certifie you brethren, that the gospel which was preached of me, was not after the maner of men, nether receaued I it of man, nether was I taught it: but receaued it by the reuelacion of Jesus Christ. For ye haue herde of my conuersacyō i tyme paste, in the Jewes wayes, how that beyond measure I persecuted the congregacion of God, and spoiled it: and preuayled in the Jewes lawe aboue many of my companions, which were of mine owne nacion, & was a much more feruent maintayner of the tradicions of the elders.

D But when it pleased god, which seperated me from my mothers wombe, ād called me bi his grace, for to declare his sonne by me, that I shuld preache hym among the heathē: immediatly I cōmuned not of ÿ matter wt * fleshe & bloud, nether returned to Jerusalem to them which were Apostles before me: but went my waye into Arabia, and came againe unto Damasco. Thē after thre yeare I returned to Jerusalē to se Peter, & abode wt hi .xv. daies, no nother of ÿ Apostles sawe I, saue James ÿ Lordes brother. The thiges which I write, beholde god knoweth I lye not.

After that I wente into the costes of Siria & Cilicia & was unknowen as touchige my persō unto ÿ cōgregaciōs of Jewry, which were in Christ. But they hearde only ÿ he whiche persecuted us in tyme past, nowe preacheth the fayth which before he destroyed. And they glorified god one my behalfe.

The notes.

Paule though he came longe after the Apostles, yet had he not his auctorite of Peter, or of any ÿ went before him. Nether brought he with him letters of recommendacion or bulles of confyrmacion. But the confyrmacion of his apostleshyp was the word of god, conscience of men, & the power of the spirite that testyfyed wyth him by miracles and manyfold giftes of grace.

a * Flesh & bloud here signyfie men or mens cōsel.

C He withstādeth Peter in the face & proueth that the lawe & cyrcumcysiō are not necessary to saluaciō.

The .ii. Chapter.

A Then .xiiii. yeares therafter I went up againe to Jerusalem wt Barnabas, & toke with me Tytus also. Yee and I went up by reuelacion & cōmuned wt them, of the gospel, which I preache amonge the Gentiles: but betwene our selues, with them whiche were counted chef, lest it shuld haue bene thought that I should rūne or had runne in vayne. Also Titus which was wyth me, though he were a Greke, yet was not cōpelled to be circumcised, and ÿ because of incommers beyng false brethren whyche came in amonge other to spye out oure libertie which we haue i Christ Jesus, ÿ they myght bring us i to bondage. To whom we gaue no roume, no not for the space of an houre, as concerninge to be brought into subieccyon: ād that because that the trueth of the Gospell myght continue with you.

Of them which semed to be great (what they were in tyme passed it maketh no matter to me: God loketh no mans person) neuerthelesse they which semed great, added nothyng to me. But contrary wyse, when they sawe that the Gospell ouer the uncircūcision was committed unto me, as the Gospel ouer the * circumcisyon was unto Peter: for he that was mighty in Peter in the Apostleshype ouer the circumcisyon, the same was myghty in me amonge the Gentyles: and therfore when they perceaued ÿ grace that was geuen unto me, then James, Cephas, and John, which semed to be pylers, gaue to me and Barnabas ÿ ryght handes, and agreed with us, that we shulde preache amonge the Heathen; and they amounge the Jewes: warninge only that we shulde remember the poore. Which thinge also I was diligent to do. B

And when Peter was come to Antioche, I withstode him in the face, for he was worthy to be blamed. For yer that certayne came from James, he eat wyth the Gentyls. But when they were come, he withdrue and separated him self, fearynge them whych were of the circumcisyon. And the other Jewes dissembled likewise, in so moche that Barnabas was brought in to their simulacion also. But when I sawe, that theye wente not the right way after the trueth of the Gospel, I sayde unto Peter before all men, yf ÿ beynge a Jewe, lyuest after the manner of the gentyles, & not as do ÿ Jewes, C whi

why causeste thou the Gentiles to lyue as do the Jewes? We which are Je-wes by nature, & not sinners of the gen tiles, knowe that a man is not iustified by the * deades of the lawe: but by the faith of Jesus Christ. And therfore we haue beleued on Jesus Christ, that we might be iustified bi the faith of Christ, ād not by the dedes of the lawe: because that by the dedes of the lawe no fleshe can be iustified.

Dedes of ŷ lawe iustyfye not but faith onely.

If then whyle we seke to be made rightwes by Christ, we our selue are foū-D de sinners, is not then Christe ŷ minister of sinne? God forbid. For if I build agayne that which I destroied, the make I my selfe a trespasser. a * But I tho-rowe the lawe / am dead to the lawe: ŷ I myght liue vnto god. I am crucified now not I, but Christ lyueth in me.

For the lyfe which I now lyue in ŷ flesh, I liue by the faith of the sonne of God which loued me, and gaue him selfe for me. I despise not the grace of god. For if rightwesnes com of ŷ law, thē Christ died in vaine.

For the scrypture sawe afore hand, that God wold iustifye the Heathen thorow faith, and therfore shewed before hande glad tydynges vnto Abraham: In thee shall all nacyons be blessed. So then they which be of faith, are blessed wyth B faithfull Abraham. For as mani as are vnder the deades of the lawe, are vnder malediccyō. For it is wryten cursed is euerye man that contynueth not in all thynges which are written in the boke of the lawe, to fulfyll them. That no man is iustifyed by the lawe in the syght of God, is euident. For the iuste shall lyue by fayth. The lawe is not of fayth: but the man that fulfilleth the thi ges contayned yn the lawe (shall lyue in them). But Christ hath delivered vs from the curse of the law, and was made and * a cursed for vs. For it is wryt ten: cursed is euerye one that hangeth on tree, that the blessynge of Abraham myght come on ŷ Gentiles thorow Jesus Christ, and that we might receaue the promes of the sprete thorow fayth.
Brethren, I wyll speake after the maner of me. Though it be but a mans te- C stamēte yet no man despyseth it / or addeth eny thing therto, whē it is once a-lowed. + To Abraham & hys seed were the promyses made. He sayth not in the seedes, as many: but in thy sede, as i on which is Christ. This I saye that ŷ law whych begonne after warde, beyonde iiii.C. & xxx. yeares, doth not disanul ŷ testamēte, that was confirmed afore of God vnto Christward, to make the pro mes of none effect. For yf the inheritaunce come of the lawe, it commeth not to promes. But god gaue it vnto Abra ham by promes.
Wherfore then serueth ŷ law? The law was added because of transgressyon (tyll the seed came to whych the promes was made) and it was ordeyned bi Angeles in the hande of a mediator. A mediator is not a mediator of one. But God is one. Is the lawe then agaynst ŷ promes of God? God forbyd.
Howbeit yf ther had bene a lawe geuen which coulde haue geuen lyfe: then no dout ryghtwesnes shuld haue com by ŷ D law. But ŷ scrypture concludeth al thiges vnder syn, ŷ ŷ promes by ŷ fayth of Jesus

Jesus Christ shulde be geuen unto the y beleue. + before that fayth came, we were kepte and shut up under the lawe unto the faith which shuld afterwarde be declared.

Wherfore the lawe was oure scole-master unto the tyme of Christ, that we myght be made righteous by faith. But after that faith is come, now are we no longer under a scole master. For ye are all the sonnes of God by the fayth which is in Christ Jesus. For al ye that are baptised/haue put on Christ. Now is there no Jewe nether gentile: ther is nether bonde nor fre: there is nether mā nor woman: but ye are al one thinge in Christ Jesu. If ye be Christes, then are ye Abrahams sede, and heires by promes.

The notes. * Christ was accursed for oure sakes, that is: he was punyshed and slayne for oure synnes.

thians.

The. iiii. Chapter.

A ND I saie that the heyre as longe as he is a childe, dif-fereth not from a seruaunt/though he be lord of al, but is under tuters and gouer-ners, until the time appointed of the father. Euen so we, as longe as we were children, were in bondage under the ordinaunce of the worlde. But when the* time was ful come, God sent his sonne borne of a woman and made bond unto the lawe, to redeme them which were under the lawe: y we thorow election myght receaue the inheritaunce y belon geth unto y naturall sonnes. Because ye are sonnes, God hath sent the sprete of his sonne into our hertes, which cri-eth Abba father. Wherfore now, y arte not a seruaunt, but a sonne. If thou be y sonne, y arte also the heire of God tho-row Christe. +

B Not withstandinge, when ye knew not god ye did seruice unto the, which by na ture were no Goddes. But now seynge ye know god (yea rather are knowen of god) how is it y ye tourne againe unto y weake & beggarly ceremonyes, wher un to againe ye desire afresh to be i bōdage.

Beggarlye ceremonyes.

Ye obserue dayes/and monethes, and tymes, and yeares. I am in feare of you least I haue bestowed on you labour in vayne.

Brethren I beseche you/be ye as I am: for I am as ye are. Ye haue not hurt me at all. Ye knowe/how thorowe infyrmitie of the fleshe, I preachede the Gospell unto you at the fyrst. And my temptacion which I suffered by reason of my fleshe, ye despised not, neither abhorred, but receaued me as an Angel of God: yea as Christ Jesus. How happy were ye then? for I beare you recorde y if it hadde bene possible ye woulde haue C plucked out youre owne eyes, and haue geuen them to me. Am I therfore become youre enemy, because I tell you the trueth.

crosse.

They are gelous ouer you amysse.
Yea, they intende to exclude you, that ye shoulde be feruent to them warde. It is good alwayes to be feruente, so it be in a good thinge, and not onely when I am presente wyth you.

My lytle chylderen (of whom I tra-uayle in byrth agayne/untyl Christ bee fashioned in you) I wold I were wyth you nowe, and could chaunge my voyce: for I stande in a doute of you. Tell me ye that desyre to be under the lawe/haue ye not hearde of the lawe? For it is wrytten that Abraham had two son-nes, the one by a bond mayde/the other D by a fre woman. Yea and he which was of the bond woman was borne after the flesh: but he which was of the fre womā was borne by promes. Which thynges betoken mysterye. For these women are two testamentes, the one from the moūt Sina, whych gendreth unto bondage which is Agar. For monte Sina, is cal led Agar in Arabia/and bordreth upon the cytye, whych is now Jerusalem, and is in bondage wyth her chylderen.

But Jerusalem: whych is aboue is free, which is the mother of us all. For it is written. Reioyce thou barren, that bearest no Chylderen, breake forth and crye, thou that trauelest not. For the desolate hath many moo chylderen then she which hath an husbande. Bretherem we are after the maner of Isaac, chylderen of promes. But as then he that was borne

ne carnalli, persecuted hi that was borne spirituallp. Euen so is it nowe. Neuertheles what saith ẏ scripture: put a way the bonde woman and her sonne. For ẏ sonne of the bonde woman shall not be heyre wt the sonne of ẏ free womã. So then brethren we are not chyldren of the bond woman, but of the fre woman.

The notes

a * The time ful com, was the time of Christes commynge which made an ende of the lawe & delivered vs from the burthen therof.

He laboureth to drawe them awaye from cyrcumcysion, sheweth them the battayl betwyxt ẏ spyrete & the flesh, and the fruites of them both.

The .v. Chapter.

A Stande faste therfore in the lybertye wherwith Christ hath made vs free, & wrap not your selues agayne in the yoke of bondage. Beholde I Paul saye vnto you, that if ye be circumcised, Christ shal proffyt you nothinge at al. I testifie agayne to euerye man which is circumcised that he is bounde to kepe the whole lawe. Ye are gone quite from Christ as many as are iustified by the lawe, and are fallen frõ grace. We loke for, and hope in ẏ spyrete to be iustified thorow faith. For in Jesu Christ/nether is circumcisyon, anye thing worth, ether yet vncircũcisiõ, but * fayth which by loue is mighty in operacion: Ye dyd rũne wel: who was a let vnto you, that ye shoulde not obeye the D truethe? Euen ẏ councel that is not of hi that called you. A lytle leuen doth leuen the whole lompe of dowe.

B I haue truste towarde you in ẏ Lorde, that ye shuld be none other wise minded. He that troubleth you, shal bere his iudgment what soeuer he be. Brethren yf I yet preach circumcision: why do I then yet suffer persecution? For then had the offence which the crosse geueth, ceased. I wolde to God they were seperated from you, which trouble you. Brethren ye were called into lybertye) only let not youre libertie be an occasiõ vnto the fleshe, but in loue serue one an other.

For al the lawe is fulfylled in one worde, which is this: thou shalt loue thyne C neyghbour as thy selfe. If ye byte and deuour one another: take hede lest ye be consumed one of another.

* I saye walke in the spyrete, and fulfyl not the lustes of the fleshe. For the fleshe lusteth contrarye to the spirite, and the spyrete contrary to the fleshe. These are contrary one to the other, so that ye cannot do that whych ye wolde. But & yf ye be led of ẏ spyrete, then are ye not vnder the lawe. The dedes of the fleshe are manifest, which are these, aduoutrie, fornicacion, vncleannes, wantãnes, D ydolatrye/witchecraft hatred, variaunce, zele/wrath, stryfe/sedicion, sectes, enuyinge, murther, dronkennes, glottony, and soche like of the which I tell you before as I haue tolde you in time past, that they whych commyt soche thynges, shall not inherite, ẏ kyngdome of God. But * ẏ frute of the spyrete is, loue, ioye, peace, long sufferinge, gentlenes, goodnes, faythfulnes, meakenes, temperancy. Agaynst suche ther is no lawe. They that are Christes/haue crucifyed ẏ fleshe with the appetites and lustes.

* If we liue in the spyrete, let vs walke in the spyrete. Let vs not be vaine glorious, prouokig one another, & enuieng one another.

The notes.

To commyt suche dedes maketh vs vnder dampnation of the lawe

* The frute of the spyrte. These dedes testyfy that we are not vnder the dampnacion of the lawe.

He exhorteth them to brotherly loue, and one to beare with another. In the ende he warneth them to beware of circumcisyon.

The .vi. Chapter.

Brethren, yf eny man be fallen by chaunce into eny faute: ye which are spirituall, A healpe to amende him in ẏ spyrete of mekenes: considering thy selfe, lest thou also be tempted. Beare ye one anothers burthen/and so fulfyll the law of Christ. If eni man seme to hym self that he is somwhat, whẽ in dede he is nothinge, the same deceaueth him selfe in hys imaginacion. Let euery man proue his awne worke, and then shal he haue reioysynge in hys awne selfe, & not in another. For euery man shall beare his awne burthen.

Let him that is taught i the worde, minister vnto hym that teacheth hym, i al good thinges. Be not * deceaued, God is not mocked.

For what soeuer a mā soweth, that shal he reape. He that soweth in his fleshe shal of ÿ flesh reape corruptiō. But he that soweth in the spirite, shal of ÿ spirite reape lyfe euerlastinge. Let vs not be C wery of wel doinge. For when the time
ii. Tessalo iii is come, we shal reape wͭ oute werines. While we haue therfore time, let vs do good vnto al men, and specyallye vnto theym whyche are of the housholde of fayth.

Beholde howe large a letter I haue writen vnto you with mine owne hand. As many as desyre with outwarde appearaunce to please carnally / they constraine you to be circumcised, onelye because they wolde not suffer persecutyō with the crosse of Christe. For they thē selues whyche are cyrcumcysed, kepe not the lawe: but desyre to haue you circumcysed, that they might reioye i your flesshe.

God forbyd that I shoulde reioyce, but in ÿ crosse of our Lord Jesu Christ, D wherby the worlde is crucyfied as touchyng me, and I as touching ÿ world. For in Christ Jesu nether circūcysyon auayleth any thing at al, nor vncyrcumcisyon: but a * new creature. And as many as walke accordig to this rule, peace be on them, and mercy, and vpon Israel that pertayneth to god. From hence forthe, let no man put me to busynes. For I beare in my bodye ÿ markes of the Lorde Jesu.

Brethren the grace of oure Lorde Jesu Christ be with your spirite Amen.

* Nothinge helpeth saue to be a newe creature.

to the prayse of the glorye of hys grace, wherewith he hathe made vs accepted in the beloued.

By whom we haue redemption thorow hys bloude, euen the forgeuenesse of sinnes, according to the riches of his grace, which grace he shed in vs abundauntlye in all wysdom, and prudence. And hath opened vnto vs the * mystery of his wyl, acording to hys pleasure, and purposed the same in hym selfe / to haue it declared when the tyme were ful come, that all thynges, both the thinges which are in heauen, and also the thynges whiche are in earthe shoulde be gathered together, euen in Chryste, that is to saye, in hym in whome we are made heyres, and were therto predestinate accordinge to the purpose of hym whyche worketh al thinges, after the purpose of hys owne wil: ÿ we which before beleued in Chryste, should be vnto the prayse of hys glory.

Predestynacyon

In

In whom also ye (after that ye hearde ÿ worde of trueth, I meane the Gospell of youre saluacyon, wherin ye beleued) were sealed wyth the holy sprete of pro mes, whych is the ernest of oure inherytaunce, to redeme the purchased possession, & ÿ vnto ÿ laude of hys glory.

B Wherfore euen I (after that I hearde of the fayth which ye haue in the Lorde Jesu, and loue vnto al the saynctes) cease not to geue thankes for you, makinge mencion of you in my prayers, that the god of oure lorde Jesus Christ and the father of glory/might geue vnto you the sprete of wysdome, and open to you the knowledge of hym selfe, and lyghten the eyes of youre myndes, that ye myght knowe what that hope is, where vnto he hath called you, and what the ryches of his glorious inheritaunce is vpon ÿ saynctes, ād what is the exceadinge greatnesse of hys power in vs warde, whyche *beleue accordynge to the workynge of ÿ hys myghty power, which he wrought in Chryste, when he raysed hym from ÿ the dead, and set hym on his ryght hand in heuenly thinges, aboue all rule, power, and myght and dominacyon, and aboue al names that are named, not in this worlde only, but also in the worlde to come: and hath put all thynges vnder his fete, and hath made him aboue al thinges, the heed of the congregacyō which is his body and the fulnes of him ÿ fylleth all in all thinges.

The faith in Christ is, and loue are declared in dedes.

* faythe ys the worke of God onelye, euen as was that raysyng vp of Christ.

¶ Paul sheweth them what maner of people they were before their conuersion, and what they are now in Christ.

The .ii. Chapter.

A And you hath he quyckened also that were dead in trespasse and synns, in the which in time passed ye walked, accordynge to the course of this world, and after the gouernour that ruleth in the ayer, the sprete ÿ now worketh in the chyldren of vnbelefe, amōge whych we also had oure conuersacyon in tyme past, in ÿ lustes of oure fleshe/ and fulfylled the wyll of the fleshe and of the mynde: and were *naturally the chyldren of wrath, euē as wel as other.

But God which is rych in mercy thorow his greate loue wherwyth he loued vs/ euen when we were dead by synne/ hath quickened vs to gether in Christ (for by grace are yee saued) and hath raysed vs vp together and made vs sit together in heauenly thinges thorowe B Christ Jesus, for to shewe in tymes to come the exceadinge riches of his grace, in kindnes to vswarde in Christ Jesu. For by grace are ye made safe, thorowe faith, and that not of youre selfes. For it is the gift of God, and commeth not of workes, least anye man shoulde boaste hym selfe. For we are hys workemanshyppe created in Christ Jesu vnto good workes, vnto the which God ordeyned vs before that we shoulde walke in them.

Wherfore remembre that ye beinge in tyme passed Gentiles in the fleshe, ād were called vncircumcision to thē which are called circumcision in the flesh, which circumcision is made by handes: Remēbre I saye, that ye were at that tyme without Christ, and were reputed aliantes C from the comen welth of Israel and were straungers from the b*testamentes of promes, and had no hope, and were without God in thys worlde. But now in Christe Jesu/ye whiche a while ago were farre of, are made nie by the bloud of Christ.

For he is our peace, which hath made of both one, and hath broken downe the c*wall, that was a stoppe betweene vs, ād hath also put away thorow hys flesh d*ÿ cause of hatred, that is to say ÿ lawe of commaundementes, contayned in the law written, for to make of twayne one newe man in him selfe so makig peace: and to reconcile both vnto god in one body, thorow his crosse, and slewe D hatred there by: and came and preached peace to you which were a far of, to thē that were nye. For thorow him, we both haue an open waye in/in one spirite vnto the father.

*Now therfore are ye no more straungers and forreners: but citesyns with ÿ housholde of God: and are bylte vpon the e*foundacion of the Apostles and Prophetes. Jesus Christ beinge ÿ head corner stone, in whome, euery buildinge coupleth together, groweth vnto an holy[f] * temple in the Lorde, in whom ye also are built together, and made an habitacyon for God in the sprite.

a * The promises of mercye in Chrystes bloude are made vs on that condition that we kepe the lawe & loue one another as Chryst loued vs.

b * The Gentyles tyll Chryst come, were not vnder the couenaunt of mercy, but the Jewes onely.

c * Moyses law that was the wall and cause of hate betwene the Jewes and gentyles, is taken away: In whose steade is Jesus come to loue one another as Christ loued vs.

d * The cause of hatred betwene the Heathen, and the Jewes. For by the lawe wold the Jewes be better then the heathen But now that they both haue one spirite thorow Christ without the lawe, ẏ hatred hath an end, and the one is euen as the other in Christ.

e * Foundation is the word of God.

f * Temple in the epistles of the apostles signifieth the congregation of faithfull, holye and vertuouse men. Somtyme it signifieth the hert of euery Christian, as in .ii. Cor. vi. d. & i Cor. iii. and. vi. d

¶ He sheweth the cause of his presonment/desyreth them not to faynte because of hys trouble and prayeth god to make them stedfaste in his sprete.

The .iii. Chapter

A For this cause I Paul am i the bondes of Jesus Christ for youre sakes which are heathen: If ye haue hearde of the mynystracion of the grace of god, which is geuen me to you warde. For by reuelaciõ shewed he this misterye vnto me as I wrote aboue in fewe wordes, wher by when ye reade ye may know, myne vnderstanding in the mistery of Christ, wich mistery in times passed was opened vnto the sonnes of men, as it is now declared vnto hys ho ly apostles and prophetes by the sprite: that the Gẽtiles shoulde be inheritours also, and of the same bodye, and parta-kers of hys promes that is in Chryste, by the meanes of the gospell, wherof I am made a minister, by the gyfte of the B grace of god, geuen vnto me thorow ẏ workinge of hys power.

Unto me the least of al saínctes, is thys grace geuen, that I shuld preache among the Gentiles the vnsercheable ryches of Chryst, and to make all men se what the fellowshippe of the mistery is, which from the beginning of the worlde hath ben hid in God, whych made al thiges thorow Jesus Chryst/to the entent that now vnto the rulers and powers i heauen myght be knowen by the congre gacion, the manyfolde wysdom of god, accordinge to the eternal purpose which he purposed in Chryst Jesu our Lorde, by whome we are bolde to drawe nyghe in ẏ trust which we haue by fayth on hi-+ Wherfore I desire that ye fainte not because of my tribulacions for your sakes: which is your praise.

For this cause I bowe my knees vn- C to the father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which is in earth/that he wolde graunt you acording to the riches of his glory, that ye maye be strengthed with myght by his sprete in ẏ inner man that Christ maye dwell in youre hertes by + faith/ẏ ye beinge roted and grounded in loue/might be able to comprehende with all sainctes, what is ẏ bredeth and length, depth and heith: and to know what is ẏ loue of Christ, which loue passeth know lege: that ye myghte be fulfylled with all maner of fulnes which commeth of God.

Unto him that is able to do exceading aboũdatly, aboue al that we aske D or thincke accordinge to the power that worketh in vs bee praise in the congre gacion by Jesus christ, thorow all generations from tyme to tyme, Amen.

The notes.

Where true fayth i Chryst is, there is loue to ẏ neyboure. And fayth and loue maketh vs vnderstande al thynges. Faith vnderstãdeth the secretes of god, and the mercy that is geuen her in Christ. And loue knoweth her dutie to her neighboure, and can interprete al lawes and ordinaunces and sheweth how farre forth they are to be kepte, and when to be dispensed with.

¶ He exhorteth them vnto mekenes, lõge suffering vnto loue and peace, euerye one to serue and edify another with the gifte that God hath geuen him, to beware of straunge doctrine, to laye asyde the olde conuersation of gredye lustes, and to walke i a new life.

The .iiii. Chapter.

Therfore which am in bon-des for the Lordes sake ex-horte you, ẏ ye walke worthy of the vocation where- A with ye are called, in al hũ-blenes of mind, and mekenes, and lõge sufferinge, forbearing one another tho-rowe loue, and that ye be diligent to ke-pe the vnitie of the sprete in the bond of peace, being one body, ãd one sprete eue as ye are called in one hope of your cal lynge. Let there be but one Lorde, one faith/one baptime: one God and father of al which is aboue al thorow al, and in you all.

Unto euery one of vs is geuen grace, accordynge to the measure of the gyfte of Christ. Wherfore he sayeth: he is gone vp an hye and hath ledde captiuitie captiue, & hath geuen gyftes vnto men.
C That he ascended: what meaneth it, but that he also descended fyrst into the lowest partyes of the erth? He that descended, is euen the same also that ascended vp, euen aboue al heauens, to fulfyll all thinges. And the very same, made some Apostles, some Prophetes, som Euangelistes, some Shepherdes, & som Teachers: that the sayntes myght haue all thynges necessary to worcke and minister with all, to the edifying of the body of Christ, tyl we euery one (i the vnitie of faith, and knowledge of y sonne of God) growe vp vnto a parfayte men, after the measure of * age of the fulnes of Christ. That we hensforth be no moare children, wauering and caryed wyth euerye wynde of doctrine, by the wylynes of men and craftynes, wherby they laye awayte for vs to deceaue vs. But D let vs folowe the trueth in loue, and in all thinges growe in him which is the head, that is to saie Christ, in whome all the body is coupled and knyt to gether, in euery ioynt, wherwith on mynystreth to another (accordinge to the operacyon as euerye parte hath his measure) & increaseth the body, vnto the edyfyinge of it selfe in loue.
This I saye therfore, and testifye in y Lorde, that ye hence forth walke not as other Gentiles walke in vanitye of their mynde, blinded in their vnderstandinge, beynge straungers from the lyfe which is in God thorow the ignoraunce that is in them, because of the blindnes of their hertes, which beynge past repentaunce, haue geuen the selues vnto wantannes, to worcke all maner of vnclennes, euen with gredines. But ye haue not so learned Christ, yf so be ye haue hearde of him & are taught in him, euē as the truth is in Jesu. So then as con-E cerning the conuersacion in tyme past, laye from you that olde man, which is corrupt thorow the deceauable lustes, and be ye renued in the spirite of your myndes, and put on that newe manne, whych after the ymage of God is shapen in rightewesnes and true holynes.
Wherfore put awaye lienge, and speake euery mā truth vnto his neighboure, for as much as we are membres one of another.  Be angrye but synne not: let not the sonne go downe vppon your wrath, nether geue place vnto the backbyter. Let him that stole, steale no more, but let hi rather laboure with his handes some good thinge, that he maye haue to geue vnto him that nedeth.
F Let no filthie communication proceade out of youre mouthes: but that which is good to edyfie wal, when nede is: that it may haue fauour with y hearers. And greue not the holye spirite of god, by whom ye are sealed vnto y day of redempciō. Let al bitternes, fearsnes and wrath, roring and cursid speakyng be put awaie from you, with all malyciousnes. Be courteous one to another and mercyfull, forgeuing one another, euen as God for Chrystes sake forgaue you.

The notes.

* Wherfore the true mynysters of the congregaciō serue. Euen to make vs perfect men i the ful knowledge of Christ.
a  Be angry, Christ was angry at the blyndnes of the Jewes, Mat. xxiii. And so was Moses at the idolatry of the Israelites. Exo. xxxii. and at the sedycyon of Chor, Dathan and Abiron, Nu. xvi. Neuertheles thys anger or wrath was but a very zele vnto the lawe of god, thou mayest se by Phineas, Nume. xxv. and Mathathias, i. Machabeo. ii. In for malice or vnlawful wrath, yt is forbydden, as it followeth here in thys Chapter.
¶ He exhorteth them vnto loue, warneth thē to beware of vnclennes, couetousnes, folysh talkynge & false doctryne: to be cyrcumspecte, to auoyde dronkennesse, to reioyce ād to be thankeful toward god, to submyt thē selues one to another. He teacheth how wemen shuld obey their husbandes, & how louyngly men ought to intreate theyr wyues.

The .v. Chapter.

Be ye folowers of god as deare children, ād walke in loue euē as Christ loued vs,
A and gaue hym selfe for vs, an offeringe and a sacrifice of a swete sauer to God. So that fornicacion and all vnclenes or couetousnes be not once named amonge you as it becommeth sayntes: nether filthynes, nether folyshe talkynge, nether gestyng, which are not cōlye: but rather geuinge of thankes.

For this ye knowe that no whoremonger, ether vncleane person, or couetous person, which is the worshipper of images, hath eny inheritaunce in the kyngdome of Christ and of God. Let no man deceaue you with vayne wordes.

For thorow suche thynges commeth the wrath of God vpon the chyldren of vnbelefe. Be not therfore companyons wyth them. Ye were once derckenes, but are now lyght in the Lorde.

Walke as chyldren of lyght. For the frute of the spirite is in all goodnes, ryghtewesnes C & trueth. + Accepte that which is pleasynge to the Lorde: and haue no felloshipe wyth the vnfrutful workes of darcknes: but rather rebuke them.

In manifeste cause of euel lyuynge.

For it is shame euen to name those thinges which are doune of them in secrete: but all thinges, when they are rebuked of the lyght, are manifest. For what soeuer is manifest, that same is light. wherfore he sayeth: awake thou that slepest, & stonde vp from death, and Christ shall geue the lyght.

+ Take hede therfore that ye walke circumspectly, not as fooles: but as wyse redeming the tyme: for the dayes are euil.

Wherfore, be ye not vnwyse, but vn D derstand what the will of the Lorde is, & be not dronke with wine wherin is excesse: but be fulfylled wyth the spirite speakinge vnto your selues in psalmes and hymnes, and spiritual songes, singinge and makinge melodie to the Lorde in your hertes, geuyng thankes alwayes for all thynges vnto God the father, in the name of oure Lorde Jesus Christ: submittyng youre selues one to another in the feare of God. +

Wemen submyt your selues vnto youre awne husbandes, as vnto the Lorde. For the husband is the wyues head euen as Christ is the head of the congregacion, and the same is the sauioure of the body. Therfore as the congregacion is in subiection to Christ, likewyse let the wyues be in subiection to their husbandes in all thinges. Husbandes loue youre wiues, euen as CHRYSTE loued the congregacion, and gaue him selfe for it, to sanctify it, and clensed it in the fountain of water thorow the worde to make it vnto him selfe, a glorious congregacion with out spott or wrinckle or any suche thinge: but that it shoulde be holy and without blame.

So ought men to loue their wyues, as their awne bodyes. He that loueth hys wyfe, loueth him selfe. For no man euer yet hated his awne fleshe: but norisheth & cherissheth it, euen as the Lorde doth the congregacion. For we are membres of his body, of hys fleshe, & of his bones. For thys cause shall a man leaue father and mother, and shal continue with his wyfe/ and two shalbe made one flesh. This is a great secrete, but I speake bitwene Christ and the congregacion. Neuerthelesse do ye so that euery one of you loue his wife truely euen as him selfe. And let the wife se that she feare her husbande.

How chyldren shoulde behaue them selues towarde theyr fathers & mothers, lykewise fathers towarde theyr Children, Seruauntes toward theyr masters & agayne masters toward their seruauntes, an exhortacyon to the spirytual batel and what wepons Christen men shoulde fight wythall.

¶ The. vi. Chapter.

Children obey youre fathers and mothers in the Lorde: for so is it ryght. Honoure thy father and mother, that is the fyrst commaundement, that hath eny promes, that thou mayst be in good estate, and lyue longe on the erthe. And ye fathers moue not youre chyldren to wrath/ but brynge them vp with the norter and informacion of the Lorde. Seruaunts be obedient vnto youre carnall masters, with feare & tremblyng in singlenes of youre hertes, as vnto Christ: not with seruice in eye syght, as men pleasers: but as the seruauntes of Christ, doynge the wyll of God from the herte with good wil, seruing the Lorde, and not men. And remember that whatsoeuer good thinge eny man doeth that B shall he receaue agayne of the Lorde, whether he be bond or fre. And ye maysters, do euen the same thynges vnto them puttynge awaye threatninges: and remember that euen youre mayster also is in heauen, nether is ther eny respecte of person with hym.

+ Finally my brethren/ be stronge in the Lord & in the power of hys myght. Put on the armoure of God, that ye may stande stedfast agaynst the crafty assautes of

of the deuel.
For we wrestle not againste fleshe ād bloudde: but against rule, againste power, and agaynste worldely rulers, of the derknes of this worlde agaynst spiry-C tuall wickednes, for heauenly thinges.
For thys cause take vnto you ẏ * armoure of God, that ye maye be able to resyst in the euyll daye, and stande per-fecte in al thinges.
Stande therfore, and your loynes girde aboute with veritie, hauing on ẏ brest plate of righteousnes/ and shod wyth showes prepared by the gospel of peace. Aboue al take to you the shild of faith, wherwith ye may quenche al ẏ fy-rye dartes of the wicked. And take the helmet of saluacyon, and the swerde of the spirite, which is the worde of god. F And pray al wayes with al maner praier and supplicacion: and that in ẏ spirit: and watch ther vnto with all instance & supplicacion for al sainctes and for me, that vtteraūce may be geuen vnto me/that I maye open my mouth boldly, to vtter the secretes of the gospell, wherof I am messenger in bondes, that therin I may speake frely, as it becōmeth me to speake.
But that ye maye also know what D condityon I am in and what I do, Tychicus my deare brother & faithfull mynister in the Lorde, shall shewe you of al thinges, whome I sent vnto you for the same purpose, that ye might knowe what case I stande in, and ẏ he might comfort your hertes. Peace be with the brethren and loue with faith, from God the father and from the Lord Jesu Christ. Grace be with all thē which loue our Lorde
Jesus Christ
in pureneṡ.
Amen.

furtheringe of the gospell.

So that my bãdes in Christ, are manyfest thorow out al the iudgment hall, ãd in al other places: In so much that many of the brethren in the Lord are boldned thorow my bandes, and dare more largely speake the worde without feare. Some there are which preache Christe of enuye and strife, and some of good wyl. The one parte preacheth Christ of strife ãd not purely, supposig to adde more aduersitie to my bandes. The other parte of loue / because they se ỷ I am set to defende the Gospel.

What then? So that Christ be preached all maner wayes whether it be by occasion/ or of true meaning, I therin

For I knowe that this shal chaunce to my saluacion, thorow youre prayer and ministring of the sprete of Jesu Christ, as I hartely loke for, and hope that in nothing I shalbe ashamed: but ỷ with al confidence, as all wayes in times past, euen so Christ shal be magnified in my body, whether it bee thorow life, or els death. For Christe is to me life/ ãd death is to me auaũtage.

If it chaunce me to liue in ỷ flesh, that is to me frutefull for to worke, and what to chouse I wot not, * I am constrained of two thinges: I desire to be

¶ He warneth thē to beware of false teachers / who he calleth dogges and enemies of Christ and repro-ueth mans owne righteousnes.

¶ The iii. Chapter.

A Moreouer, my brethren reioyce in the Lorde. It greueth me not to write one thing oftē to you. For to you it is a sure thing. Beware of dog ges, beware of euyl workes. Beware of dissencion. For we are circūcision which worship God in the spirite, and reio-yce in Christ Iesu and haue no confidē-ce in the fleshe: though I haue whereof I myght reioyce in the fleshe. If eny other man thinketh that he hath wher of he might trust i ỳ flesh: moch more I: circūcised ỳ eight day of ỳ kinred of Israel, of the tribe of Beniamī, an hebrue borne of the hebrues: as concerninge ỳ la-we, a Pharisaye, and as concerning fer-uentnes, I persecuted the congregaciō, and as touching the righteousnes whiche is in the law, I was vnrebukeable.
But the thinges that were vauntа-ge vnto me, I counted losse for Christes sake. Yee I thinke al thiges but losse for B ỳ excellent knowlegges sake of Christe Iesu my Lorde. For whom I haue counted al thinges losse, & do iudge the but donge, that I might winne Christ, & might be founde in him, not hauinge mine awne ryghtewesnes which is of ỳ la-we: but that which springeth of the fay-th which is in Christ. I meane the rightewesnes which cōmeth of God thorow fayth in knowinge him and the vertue of the resurreccion, and the fellowship of his passions that I myght be cōforma-ble vnto his (death) yf by eny meanes I myght attayne vnto the resurreccion of ỳ dead. Not as though I had al redy atay ned to it, ether were all redy parfect: but I folowe, yf that I maye cōprehende ỳ wherin I am cōprehended of Christ Ie su. Brethren I counte not my selfe that I haue gotten it: but one thinge I saye I forget that which is behind & stretche my selfe vnto that which is before and preace vnto that marke apoynted / to obtayne the rewarde of the hye callinge of God in Christ Iesu. Let vs ther- C fore as many as be perfect, be thus wise mynded: & yf ye be other wyse mynded, I praye God open euen this vnto you: Neuerthelesse in that whe vnto we are cōe, let vs procede by one rule, ỳ we maye be of one accord. Brethren be folowerS of me, & loke on them which walke euen so, as ye haue vs for an ensample.
For many walke (of whō I haue tolde you often and now tell you weping) ỳ they are ỳ enemies of ỳ crosse of Christ, whose ende is dampnacion whose god is their bely, ād whose glory is to their shame, which are worldy mynded.

But oure conuersacion is in heauē/ frō whence we loke for a sauioure, euen the Lorde Jesus Christ, which shall chaunge oure vyle bodies, that they maye bee fashioned lyke vnto his glorious body, according to the workinge, wherby he is able to subdue all thinges vnto hym selfe. ⊦

If we be lyke Christ in conuersació we shal be lyke him in glorye.

* We worshippe god in spyrite thorowe fayth and loue, we reioyce that Christ hath redemed vs & trust not in our workes. Christ only is our ryghteousnes & for hys sake our synnes are forgeuen: And for hys sake oure good workes are acceptable which els were damnable for ẏ synne that is in them.

¶ He saluteth certayne of them, exhorteth them to be of honest conuersation, & thanketh thē because of ẏ prouision, ẏ they made for hi being in preson.

¶ The.iiii. Chapter.

A Therfore my brethren dearely beloued and longed for, my ioye ād croune, so continue in the Lorde ye beloued. I praye Euodias and beseche Syntiches, that they be of one accorde in the Lorde. And the peace of God whiche passeth all vnderstandinge, kepe youre hertes and mindes in Christ Jesu. ⊦

Furthermore brethren, what soeuer thynges are true, whatsoeuer thynges are honest, what soeuer thiges are iust, what soeuer thinges are pure, whatsoeuer thinges pertayne to loue, what soeuer thinges are of honest reporte: if there be any vertuous thinge: yf there be any

C laudable thig, these same haue ye in youre mynd, which ye haue both lerned and receaued, herd and also sene in me: those thinges do, and the god of peace shal be with you. I reioyce in the Lord greatly that now at the laste ye are reuiued agayn to care for me, in that wherin ye were also careful, but ye lacked oportunite. I speake not because of necessitye. For I haue lerned in what soeuer estate I am, therwith to be contente. I can both cast doune my selfe, I cā also exceade. Euery where and in al thinges I am instructed, both to be ful and to be hongrye, to haue plentye and to suffer nede. I can do al thiges thorowe the helpe of Christ which strengtheneth me: Not withstandinge ye haue well done, that ye bare parte with me in my tribulacion.

Ye of Philippos knowe that in ẏ beginning of the Gospel, when I departed from Macedonia, no cōgregaciō bare parte wt me as concerning geuing & receauīg/ but ye onely. For when I D was in Thessalonia ye sent once ād after warde againe vnto my nedes: not ẏ I desire giftes: but I desire abundaūte frute on youre parte. I receaued all, & haue plentie. I was euē filled after ẏ I had receaued of Epaphroditus, that which came frō you, an* odour ẏ smelleth swete, a* sacrifice accepted and pleasaunte to god. My god fulfill al youre nedes thorow his glorious riches i Jesu Christ. Unto god and oure father be prayse for euermore. Amen. Salute all the sainctes in Christe Jesu. The brethren which are with me, grete you. All ẏ saintes salute you: ād most of al they which are of the emperours houshold.

forted and knit to gether in loue, and in al ryches of full vnderstandinge, for to knowe the mystery of God the father & of Christ, in whom are hyd al the treasures of wysdome & knowledge. This I saye lest eny man shulde begile you with entisinge wordes. For though I be absent in the fleshe, yet am I present wyth

i. Corin. v. b you in the sprete, ioyinge and beholdynge that order that yee keape/and youre stedfast fayth in Christ. As ye haue ther-B fore receaued Christ Jesu the Lord, euen so walke, rooted and buylt in him & stedfaste in the fayth, as ye haue learned: & therin be plentous in geuynge thankes. Beware lest eny man come and spoyle you thorow philophy & disceatful vanitie, thorow y tradicyons of men, & ordinaunces after the worlde/and not after Christ. For [a] in him dwelleth all y fulnes of that godhed bodily, & ye are complete in him whych is the head of al rule and power, in whō also are circumcised wyth circumcisyon made wyth out handes, by puttynge of the synfull bodye of the fleshe thorow the circumcisyon that is i Christ, i that ye are buryed with him thorow baptime, in whom ye are also rysen agayne thorow fayth, that is wrought by the operacion of God which rays-C ed him from death.

And ye which were dead in synne thorowe y vncircumcision of youre fleshe, hath he quyckened wyth hym and hath forgeuen vs al our trespaces, and hath putte oute the [b] hand wrytynge y was agaynst vs, contayned in the lawe written: and y hath he take out of the way & hath fastned it to his crosse, & hath spoyled rule & power, and hath made a shewe of them openly/& hath triumphed ouer thē in his awne person.

D Let no man therfore trouble youre consciences aboute meate and drincke, or for a pece of an holy day/as the holy daye of the newe mone, or of the Sabboth dayes, which are nothig but shadowes of thinges to com: but [c] y body is i Christ. Let no man make you shote at a wronge marke which after is awne imaginacion walketh in the humblenes and holynes of angeles, things which he neuer sawe: causelesse puft vp with his fleshly mynde/& holdeth not y heed, wherof al the body by ioyntes ād couples receaueth norishmente and is knyt togeather, and encreaseth wyth the increasyng that commeth of God.

Wherfore yf ye be dead wyth Christ from ordinaunces of the world, why as though ye yet liued in the world, are ye ledde with tradicions of them that saye: Touche not/tast not, handel not, which al perishe wyth the vsynge of them, and are after the commaundmentes and doctrynes of men: which thynges haue the symlytude of wysdom i chosen holynes & humblenes, & in y they spare not y body, and do y fleshe no worshyp vnto hys nede.

The notes.

a In hym dwelleth all the fulnes of the godheade bodely, that is, verely and in deade, not in shadowes: so that when ye haue hym ye ought not to folow the shadowe of Moyses lawe, or the entisementes and iudgeynges of mannes wisdome. The truth is now euidently set before all your sences, ye maye not now beholde fygures and doubtful promyses.

b The lawe is our hand wrytinge in that the conscience setteth to her seale subscribeth ād consenteth that the lawe is euil, and we synners, which law concerning dampnation is taken away thorow faythe in Christ.

c The body is in Christ, that is, the truth and very performaunce is in Christ, whom the shadowes did prefygure.

He putteth them in remembraunce of the spirituall resurrection, to laye asyde all maner of corrupte lyuing, to be frutefull in al godlynesse and vertu, and shewe wyth all degrees there dutye

The .iii. Chapter.

A If ye be then rysen againe wyth christ seke those thiges whiche are aboue, where Christ sytteth on the ryght hande of God. Set youre affeccyon on thinges that are aboue, & not on thiges which are on the earth. For ye are dead, and youre lyfe is hyd wyth Christ in God. When Christ which is oure lyfe, shall shewe him selfe/then shall ye also appere with him in glory.

Mortify therfore your mēbres which are on the earth, fornicacion, vnclennes, vnnaturall Luste, euill Concupiscence, and couetousnes which is worshyppinge of ydoles: for which thinges sakes y wrath of God cometh on the children of vnbeleife. We geue God thankes alway for you all makyng mēciō of you in our praiers without ceasynge, and call to re-membraunce youre worke in the fayth, & labour in loue and perseueraunce in the B hope of oure Lorde Jesus Christ, in the sight of god our father: because we knowe brethren beloued of God howe that ye are electe. For oure Gospell came not unto you in worde only, but also in power, and also in the holy gost and in mo-che certayntye, as ye knowe after what maner we behaued oure selues amōge lowers of us and of the Lorde, & recea-C ued the word in moch afflicciō, with ioye of the holy goost: so that ye were an ensā-ple to all that beleue in Macedonia & Achaia. For from you sounded out the worde of the Lorde/not in Macedonia and in Achaia only: but youre faith also which ye haue unto God, spred her selfe abroade in all quarters, so greatly that it nedeth not us to speake eny thinge at D all. For they them selues shewe of you what maner of entrynge in we had unto ges, for to serue the lyuing & true God/and for to loke for his sonne from heauen, whom he raised from death: I meane Jesus which delyuereth us from the wrath to come.

¶ He putteth them in remembraunce of the godlye conuersacion that he led amonge them when he preached the gospel unto them, thanketh god that they receaue his worde so fruitefully & stedfastly his absence.

we exhorted and comforted and besought euery one of you, as a father his chyldre

For this cause thanke we God with when I could no lenger forbeare, I sent that I might haue knowledge of your fayth / lest haply the tempter had tẽpted you, and that oure laboure had bene be stowed in vayne.

But nowe lately when Timotheus came from you vnto vs, and declared to vs youre faith and your loue and howe that ye haue good remembraũce of vs all ways / desiring to se vs as we desire to se you. Therfore brethren we had cõ solacion in you, in all oure aduersitie &

C are we aliue, if ye stande stedfast in the Lorde. For what thankes can we recõ-pence to god againe for you, ouer all ÿ ioye that we ioye for your sakes before oure God: while we, nighe & daye praie exceadingly that we mighte se you presently, and myght fulfyl that whiche is lacking in your fayth.

God hym selfe oure father, and our Lorde Jesus Christ gyde oure iourneye D vnto you: and the Lorde encrease you & make you flow ouer in loue, one toward we do toward you, to make your hertes stable and vnblameable, in holynes before God our father, at the comming of oure Lorde Jesus Chryst wyth all hys

The ii Epistle of Sainct Paul the Apostle to the Thessalonians.

He thanketh god for theyr fayth & loue, and prayeth for the encrease of the same

The fyrst Chapter.

A Paul, Siluanus and Timotheus.
Unto the congregacion of the Thessalonians, whych are in God oure father, and in the Lorde Jesus Christ.
Grace be wyth you and peace from God our father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.
We are bounde to thancke God alwayes, for you bretheren as it is meate, because that your fayth groweth excedingly, and euery one of you swymmeth in loue towarde another betwene youre selues, so that we oure selues reioyce of you in the congregacions of God, ouer your pacience and fayth in al yor persecucions & tribulacions ẏ ye suffre, which is a token *of the rightuous iudgment of God, that ye are counted worthy of ẏ
B kingdom of God, for which ye also suffre. It is verely a ryghtuos thinge with god, to recompence trybulacion to them that trouble you: and to you whych are troubled, rest with vs whē the Lord Jesus shall shewe hym selfe from heauen, wyth hys mighty Angeles, in flamming fyre, rendringe vengeaunce vnto them that knowe not God/and to them that obey not vnto the gospell of our Lorde Jesus Chryste, which shalbe punished wyth euerlastinge dampnacion, from ẏ presence of the Lorde, and from the glorye of hys power/when he shal come to be glorified in hys saynctes, ād to be made maruelous in all them that beleaue: because oure testimonye that we had to you/was beleued euen the same daye ẏ we preached it. * Wherfore we praye al-
C wayes for you: that our God make you worthy of the callynge, and fulfylle all delectacion of goodnes, and the worcke of faythe wyth power: that the name of our Lorde Jesus Christ maye be glorifyed in you/ād ye in hym, throw the grace of our God and of the Lorde Jesus Christ.

He sheweth them that the daye of the lord shal not come till the departinge from the fayth come first, and therfore he exhorteth thē not to be deceaued but to stand stedfast in ẏ thinges ẏ he hath taught thē.

The.ii. Chapter.

We beseche you brethre by ẏ comming of oure Lorde Jesu Christ, and in that we shall assēble vnto him, that ye be not sodeynlye moued from youre mynde and be not troubled nether by sprete, nether by wordes/nor yet by letter, which shuld seme to cōe frō vs, as though the daye of Christe, were at hand. * Let no man deceaue you by eny meanes, for the Lorde commeth not, excepte ther come a departynge fyrst, ād that ᵃ* that synfull man be opened, the sonne of perdicion which is an aduersarie/ā is exalted aboue al that is called God, or that is worshipped: so ẏ he shall ᵇ* syt as God i the temple of God, and shewe him selfe as God. A Remember ye not, that when I was yet with you, I tolde you these thinges? B
And now ye know what withholdeth: euē that he might be vttered at his tyme. For the mystery of the iniquite doeth all readye worcke: tyll he which now onlye letteth, be taken out of the waye. And then shall that wicked be vttered, whom the Lord shall consume * with the sprete of his mouth, and shal destroy it with the aperaunce of his commynge: euen him whose comming is by the workinge of Satan, with all ᶜ* lyinge power, sygnes and wonders: and in al deceauablenes of vnryghtewesnes, amonge thē that perish: because thei receaued not the ᵈ* loue of the truth, that they myght haue bene saued. And therfore God shal sende them stronge delusion, that they shulde beleue lyes: that al they myght be damned which beleued not the truth but hadde pleasure in vnryghtewesnes. But we are bounde to geue thankes alwaye to God for you brethren beloued of the Lord, for because that God hath from the begynnynge chosen you to saluacion, thorowe sanctifyinge of the sprete, and thorow beleuing the trueth, whervnto he called you by oure Gospell, to obtayne the glorye ẏ commeth of oure Lorde. The. iii. Chapter.

A Furthermore brethren praie for vs, that ȳ worde of god maye haue fre passage and be glorified, as it is wͭ you: and that we maye be delyuered from vnresonable and euill men. For al men haue not fayth: but the lord is faythful, whiche shall stablisshe you, and kepe you from euyll. We haue confydence thorow the Lorde to you warde, that ye both do, and wyll do, ȳ which we commaunde you. And the Lorde gyde youre hertes to the loue of God ꝛ pacience of Christ.

Ye youre selues know how ye ought to folow vs. For we behaued not oure selues inordinatly amonge you.

Neyther toke we breade of anye man for nought: but wrought with labour and trauayle night and daye, be cause we wolde not be greuous to enye of you: ✝ not but that we had auctorityte, but to make our selues ā ensaimple vnto you, to folow vs. For when we were with you, this we warned you of, that if there were anye which woulde not worke, that the same shoulde not eate. C

We haue hearde saye (no doubt) that there are some which walke among you inordinatlye, and worcke not at all, but are busi bodies. Them that are such we commaund and exhorte by our lord Jesu Christe/ that they worcke with quietnes and eate theyr owne bread. ✝ Ye brethren be not werye in well doinge. If anye man obeye not our sayinges, send vs worde of hym by a letter: and haue no company wyth hym, that he maye be ashamed. And count hym not as an enemy: but warne hym as a brother. Galat. vi.

The very Lorde of peace, geue you peace alwayes, by al meanes. The Lord be wyth you all. The salutacion of mee Paull, with myne owne hande. This is the token in all the epistles: So I wrighte. D
The grace of our Lorde Jesus Christe be wyth you all. Amen.

Loue is the end of the commaundement and must interprete it.

+We knowe that the lawe is good, him seke peace, and ensue it. For the eyes of the Lord are ouer the ryghtwes, and his eares are open vnto their pray ers. But the face of the lorde beholdeth them that do euel.

Moreouer who is it that wil harme you, if ye folowe ÿ which is good.
Notwithstandinge happye are ye if ye suffre for righteousnes sake. Yea and feare not though they seme terrible to you nether bee troubled: but sanctifye the Lorde god in your hertes.

Bee readye alwayes to geue answere to euery man that asketh you reason of the hope that is in you, and that wyth mekenes and feare, hauing good conscience, that when they backbite you as euil doers, they maye be ashamed, for as much as they haue falsely accused your good conuersacion in Christ.

It is better (if the wyl of God be so) D that ye suffre for wel doinge, then for euell doinge. ✠ For as much as Christe hath ones suffered for synnes, the iuste for the vniuste / for to bringe vs to God, ãd was killed as pertayning to the flesh but was quickened in the spirite.

In whiche spirite he also wente and preached vnto the spyrites that were in pryson, which were in tyme passed disobedient when the longe suffering of god abode exspectinge paciently in the days of Noe, whyle the arke was a preparin-ge wherin fewe (that is to saye .viii. sou-les) were saued by water which signifyeth * baptysme that nowe saueth vs, not the puttinge awaye of ÿ fylth of the flesh / but in that good conscience consenteth to GOD, by the resurrection of Jesus Christe, whiche is on the righte hand of god: ✠ and is gone into heauen, angels, powers and myghte subdued vnto him.

The notes.

a* To dwel with them is, wyth faythfulnes, with the helpynge of pleasures and of ambycion, with ÿ kepyng of ÿ inner man, wyth ÿ mekenes and deuoutnes of a quyet spyrite, wyth loue and reuerence, to ordre them: Not accordynge to oure wylful cõmaundement and lust, but accordinge to knowlege: appoyntinge them to do nothyng but ÿ is expedyent, and fauouryng them in nothyng ÿ may hurte or corrupt honest condycions & manners.
b* Geuynge honour vnto the wyfe. Erasmus in hys annotacyons noteth out of S. Hierome, that to geue honour here is not to bowe the knee to them, nor to decke them wyth golde or precious stones but to abstaine from fleshly lustes.
c* By baptime here do dyuers learned interpreters vnderstande the bloud and passion of Christ by a figure takinge the signe for the thinge signified thereby, for this doth Baptysme sygnifye vnto vs, beside other thinges, that as we are there wasshed ĩ water so are oure synnes wasshed awaye with the shedyng of Christes bloude.

¶ He exhorteth men to ceasse from synne, to spende no worse tyme in vice, to be sober and apt to prayer, to loue eche other, to be pacient in trouble, and to beware y no man suffer as an euell doer, but as a Christe man and not to be ashamed.

The. iiii. Chapter.

A For as moche as Christ hath suffred for vs in the flesshe, arme youre selues lyke wise with the same mynde: for he which suffereth in y flesshe / ceasseth from synne, that he hence forwarde shulde liue as moche time as remayneth in the flessh: not after the lustes of men but after the wyll of God. For it is sufficient for vs that we haue spent the time that is past of the lyfe, after the wyll of the gentyles, walkyng in wantannes, lustes, dronckennes, in eatyng, drinkyng and in abhomynable Idolatrie.

And it semeth to the a straunge thinge that ye runne not also with them vnto the same excesse of ryote, and therfore speake they euyll of you, whych shall B geue a comptes to hym that is redy to iudge quik and deed.  For vnto this purpose verelye was the Gospell preached vnto the deed that they shulde be iudged lyke other men i the flesshe, but shulde lyue before God i y sprete. The ende of all thinges is at hande.

* Be ye therfore discrete and sober, that ye may be apt to prayers. But aboue al thynges haue feruent loue among you. For loue couereth the multitude of synnes. Be ye herberous one to another, ad that without grudgynge. As euery man hath receaued the gyfte, minister the same one to another, as good ministers of the manyfolde grace of God. If eny man speake let him talke as though he spake the wordes of God. If eny man minister, let him do it as of y abylite which God ministreth vnto him. That god i all thynges maye be glorified thorow Jesus Christ / to whom be prayse a C dominion for euer and whyle the worlde standeth: Amen.

Dearely beloued be not troubled in this heate, which now is come amonge you to trye you as though some straunge thinge had happened vnto you: but reioyce in as much as ye are partakers of Christes passions, that whe hys glory appeareth, ye may be mery and glad. If ye be rayled vpo for y name of Christ happy are ye. For the sprete of glory and of God resteth vpon you. On theyr parte he is euell spoken of: but on your parte D he is glorifyed.

Se that none of you suffre as a murtherer / or as a theefe, or an euell doer, or as a busi body in other mens matters. If anye mane suffre as a christen man, let hym not be ashamed: but let him glorify God on this behalfe for the time is come that iudgement must begynne at the house of god *. If it fyrst begynne at vs, what shal the ende be of them which beleue not the gospell of god? ad if the righteous scarcely be saued, where shal the vngodly and the synner apeare. Wherfore let them that suffer accordig to the wyll of God, commytt their soules to him with well doyng, as vnto a faithfull creatoure.

The notes.

 For vnto thys purpose was the gospell preached vnto the deade. &c. As certayne lerned expositours wyll: that he here calleth preachinge of the gospell, vnto the dead, in the chapter goynge next before he calleth the preachinge to the spyrytes that were in prison: which thynge (say they) sygnifyeth as muche as vnto the dead also, or spyrites in prison, came the tydinge or medecyne of the Gospel and of the glad tydinges of Christes passion wherby they were losed the strength therof being so pythy that they were therwyth brought forth of prison to immortalitye. And because it myght haue beene [illegible] how the soules of those blessed came forth of prison whether compassed wyth theyr bodyes or onely in y pure substaunce of the spirite, therfore sayth Peter that they should be iudged lyke other men in y flesshe that is when al other men shalbe iudged in the flesh. But should lyue before God in the spirite which signifyeth y in the meane season tyll y iudgement come shall theyr soules lyue and reioyce before god thorow Christ.

* If the sonnes of god must be all scourged and not ne maye be saued, but thorowe the same, lyke Christ went thorowe. what shal the hampnacyon of the disobedient and vnbeleuers be.

¶ A specyall exhortacyon say al bisshops or prestes to fede the flocke of Christe, and what theyre dutye is & what rewarde they shal haue if they be dylygent. He exhorteth yong persons to submit them selues to the elder, euery one to loue another, to be sober and to watche, that they maye resiste the enemye.

¶ The ii. Epistle of Saincte Peter.

¶ For so much as the power of god hath geuē thē al thinges pertaynyng vnto lyfe, he exhorteth them to flye the corruption of worldly lust, to make their callynge sure with good workes, & frutes of fayth. minge? For sence the fathers dyed,all thinges contynu in the same estate wher in they weere at the begynninge. This they knowe not (and that wyllinglye) howe that the heauens a great whyle a go were,and the earth that was in the water appeared vp oute of the water, by the worde of God:by the which thin-ges the worlde that then was perisshed, ouerflowinge with the water. But the heauens verelye and earth whiche are now,are kept by the same word in store/and reserued vnto fyre,against the day of judgment and perdicion of vngodly men.

Dearely beloued,be not ignoraunt of thys one thinge,how that one day is

The i. Epistle of Sayncte John the Appostle.

True witnes of the euerlastyng worde of God. The bloude of Christ is the purgacyon from sinne. No man is wythout synne.

The fyrst Chapter.

A That whiche was from ŷ begynnynge, whych we haue hearde, which we haue sene w oure eyes/ whych we haue looked vpon, & our handes haue handled, of the worde of ŷ life. For ŷ life apered, & we haue sene & bear wytnes, and she we vnto you that eternal lyfe, which was with the father, and B appered vnto vs. That which we haue sene and herde, declare we vnto you, ŷ ye maye haue fellowshipe wyth vs & that oure fellowshype maye be withe the father and his sonne Jesus Christe. And thys write we vnto you/ that your ioye maye be full.

And this is the tydynges whych we haue hearde of him & declare vnto you/
C that God is lyght, and in him is no derknes at all. If we saye that we haue felloshipe with him and yet walke in derknes, we lye, and do not the truth. But and yf we walke in (light) euen as he is i light, then haue we felloshipe with him, and the bloud of Jesus Christ his sonne clenseth vs from all synne, (Lyghte) is the doctrine of Christ. Iohn.iii.b Ephe.v.b

If we saye that we haue no synne, we D deceaue oure selues and truth is not i vs. If we * knowledge oure synnes, he is faithfull and iust, to forgeue vs oure synnes, and to clense vs frō al vnryghtewesnes. If we saye we haue not synned/ we make him a lyar and his worde is not in vs.

The notes.

John here as in hys gospel, and as Paul and Peter in theyr Epystles, teacheth fyrst ŷ iustifieng of fayth & that al mercy commeth by Christ only wythout all other respectes, and then what our dutye is to do agayne for ŷ kidnes sake John, viii.

* If we confes oure synnes god which cannot lye, hath promised to forgeue them, Christ is our aduocate. Of true loue, and how it is tryed.

The .ii. Chapter.

A My lytell children, these thinges write I vnto you, that ye sinne not: If eny mā synne, yet we haue an aduocate wyth the father, Jesus Christ, whych is ryghteous: and he it is that obteineth grace for oure sinnes: not for our synnes only: but also for the synnes of all the worlde. And herby we are sure that we knowe hym, yf we kepe his * commaundementes. He that sayth I know hym, & kepeth not hys commaundementes is a liar, and the verity is not in hym. Whosoeuer kepeth his worde, in him is the loue of God perfect in dede. And therby knowe we that we are in him. He that sayeth he bydith in him, ought to walcke euen as he walked.

B Brethren I wryte no new commaundemente vnto you: but that olde Commaundement which ye heard from ŷ begynnynge. The olde commaundemente is the worde whych ye hearde from ŷ begynnynge. Agayne a newe commaundemente I wryte vnto you, a thinge ŷ is true in him, and also in you: for the derknes is past/ & ŷ true light now shineth. He that saith how that he is in the lyghte, and yet hateth hys brother, is in derknes euen vntyll this tyme. He that loueth hys brother/ abydeth in the lyght & ther is none occasyon of euyl in hym. He that * hateth his brother, is in derknes, and walketh in derknes: and cannot tell whyther he goeth, because that derknes hath blynded his eyes.

C Babes I wryte vnto you how that oure synnes are forgeuen you for his names sake. I write vnto you fathers, how that ye knowe hi that was from the begynnyng. I write vnto you younge men, how that ye haue ouercome yͤ wicked. I write vnto you lytell childre, howe that ye know yͤ father. I write vnto you fathers, how that ye knowe hym yͭ was from the begynnynge. I write vnto you younge men, how that ye are stronge ād the worde of God abideth in you and ye haue ouercome that wycked.

Se that ye loue not the world, nether the thynges that are in the worlde. If eny man loue the worlde, the loue of the father is not in hym. For all that is in yͤ worlde (as the lust of the fleshe, the lust of the eyes, and the pryde of goodnes) is not of the father, but of yͤ worlde. And the worlde vanysheth awaye and yͤ lust thereof: but he that fulfylleth the will of God, abydeth euer.

He yͭ loueth yͤ world, loueth not god

Lytell chyldren it is the last tyme/ & as ye haue herde how that * Antichrist shal come euen now are there many Antichristes come alredye. Wherby we knowe that it is yͤ last tyme. They went oute from vs/ but they were not of vs.
For yf they had bene of vs, they wolde no dout, haue continued with vs. But that forttuned that it myghte appere, yͭ they were not of vs.

Of Antichrist loke in yͤ iiii Ca. folowig

And, ye haue an oyntment of the holy goost and ye knowe all thynges. + I wrote not vnto you, as though ye know not the trueth: but as though ye knewe it, and knowe also that no lye commeth of trueth. Who is a liar but he that denyeth that Jesus is Christ. the same is the Antichrist that denyeth the father & the sonne. Whosoeuer denyeth yͤ sonne, D the same hath not the father. Let therfore abide i you that same which ye her-de from the beginninge. If that which ye hearde from the beginninge, shall re-mayne in you, ye also shal contynew in the sonne, and in the father. And this is the promes yͭ he hath promysed vs eue eternall lyfe.

This haue I written vnto you, cōcerninge them that disceaue you: And the anoyntynge whych ye receaue of hym, dwelleth in you. And ye nede not yͭ anye mā teache you: but as the anoityng teacheth you al thinges, and is true, and is no lye/ ād as it hath taught you eue so abide theri. And now babes abide in hi yͭ whē he here shal appere, we may be bold and not be made ashamed of him at hys cōmig: If ye know that he is rightwes, know also that he which foloweth right wesnes, is borne of him.

what Christ hath done for him but he that loueth is in lyghte, and wotteth what Christ hath done.
* Here ye se that Chryst and synne can not dwell to gether, for Chrystes spyryte fygteth agaynst sine.
¶ The synguler loue of god toward vs: & howe we agayne loue one another.

The .iii. Chapter.

Behold what loue the father A hath shewed on vs that we shulde be called the sonnes of god. For this cause the worlde knoweth you not because it knoweth not him. Dearly beloued/ now are we yͤ sonnes of God, & yet it doth not appere what we shalbe. But we know that when it shal appeare, we shalbe like him. For we shal se hym as he is. And euery man that hath thys hope in him, purgeth hym selfe, euen as he is pure. Whosoeuer committeth sine cōmitteth vnrighteousnes also/ for sine is * vnrighteousnes. As many as abide in hi sinne not: whosoeuer sinneth, hath not sene him, nether hath knowen him. B Babes, let no man disceaue you. He that doeth righteousnes, is righteous/eue as he is righteous. He that cōmitteth sinne, is of the deuil: for the deuil sinneth sence the beginning. For this purpose appeared yͤ sōne of god, to lowse yͤ wor-kes of yͤ deuill. Whoso euer is borne of god sinneth not: for his seed remayneth in him, and he cannot sinne, because hee is borne of god. In thys are thē childrē of God knowen, and the children of the deuil. Whosoeuer doth not rightwesnes is not of GOD, nether loueth he not his brother.

he yͭ worketh rightwesnes is borne of god & taught of his spirit.

For this is the tidinges that ye herde from yͤ beginning that ye shuld loue one another

another not as Cayn which was of the wycked and slewe his brother, And wherfore slewe he hi? Because hys owne workes were euel, ād his brothers good. ✚ Maruaile not my brethren thou gh the world hate you. We knowe that we are translated from ✶ death vnto life, because we loue the brethren. He that loueth not his brother, abydeth in death. Whosoeuer hateth his brother, is a manslear. And ye knowe that no mansleare, hath eternal life abiding i hi.
Herby perceaue we loue: that he gaue his life for vs: and therfore ought we al so to geue our liues for the brethren.

He that hath no cōpassion loueth not God.

Whosoeuer hath this worldes good ⁊ seith his brother haue neade: and shut-teth vp his cōpassiō from him: how dwel leth the loue of God in him? My babes let vs not loue in word, nether in tonge, but with the dede and in verytie: ✶ for-D therby we knowe that we are of the ve-rite, and can before hi quiet our hertes.
But if oure hertes cōdempned vs, god is greater then oure hertes, and knoweth all thinges. Beloued, if oure hertes condempne vs not, then haue we truste to godwarde: and what soeuer we aske we shal receaue of him: because we kepe his commaundementes, & do those thin-ges which are pleasyng in his sight.
And thys is his commaundemente that we beleue ✶ on the name of his sōne Jesus Christe, and loue one another, as he gaue commaundemente. And he that kepeth his commaundementes, dwelleth in hym, and he in hym: and therby wee knowe that there abydeth in vs of the spirite which he gaue vs.

The notes

✶ He ÿ loueth, is escaped death. He that loueth not, is in death and a murtherer and hath not eternall lyfe.
✶ By loue we know ÿ we are in treuth, & haue quiet consciences to God warde.
✶ Fayth & loue is the fyrst commaundement, and al cōmaūdementes, and he that hath them is i God ād hath his spirite.

¶ Dyfference of spirites, and howe ÿ spirite of God maye be knowne frō the spirite of eroure. Of the loue of God and of our neyghboures.

The. iiii. Chapter.

YE beloued, beleue not euery spirite but proue the spirites whether they be of God or not, for many false Prophetes are gone out into ÿ worl de. Herby shall ye know ÿ spirite of god: Euery spirite ÿ cōfesseth ÿ Jesus Christe B is come in ÿ fleshe, is of God. And euery spirite which confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in ÿ fleshe, is not of god.
And this is the spirite of a ✶ Antichrist of whom ye haue hearde, howe that he shulde come: and euen now alredy is he in the worlde Lytel chyldren, ye are of God ⁊ haue ouercome them: for greater is he ÿ is in you, then he that is in the worlde.
They are of the world, and therfore speake they of the worlde, and the worlde heareth them: We are of God. He that knoweth god, heareth vs: he that is not of god, heareth vs not. Herby know we ÿ spirite of veritie ⁊ the spirite of errour.
Beloued let vs loue one another: for loue commeth of God. And euery one ÿ loueth is borne of God, and knoweth God. He that loueth not / knoweth not God: ✶ for God is loue. In this appered the loue of God to vs ward, because that God sent his only begotten sonne i to the worlde, that we might liue thorrow him. Herin is loue, not that we loued God but that he loued vs and sent his sonne to make agrement for our sinnes.
Beloued, if God so loued vs, we ought also to loue one another. No man hath C sene God at enye time. If we loue one another, God dwelleth in vs, ād his loue is parfect in vs. Herby know we that ÿ we dwell in him and he in vs: because he hath geuen vs of his spirite. And we haue sene and do testifye that the father sent the son, which is ÿ sauiour of the worlde. Whosoeuer confesseth that Jesus is the sonne of God, in him dwelleth God, ⁊ he i God. And we haue knowen and beleued ÿ loue that God hath to vs. GOD is loue, and he that dwelleth in loue, dwelleth in God, ⁊ God in him. Herin is the loue perfect in vs, ÿ D we shuld haue trust in the daye of iud-gement: For as he is, euen so are we in thys world. Ther is no fere in loue but parfect loue casteth out all feare, for fere hath paynfulnes. He that feareth, is not parfect in loue.
We loue hym, for he loued vs fyrst. If a mā say, I loue God, and yet hate his brother he is a lyar. For how can he ÿ loueth not his brother whom he hath sene / loue God whome he hath not se-

He ÿ loueth not his brother loueth not god.

re? And this commaundement haue we of hym:that he whych loueth God,shul-de loue his brother also.

¶ To loue God is to kepe his commaundementes. Fayth ouercometh the worlde. Euerlastinge lyfe is in ye sonne of god. Of ye synne vnto death.

Wosoeuer beleueth that Jesus is Chryste, is borne of A God. And euery one ye loue th him which begat, loueth him also whych was begot-tē of him: In this we knowe yt we loue ye childre of God, whē we loue god & kepe his cōmaundementes. This is the loue of God that wee kepe his commaunde-mentes, & his cōmaundementes are not Faith is our victorye. greuous. For all that is borne of God, ouercōmeth ye world. And this is ye vic tory yt ouercōmeth the worlde, euen our faythe. Who is it yt ouercometh ye worl-de: but he which beleueth that Jesus is the sonne of God.
B This Jesus Christ is he that came by water and bloud not by water only:but by water and bloud. And it was ye spyrete that beareth wytnes, because the spyrete is trueth.
(For ther are thre whych beare recorde in heuen, ye father, the word, & the holy gost. And these thre are one) For ther are thre wich bere recorde (in earth) the spyrite, and water, & bloud:and these thre are one. If we receaue the wytnes of men, the wytnes of God is greater.
For thys is the wytnes of God, whysch he testifyed of his sonne. He that bele-ueth on the sonne of God, hath the wyt-nes in him self. He yt beleueth not god, Synne vnto death. hathe made him a lyar, because he beleued not the recorde that God gaue of his sonne. And thys is ye recorde how yt god hath geuen vnto vs eternall life, ād this lyfe is in his sonne.
C He that hathe the sonne, hathe lyfe:and he that hath not the sonne of God hath not lyfe.
These thinges haue I written vnto In Christ is the lyfe eternall. you that beleue on the name of ye sonne of God that ye maye knowe how that ye haue eternall lyfe, and that ye maye beleue on the name of the sonne of God.
And this is the truste that we haue i hi that if we aske any thyng accordyng to hys wyll, he heareth vs. And if we know that he heare vs what soeuer wee aske, we knowe that we shal haue the peticions that we desyre of hym.
If anye man se hys brother synne a synne that is not vnto death, let hi aske, and he shal geue him life for theym that sinne not vnto death. There is a synne vnto death, for which saye I not that a D man shulde praye. All vnrighteousnes is sinne, and ther is sine not vnto death.
We know that whosoeuer is borne of god, sinneth not:but he that is begotten of GOD kepeth him self, and that wicked toucheth him not. We knowe that we are of God, and that the world is all together set on wickednes: We knowe that the sonne of god is come, ād hathe geuen vs a mynde to knowe hym whiche is true:and wee are in him that is true/thorow his sonne Jesus Christ.
This same is very god, ād eternal life.
Babes kepe your selues from ymages.
Amen.

¶ The ii Epistle of Sayncte John.

¶ He wryteth vnto a certayne lady, reioyseth yt her children walke in trueth, exhorteth them vnto loue, warneth them to beware of such disceuers as denye that Jesus Chryst came in the fleshe, prayeth the to contynu in the doctrine of Chryst, & to haue nothing to do with them that bringe not thys learnyng.

With you be grace, mercy, and peace from God the father and from the lorde Jesus Christ the sonne of the father, in truth and loue.
I reioysed greatly, that I found of thy children walckinge in trueth, as wee haue receaued a commaundemente of ye father. And now beseche I thee lady, not as though I wrote a new commaunde-ment vnto thee, but that same which we had from the beginninge, that we shuld loue one another. And this is the loue that we shulde walke after hys commaū demente.
This commaundment is (that as ye haue heard from the begynnyng) ye shul-de walke in it. For many deceauers are C entred into y worlde, which confesse not that Jesus Christ is come in the fleshe.

This is a deceauer and an Antichrist.
Loke on youre selues, that we loose not that we haue wrought: but that we may haue a full rewarde. Whosoeuer transgresseth and byderh not in the doctryne of Christe, hath not God. He that endu-reth in the doctryne of Christ, hath both the father and the sonne, D If ther come eny vnto you and brin-ge not this learninge, him receaue not to house: nether byd him God spede. For he that byddeth him God spede, is parta-ker of his euyl dedes. I had many thin-ges to wryte vnto you, neuerthelesse I wolde not writte with paper and ynke: but I trust to come vnto you and speake w you mouth to mouth, that our ioye maye be full. The sonnes of thy electe syster grete thee: Amen.

The .iii. Epistle

Of Saincte Johan.

He is glad of Gayus, that he walketh in y truth, exhorteth them to be louing vnto the pore Christen in theyr persecution, sheweth the vnkinde dealyng of Diotrephes, and the good report of Demetrius.

The elder vnto the be-loued Gayus, whom
A I loue in the trueth.
Beloued, wyshe in al thynges that thou prosperedest and fa-redest wel, euen as y soule prospeareth. I reioyced greatlye when the bretheren came and testifyed of the trueth that is in thee howe thou walkeste in trouble.
I haue no greater ioye thē to here how y my sonnes walke in verytie.
B Beloued y doest faithfully what soeuer y doest to the brethrē, and to straūgers, which beare witnes of thy loue before all y congregacion. Whiche brethren when thou bringest forwardes of their iorneye (as it besemeth God) thou shalte do well: because that for my names sake they wēt forth and toke nothig of y Gentyles. We therfore oughte to receaue such, that we also might be helpers to the trueth.

I wrote vnto the congregacion, but C Diotrephes, whiche loueth to haue the preeminence among them receaueth vs not, Wherfore if I come, I wyll declare his dedes which hee doth, iestinge on vs wyth malycious wordes, neyther is therewith contente, Not onely hee hym selfe receaueth not the bretheren: but al so hee forbiddeth them that would, and thrusteth them out of the congregaciō.
Beloued, folow not that which is euell, but that whiche is good. Hee that D doeth well is of god: but he that doethe euell seyth not God. Demetrius hathe good reporte of all men and of the truth yea and we our selues also beare recor-de, and yee knowe that oure recorde is true,
I haue many thinges to writte: but I wyll not with ynke and penne writte vnto thee. For I trust I shall shortelye see thee, and we shall speake mouthe to louers salute thee. Grete the louers by name.

The Epistle

of Sainct Paule vnto the Hebrues.

How God dealte louingly with them of the olde tyme, in sendig them his prophetes, but much more mercy hath he shewed vs in that he sent vs his owne sonne. Of the most excelent glory of Jesus Christ whych in all thynges is lyke to hys father.

The fyrst Chapter.

God in time passed dyuerse-ly and manye wayes, spake A vnto the fathers by the pro phetes but in these laste dayes he hath spoken vnto vs by his sonne, whome he hath made heyre of all thinges by whome also hee made the worlde. Which sonne beinge the brightnes of his glorye, and very image of his substaunce, bearinge vp al thinges withe the worde of his power/ B hathe in his owne parson, purged oure synnes, and is sytten on the ryght hand of the maiestie on hygh, and is more excellent then the aungeles, in as much as he hath by enheritaunce obtayned an ex cellenter name then haue they.
For vnto which of the aungeles, sayde

Christ hath purged oure synne.

he at any tyme: Thou art my sonne, this daye begat I thee? And agayne, I wyl be his father, and he shalbe my sonne.
And agayne, whe he bryngeth in the first begotten sonne into the worlde, he sayth:
C And all the angeles of God shall worshyppe him. And of the angeles he saith, He maketh hys angeles spirites, and his ministers flames of fyre. But vnto ẏ sonne he saith: God, thy seate shal be for euer & euer. The scepter of thy kingdome is a right scepter. Thou haste loued righteousnes, and hated iniquitie. Wherfore God which is thy God, had anoited thee with the oyle of gladnes aboue thy felowes.

Oyle of gladnes is the holy goste.

D And thou Lorde in the beginnynge hast layde the foundacion of the earth. And the heauens are the workes of thy handes. They shal perish but thou shalt endure. They all shall waxe olde as dothe a garment: and as a vesture shalte thou chaunge them, and they shall bee chaunged. But thou arte alwayes: and thy yeres shall not fayle. Vnto whiche of the angeles sayd he at any time: Sitte on my right hãd, tyl I make thyne enemyes thi fote stole: Are they not al mynistrig spirites, set to minister/for theyr sakes which shalbe heyres of saluacion.

The note.
a * Of these later dayes ye haue Esa. i. a. Ezechiel iiii.
¶ He exhorteth vs to be obedient vnto the new law which Chryste hath geuen vs and not to be offended at the infyrmities lowe degree of Chryste: because it was necessary that for our sakes he should take suche an humble state vpon hym, that he myght be lyke vnto his bretheren.

¶ The. ii. Chapter.

A [W]Herfore we oughte to geue the more hede to ẏ thiges whiche we haue herd lest we perish. For if the worde which was spoken by angels was stedfast, so that euery transgression and disobedience, receaued a iust recompence to rewarde, how shall we escape if we despise so great saluacion, which at the first began to be preached of the Lorde hymselfe, and afterward was confirmed vnto vs warde. by them that herde it. God bearing witnes therto, both with signes and wonders also, and with diuers myracles, and giftes of ẏ holy gost acordig to hys owne will. He hath not vnto the angeles put in subiection ẏ world to come, wherof we spake, but one in a certayne place wytnesseth sayenge.

yf the despisers of Moses were so greuously punished what shal become of the ẏ make a mocke of Christ.

What is man, that thou art mindful of him? After thou haddest for a seasõ made him lower then the angeles: thou B crounest him with honoure and glorye, and hast set hi aboue the workes of thy handes. Thou hast put al thinges in subiection vnder his fete. In ẏ he put al thinges vnder him, he left nothinge ẏ is not put vnder him. Neuertheles we yet se not al thinges subdued, but him ẏ was made lesse then the angels we se ẏ it was Jesus/which is crouned wt glorye and honoure for the suffering of death: that he by the grace of God/shulde tast of death for al men.

For it became him, for whom are all thinges and by whom are all thiges, after that hee had brought manye sonnes C vnto glory, ẏ he shulde make the Lorde of their saluacion perfect thorow sufferinge. For he that sanctifieth and they which are sanctified, are al of one. For whyche causes sake he is not a shamed to call them brethren sayenge: I wil declare thy name vnto my brethren, and in ẏ middes of ẏ congregacion wil I prayse thee. And againe: I wil put my truste in hym. And agayne: beholde here am I and the chyldren which God hath geuen me.

For as much then as the children were D partakers of the fleshe and bloud, he also him selfe likewise toke parte with them, for to put downe thorow death, hi ẏ had lordship ouer death, that is to say the deuyl, ãd that he might delyuer thẽ which thorow fere of death wer al their life time in daunger of bondage. For he in no place taketh on him ẏ angels: but the sede of Abraham taketh hee on him. Wherfore in al thinges it became hym to be made like vnto his brethren, ẏ hee might be merciful, & a faithful hie Prest in thinges cõcernynge god, for to purge ẏ peoples sines. For in ẏ he him self suffered & was tempted, he is able to succer them that are tempted.

The notes
* Miracles are called signes, because they be a signe, token ãd an euidẽt prose, that the thing ẏ is preached is gods worde.
¶ He requireth vs to be obedient vnto the worde of Christ. which is more worthy then Moses. The punishment of such as wyl nedes harden theyr hertes.

The.iii.Chapter

Therfore holy brethren, partakers of the celestial callynge; consider the embassadoure and hye prest of oure professyon Chryste Jesus, which was faythfull to him that made hi, eue as was Moyses in al his house.

And yet was this man counted worthy of more glory then Moises: In as moche as he whych hath prepared the house, hath most honoure in the house. Euery house is prepared of some mā. But he that ordeined all thiges, is god.
B And Moyses verely was faythful i all his house/as a minister, to beare witnes of those thiges which shuld be spokē afterwarde. But Christ as a sōne/hath rule ouer the house, whose house are we/so that we hold fast the confydence and the reioysynge of that hope, vnto the ende.

Wherfore as the holy goost sayth: to daye yf ye shall heare his voyce, harden not youre hertes, after the rebellion in the daye of temptacion in ȳ wyldernes, where youre fathers tēpted me, proued me, and sawe my workes .xl. yeare longe.

Wherfore I was greued with the ge-C neracyon ād sayde. They erre euer in their hertes: they verely haue not knowen my wayes so ȳ I sware in my wrathe, ȳ they shuld not enter into my rest. Take hede brethren, that therbe in none of you an euyll herte in vnbelefe, that he shuld departe from the lyuynge God: but exhorte one another dayly, whyle it is called to daye, leste eny of you were hard herted thorow the deceytfulnes of synne.

We are partakers of Christ yf we keape sure vnto the end the * fyrst substance, so longe as it is sayd: to daye yf ye heare hys voyce, harden not youre hertes, as when ye rebelled. For some, when D they heard, rebelled: howbe it not al that come out of Egipt vnder Moyses. But wyth whō was he despleased .xl. yeares? Was he not despleased wyth them that synned whose carkases were ouerthorwen in the deserte? To whom sware he ȳ that they shuld not enter ito his rest: but vnto them that beleued not? And we se ȳ they coulde not enter in, because of vnbelefe.

Fyrst substāce is fayth.

The sabboth or rest of the Christen: punishment of vnbeleuers: the nature of the worde of god.

Let vs feare therfor least any of vs forsaking the promes of entring into his rest should seme to come behinde, for vnto vs was it declared, as wel as vnto them. But it proffited not them that they hearde the worde because they which hearde it, coupled it not wyth * fayth, but we whych haue beleued, do enter into hys rest, as contrari wyse he sayd, to the other I haue sworne in my wrath/they shall not enter into B my rest. And that spake he verelye longe after ȳ the workes were made, and the foundacion of the world layde. For hee spake in a certayne place of the seuenthe daye on thys wyse: And god dyd rest the seuenth day from all his workes. And in thys place agayne: They shall not come into my rest.

Seynge therfore it foloweth that some must enter therinto, and they to whom it was fyrst preached, entred not therin for C vnbelefes sake. Agayne he apoynted in Dauid a certayne present daye after so longe a tyme, sayinge as it is rehearsed: this daye yf ye heare his voyce, be not hard herted. For yf Josue had geue the rest, then wolde he not afterwarde haue spoke of another day. There remayneth therfore yet a rest to the people of god. For he that is entred into his rest/doth * cease from hys awne workes as God dyd from hys.
D Let vs studye therfore to entre into that rest lest any man faul after the same ensample, into vnbelefe. For the worde of god is quicke, and mighty in operacyon and sharper then any two edged swerd: and entereth thorow, euen vnto the dyuydinge asonder of the soule and ȳ spryte, and of the ioyntes and the mary: ⁊ iudgeth the thoughtes ād the intentes of ȳ herte nether is ther any creature inuisible in ȳ syght of him, For al thinges are naked and bare vnto the eyes of him, of hi whom we spake.

* As fayth is the grounde of al goodnes so is vnbeleife the rote of al synne.
* Synne is oure workes, from which al must cease ȳ enter into the rest of a quiet [illegible] in Christ.

Christ is oure hye prest and seate of grace, & more excellent, then the hie prestes of the olde lawe.

The .v. Chapter.

A Seynge then that we haue a great hye prest which is entred into heuē (I meane Jesus ẏ sōne of god) let vs holde oure profession. For we haue not an hie prest, whiche can not haue cōpassion on oure infirmities: but was in al pointes tēpted, like as wee are but yet without sinne. Let vs therefore go boldly vnto the seat of grace, ẏ we may receaue mercye, and finde grace to helpe in tyme of nede.

+ For euery hye prest ẏ is takē amōg men is ordened for men, in thinges pertaynyng to god: to offer giftes and sacrifices for sinnes: which can haue compassion on ẏ ignorauunt, & one thē ẏ are out of ẏ waye, because ẏ he him selfe is com B passed wt infirmite, for ẏ which infirmiteis sake he is bounde to offer for sinnes as wel for his owne part, as for the peoples.
And ne man taketh honoure vnto him self, but he that is called of God as was Aaron.

Euen so lyke wise, Christ glorified not him selfe, to be made the hye prest: but he ẏ sayd vnto hī ẏ art my sonne, this daye begat I thee, glorified hī. As he also in another place speaketh: ẏ art a prest for euer after the order of Melchisedech. + Which in ẏ dayes of his fleshe, did offer vp prayers & supplycacions, wt strōg C criyng & teares vnto him ẏ was able to saue hī frō death & was also herd, because of his godlines. And though he were Goddes sonne, yet lerned he obedience, by those thīges which he suffered, & was made parfait, & ẏ cause of eternal saluacion vnto al thē ẏ obey hī & is called of God an hie preste, after ẏ order of Melchisedech.
Wherof we haue many thinges to say, which are herd to be vttred: because ye are dul of hearīg. For when as cōcernīg ẏ time, ye ought to be teachers, yet haue ye nede againe ẏ we teache you D ẏ first princypales of ẏ word of god, ād are become suche as haue nede of milke, & not of strōg meate: for euerye mā ẏ is fed wt milcke, is inexperte in ẏ word of righteousnes. For he is but a babe. But strōg meat belōgeth to thē ẏ are parfect which thorow custōe haue their wittes exercysed, to iudge both good & euil also

He goeth forth wyth the thinge that he beganne in the later ende of the .v. Chap: and exhorteth them not to faint but to be stedfast and pacient: for so much as god is sure in hys promes.

The .vi. Chapter.

Therfore let vs leue the doctrine A pertayning to the beginninge of a Christen man, & let vs go vnto perfection, and now no more laye the foundacion of repentaunce from dead workes, and of fayth towarde God, of baptyme, of doctrine, and of layenge on of handes: and of resurrection from death, and of eternall iudgement. And so wyll we do if we repente. + For it is not possible that they which were ones lyghtened, and haue tasted of the heauēly gifte and were become partakers of the holye goost / and haue tasted of the good word of god / and of the power of the word to come: yf they faule, shoulde bee renewed agayne vnto repentaunce: for as muche as they haue (as cōcernīg them selues) crucifyed the sonne of god a fresh makī- B ge a mocke of hym.

For that earth which drincketh in ẏ rayne that commeth often vppon it, and bringeth forthe herbes meete for them ẏ dresse it, receaueth blessinge of God, but ẏ grounde whyche beareth thornes and bryres, is reproued, and is nye vnto cursing: whose ende is to be burned. Neuertheles deare frēdes, we trust to se better of you, and thinges whiche accompanye saluacion / though we thus speake. For god is not vnrighteous that he should forget your worke and labour that procedeth of loue, which loue ye shewed in his nāe which haue ministred vnto the sayncres, and yet mynistre. Yea, and we desire that euery one of you shew the same dyligence, to the stablyshing of hope euen vnto the ende: ẏ ye faynte not but C folow them which thorow fayth and pacience, inheret the promises.

For when god made promes to Abrahā because he had no greater thīg to sweare by he sware by him selfe, saiynge: Surely I wyll blesse thee, and multiply thee in dede. And so after that he had taried a longe time, he enioyed the promes. Mē verely sweare by him ẏ is greater thē thē selues, and an oth to confirme the thige

is amonge them an ende of al strife. So god willing very aboundantly to shew unto the heires of the promes the stable D nes of his counsail, he added an oth, that by two immutable thinges (in whiche it was unpossible that god shoulde lye) we might have parfect consolatiõ, whiche have fled, for to hold fast the hope ÿ is set before us, which hope we have as an anker of the soule both sure and stedfast. Which hope also entreth in, into those thynges which are withi ÿ vayle, whither the forerunner is for us entred in/ I meane Jesus that is made an hye Preste for ever, after the order of Melchisedech.

a ✱ For it is not possible that they whiche were once lyghted &c. This text denyeth no possibilyte of mercy in god, but the impossibilyte of repentance in suche men as malyciously forsake the truth, blaspheme Christ, take parte agaynst the holy goost. For the truth is that with the Lorde there is mercye & plenteous redemption, Psal. cxxix. so that whosoever calleth upon his name shalbe saued Joel ii. Roman. x. Now they that forsake ÿ truth, blasphemyng christ and taking part agaynst the holygost can not repent: for yf synners wolde converte and cal upon god, he shoulde be sure of remyssion.

¶ He compareth the presthode of Christ unto Melchysedech, but to be farre more excellent.

The. vii. Chapter

A THis Melchisedech kynge of Salem (which beynge prest of ÿ most hie god, met Abraham, as he returned agayne from the slaughter of the kynges and blessed hym: to whõ also Abrahã gave tethes of al thinges) first is by interpretacion kinge of rightewesnes: after ÿ he is kyng of Salem, ÿ is to say, kynge of peace without father with out mother, without kinne, & hath nether beginnynge of his tyme, nether yet ende of his life: but is likened unto the sõne of God and contynueth a prest for ever. Consyder what a man this was unto whom ÿ Patriarke Abraham gave tythes of the spoyles. And verely those children of Levy, which receaued the offyce of the prestes, have a commaundemẽt to take accordinge to the lawe, tythes of the people, that is to say, of ther brethrẽ, yet though they sprounge out of ÿ loynes of Abraham. But he, whose kynred is not counted among thẽ receaued tythes of Abra B ham and blessed hym that had the promyses.

And without all naye sayinge, he which is lesse, receaueth blessynge of him whiche is greater. And here men that dye, receave tythes. But there he receaveth tythes of whom it is witnessed, that he liveth. And to say the truth, Levy him selfe also which receaueth tythes, paied tythes to Abraham. For he was yet in the loynes of his father Abrahã whẽ Melchisedech met him.

If now therfore perfection came by ÿ presthod of the Levites (for under that presthod the people receaued the lawe) what neded it further more that another prest shulde ryse, after ÿ order of Melchisedech, and not after the order of Aaron? Now no dout, yf ÿ presthod be trãslated, then of necessytie must ÿ lawe be C translated, also.

For he of whom these thinges are spoken pertayneth unto another trybe, of which never mã served at ÿ aultre. For it is evident that oure Lorde sprounge of the tribe of Juda, of whych trybe spake Moyses nothing concernynge presthod. And it is yet a more evydent thige, yf after ÿ similitude of Melchisedech ther arise another prest, whych is not made after the lawe of the carnall commaundemẽt: but after the power of ÿ endlesse lyfe. For he testifieth: thou arte a prest for ever, after the order of Melchisedech. Then the cõmaundemẽt that went afore, is disanulled/ because of hyr weakenes and unprofytablenes. For the law made nothynge parfecte: but was an introduccyõ of a better hope, by whych hope, we drawe nye unto God.

And for this cause it is a better hope, that it was not promised with out an othe. Those prestes were made without an othe, but this prest wyth an othe, by D hym that sayde unto hym, The Lorde sware, and wyll not repent: Thou arte a prest for ever after ÿ order of Melchisedech. And for that cause was Jesus a stablysher of a better testament.

And amonge them many were made prestes, because they were not suffred to endure by the reason of death. But this mã, because he endureth ever, hath ã everlastynge presthod, Wherfore he is able also ever to save thẽ that cõe unto God by him, seynge he ever lyveth, to make intercessyon for us.

Suche

Suche an hye prest it became vs to haue which is holye, harmelesse/vndefy-led, separate from synners, and made hier then heauen, which nedeth not dayly (as yonder hye Prestes) to offre vp sacrifice/fyrste for hys owne synnes, and the for the peoples synnes. For that did he at once for all when he offred vp him Christe ones sacrifised purged al sinnes — selfe. For the lawe maketh men priestes, which haue infirmitie: but the worde of the othe that came sence the lawe maketh the sonne prieste, which is parfecte for euermore.

The office of Chryst is more worthy then the prestes office of the olde lawe, which was vnperfect and therfore abrogate.

The .viii. Chapter

A Of the thinges which we haue spoken this is the pyth: that we haue suche an high pryeste that is sytten on the ryght hande of the seate of magestie in heauen, and is a minister of holy thinges and of the verytaberna-cle which God pight and not man. For euerye hye pryeste is ordeyned to offer giftes and sacrifices, wherfore it is of ne-cessitie that this man haue some what also to offre. For he were not a prieste yf he were on the earth, where are pryestes that accordinge to the lawe offer gif-B tes/which pryestes serue vnto the ensā-ple and shadowe of heauenly thinges: euen as the aunswere of god was geuen vnto Moises, when he was about to fynishe the tabernacle: Take hede sayde he, that thou make al thinges according to the patrone shewed to thee in the mount.

Now hath he optayned a more excellente office in as muche as he is the mediatour of a better Testamente, whiche was made for better promyses. For if y first Testamente had bene fautelesse, then C shoulde no place haue bene sought for y second. For in rebukinge them he sayth.
Beholde the dayes wyll come (sayeth y Lorde) and I will finish vpon the house of Israell, and vpon y house of Iuda a new testamente: not lyke y testament y I made wyth theyr fathers at y tyme, whē I toke them by the handes to leade them out of the lande of Egipte/for they continued not in my testamente/and I regarded them not sayth the Lorde.

For this was the testamente that I wyll make wyth the house of Israel: After those dayes saith the Lorde: I wyll I put my lawes in their myndes, and in their her-tes I wyll write them, and I wil be their God, and they shal be my people. And D they shal not teache, euery man his neyboure, and euerye man his brother, say-enge: know the Lord: for they shal know me, from the lest to the most of them: for I wyl be mercyfull ouer their vnrighte-wesnes, and ouer ther sinnes and on their iniquites. In that he saith a new testament, he hath abrogat the olde. Nowe y whiche is disanulled and wexed olde, is redy to vannishe awaye.

The profite and worthines of y olde testament and how farre the newe excelleth it.

The .ix. Chapter.

That first tabernacle verelye had A ordinaunces, and seruynges of God, and worldly holines. For ther was a fore tabernacle made wherin was the candelstike and y table and the shew bread which is called holy.
But with the seconde vaile was there a tabernacle, which is called holyest of al, which had the golden senser and y arke of the testament ouerlaide round about with golde, wherin was the golden pot with Manna, and Aarons rodde that spronge and the tables of the testament.
Ouer the arke were the Cherubyns of glory shadowing the seate of grace. Of which thinges we will not now speake particularly.

When these thinges were thus ordeined, the Priestes went al waies into y first tabernacle and executed the seruice B of god. But into the seconde wente the hie prest alone, once euery yeare: and not without bloude, which he offered for hi selfe, and for the ignoraunce of the people. Wherwith the holy goost this signified that the way of holy thinges, was not yet opened, while as yet y first tabernacle was standing. Which was a symily-tude for the time then present, in which were offered gyftes & sacrifices y coulde not make y minister perfecte, as partay-ning to y conscience wyth only metes & drinkes & diuers washinges and iustifienges of the fleshe, which were ordeined vntyl y time of reformacion.

✠ But Christ beynge an hye prest of good thinges to comme, came by a greater and a moare parfecte tabernacle, not made wt handes: that is to saye, not of thys maner buyldyng, nether by the bloud of gotes and calues: but by his awne bloud he entred in once for al into the holy pla ce, & founde eternall redempcion. ✠ For D yf the bloud of oxen and of gotes and ye asshes of an heyfer, when it was sprinkled, purified the vnclene, as touchynge the purifynge of the flesshe: howe mu-che moare shal the bloud of Christ (which thorow ye eternall sprete, offered him self without spot to God) pourge youre consciences from dead workes for to serue the livinge God?

And for this cause is he the mediatour of the newe testamente, yt thorow death which chaunsed for the redempcion of those transgressyons that were in ye fyrst testament, they which were called, might receaue the promes of eternall inheri-E taunce. ✠ For wheresoeuer is a testamet, ther must also be the death of hym that maketh the testament. For the testamet taketh auctoritie whe men are dead: for it is of no value as longe as he yt made it, is a lyue. For whiche cause also, neyther that fyrst testamet was ordened wt out bloud. For when all the commaun dementes were redde of Moses to al ye people, he toke the bloud of calues and of gotes, with water and purple woolle and isope, and sprinckled both the boke, & al the people, saying: this is the blou-de of the testament which God hath ap-F poynted vnto you. Moreouer he sprin ckled the tabernacle with bloud also, and Exody. xii. c and xxiiii. c. all the ministringe vessels. And also almost all thynges, are by the lawe pour-ged wythout, and with out sheadinge of bloud is no remission.

It is then nede that the similitudes of heauenly thynges be purifyed wyth suche thinges: but the heauenly thinges the selues are purified wt better sacrifyces then are those. For Christ is not en tred into the holy places that are made with handes, which are but similitudes of true thinges: but is entred into very Roma. v. b. i. Peter. iii. d heauen, for to appere now in the sight of God for vs: not to offer hym selfe often, as the hye prest entreth into the holy place euery yeare with straunge bloud, for C then must he haue often suffered sence ye world began. But now in the ende of ye world, hath he appered once, to put sin-ne to flyght, by the offerynge vp of him selfe: And as it is apoynted vnto men ye they shall once dye, and then commeth ye iudgement, eue so Christ was once offered to take awaye the synnes of many, and vnto them that loke for hym, shall he appeare agayne without synne vnto saluacyon.

The olde lawe hath no power to clense away synne but Christ did it with a offering of his body once for all. An exhortacyon to receyue this goodnes of god thankfully with pacience and stedfast faith.

The .x. Chapter.

FOr the lawe which hath but A ye shadowe of good thinges to come, and not the thinges in their awne fassion can neuer with ye sacrifices which they offre yeare by yeare continually, ma ke the commers therunto parfayte. For wold not then those sacrifyces haue cea sed to haue bene offered, because that ye offerers once purged shulde haue had no more conscience of synnes. Neuerthe les in those sacrifyces is ther mencion made of synnes euery yeare. ✠ For it is vnpos- Leuit. xvi. g. sible that the bloud of oxen and of gotes shuld take awaye synnes.

Wherfore when he cometh into ye worl- B de, he sayth. ✠ Sacrifyce and offerynge Psal. xxxix. b thou woldest not haue: but a bodie hast thou ordeyned me. In sacrifyces & sinne offerynges yu hast no lust. Then I sayde: Lo I come, in ye cheifest of ye boke it is writen of me, that I shulde do thy wyll, O god. Aboue, when he had said sacryfice and offerynge, & burnt sacrifices and synne offeringes thou woldest not haue nether hast alowed (which yet are offered by the lawe) and then sayde: Lo I come to do thy wyll, O god: he taketh a waye the fyrst to stablyshe the latter. By ye which will, we are sanctyfied: by ye offeringe of ye body of Jesu Christe once for all. Christes body is but ones offered

And euery prest is redy dayly ministrig & ofte times offereth one maner of offerig which can neuer take away sines: but thys man after he had offered one sacry- C fice for sines, sat him doune for euer on ye right hand of God, and from hence forth tarieth

taryeth tyll his foes be made his fote stole. For with one offeringe hath he made parfect for euer the that are sanctifyed.
And the holy gost also beareth vs recor-de of thys, euen when he tolde before: This is the testament that I will make vnto them: after those dayes sayth the Lorde, I wil put my lawes in their her-tes, and in their mynde I wyl wryte thē, and their synnes and iniquities wyll I remember no moare. And where re-missiō of these thinges is / ther is no mo-are offeringe for synne.

D Seynge brethren that by the meanes of the bloud of Jesu, we maye be bolde to enter into that holye place, by ȳ newe and lyuinge waye which he hath prepared for vs, through the vayle, that is to saye by hys fleshe. And seyng also that wee haue an hye preste whiche is ruler ouer the house of God, let vs drawe nye wt a true herte in a full faith, sprincke-led in oure hertes from an euyl conscience, and wesshed in our bodies wyth pure water: and let vs kepe the profession of oure hope, with out wauerynge (for he is faithfull that promised) and let vs E consider one another, to prouoke vnto loue, and to good workes: and let vs not forsake the felowship that we haue amō-ge oure selues, as the maner of some is: but let vs exhorte one another, and that so much the moare, because ye se that the daye draweth nye.

Here foloweth our dutie yf we wyl be partakers of the mercy before rehersed a* For yf we synne willingly after ȳ we haue receaued the knowledge of ȳ tru-eth, ther remayneth no moare sacrifice for synnes but a fearful lokinge for iud-gement, and violent fyre, which shall deuoure the aduersaries. He that despyseth Moses law, dyeth wyth out mercy vnder two or thre witnesses. Of howe much sorer punishment suppose ye shal he be counted worthye, whiche treadeth vnder fote the sonne of God: and coun-teth the bloude of the testamēt as an vn holy thynge wherwyth he was sanctified, and doth dishonoure to ȳ sprete of grace. For we knowe him that hath say-F de: vengeaunce belongeth vnto me / I will recompence sayth ȳ Lorde. And a-gayne: the Lord shal iudge hys people It is a fearfull thinge to faule into b* ȳ handes of the lyuinge God.

Call to remembraunce the dayes that are passed, in the which after ye had re-ceaued light / ye endured a greate fight i aduersities / partly while al mē wōdred a gased at you for the shame & tribulacion that was done vnto you / and partly while ye become companiōs of them which so passed their time. For ye suffered also wt my bondes, ād toke i worthe the spoilinge of youre goodes, and that with gladnes: knowenge in your selues how that ye had in heauen a better and an enduringe substaūce. Cast not awaye therfor your confidēce which hath great G reward to recompence. For ye haue nede of pacience, that after ye haue done the will of God, ye myght receaue the promes. For yet a very lytel while, and he ȳ shall come wyl come, and wyl not tarye.
But the iust shal liue by faith. And if he withdrawe him selfe my soule shal haue no pleasure in him. We are not whiche withdrawe oure selues vnto dampnaci-on, but partaine to faith, to the wynnig of the soule.

¶ The. xi. Chapter.

Fa* Ayth is a sure confidence A of thinges which are hoped for, & a certayntie of thīges which are not sene. By it ȳ elders were wel reported of.
Thorow fayth we vnderstand that the worlde was ordeined by ȳ word of god ād that thinges which are not sene, wer made of thinges which are not sene. By fayth, Abel offered vnto God a moare plenteous sacrifice thē Cain: by which he obtained witnes that he was righteous.
God testifienge of his giftes: by whiche also he beinge dead, yet speaketh.

By faith was Enoch translated that he shuld not se death: nether was he founde: for God had taken him awaye.
Before he was taken away, he was re- B ported of, ȳ had pleased God: but wtout faith it is vnpossible to please hī. For he ȳ cōmeth to god most beleue ȳ god is, & ȳ he is a rewarder of them ȳ seke him.

By fayth Noe honored God after that he was warned of thinges which were not sene, and prepared the arke to ÿ sauing of his houshold, thorow the which arcke, hee condempned the worlde, and became heyre of the righte wesnes which commeth by fayth.

By faith Abraham/ when he was called obeyed/ to go oute into a place, which he shuld afterwarde receaue to inheritaunce: and he went out, not knowinge whether he shuld go.

By fayth he remoued into the lande that was promysed him, as into a straunge countre, and dwelt in tabernacles: and so dyd Isaac and Jacob heyres with him of ÿ same promes. For he loked for a citie hauing a foundacion whose buylder and maker is God.

Gen. xxi. A. Thorow fayth Sara also receaued strength to be with chyld and was deliuered of a childe when she was past age, because she iudged him faithful which had promysed.

And therfore sprange therof, one (& of one which was as good as dead) so many in multitude, as ÿ starres of the skye, and as the sond of the see shore which is innumerable.

And they all dyed in fayth, and receaued not the promyses: but saw the a farre of, and beleued them, and saluted the and confessed that they were strangers, and pilgrems on the earthe. They that saye soch thynges declare ÿ they seke a countre. Also yf they had bene myndfull of that countre from whence thei came oute, they had leasure to haue returned agayne: but now they desyre a better, that is to say a heauenly. Wherfore God is not ashamed of them euen to be called their god: for he hath prepared for them a cytie.

Gene. xxii. b Gal. iiii. c By faith Abraham offered vp Isaac, when he was tempted, ad he offered him beinge hys only begotten sonne, which had receaued the promyses of whom it was sayde, in Isaac shall thy seed be called: for he consydered that God was able to rayse it vp agayn fro death. Therfore receaued he him, for an ensample.

Gen. xxvii. D In fayth Isaac blessed Jacob & Esau, concerninge thinges to come.

Gene. xlix. A By faythe Jacob when he was a dienge blessed bothe the sonnes of Joseph, and boured hymselfe towarde the toppe of his scepter.

Genesi. l. D. By fayth Joseph when he dyed/ remembred the departinge of the chyldere of Israell, and gaue commaundemente of hys bones.

Exody. ii. A. *By faythe Moses when he was borne, was hyd thre moneths of hys father and mother, because they saw he was a proper Chylde: neyther feared they the kynges commaundement.

By fayth Moses when he was great, refused to be called the sōne of Pharaos doughter/ and chose rather to suffre aduersitie wyth the people of God, then to enioy the pleasures of synne for a ceason, and estemed the rebuke of Christe greater riches then the treasure of Egipte. For he had respecte vnto the rewarde.

By fayth he forsoke Egipte and feared not the fearcenes of the kynge. For he endured euen as he hadde seane hym which is inuisyble.

Exody. xii. B *Thorowe faythe hee ordeyned the easter lambe, and the effusion of bloud, leaste he that destroyed the fyrste borne, shoulde touche them.

F

Exo. xiiii. c. *By faythe they passed thorowe the reade see, as by drye lande, which when the Egiptians had assayed to doo, they were drouned.

Josue. vi. c *By faythe the walles of Jericho fel downe after they were compassed about seuen dayes.

Josue. vi. c and. ii. A *By fayth the harlot Raab perished not wyth the vnbeleuers, when she had receaued the spyes to lodging peasibly.

And what shall I moare sa, the tyme wold be to short for me to tel of Gedeon, Barach and of Sampson, and of Jephthae: also of Dauid and Samuell, and of the Prophetes: which thorow fayth subdued kingdomes, wroght rightuousnes/ obtayned the promyses, stopped the mouthes of lyons, quenched the violence of fyre, escaped the edge of the swearde/ of weake were made strōg, waxed valiant in fyghe, turned to flighte the armyes of the aliantes, and the wemen receaued theyr deade, raysed to lyfe agayne.

Other

G Other were racked, and wolde not be delyuered/that they mighte receaue a better resurrectiō. Other tasted of mockinges, and scourginges, morouer of bondes and presonnemente: were stoaned, were hewen asunder, were tempted, were slayne with swerdes, walcked vp & downe in shepes skinnes, in gote skin-nes, in nede, tribulacion and vexation, which ŷ world was not worthy, of: they wandred in wyldernes, in mountaynes, in Dennes and caues of the earth.

And these all thorowe fayth obtayned good reporte, * and receaue not the promes, God prouiding a better thinge for vs, that they without vs should not be made perfecte.

The notes.

a* Fayth and truste in Christ onely is the lyfe and quietnes of the conscience and not trust in workes, how holy soeuer they appeare: workes can not set the herte at rest because we euer thincke they bee not ynow nor yet good ynow, but to feawe, and so falle we to mistrusting, after which foloweth disparing and so damnation, yf we leaue not the cōfidence in them, and sticke to fayth, which can receue & beleue without mistrust that Christes workes on ŷ crosse hath fully purged clensed & loused vs frō al our sinnes. c.f. An exhortatiō to be patient & stedfast in trouble & aduersitie: vpon hope of euerlasting reward. A cō mendacyon of the new testament aboue the olde.

The .xii. Chapter.

A Wherfore let vs also (seinge that wee are compassed w soo greate a multytude of witnesses) laye awaye all ŷ presseth downe, ād the syn-ne that hangeth on, and let vs runne w pacyence vnto the batell that is set before vs, lokinge vnto Jesus the auctour and finisher of our fayth, whiche for the ioye that was set before hym, abode the crosse, & despised ŷ shame, & is set downe on the right hande of the trone of god.
Consider therfor how that he endureth suche speaking against hym of sinners, leste ye shoulde be weeried and fainte in your myndes. For ye haue not yet resisted vnto bloudshedding, striuing against B synne/and haue forgoten the consolacyon/whiche speaketh vnto you as vnto Children/my sonne despise not the chastening of the Lorde, neythere fainte when thou art rebuked of hym, for who-me the Lorde loueth, him hee * chasteneth: ye and he scourgeth euerye sonne that he receaueth.

If ye endure chastening, God offereth hym selfe vnto you as vnto sonnes: what sonne is that whō the father chasteneth not? If ye be not vnder corr ectiō (where of all are partakers) then are ye bastardes and not sonnes. Moreouer seynge we had fathers of our flesh whiche corrected vs, ād we gaue them reue-rence: shulde we not much rathere bee in subiection vnto ŷ father of spretual gif- C tes that we might liue? And they verely for a fewe dayes, nurtered vs after their owne pleasure: but he learneth vs vnto that which is profitable, that we might receaue of his holines. No maner chas-tysing for the present tyme semeth to be ioyous, but greuous: neuertheles after ward, it bringeth the quiet frute of rightewesnes, vnto them whiche are therin exercysed.

Stretch forthe therfor againe the han- D des whych were let doune, and the weake knees and se that ye haue straight steppes vnto your fete, lest eny halting turne you out of the waye: yet let it rather be healed. Embrace peace w al men and holynes: with out the which no man shal se the Lorde. And loke to, that no man be destitute of the grace of God, & that no rote of bitternes springe vp ād trouble, and therby manye bee defyledes that ther be no fornicator/or vnclene person, as Esau, which for one brekfast sold his byrthright. *Ye know how that after warde when he wolde haue inhereted ŷ E blessynge, he was put vp, and he founde no meanes to come therby agayne: no though hee desyred it with teares.

*For ye are not come vnto ŷ moun-te that can be touched, and vnto burninge fyre nor yet to myste and darknes and tempest of wedder, nether vnto the sound of a trompe and the voyce of wor-des, whiche voyce they that hearde it, wisshed awaye: that the communicacyō shuld not be spokē to thē. For they were not able to abyde ŷ whych was spokē. If a beast had touched ŷ moūtaine, it must haue bene stoned, or thrust thorowe w a dart: euen so terryble was the syght wich F appered. Moyses sayd, I feare & quake.
But ye are come vnto the mount Sion & to ŷ citie of the liuinge god, the celestiall Jerusalē: & to an innumerable sight of angels & vnto the cōgregaciō of ŷ firste borne

borne sonnes, which are writtē ī heauē ād to God the iudge of al, and to ẏ spre-tes of iust and parfecte men, and to Jesus the mediator of the new testament, and to the sprincklyng of bloude ẏ spea keth better then the bloud of Abel.

Se that ye dyspyse not him that spea keth. For yf they escaped not which refused hym that spake on earth: moch more shall we not escape, yf we turne awaye frō him that speaketh frō heauen: whose voyce then shouke the earth, and now declareth saynge: yet once more will J shake, not the earth only/but also heauē.
No dout that saue that he saith, yet once more, sygnifyeth the remouyng away of those thinges whiche are shaken, as of thinges which haue ended their course: that the thinges whiche are, not shaken, may remayne.

Wherfor if we receaue a kigdome whiche is not moued we haue grace, wherbi we maye serue god and please hym with reuerence and godly feare. For our god is consumynge fyre.

a ✱ This text maketh not agaynst repentaunce that is done in season. Esau repented to late, and therfore profited not. When sentence of iudgement is geuen then hath repentance no place. The dampned in hell shal wepe and repent, but in vayn: for then is ẏ tyme of repentinge paste. The blessynge whych Jsaac gaue was vndoubted, done by the inspyratiō of the holy gooste, & geuen in steade of a determynat sentence, and therfore must nedes be ratyfyed and might not be called agayne, but and if Esau before the blessing geuen had chaunged hys maners & had hertely & ernestly repēted hym, he had surely not bene reproued of God. This shoulde seame to be ẏ very meaning of thys texte. And verely Erasmus maketh a lyke exposycion hereof in hys Paraphrasis. He exhorteth vs vnto loue, to hospitalite, to thynke vpon such as be in aduersite, to maintayn wedlocke to auoyde couetousnes, to make moch of them ẏ preache gods worde, to beware of straunge learnynge to be contente to suffer rebuke with Christ, to be thākeful vnto god, and obedient vnto our heades.

The Epistle of Saynct James.

He exhorteth to reioyce in trouble, to be feruente in prayer wyth stedfast beliefe, to loke for al good thinges from aboue, to forsake al vyce, & thankfully to receaue the worde of god, not onely hearynge it & speakynge of it, but to doo therafter in dede. True relygion or deuocyon what it is.

The first Chapter.

A IAmes the seruaunt of God & of the lorde Jesus Christ, sendeth gretynge to the .xii. trybes whiche are scattered here ãd there. My brethrẽ counte it exceadinge ioye when ye fal into diuers temptacions for as muche as ye knowe how that the tryenge of your faith bringeth pacience: and let pacience haue her perfecte worke, that ye maye be perfecte & sounde, lacking nothing.

If any of you lacke wisdom, let hym aske of God which geueth to al men indifferently, and casteth no man in ÿ teth and it shalbe geuen hym. But let hym aske in fayth and wauer not. For he that douteth is lyke the waues of the sea, tost with the winde and caryed with violence: Nether let that man thinke that he shal receaue any thing of the lord. A wauerynge mynded man is vnstable in al his wayes.
B Let the brother of lowe degre reioyce in that he is exalted, and the rich in that he is made lowe. For euen as the floure of the grasse shal he vanish awaye. The sunne riseth with heate, and the grasse witherreth, and his flower falleth awaye, and the bewtie of the fasshon of it perissheth: euen so shall the rich man perissh with his aboundaunce.

Happye is the man that endureth in temptacion, for whẽ he is tryed, he shal receaue the crowne of lyfe, whiche the Lorde hath promised to them that loue hym.

Let no man saye when he is temp- C ted that he is tempted of God. For God tempteth not vnto euell, neythere tempteth he any man. But euerye man is tempted, drawne awaye, and entised of his owne concupiscence. Then when lust hath conceaued, she bringeth forth sinne, and sinne when it is fynished bringeth forth death.

Erre not my deare brethren. Euery good gifte, and euery perfect gift is from aboue and commeth downe frõ the father of lyghte with whome is no variablenes, nether is he chaunged vnto darckenes. Of hys owne wyll begat hee vs wyth the worde of lyfe, that wee should be the first frutes of hys creatures.

Wherfore deare brethren, let euery man, be swift to heare, slow to speake and slowe to wrath. For the wrathe of D man, worketh not that which is righteous before god.

Wherfore laye apart al filthines, al superfluite of maliciousnes, ãd receaue wyth mekenes the worde that is graffed in you, which is able to saue youre soules.

And se that ye be doers of the worde and not hearers onely, deceauing youre owne selues with sophistrye. For, if any heare the worde, and doo it not, hee is lyke vnto a man that beholdeth his bodylye face in a glasse. For as sone as he hath looked on him selfe he goeth his waye and forgetteth immediatlye what his fasshion was. But who so loketh in the perfecte lawe of lybertie, and contynueth therin (if he be not a forgetful hearer hearer, but a doar of the worcke ye same shalbe happy in his dede.

If any man amonge you seme de-uout, and refrayne not his tonge: but deceaue hys owne hert, thys mannes deuocion is in vaine. Pure deuocion and unde-filed before god the father, is this: to visit the fatherles and widdowes in their aduersite, and to kepe hym self unspotted of the world.

a * Wound after the hebrues signifyeth hym, which in leauyng the wysdome of the chyldren of this worlde, and the procuring for his owne profet, lyueth a simple lyfe, and without blame. Suche a one was Jacob of whome Genes. xxv. b.

b * In Christ were all lyke good and euen seruauntes eche to other for Christes sake, euery man in his office. And he that taketh more on hym then that of whatsoeuer degre he be of, is a false Christen and an apostata from Christ.

c * God tempteth not unto euell. Almighty god hath euer tempted, and proued hys electe, by trouble and persecution, and by nurtering them wyth outward plages: neuer the les he doth it not unto euel, but for good namely, because he loueth them, and will haue their faith exercised. Thus tempted he Abraham Genes. xxii. And the Israelytes. Deu. viii. As for the temptacion that we praye in the Pater noster to be delyuerd from it is the lust and concupiscense of our flesh wherby we are entised unto euell.

C He forbyddeth to haue any respecte of persons, but to regarde the pore, as well as the ryche, to be louing and mercyful, and not to boaste of fayth where no dedes are: for it is but a dead fayth, where good workes folow not.

The. ii. Chapter.

a Brethren haue not the faith of oure Lorde Jesus Christ the Lorde of glory in respecte of persones. If ther come into youre company a man with a golden rynge and in goodly aparell, and ther come in also a pore man in vyle ray-mente, and ye haue a respecte to hym that weareth the gaye clothing, and saie unto him, Syt thou here in a good place: and saye unto the poore, stande thou there or sit here under mi fote stoll: are ye not parciall in youre selues, and haue iudged after euyll thoughtes?

Harken my deare beloued brethren.
Hath not God chosen the poore of this worlde, which are ryche in fayth, and hey-res of the kingdome whych he promy-sed to them that loue hym? But ye haue despysed the poore. Are not the ryche the which oppresse you, and they which dra-B we you before iudges? Do not they speake euil of that good name after which ye be named.

If ye fulfyll the royall lawe accordynge to the scripture which saith. Thou shalt loue thi neyghboure as thy selfe, ye do well. But yf ye regarde one person more then another, ye commyt synne, and are rebuked of the lawe, as transgressours.
Whosoeuer shal kepe the whole lawe, and yet fayle in one poynt, he is giltie in all.
For he that sayd. Thou shalte not commytt adulterye, sayd also: thou shalt not kyll.

Though thou do none adulterye, yet yf thou kyll, thou arte a transgressor of C the lawe. So speake ye, and so do, as they that shalbe iudged by the lawe of liber-tye. For ther shalbe iudgement merciles to him that sheweth no mercy, and mercy reioyseth agaynst iudgement.

What auayleth it my brethren, though a man saye he hath fayth, when he hath no dedes? * Can fayth saue him? If a brother or a sister be naked or destitute of dayly foode, and one of you saye unto them: departe in peace, god send you warmnes and foode: not wyth standinge ye geue them not those thinges which are nedful to the body: what helpeth it? Euen so fayth, yf it haue no dedes, is dead in it selfe.

Ye and a man might saie: thou hast fayth, and I haue dedes: shew me thi faith, by thy dedes: and I wil shewe the my faith by my dedes: Beleuest thou that ther D is one God? Thou doest wyll. The de-uils also beleue and tremble.

Wilt thou understande O thou vayne man that fayth without dedes is dead? b * Was not Abraham oure father iusti-fied thorow workes when he offered Isaac his sonne upon the aulter? Thou seyste that fayth wroughte wyth hys dedes, and through the dedes was the fayth made parfect: and the scripture was fulfylled whych sayeth: Abraham beleued God, and it was reputed unto hym for righteousnes, and he was called the freinde of God. * c * Ye se then how that of dedes a man is iustified and not of fayth only. Like wise also was not Raab the harlot iustified thorow workes, when she rece-aued the messingers, and sent them out another way? For as the body, without the spyrete is dead, euen so fayth without dea-des is dead.

a ❧ Can fayth saue hym? S. James speaketh not here of true fayth, which by loue is myghtye in operacyon, but of the vayne ymaginacion and opynyon ẏ vnthankful people haue of fayth, and therfore doth he call it dead faith, because theare folowe no good workes after, as there do of the faith that iustifieth in the syght of god.

b ❧ To be iustified here, and all thys Chapter ouer is, to be declared iust, and that before the world, as in Luke the. x. c. And the chyld, not to be made iuste in the syght of god. So that when he sayth, was not Abraham our father iustifyed thorow workes, &c. signifyeth thus much: he was not oure Father Abraham by his workes declared iust, that is, did not his workes declare and shew that he was iust, and were sure tokens of hys ryghtuousnes. It sygnifyeth not that Abraham, was by hys workes made iust before god, reputed rightuous, obtayned remission of synnes, for by fayth he came therby, not by workes, as wytnesseth saynt Paul. Rom. iiii. a.

c ❧ Ye se then that of dedes a man is iustifyed, &c. ẏ is, declared iust, is openlye knowen to be rightuous, euen as by the frutes, the good tre is knowen for good. Otherwyse maye not thys sentence bee interpreted. For there could be nothing be more folysh the this sayinge of saincte James, if a man would be thus interprete it that no man obtayneth remyssyon of synnes: but because hys workes are worthye of so great a benefyte. Thys interpretacion who so speketh forwardly by, vnderstandeth not what remyssion of synnes is, or how the conscience ought to be comforted when it feyth that it bryngeth no workes to god, which are suffycient to please hym. And this interpretacion is cleane contrary to other open sayinges of the scrypture, which teache that remyssyon of synnes commeth frely, as the Psalmyst sayeth. I sayde, I wyll knowledg myne offence and accuse my selfe vnto the Lord. And thou forgauest me the wickednes of my synne. And Rom. iiii. a. To hym that worketh not but beleueth on hym that iustifyeth ẏ vngodly &c. what can be more playnely spoken, than that synnes are forgeuen to a wicked and vngodlye manne that worketh not, that is, not for any of his workes but frely. To conclude, if the gospell forgeue not synnes but for our good workes sakes, for our worthines it differeth nothing from the lawe, it sayeth no more then the lawe. This I truste wyll suffice the good and wyse. For as touchinge them ẏ bring nothing vnto this cause, but a wyll to brawle and chyde, wyll neuer suffer them selues to be satisfied. And yet yf we wold contende by the number of auctorities, this one place of saint James is ouerthrowen with many wytnesses of Paul, if men wil vnderstande by iustificacion alone, ryghte in them both. Therfore when Paule saith, fayth iustifieth vnderstande therby, faith causeth ẏ we be couted iust, reputed rightwes, and ẏ our synnes are not imputed vnto vs, but forgeuen vs for Chrysts sake. When James sayth, ẏ workes iustyfye, he meaneth thus, workes declare vs iuste and shew euidently ẏ we are rightwes. Thus shalt thou make them acorde. Place forbiddeth me here (O reader) rather then true or wyl, els yet would I haue spoken more of thys thing.

❧ What good and euel cometh therow ẏ tonge. The dutie of such as be lerned. The difference betwene ẏ wisdome of ẏ Gospell and ẏ wysdome of the worlde.

❧ The .iii. Chapter

My brethren, be not euery man A a * master remembringe how that we shall receaue the more dampnacion: for in many thinges we synne al. If a man synne not in worde, the same is a parfecte man, and able to tame al the body. Beholde we put bittes into the horses mouthes that they shoulde obeye vs, and we turne aboute al the body. Beholde also the shyppes, which though they be so great, ad are driuen of fearce wides, yet are they turned aboute with a very smal helme, whither soeuer the violence of the gouernet wil. Euen so the tonge is a litel mēber, and bosteth great thinges. B Beholde how great a thinge a litle fyre kindleth, and the tonge is fire, and a world of wickednes. So is ẏ tonge set amonge oure membres, that it defyleth the whole bodye, and setteth a fyre all ẏ we haue of nature ⁊ is it selfe set a fyre euen of hell.
Al the natures of beastes, ād of birdes, and of serpentes, and thinges of the sea are meked and tamed of the nature of man. But the tonge can no mā tame.
It is an vnruely euil, ful of dedly poysō. C Therwith blesse we god ẏ father, ⁊ therwith curse we mē which are made after the similitude of god. Out of one mouthe procedeth blessinge and cursinge.
My brethren these thynges ought not so to be. Doth a fountaine send forth at one place swete water and bitter alsoe?
Can ẏ figge tre, my brethren, beare olive beries: other a vine beare figges? So cā no fountaine geue both salte water and freshe also. If any man be wise ⁊ endued wt learning amōge you let him shew ẏ workes of his good cōuersaciō, in mekenes that is coupled with * wisdome.
But iff ye haue bitter enuiing ⁊ strife in your hertes, reioyce not: nether be liers agaist ẏ trueth: this wisdō descendeth not from aboue: but is earthy, ⁊ * naturall, ⁊ deuelish. For where enuieng ⁊ strife is, there is vnstablenes ⁊ al maner of euell workes. But ẏ wysdō ẏ is frō aboue, is first pure, the peasable, gentle, ⁊ easy to be entreated, ful of mercy ⁊ good frutes wtout iudging, ⁊ wtout simulacion: yea, ⁊ ẏ frute of rightwesnes is sowen in peace, of them that meyntaine peace.

Naturall, ẏ is all that a man doth wtout the spirit of God.

* He that taketh auethoritie to rebuke other of y wherin he sinneth hymselfe, y same shall haue the greater damnacyon. he must be withoute synne y wyll caste the fyrst stone.
* wisdom. As mekenes & obedyence must be acordynge to the wysdome and worde of god.

Warre and fightyng commeth of voluptuousnes. The frendship of the worlde is enmyte before God. An exhortacyon to fle sclaunder and the vanyte of this lyfe.

The iiii. Chapter.

FRom whence commeth warre A and fighting amog you: come they not here hence? euen of your voluptuousnes, y raiggne in youre membres. Ye lust, and haue not. Ye enuy and haue in dignacion, and cannot obtayne . Ye fighte and warre and haue not, because ye aske not. Ye aske and receaue not, be cause ye aske a mysse: euen to consume it vpo your voluptuousnes. Ye aduou-trers, and wemen that breake matrymonye: knowe ye not howe that the frendship of the world is enmyte to godwarde.
Whosoeuer will be a freende of y worlde, is made the enemy of god. Ether do ye thinke that the scripture sayth i vayne, The * spyrite that dwelleth in you, lus-B teth euen contrary to enuye: but geueth more grace.
Submyt your selues to god, and resist the deuil, and he wil flye from you.
Drawe nie to God and he wil drawe nie to you. Clense your handes ye sinners, & pourge youre hertes ye wauering mynded. Suffer afflicciōs, sorow ye & wepe.
Let your laughter be turned to mornig, and your ioye to heuines. Cast doune your selues before the Lord, and he shal lifte you vp. Backbite not one another, brethren. He y * backbiteth his brother, & he that iudgeth his brother backbiteth y lawe. But and if thou iudge the lawe, thou arte not an obseruar of the lawe: but a iudge. There is one lawe geuer, which is able to saue & to destroye.
What arte thou that iudgest a nother C man.
Go to nowe ye that saye: to daie and to morow let vs go in to suche a citie ād continue there a yeare and bie and sel, & winne: ād yet can not tel what shal happen to morowe.
For what thinge is youre lyfe? It is euen a vapoure that apereth for a lytell tyme, and then vanissheth awaye: For y ye oughte to saye: yf the Lorde will and yf we lyue, let vs do this or y. But now ye reioyce in your boastynges. All suche reioysynge is euyll. * Therfore to him y knoweth how to do good, & doth it not, to hym it is synne.

The notes.

Chrystes spirite (which is in all that be his. Roma. viii.) resisteth hate, enuye and all synne, whose mocion if we folowe, grace encreaseth in vs, and sinnes minishe, and therfore he sayth submit your selues to god.
* He that backbiteth or iudgeth hys brother doth iudge the law to be euell for the law forbiddeth to do so
* He that knoweth and yet doth not is without excuse. For god hath promised no mercye, but to hym that wyll do h.s godly wyll.

He threateneth the wicked riche men, exhorteth vnto pacience, to beware of swearinge, one to knowledge his fautes to another, one to pray for an other, & one to laboure to bringe another to y trueth.

GO to now ye ryche mē. Wee-pe, and howle on your wret- A chednes that shal come vp-on you. Youre ryches is cor rupte, youre garmentes are moth eaten. Youre golde and youre syluer are cākred, & the ruste of them shal be a wytnes vnto you, & shall eate you re fleshe as it were fyre. Ye haue heaped treasure to gether in your last day-es. Behold y hyre of the labourers whiche haue reped doune your feldes (which hyre is of you kept backe by fraude) cryeth: and the cryes of them which haue reped, are entred vnto the eares of y Lord Sabbaoth. Ye haue lyued in pleasure on the earth & in wantannes. Ye haue noryshed youre hertes, as in a daye of * slaughter. Ye haue condempned and haue killed the iust and he hath not resysted you.
Be pacient therfore brethren, vnto the commynge of the Lord. Beholde y hus- B band man wayteth for the precious fru-te of the earth, & hath long pacience ther vppon, vntyll he receue * the early and the latter rayne. Be ye also pacient therfore and settle your hertes, for the comminge of the Lorde draweth nye. Grudge not one against another brethren, lest ye be dampned. Beholde the iudge stan-deth before y dore. Take (my brethren) y Prophetes for an ensample of suffering aduersitie, & of long pacience, which spake in the name of the Lorde.

Beholde we counte them happy which endure. Ye haue hearde of the pacience of Job, and haue knowen what ende ÿ Lorde made. For the Lord is very pitifull and mercyfull.

D But aboue al thinges my brethrē, sweare not, nether by heauen, nether by earth, nether by eny other othe. Let youre *yee be yee, & your naye, nay: lest ye faule into ypocrysy. If any of you be euell vexed, let hym praye. If any of you be mery, let him synge Psalmes. If any be diseased amonge you, let hym cal for the congregaciō, & let thē pray ouer hī, & anoynte hī wyth oyle in the name of the Lorde: and  the prayer of fayth shal saue the sycke, and the Lorde shal rayse him vp: and yf he haue cōmytted synnes, they shalbe forgeuen hym.

† Knowledge youre fautes one to another: ād praye one for another, that ye may be healed. The prayer of a ryghtwis man auaileth much if it be feruent. Helias was a man mortal euen as we are, & he prayed in his prayer that it might not rayne: and it rained not on ÿ earthe by the space of thre yeares and sixe monethes. And he praied againe, and ÿ heauen gaue raine, and the earth broughte forth her frutes.

Brethren if any of you erre from the trueth and another conuert him, let the same knowe that he which conuerted ÿ synner from goynge astraye out of hys waye, shal saue a soule from death, and shal hyde the multitude of synnes.

¶ The ende of the epistle of Saincte James.

The notes.

* Slaughter as when men kyll beastes to make chere wyth all, and as the Jewes did in theyr thanke offeringes &c.

* Two speciall raynes haue they, the one at sowinge tyme, & the other at blowinge tyme, of which if they lacke eyther, all is frutelesse.

* Whether ye saye ye or naye, let it be so. For yf ye haue one thinge in the herte, and another in the mouth or dede, in defaute of gastlyness is ypocrisye or dissimulacyon.

 And the prayer of faith &c. Note the prayer of fayth ascrybeth he the obtaynynge and saluacion, not vnto the anoynting nor to the oyle. Among the Jewes vnto which S. James wrote thys epistle, it was the maner to anoynte the body with oyle, which thing Christ cōmaundeth his apostles to do: & oyle, vnto many diseases, is a wholsome medecine. We, when such annoynting is not in vse, may vnder ÿ name of oyle, vnderstand the office & dutie of charitie in ministryng vnto ÿ sicke, such thinges as he nedeth.

The Epistle of Saincte Judas.

¶ He rebuketh such as being blynded wt their owne lustes, resyst the truth &, ÿ we maye know them the better, he saith they be such as synne bestlye againste nature, & despise rulers &c. He exhorteth vs to edifye one an other to pray in the holy goste to continu in loue to loke for the commynge of the Lorde, & one to helpe and other out of the fyre.

Beloued, when I gaue al dilygence to write vnto you of the common saluacyon: it was nedefull for me to write vnto you, to exhorte you, that ye shuld continually labour in the fayth whiche was ones geuen vnto the saintes. For there are certayne craftely crepte in, of whiche it was written afore tyme vnto such iudgement. They are vngodly and turne ÿ grace of our Lorde god vnto wantonnes, and denye god the onely Lord, and our Lorde Jesus Christ.

My minde is therfor to put you in remembraunce, for as muche as yee ones knowe this howe that the Lorde (after Num. xiii. B that he had delyuered the people oute of Egipt) * destroyed thē which afterward beleued not. The angels also, which as Sodome and Gomor, and the cytyes about them (which in lyke maner defyled them selues with fornicacyon, and folowed * straunge fleshe) are set forth for an ensample, and suffre the vengeaunce of eternal fyre. Lykewise these dreamers defyle the flesh, despise rulers and speake euell of them that are in auctorytye. C

Yet Michael the Archangel when he stroue agaynste the deuill, and disputed about the bodye of Moyses, durste not geue raylinge sentence: but sayd: the lorde rebuke thee. But these speake euell of those thinges which they knowe not: & what

C These are murmurers, complayners, walkynge after their awne lustes, whose mouths speake proude thynges. They haue men i greate reuerence because of a vauntage. I John youre brother and companion in tribulacion, ād in the kingdome and pacience whiche is in Jesu Christe, was in ÿ yle of Pathmos for ÿ worde of God, & for the witnessig of Jesu Christ. I was in the sprete on a sonday, & herd behind me a greate voice, as it had bene of a trompet saieng: I am Alpha and Omega, the fyrst and the laste. That &

selfe wryte in a boke, & sende it vnto ÿ vii congregacions which are in Asya vnto Ephesus, and vnto Smyrna, and vnto Thiatira, and vnto Sardis, and vnto Philadelphia, and vnto Laodicia.

And I turned backe to se the voyce that spake vnto mee. And when I was turned, I sawe seuen golden can-D delstikes, and in the myddest of the candelstikes one lyke vnto the sonne of mā, clothed with a lynen garment, downe to the grounde, and gird about the pappes with a golden girdle. His head and hys heares were whyte, as whyte wolle, and as snowe: and hys eyes were as a flamme of fyre, and his feete like vnto brasse, as though they brente in a fornace: and hys voyce as the sounde of manye waters. And he had in hys righte hand, vii starres. And out of hys mouthe wente a sharpe two edged sweard. And hys face shone euen as the sunne in hys strength.

¶ He exhorteth foure congregations to amend, and sheweth the rewardes of hym that ouercommeth.

¶ The. ii. Chapter

B Unto the messenger of the cōgregacion of Ephesus, wryte these thinges, sayth he ÿ holdeth the seuen starres in hys righte hande and walketh in the myddes of the seuen golden candelstickes: I know thy workes and thy laboure, and thy pacience & how thou canst not forbeare them whyche are euil, ād examinedste them which say they are Apostles, and are not: and hast found them lyers and diddest suffre thy selfe. C After thys I behelde, and lo a great multitude (whiche no man coulde num-

The notes.

✝ Angel is a greke word and signifieth a messenger.
And al ẏ Angels are called messengers, because they are sent from God to man on message: euē so prophetes, preachers and the prelates of ẏ churche, are cal led Angelles: that is to say messengers, because theyr office is to bringe the message of God vnto ẏ people.
The good angelles here in this boke are the true bisshoppes and preachers, and the euel angels are the heretykes and false prophetes which euer falsifye gods worde, wyth which the churche of Christ shal-be thus myserably plaged vnto the ende of ẏ world, as is paynted in these fygures.

¶ The seuenth seale is opened, ther is silēnce, i heuen, ẏ foure Angels blowe their trompettes, & great plages folow vpon the earth

AND when he had opened the seuenth seale, ther was sylē- A ce in heauen about the space of half an hour. And I saw angels standing befor god/and to them were geuen seuen trompet-tes. And another angell came, and stode before ẏ aulter hauing a golden sencer, & much of odoures was geuen vnto him/that he should offre of the prayers of all saincts, vpon the golden aulter, whiche was before the seate. And the smoke of the odoures whiche came of the prayers B of al Sainctes ascended vp before God, out of the angels hand. And the Angell toke the censer and fylled it wyth fyre of the aulter, and cast it into the earthe, and voyces were made, and thundringes, ād lightenynges, and earthquake.
And the seuen angels whiche had the .vii. trompettes prepared them selues to blowe. The fyrst angell blewe, and there was much hayle and fyre, which were mī-gled with bloud and they were cast into the earth: and the thyrde parte of trees was brente, and all greane grasse was brent. And the second Angell blewe: and as it were a great mountayne burninge wyth

with fyre was caste into the sea, and the thirde parte of þ sea tourned to bloude, and the thyrd parte of þ creatures whiche had lyfe/dyed, and the thirde part of shippes were destroyed.

D And the thirde Angel blewe, and ther fel a greet starre from heauen burning as it were a lampe/and it fell into the thirde parte of the ryuers, and into fountaines of waters, and the name of the starre is called wormwod: & þ third part was turned to wormwod. And many men died of the waters because they were made bytter. And the fourth Angel blew, & þ thirde parte of þ sunne was smitten, ād þ thirde parte of the moone, and the third parte of starres: so that the third parte of thē was darkened. And þ daye was smytten þ the thyrde part of it shulde not shyne, & lyke wise the nyght. And J behelde & herde an Angell flying thorow the myddes of heauen, sayinge with a lowde voice: Woo, woo, woo to þ inhabiters of þ erth, because of the voyces to come of the trompe of the .iii. Angels which were yet to blowe.

The fifth & syxte Angel blewe their trompettes, þ starre falleth from heauen: the locustes come out of þ smoke. The fyrst woo is paste: þ foure Angels that were bounde are lowsed, & the third part of mē is kylled.

The .ix. Chapter.

A And the fyft Angell blewe, & sawe a starre fall from heauē vnto þ erth. And to him was geuen the kaye of the bottōlesse pyt. And he opened the bottomlesse pyt/and ther arose þ smoke of a great fornace. And the sun and the ayer were darckned by the reason of the smoke of þ pyt. And there cāe out of the smoke locustes vpō the earth, and vnto them was geuen power as the scorpiōs of the earth haue power. And it was commaunded thē, that they shulde not hurt the grasse of the erth: nether any grene thynge: nether any tree: but only those men which haue not the seale in their forheades. And to thē was commaunded that they shuld not kil thē, but that they shulde be vexed .v. monethes, and their payne was as the payne that cometh of a scorpion, when he hath stonge a man. And in those dayes shall mē seake death, and shall not finde it, & shal desyre to dye, and deathe shall flye frō them.

B And the symilitude of þ locustes was like vnto horsses prepared vnto battail, and on theyre heades were as it were crounes, lyke vnto golde: and their faces were as it had bene the faces of mē. And they had hearre as þ hearre of wemen. And their teeth were as the teeth of lyons. And they had habbergions as it were habbergions of yron, and the sounde of charettes when many horsses runne to gether to battayle. And they had tayles lyke vnto scorpyons, and there were stynges i their tailes. And their power was to hurt mē .v. monethes. And they had a kyng ouer them, which is þ angell of the bottomles pyt, whose name in the Hebrew tong is Abadon: but i the Greke tong, Apollion. One woo is past, and behold two woos come after this.

Abadon/Apollion, that is to saye a destroier

And the syxte Angel blewe, and J herde a voyce from the .iiii. corners of þ golden aulter, which is before God, saying to the syxte Angel, which had þ trōpe: Loose the .iiii. Angelles which are bounde in the greate ryuer Euphrates. C
And the .iiii. Angelles were losed which were prepared for an houre, for a daye/for a moneth, and for a yeare, for to slea the .iii. part of men. And the numbre of horsmē of warre were .xx. tymes .x. M. & J herde the numbre of them: and thus J sawe the horses in a vision, and them þ satt on thē, hauyng fyry habbergions of a Jacincte coloure/ and brimstonne, and the heades of the horses were as þ heades of lions.

And out of their mouthes went forth fyre and smoke and brimston: and of these thre was the .iii. Parte of men kylled/that is to say of fyre ād smoke and brimstone, which procedid out of þ mouthes, and theyr tayles were lyke vnto Serpentes, and had heedes, and with them they did hurte: And the remnaunte of þ men which were not kylled by these plages repented not of the dedes of theyre handes, that they should not worshippe Deuelles an Jmages of goulde, and syluer, and brasse, and stone, and of D

wood which nether can se, nether heare, nether go. Also they repented not of ther murther, and of theyr sorcery, nether of their fornicacion nether of theyr thefte.

The angel hath the boke open: he sweareth þ there shalbe no more tyme, he geueth þ boke vnto John which eateth it vp.

The .x. Chapter.

A AND I sawe another mighty angell come down from he-auen clothed with a cloude, and the raynebowe vppon hys heade. And his face as it were the sunne/ ād hys fete as it were pyllers of fire, and he had in his hande a lytle boke open: & he put his right fo-te vpon the sea, and his lyft foote on the earth. And cried with a loude voyce, as when a lyon roareth. And when hee had cryed/seuen thunders spake theyr voyces. And when the seauen thunders had B spoken theyr voyces, I was aboute to wryte. And I herde a voyce from heauē sayinge vnto me, seale vp those thinges which the vii. thunders spake, and wryte them not.
And the aungell which I saw stand vp on the sea, and vppon the earth, lyfte vp his hande to heauen, and sware by him that lyueth for euermore, whiche created heauen, and the thinges that therin are, and the sea, and the thinges which ther-C in are, that there should be no lenger tyme: but in the dayes of the voyce of the seuenth angel, when he shall beginne to blowe: euen the mistery of god shalbe fynished as he preached by hys seruauntes the Prophetes.
And the voyce which I herde from heauen spake vnto me agayne and sayde: *
go, and take the lytle boke which is opē in the hande of the angel which standeth vpon the sea, and vpon the earthe. And I wente vnto the aungell, and sayde to hym: geue me the lytle boke, and he say D de vnto mee: take it, and eate it vp, and it shal make thy belly bytter, but it shall bee in thy mouth as swete as hony. And I toke the lytle boke out of his hande, & eate it vp, & it was in my mouth as swete as hony, & as sone I had eaten it my bely was bitter, and hee sayde vnto me: þ must prophecy againe among the people: and nacions, and tonges and to many kinges.

The temple is measured. The ii woo is past.

The .xi. Chapter.

AND then was geuen me a re- A de, like vnto a rod, & it was sayde vnto me: Ryse & mea-te the temple of God, and þ aulter, and them þ worship therin, and the quere which is wt in the tēple, cast out and meate it not: for it is geuen vnto the Gentyles, & þ holy cytie shall they treade vnder foote. xlii. mone-thes: ād I wyl geue power vnto my two wytnesses, & they shall prophesy a thousand/two hundred and lx. daies, clothed in sack cloth. These are two olyue trees, and two candelstyckes, standinge before the God of the earth.
And yf any mā wyl hurt thē, fire shal procead out of their mouthes, and consume their enemies. And yf any man will hurt thē thys wyse muste he be kylled. These haue power to shut heauen, that it rayne B not in the daies of their prophesieng: And haue power ouer waters to turne them to bloud, and to smyte the earth wt all manner plages, as oftē as they wyl.
And when thy haue fynyshed their testimony, the beast that came oute of þ bottomlesse pyt, shall make warre agaynst them and shal ouercome them, and kylle them. And their bodyes shall lye i the stretes of the great cytie, wich spiritually is called Zodom & Egypte, where our Lorde was crucifyed.
And they of the people, and kinreds, ād tonges, and they of the nacions shal see theyr bodyes .iii. dayes and an halfe, and shall not suffre their bodyes to be put in graues: and they that dwel vpō þ earth shall reioyce ouer theym/and be gladde, and shal sende giftes one to another for these to Prophetes, vexed thē that dwele on earth.
And after iii. dayes and an half, the C sprete of lyfe from God, entred into thē.
And they stode vp vpon their fete: and great feare came vpon them which saw them. And they herde a great voice frō heauen, sayinge vnto them, Come vp hydder. And they ascended vp into heauen in a cloude, and their enemyes sawe them. And the same houre was ther a great earthquake, & þ tenth parte of the cytie

cytie fel, & in the earthquake were slaine names of men seuen. M. and the remnaunt were feared, and gaue glory to god of he= D auen. The second woo is past, & beholde the thirde woo wil come anone. And the seuenth angel blewe/ & there were made great voyces in heauen, sayeng: the kyngdo= mes of this world are oure lordes & hys Christes, & he shal raigne for euer more.
And ye .xxiiii. elders, which sit befor god on their seates, fel vpon there faces: and worshipped god saiyng: we geue ye than= kes Lorde god almightye: which arte and wast, and arte to come/ for thou hast re= ceaued thy great might and hast rayg= ned. And the nacions were angry, & thy wrath is come, and the time of ye deade yt they shulde be iudged, and that thou shul= dest geue rewarde vnto thy seruauntes the Prophetes and Saintes, & to them yt feare thy name smal and great and shul= dest destroy them, which destroy ye earth.
And the temple of God was opened in heauen, and ther was seene in his temple the arcke of his testament: and there fo= lowed lyghtenynges, and voyces/ and thondrynges and earthquake, and much hayle.

The seuenth angel, bloweth his trompet. There appeared in heauen a woman clothed with ye sunne: Michael fyghteth wyth the dragon, which persecuteth the woman.

The .xii. Chapter.

A And there appeared a great wonder in heauen: A woman clothed with the sunne, and the moone vnder her fete, & vpon her head a crowne of .xii. starres. And she was with childe, and cryed trauelyng in byrth, and payned re= dy to be delyuered. And ther appeared a= nother wonder in heauen, for beholde a great red dragon hauynge seuen hea= des, and ten hornes and crounes vpon his heades: and hys tayle drue ye thyrde parte of the starres, and cast them to ye earth.
B And the dragon stode before the wo= man, which was ready to be delyuered: for to deuoure her childe as sone as it were borne. And she brought forth a man childe, which shulde rule all nacyons wt a rode of yron.
And her sonne was taken vp vnto God and to his seate. And the woman fled in to wyldernes, wher she had a place pre= pared of God that thei shuld feade her there a .M. ii. hundred and .lx. dayes.
And ther was a great battayl in he= auen, Michaell and his Angels fought G with the dragon, and the dragon fought and his angles, and preuayled not: ne= ther was their place founde any more in heauē. And the great dragon, that olde serpente called the deuyll and Satha= nas was cast out. Which deceaueth al ye worlde. And he was cast into ye earth and hys angelles were cast out also.
And I hearde a lowde voyce sayin= ge: in heauen is now made saluacyon & strengthe & ye kyngdome of oure God/and the power of his Christ. For he is cast doune which accused them before God daye and nyght. And they ouerca= me him by the bloud of the lambe, and by the worde of their testimony, & they lo= ued not their lyues vnto ye death. Ther= D fore reioyce heauens/ and ye that dwelle in them. Wo to the inhabiters of the earth, and of the sea: for the deuyl is cō= doun vnto you which hath great wrath because hee knoweth that he hathe but short tyme.
And when the dragon sawe, that he was cast vnto the earth, he persecuted ye woman, which brought forth ye man chyl= de. And to ye womā were geuē two wyn= ges of a great egle, that she myght flye into the wildernes, into her place, where she is nourished for a time, tymes, & hal= fe a time, from the presēce of the serpēt.
And the dragon cast out of hys mouthe water after the woman as it had be= ne a ryuer, because she shuld haue bene caught of ye flood. And ye earth holped ye woman, & the earth opened her mouth & swalowed vp ye ryuer, which ye dragon cast out of his mouth. And the dragon was wroth with the woman: and went and made warre with ye remnaunt of hyr sede, which kepe the commaundemen= tes of god/ and haue the testimony of Je= sus Christ. And I stode on ye sea sande.

A beast ryseth out of ye sea wyth seuen heades and ten hornes. Another beast commeth out of the earth with two hornes.

AND I sawe a beast ryse out of the sea, hauing seuē hea-des, and ten hornes, and vp 3 on hys hornes. x. crownes, & vpon his heade the name of blasphemy. And the beaste which I sawe was lyke a catte of the mountayne, and hys feete were as the fete of a beare, & his mouth as the mouth of a lyon: and ẏ dragon gaue him his power and hys se-ate, and great auctoritie, and I sawe one of his heades as it were wounded to death, and hys deadly wound was healed. And al the worlde wondred at the beaste, and they worshipped the dragon whych gaue power vnto the beaste, and they worshypped the beast sayeng: who is like vnto ẏ beast? who is able to war-B re with hym?
And ther was geuen vnto him a mouth that spake greate thinges and blasphemyes, and power was geuen vnto hym/to do. xlii. monethes. And he opened his mouth vnto blasphemye agaynste god to blaspheme hys name and hys tabernacle/ and them that dwell in heauen.
And it was geuē vnto hi to make war-re wyth the Saynctes, ād to ouercome them. And power was geuen hym ouer all kinred, tonge, and nacion. and all ẏ C dwell vppon the earthe worshipped him: whose names are not written in the boke of lyfe of the lambe, which was killed frō the beginninge of the world. If any mā haue an eare let him heare: * he that ledeth into captiuitie, shall go into capti-uitie: * he that kylleth wt a swearde must be kylled with a swearde. Here is the pa cience/ and the fayth of ẏ saynctes And I behelde another beaste com-ming vp out of the earth, and he had two hornes lyke a lambe, and he spake as did the dragon. And he did all that the first beaste coulde do, in his presence, and he caused the earth and them which dwell therin, to worship the fyrste beaste, whose deadly wounde was healed, ād he did greate wonders, so that he made fyre come downe from heauen in the sighte of men, And deceaued them that dwelte in D the earth by the meanes of those sygnes whych he had power to do i the syght of the beast, sayinge to them ẏ dwell on ẏ earth: that they should make an ymage, vnto the beast, which had the wound of a swerde, and did lyue.
And he had power to geue a spirete to ẏ beast/ and ẏ the image of the beast shuld speake, and shuld cause that as many as wolde not worship the image of the beast shulde be killed. And he made al both smal and great, riche and pore, fre and bonde, to receaue a marke in their right handes or in their forheades. And that no man myght bie or sel, saue he ẏ had ẏ marke or ẏ nāe of the beast, other ẏ nom ber of his name. Here is wisdome. Let him that hath wyt counte the nombre of the beast: For it is the nomber of a man, and his nomber is sixe hundreth three score and syxe.

By this tyme are figured false prophetes, as to saye, Esay. ii. c

C The Angels poure out their vialles ful of wrath

AND I herde a greate voice out of the temple sayenge to the.vii. Angels: go youre wayes, powre out your vyalles of wrath vpō yͤ earth.
And the first went, and powred out his vial vpon the earth / and there fel anoysome and sore botche vpon the manne, which had the marke of the beast, ād vp-on them which worshipped the image.
And the seconde angel shed out his viall vpon the sea, ād it turned as it were into the bloude of a dead man: and eue-ry liuyng thinge died in the sea.

And the thirde angell shed oute his vy-all/ vpon the ryuers and fountaynes of waters, and they turned to bloude. And B I herde an angel saye: Lorde which art and wast, thou art righteous and holy, because thou haste geuen such iudgemētes, for they shed oute the bloude of saic-tes and prophetes, and therfor hast thou geuen them bloude to drinke: for they are worthy: and I hearde another oute of the aulter saye: euen so Lord God al-migtie true and righteous are thy iudgementes.

And the fourth angel poured out hys vyal on the sonne/ and power was geuē vnto hym to vexe menne with heate of fyre. And the men raged in greate heate and spake euell of the name of god, which hathe power ouer those plages, and they repented not to geue hym glorye, of theyr sores/ and repented not of their dedes.

C And the sixte angel poured out hys vial, vpon the great ryuer Euphrates & the water dryed vp that the wayes of the kinges of the easte shoulde be prepared.
And I sawe thre vncleane spretes lyke frogges, come oute of the mouthe of the Dragon, and oute of the mouthe of the beast, and out of the mouthe of the false prophet. For they are the spretes of Deuels, working myracles, to go out vnto the kinges of the earth, and of the whole worlde, to gather them to the battell of that great god almightye. Beholde I

And the seuenth Angell poured oute D his vyall into the ayre. And there came a voyce out of heauen from the seat, sayinge: it is done, and ther folowed voyces, thondringes, ād lyghtenynges/ and ther was a great earthquake, suche as was not sene sence men were vpō ÿ earth, so mighty an earthquake & so great: & the great cytie was deuided into thre partes, and the cities of al nacions fel. And great Ba-bilon came in remembraunce before god, to geue vnto her the cuppe of the wyne of the fearsenes of his wrath. Euery yle fled awaye, and the mountaynes were not it had bene talentes, out of heauen vpō men, and the men blasphemed God: because of the plage of the haile/ for it was great and the plage of it sore.

A. He describeth ÿ woman syttinge vpon ÿ beaste with ten hornes.

¶ The. xvii. Chapter.

And ther came one of the seuen Angels, which had ÿ seuen vialles: and talked with A me, sayeng vnto me: come I wyl shewe thee the iudgemēt of the great whore that sitteth vpō many waters, wt whome haue cōmitted for-nicacion the kinges of the earth, so that the inhabiters of the earth, are dronken with the wyne of her fornicacion. And he caried me away into the wildernes in ÿ sprete. And I sawe a woman sit vpon a rose colored beast full of names of blasphemy, which had ten hornes. And ÿ woman was arayed in purple and rose colour and decte with golde, precious stone, and pearles, and had a cuppe of golde in her hande, full of abhominacions ād filthines of her fornicacion. And in her B forhed was a name wrytten, a mystery, great Babilon the mother of whordom, and abhominacion of ÿ earthe. And I sawe the wife dronken with the bloud of saic-tes, ād wt the bloud of the wytnesses of Jesu. And when I sawe her: I wondred with great merueyle.

And the Angel sayde vnto me: wherfore maruaylest thou? I wyll shew thee the mistery of the woman, and of ÿ beast that beareth her, which hath seuē heades and ten hornes. The beast that ÿ sawest, was, and is not, and shall ascende out of the bottomles pyt, and shal go into perdicion, ād they that dwel on ÿ earth shal wonder (whose names are not wrytten in the boke of lyfe from ÿ begynnyng of ÿ worlde) when they behold the beast that was, and is not. And here is a mynd that C hath wisdome.

The seuen heades are seuen moun-taynes taines on which the woman sitteth: they are also seuen kinges. Fyue are fallen, & one is, and another is not come. Whē he cōmeth, he must cōtinew a space. And the beast that was, & is not, is euen the eyght, and is one of the seue, and shal go into destructiō. And ẏ ten hornes which thou seest, are the kinges, which haue re-ceyued no kyngedome, but shall receyue power as kynges at one houre wyth the beaste. These haue one mynde, and shal geue their pow er and strength vnto the beast. These shall fight with the lambe, 1.Timo.vi.c & the lambe shall ouercome them.* For he is Lorde of Lordes, and kinge of kin ges: and they that are on his side, are cal-D led, and chosen and faythfull.

And he sayde vnto me: the waters which thou sawest, where the whore sitteth, are people, & folke and naciōs, and tonges. And the ten hornes, which thou sawest vpon the beast, are they that shal hate ẏ whore, & shall make her desolate and naked, and shal eate her fleshe and burne her wyth fyre. For God hath put in theyr hertes to fulfyl hys wyl, and to do with one consent, for to geue her kingdome vnto the beaste, vntill the wor-des of God be fulfylled. And the womā which thou sawest, is that greate citye, which rayngneth ouer the kynges of the earthe.

¶ The louers of the worlde are sory for the fall of Babylon, but they that be of God, haue cause to reioyse for her destruccyon.
